HISTORICAL MANUSCRIPTS COMMISSION.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE EARL OF WESTMORLAND, C.B., AT APETHORPE, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE. EARL WESTMORLAND'S MSS.

Lord Westmorland has sent up for the Commissioners' inspection some Volumes of his MSS., consisting of State documents, original letters, miscellaneous papers, and some ancient copies (in many cases contemporaneous) of other documents.

Among the most interesting of the volumes is one lettered "Important State Documents, temp. Elizabeth," which contains, among other papers, some letters connected with Mary Queen of Scots, a fragmentary treatise of the Exchequer, a summary of Subsidies from 1067 to 1538, and several other State Papers, both foreign and domestic.

Another volume entitled "A Collection of curious letters and documents connected with the Westmorland family," lettered from A. to K., contains, under letter C., some letters from William Pitt the younger, on the subject of his candidature for Cambridge University in 1779, for which, however, he was not returned. Under the same letter is a list of members of Cambridge University who were friends of Lord Westmorland in 1776, commencing with Pitt of Pembroke and ending with Affleck of Magdalen.

In the collection lettered H. are the following:—A letter from Thomas, Lord Fairfax in 1649 to the Committee of the West Riding of Yorkshire. A pass signed by the Lord Protector, two letters from the Duke of Marlborough, from the camps at Assenlen and Great Heppach, addressed to Lord Westmorland. A warrant under the sign manual of Prince George of Denmark appointing Thomas sixth Earl of Westmorland one of the gentlemen of his bed chamber, and letters from the Earl of Sunderland, Lord Godolphin, Mr. Stanhope, and others. In the same collection also are copies of two letters from Queen Anne, dated in 1714, to the Electress Sophia of Hanover and to the Electoral Prince, afterwards King George II., protesting against Prince George's design of coming to England; there is also a copy of a letter from the Earl of Oxford to the Elector, after the refusal of the writ of summons to the Prince as Duke of Cambridge; among other letters worthy of note in this volume is one dated December 1720, from William Mildmay to the Earl of Westmorland, giving a long account of the state of Italy, in which country he was travelling; in the collection lettered K., the most interesting letter is one dated September 29th, 1675, from Father Coleman, a Jesuit, giving a minute and lengthy account of the intrigues carried on by the Jesuits to increase the power of the Roman Catholic Church in England.

Mildmay, second Earl of Westmorland, printed in 1648 a volume of poetry entitled "Otia Sacra," and among the papers here reported on is a manuscript volume of Latin and English verses, epigrams, and acrostics, chiefly of the period of the Interregnum, and written probably by the Earl himself: none are of great interest, the best being perhaps one called "a ballet," and commencing "Owld Oliver's gon, Owld Oliver's gon Ohone, Ohone." This song is given in full in the Appendix to the Report P.

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

There is also a holograph volume of the memoirs of Thomas sixth Earl of Westmorland, containing much interesting information, not only of the Fane family and of Earl Thomas himself, but also of the history of the time in which he lived; he having been a great intimate of Prince George of Denmark, and one of his gentlemen of the bedchamber.

The remaining original MSS. are: two volumes of the Journals of Maria, wife of John third Earl of Clarendon, made whilst she and her husband were travelling in France, Italy, Switzerland, and Austria, in the years 1791 and 1802-3.

By reason of her rank Lady Clarendon was brought into connexion with many of the celebrated people of the time, including Princes Camille and Jules de Rohan, Princess Santa Croce, Cardinal Bernis, Princess Joseph of Monaco, the Duchess de Fleury, the Duke and Duchess of Fitz-James, Chevalier de Puis-Segur, the Marquis de Coigny, M. de Narbonne, Mme. de Staël, M. and Mme. Neckar, Lavater, Talma the tragedian, the Duke de Mailly, Mme. Tallien, David the painter, the Emperor and Empress of Austria, the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, and the Duchess of Wurtemburgh. Lady Clarendon describes graphically and lucidly the effect of her intercourse with these people as well as their personal appearance. Extracts from these volumes will be found in the Appendix.

The principal volume of copies is docketed on the back "Collection of "important State and other documents," and contains a very miscellaneous and interesting number of letters, verses, accounts, and other papers, most of them being of the commencement of the seventeenth century.

At fol. 6a is a copy of warrant from the County Magistrate, dated 1603, to the Constables and Borsholders of the hundred of Twyford in Kent as to the levying of a special rate in the hundred for the relief of the sufferers by the plague in the hundreds of Larkfield, and Littlefield, and indeed most of the papers in this and the succeeding volumes would be interesting and valuable to Kentish men, as the chief and most favoured seat of the Westmorland family and their founder was for many years Mereworth Castle, in that county.

In the same volume (folios 62 and 63) are several papers connected with the claim of Dame Mary Fane, the only child and heir of Henry Neville, Lord Abergavenny, to the Dignity of Abergavenny in 1604, including her petition to the King claiming the title. Edward Neville, who, as heir male of Henry Neville, Lord Abergavenny, then lately deceased, had succeeded to the territorial Barony of Abergavenny, also claimed the Dignity.

Dame Mary Fane was also the Senior Coheir to the Barony of Le Despenser, but no claim to that Dignity had been preferred, and Edward Neville, although descended from the Lords le Despenser, was not a Coheir to that Barony. The House of Lords finally decided in favour of the right of Edward Neville to the Barony of Abergavenny, and King James immediately afterwards determined the abeyance of the Barony of Le Despenser in favour of Dame Mary Fane.

A large number of important papers relative to the claims to these Baronies, which were collected for Sir Thomas Fane, the husband of Dame Mary Fane, are to be found among the Harleian MSS. at the British Museum.

The same volume also contains at fol. 107 the proceedings in 1610 in the question of precedence between Edward Lord Bergavenny and Mary Lady Le Despenser.

Some of the most interesting papers relate to the creation of the new title of honour of Baronet by King James, and among them is a long account, at folio 120, of the proceedings before the King upon the two questions ; first, whether Baronets should be taken to be of the same rank as Knights Bannerets, and second, whether they should have precedence of Barons' younger sons. The speeches and arguments of the new Baronets and of Peers and others present at what must have been a very disorderly meeting, are given almost verbatim.

The volume also contains "A plaine and trewe relation of those things observed in my Lord's sicknes since his going to the Bath," being a most minute account of the last illness and death of Robert (Cecil) Earl of Salisbury, written by a person who accompanied him, probably Mr. Bowle, his chaplain, as the writer appears certainly to have been a clergyman.

A similar letter, though not so detailed, is printed in Sir Ralph Winwood's "Memorials" (London, 1725, v. iii., p. 367), and is from Mr. Fynett to Mr. Trumbull, dated from Hatfield on May 28th, 1612.

At folio 137 is a copy of the Will of the same Earl of Salisbury.

There are also accounts of the trials, dying speeches, and executions of traitors and persons engaged in the conspiracies and rebellions of the early part of the seventeenth century, such as the Essex and Gunpowder plots, &c. Among them being, at folio 65, the arraignment of Henry Garnett, Superior of the Jesuits in England, in March, 1606, and his execution in the May following ; the confession of Thomas Duke of Norfolk, on Tower Hill, in 1572, at folio 222 ; and the speeches and confessions of Danvers, Blunt, Raleigh, Brooke, and Ellways at folios 225 to 230a. There are several other copies of interesting documents, to which reference will be found in the Appendix, particularly one at folio 42 of the volume docketed "Political and historical documents," which is an amusing letter in verse on the principal performances at the playhouses then in town.

The Collection includes the following Manuscripts:—

A volume lettered "Important State Documents, temp. Eliz." contains copies of several State Papers and other documents belonging chiefly to the reigns of Elizabeth and her two immediate successors. Many of these papers are to be seen in the collections of Haynes and Murdin, and have been used by various historians. The following is a list of the documents contained in the volume:—

"At the laste hearinge of the baronetts before the Kinge and his Councill his Majestie began in this maner.

'Wee cannot proceede withowte confusion excepte wee begin where wee left,' and soe descended to an exacte recapitulation of what had been don before, which was

That the baronetts had been hearde the firste daye.

That the Barons answered the second daye, and

That the baronetts they replied the same daye.

That the question then was twofolde.

Firste, whether barronetts & banneretts were the same promiskuouslie, upon which the baronetts insisted.

Secondlie, whether the baronetts made by this newe creation shold have place of Barons younger sonnes.

The firste was founde doubtfull & proved only by some olde muncks bookes & some registers, which notwithstandinge

The Kinge sayed that his meaning was to create a newe honor upon a newe occasion, for that which they endeavored to prove, viz., that theis names were used for one & the same his Majestie confessed; but that which they muste prove is, that a banneret of olde & a baronet of this creation are all one.

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

An other question was, whether bannerets sholde goe before Barons younger sonnes, which yf it were admitted, then woulde the baronets by consequence drawne owte of their pattent, likewise claime to have that precedencie.

But sythence that appeared to be but Questio vexata yt's cleare the Baronets coulde not have that place upon that ground. From that they descended to a petition which was, that the Kinge would declare them banneretts & gyve the place to Barons younger sonnes, of which the Kinge sayed he woulde advise, & cause the Harolds to informe him what the true place of Bannerets was.

Concluding with this, that sythence at the laste hearinge the baronets were suitors to be further heard, he was nowe pleased to gyve them a full hearing what they coulde furtner saye.

Whereupon olde Finche the Lawyer began, and with some introduction made this the question, Whether bannerets have place of Barons' sonnes, to prove which he drawes his arguments firste from harolds lists, which he sayed were very constant in the pointe, affirming that there was a dowble liste, one of righte an other of solemnitie; the firste being ever constant & true, the seconde at the pleasure of the harolds or State. For that of righte he affirmed he had a true coppie of a liste under the hande of Henry VII. which gave the place to bannerets. He drawes his seconde argument from the contrariety of lists at one & the same tyme, viz., one liste shewing what was don for the present; the other shewing what was of righte to be don. Then he tooke exception to the partiallitie of harolds as they stode unsworne, & brought a prooffe, that the knights of Scotland goe before Barons younger sonnes. Then descended to a petition in the name of the Baronets which was petitio juris et gratie. For the firste, yf yt shoulde appeare to be their righte, that his Majestie would be pleased soe to declare yt. For the seconde of grace, yf it sholde not appeare to be their righte, they desyred to have further serche of records, secondly a comission to examyne witnesses to enquire.

At this the Kinge marvailed, he thoughte the busynes had ben broughte to some yssue, but nowe founde it shoulde never have ende.

Then the hopefull gent. Mr. Hennage Fynche, desyreing to be hearde, began in this maner, with a philosophicall preamble: "Omne principium motus est intrinsicum," at which the Kinge being much displeased sayed, "thoughe I am a kinge of men, yet I am no kinge of tyme, for I growe olde with this;" and therefore yf he had anie thinge to speake to the matter bad hym utter yt. Wherupon Mr. Fynche with greate boldnes undertooke to prove muche but did nothinge. And cominge to the pointe to prove the bannerets, my Lord Privy Seale stode upp, and sayed 'Mr. Fynche, doe yow thinke yt reason, that an honour reserved onely for the best deserving gent. in the filde shoulde be inherited by a childe in the cradle,' and referred that reason to the censure of his princely wisdom. But Mr. Fynche proceeded with suche confidence, as that he besought the Kinge, that albeyt he woulde not gyve the Baronets that place, yet that he woulde not for their sakes soe farre prejudice Bannerets as to declare their place to be after the younger sonnes of Barons.

Wherat his Majestie with a scornfull indignation replied, "I marvaile whate this fellowe meanes, that woulde seeme to knowe whate I intende, reasoninge not onely againste whate I have sayed, but againste what I may saye," and therupon was pleased to tell this tale: that there were two advocats of soe contrary factions, as whatsoever the one sayed the other ever contradicted, in so much that once one of them beinge asleape and suddenlie his oppinion beinge demaunded, his answeere was, "I am againste whate the other sayed," and being answered that the other had not yet spoken, he sayed, "why then I am againste that which he shall saye," and upon further lyke absurdities of Mr. Fynche's speache his Majestie sayed, "why doe you not as well intreate me nott to putt tayles to all the Baronets bicause some of them are Kentish men, or hornes on their heads to make them strange monsters." And by this tyme Mr. Fynche perceavinge his error was silent.

EARL WEST-

Then which is straunge to relate the Baronets descended from discourse by their counsell to a dialoge both with the Kinge and the Lords. Amonge which Sir William Twisden, begynning to saye that he had hearde that some of the Lords shoulde saye, that the Baronets had been peppered, whereunto my Lord Privy Seale replyed, that he did not remember that anie there soe used that worde, but sayed that yt mighte well bee that yt was sayed to be a peppering busines, or a peppering discourse, wherat his Majestie tooke holde and saied that there were peppering spirits among them, but they were but the spirits of one or two of them.

Then Mr. Recorder on the behalfe of the Barons offeringe to answere to the Baronets, his Majestie enjoyning him to answere nothing to whate younge Mr. Fynche had spoken, bycause he had sayed nothing worthy the answeringe. Whereupon the Recorder proceeding, sayed that all their proofes were petitio principii, and he being unfittly interrupted by Sir William Twisden, he sayed "you may gyve me leave to speake as well as yow withoute interruption, unlesse you meane to have it in your pattent to speake when you liste."

Mr. Recorder further in answere to whate his Majestie had enjoyed, said that yf his Majesty had comanded him to have been longe, there was noe matter ministring lengthe of speache, and therfore was very shorte.

Then Sir Moyle Fynche tooke the boldnes to speake, and drue a reason to move the Kinge from this, vizt., that because his Majestie mighte knowe the arguments of the Barons' side, he mighte peradventure be carryed to thinke their cause the better. Werupon his Majestie rose and with indignation sayed, "I defie you for all your opinions, doe yow thinke that I sitt here in God's seate to come prejudged on either side?" Werupon Sir Moyle Fynche humbly kneelinge upon his knee, besoughte his Majestie not soe farre to mistake him, as once to thinke that yt could enter into his harte, that his Majestie shoulde come prejudged on either side, but sayed that "in regarde your Majestie dothe finde the arguments stronger on the Barons' side then on the other side, that may induce you to thinke their cause the better." Werupon his Majestie replyed, "but howe doe you knowe that I thinke soe?" And further tolde him that he had more zeale in the busynes then witt.

Then Sir William Twisden began to declare the impediments they had to maintayne their cause, and the question then being at the instant, of the liste from Henry viith whether it were under his hande or a coppie, fell owte to be a coppy, and Sir William Twisden affirmed from Sir Roberte Cotton that the originall was either with my Lord of Exiter, or with Sir William Dethicke, who was sometymes Garter; and further sayd, that Sir Roberte Cotton was owte of the waye of purpose, bicause he would not be present to assiste them at the hearinge of their cause. Werupon my Lord Privy Seale sayd that owte of his knowledge of the gent. he thoughte his absence was not for that cause, nor that he would refuse them anie record that mighte advantage their cause, to which

Sir William Twisden replied that before Sir Roberte Cotton went owte of the towne he was sente unto him from the companie (as he stiled them) with this message, to desier his staye to assist them in the cause which they the more earnestly did require from him bicause they heard he shoulde be sent awaye. Of which words my Lord Privy Seale tooke holde, and kneelinge besoughte his Majestie that he woulde heare him, for nowe he sawe his honor engaged, that he woulde righte himselfe in his owne person againste anie one that shoulde soe traduce him yf yt were fitt, and tooke this as ment by Sir William Twisden to himselfe upon theis reasons; firste in regarde that yt was knowne that none was more powerfull with Sir Roberte Cotton then himselfe, secondly that none had with more resistance & earnestnes declared himselfe opposite to this busynes. Wherupon Sir William Twisden besoughte his Majestie that he woulde be pleased to remember, that he did not once name my Lord Privy Seale, to which the Kinge answered, "That's true, but soe as one shoulde saye to me, he that betrayed Christe, and saye he did not name Judas."

After this the Kinge arose and all were put owte, as well the Barons as the Baronetts, onely the Harolds were commanded to attende. And after a while being called in againe, the King's conclusion was that he would take a further tyme at his pleasure to declare his oppinion withowte further debate or hearinge on either side.

Then my Lord Wotton before the risinge of the board besoughte his Majestie to heare him, and told him that the zeale of his Majesties honor soe burnte within him that he coule not be silent, sayinge that he had been present at the debate of manie waightie causes before his Majestie, and that boarde, but never remembred that anie ever carryed them selves with suche audacious and unmanerlie boldness as some of those Baronets had don, and of them those that had least cause, for, naminge Sir William Twisden, he tolde his Majestie he knewe him, he was his country man, he knewe not whether he was his kinsman or not, but he helde him the unworthiest of all the companie. Wherat his Majestie was much moved, but uppon the other's submission and humble intreaty was pleased to forgyve him, and soe like a good kinge gott the conquest by mercye.

The Barronets desyer that nowe his Majestie hath been pleased (after much dispute) to gyve the place to Barons youngest sonnes before them, soe his royall meaninge may be lykewise declared that the Barronets shall have the very nexte place unto them withowte interposinge anie estate, place or persons betweene them. And that soe lykewise their wyves shall have the very nexte place to the wyves of Barrons youngest sonnes and the daughters of Barrons unmarried. But yf the daughters of Barrons marry, they desyer explanacion howe they shall holde or loose their place. They desyer that his Majestie wilbee pleased to graunte for him his heirs & successors, that neither anie person dignity or estate of men under the degree of Barrons shalbee hereafter before them. And theis things they desyer may be exprest in his Majesties nowe sentence and declaracion, and that they may have letters pattents of them by waye of addiccion to their former if they will; which cleare settlinge and establishinge of their place & privildge they knowe will invite others to come in, which yet stande owte as unsatisfied. Theis points the Lords Commissioners for Marshall causes have allowed."

EARL WEST.
MORLAND'S MSS.

1612. "A plaine and trewe relation of those things I observed in my Lord's sicknes since his going to the Bath." A very interesting account of the last days and death of Robert, Earl of Salisbury, written by a person who accompanied him—a clergyman, as would appear from the letter. In Sir Ralph Winwood's "Memorials" (London, 1725), Vol. III. p. 367, is a letter from Mr. Fynnett to Mr. Trumbull written from Hatfield, 28th May 1612, on the same subject, but not so full of detail. The Mr. Bowls, his chaplain, therein mentioned, may be the writer of the following letter, but from some expressions in the MS. it would appear to have been Dr. Atkins, who according to Winwood's letter was a physician.

"Sir, wee went from Kinsington the 28th of April 1612, & lodged at my Lord Shandoe's howse in Ditton, where when I came to my Lord he had me wellcome, tolde me I shoulde goe with him a longe & trowblesome journey, I replied that it was my duty to doe soe, and my Lord hereupon fell into a duble discourse, firste of nature, then of resolution. Of nature, that he thanked God that he had left his sonne that morning (whome he soe loved that he woulde willingly dye for him) withoute the earninge of his bowells, or anie distempred passion or affection. Of resolution, that he had made his Auditt even with God, that he did neither feare death, nor affect life, but lefte it to the blessed will of God, knowinge full well that by howe muche sooner he shoulde dye, by soe muche sooner shoulde he goe to Heaven, which yf he shoulde not attaine, hee were of all men the moste miserable, further he was resolved (if God soe pleased) that it was all one to him to be buried in Bath Church, knowing that from anie place there was a meanes of resurrection and a waye to Heaven.

Then he fell to prayer to God for the pardon of his particular synnes & withall made a protestacion that for his parte there was never a man in the worlde, but he coulde take him by the hands, yf he were now a-dyinge, soe greate was the extent of his love & charity.

Aprill 29^o.—Wee went forward to Cawson, my Lord Knowles his howse, where in the waye my Lord was somethinge moved bycause his close chayre did not follow him, and because the coache was not soe easy as it might have been. But being come to Cawson, & sett in his chamber wee founde my Lord musinge, and at laste he brake owte into these speaches "Yow will saye I am impatient, alas, whate woulde yow have me to doe when my servaunts doe forgett them selves soe muche, that yf I had not remembered my selfe I could not have come hither this nighte." It was tolde him that his servaunts yf they comitted anie faults, it was owte of error, and that their love was suche unto him, that they would doe anie servile worke with all joye for his Lordship's health & ease. "I knowe it" quoth my Lord, then sayed the replyer "but Sir yow must not trowble yourselfe which breedes passion in yow, and is hurtful for yow." "Well" saith hee "God knowes it is my paine and weaknes, but I will forbear all passions." Soe hee heard prayers with a zealous devotion, went to bed & slept soundly & well.

30^o Aprill.—Wee tooke our journey to Newberry to Mr. Doleman's; in the way he was very ill, and a consultacion was had to returne back againe, yet hee came to Newberry, thoughe very weary fainte & ill.

1^o May.—Wee went to Marlebury. By the way he was very ill. Here came Luke to him.

2^o May.—Wee went to Lacocke to my Lady Stapleton's howse where all busynes was with Luke at nighte.

3^o May.—Being Sunday my Lord appointed me to preache where he devoutly heard a sermon, dynd & went that nighte to Bath.

At the Bath from Sunday to Fryday being the 8th of May, there passed noe greate matter but essayes in the Bath.

8^o May.—On Friday the 8th of May my Lord was exceedingly revived by the Bath; the firste thing he did was the sacrifice wee offered to God of thanksgiving, this continued till Tewsdai at nighte the 12th of Maye when the Bath having exhausted some of the humor my Lord begane to droope, the Scorbitt appeared in a kind of blewe & livid spotts, soe he contynued Wednesday & Thursday till Friday after dynner being the 15th of Maye.

15^o May.—On Fridaye the 15th of Maye he came owte of his weaknes & had in the afternoone the cleare use of his understanding & reason & amongst other things divinely remembred of him, he desired me to pray for him for that he stooode in greate neede of yt. I thereupon brake with my Lord and tolde him such things & in such maner as God enabled me, which hee apprehending in generall yet moste especially he marked one thinge which I alleadged owte of Sainte Augustine, Nonne melius est ut flagellet te et parcat tibi quam ut parcat tibi et damnet te? "I have founde," sayed he, "God's greate mercy to me in this longe & tedius sicknes, who could have layed more upon me, but he hath disciplyned me with a fatherly correction, I tell yow Dr. Attkines, yow knowe I tolde yow of my sicknes (and soe repeated all the passages of the sicknes of his body). "And," saieth he, "yow knowe howe I conferred with Mr. Deane of Westminster & yourselfe concerning the estate of my body howe truly I confessed my synne, professed my faithe, forgave all my enemyes, made my peace with God, received the message of mercy from yow and the rule of all, the holy Sacrament. Knowe yow nowe that I have the same faith, I am of the same religion, I dought not but God will have mercy on me for his sonne Jesus Christ's sake, althoughe greate & manie have been my synnes, for which synnes of myne God hath layd this sicknes upon me."

"Of all other things," saith he, "I finde God's great goodness in this, that by a lingering disease he hath weaned me from humane thoughts & cares & hath taught me to knowe there is no happynes upon earth, which maketh me moste willinglye to dye, to come to that blessed estate where is no change nor misery.

* * * * *

This nighte at midnight Mr. Aston Browne & Whittakers watching with him, hee coulde not sleepe, but lay still praying to God for his mercyes & pardon of his synnes * * * * * In which prayer he spent almost two howres whilst these three heard him earnestly yett not perfunctorylye praying for theis things. And when some of them stirred, "Doe yow here me?" sayed hee, they answered "Yea." "Then knowe," sayed hee, "that yf God nowe take my sowle owte of my body I am prepared for Heaven."

16^o May.—On Satterdaye he was ill in the morning & drowsy till two of the clocke in the after noone, when he fell asleepe an hower, and after sleepe he founde himself wonderfull well, he called for his phisitians and all us aboute him, thanked God hartily for his mercye & desyred me to praye and when I used the plurall number (as, "Wee beseeche the O Lord") hee repeating every sentence did alter it to his particuler necessity in the singular number as "I beseeche the O Lord have mercy upon me." After prayer he recomended himselfe to his honorable frends whom he did not expecte anie more to see, he comended his servants, some to his Majestie and some to his Sonne, & this being don he leaned upon his crutches, lifte up his eyes to Heaven, his gesture was in the lykeness of a wrapt passion, his mouthe smylinge, his hands stretched owte, & uttered this saying: "O Lord Jesus nowe, sweete Jesus, O Jesus, nowe, O Jesus lett me come unto thee, my auditt is made, lett me come now O Jesus, in the strengthe of my understandinge, in the acte of my memorye, for yf otherwise, what will the people saye, but O Jesus. I care not, thy will be done, I am safe, I am safe." And here the tears ran downe from his eyes and stopped his speache, which was seconded by the tears of the standers by, that for a great while there was nothing but a mournful silence. This was ended in publique prayer, & then he prepared for the helpe of phisicke.

May 17^o.—The nexte day which was the Saboath he was soe weake & drowsey with his desease that the phisitions thought it not fitt to have a sermon, but onely prayers, where the fume of his spleene soe farre prevailed that it made him contynually to slumber. In the afternoone I came to him whoe then had noe company with him but only Mr. Townsende, he was something sleepeie, but was boulede to kepe him with discourse from sleepe. By which meanes the vapours being spent & himselfe in his perfect sence and understanding began to speake with me * * * * * and charged me to speake unto his sonne to lyve honestlye & religiously, which I tolde him, I was perswaded he did. & that I had observed manie perticulers of his virtues & religion which I particularised to him. "I love him," sayed he, "more because he is religious than because he is my sonne. My daughter Katherine," said my Lord, "hath she not receaved the sacrament?" I told my Lord three times at my hands. "I am gladd of it," sayed he, "pray her upon my blessing to be constant in true religion. My dawghter Frances, I beseeche God to blesse her & her husbände, & I beseeche the Kinge to be good to my Lord of Comberlande for my sake, since he hath matched into my howse & I charge my daughter to love & honor her husbände." I replied, "My Lord I have had often & private conference with your daughter Clifford & thoughte passions & afflictions are sometymes violent in young persons, yet I have founde in her a good harte reverente to God, desyrous of knowledge & studying of Scripture, and I doubt not but where religion goeth before, all morrall & civill dewties will followe after." I thanke God for this," sayed my Lord; "and God bless her." Then he comended him selfe to some perticuler frends, then he made a speache that he forgave the whole worlde, even as he desyred to be forgyven of Jesus Christe, at which tyme Sir Walter Cope came in, when he againe ingemminated, "I do forgyve the whole world, the whole world, Sir Walter, and I desyre the whole worlde to forgyve me." More companie at that tyme cominge in, wee concluded this conference lykewise with prayer, & soe my Lord prepared for phisicke helpes.

18 Maye.—The next day being Munday, in the morninge Sir John Harrington which dwells neere the Bath & whoe is sicke of a deade palsey came to my Lord, to whome my Lord sayed "Sir John, nowe doeth one creple come to see & visite another, this it is; death is the center to which wee all doe move, some dyiameterwise, & some circularly, but all men must fall doune to the center: I knowe not Sir John, which of us too is neareste, but I thinke myselfe, & it is true moriendum est, quia nati sumus—wee muste therefore dye by cause we were borne, yet God by his visitation hath sweetened death unto me, because he hath gyven me the lighte of his grace, I knowe that thoughte my synnes were of a scarlett or crimson hewe, yet they shalbe all bathed in the bloud of the Lambe & shalbe made whiter then snowe. I doe not dispayer of lyfe & I doe not feare deathe, God's will be done, I am prepared for it ; and nowe Sir John lett me aske yow whate good yow have founde by the Bathe?" & this day my Lord removed his lodging & was desyrous to see the greате church in Bathe, where olde Mr. Billott had bestowed some money of his father's comitted to his truste & a greате parte lykewise of his owne substance. The church he muche lyked & the liberalitie of such benefactors as had broughte it to soe good a perfection, addinge that he could bestowe himselfe some good remembrance to his finishing thereof. And bycause olde Mr. Billott had spent all upon charitable uses & left his kinsman nothing, my Lord in the church sayed, I gyve to my servaunt Billott 20*l.* a yere during his natural life. My Lord gave at the present 4*l.* a weeke to the poore duringe his aboade at the Bathe, 3*l.* to the Hospitalls, 10*l.* to the guides, poore men in the Bathe, & 3*l.* to the sergeante. There was noe place where wee came, but there was a liberrall remembrance of the poore.

Maye 19^o—The nexte day being Tewsdai, my Lord fell into a greате fitt, sent for me to come to him & when I was come "O come," quoth he, "come & shutt my eyes, for I cannot lyve." This was the tyme when his sonne, the nowe Earle of Sallisburi was upon intelligence of his father's daunger come to the Bathe and there was a demurr of bringing him to my Lord, bycause his cominge was against his expresse comaundement. But I tooke opportunitie & told my Lord that I hoped his daunger was not soe neere, but yf he felte more then wee observed, I demanded yf it woulde not be a comforte unto him to see his sonne, yf God in his providence shoulde so dispose. "O yes," quoth he, "the greatest comforte in the worlde." I called his sonne in, whose meeting was with those affections, which none knowe but those that feele them. After mutuall teares, my Lord brake forth into theis speaches "O my sonne, God blesse thee, the blessing of Abraham, Isaacke & Jacob lighte upon thee my good sonne ; embrace true religion, lyve honestly & vertuously, loyally to thy Prince, & faithfully to thy wife. Take heede by all means of blood whether in publique or in private quarrells, & God will prosper thee in all thy wayes." Soe they fell againe to weeping, and my Lord comaunded me to administer the Sacrament unto him, which incontinently was performed, and then hee began to take a little reste, after which hee was very well till the nexte day at nighte.

20^o May.—Being Wednesday there preached at the church one Mr. Rusell whoe was chaplaine to the Bishop of Sallisburi, who finished a text of Scripture which formerly he had began, which was "My power is made perfitt in weakness" ; he made an excellent sermon, & herewith all my Lord being made acquainted, he joyfully made a repiticion of most points of the sermon & comaunded me to bring him to him in the afternoone. I broughte him to my Lord with another minister whoe is parson of the City in Bathe, Mr. Pennam, to whome my Lord speake as followeth ; "I sent for yow Mr. Russell, to gyve yow thanks for your good & excellent paines in the morning, & the practise & power of religion being the only happynes of man, withowte which wee were moste miserable, yow see howe God hath here humbled mee & layd his hande upon mee, but I truste in his mercy, because I knowe I am one of those for whom the bloude of Christe Jesus was shed upon the Crosse ; I knowe lykewise that God's power is made perfecte in weaknes, & that his infinite power is able to restore mee from corruption to healthe, but I doe not expecte it, but desyer rather to be unburdened of all mundane cares & to enjoye reste in the bosome of Abraham ; and yf I die here. I shall willingly resigne my sowle to God & contentedly be buryed in Bathe Church, which I am glad to see soe bewtifed within & withowte by reparacions materiall, & within with provision of such men as yow are to administer foode spirituall. And this I would have yow knowe, that yf God doe call me that I doe embrace with all my harte & sowle the religion publicquely professed in this lande, & doe hope to be saved by the alone meritte of Jesus Christe. Nowe lett me I pray yow knowe the maner of your lecture; " and here my Lord heard all the peticulers, & dismissed them with love & kindnes.

21^o Maye.—Being Thursdaye wee went from Bathe to Laccoke to my Lady Stapleton's howse where my Lord was very ill both Thursday & Friday, in which tyme my Lord Hay & Sir John Hollis did accompanie my Lord. My Lord was in very greate fitts espetially on Fridaye & askid manie pertinent questions the strengthe of his disease prevailing upon him. But yet two things are remarkable. Firste, all the impertynent questions my Lord speake of were as a man in a dreame. Secondly, they were of such things as tooke moste impression in his minde, for moste of that talke was of his phisicke or repeating sentences & prayers, owte of the Booke of Comon Prayer, espetially this one sentence, "And take not thy Holy Spirite from us" which he did because in divers conferences & prayers before, I had tolde him that God woulde not take awaye his Holy Spirite, though he should take away the Spirite of life.

23^o Maye.—On Satterdaye wee went to Marlbury where my Lord was very ill, and ready to fainte in the chamber, wee had prayers, my Lord was dressed, went to bed & slept ill.

24^o Maye.—The Lords comaunded me to preach at the church, after Sermon we came into his chamber, where wee founde him very weake, and noe possiture coulde gyve him anie ease, wee wente to prayer, & thoughe my Lord's weaknes was very muche, yett with a devoute jesture, standing upon his crutches, he with affection repeating O sweete Jesus," & such shorte ejaculations as the weaknes of his tyme till wee went to dynner, all his speache was nothing but "O Jesus, O sweete Jesus," & such shorte eiaculations as the weaknes of his disease did gyve him leave. After dynner Doctor Poe did rise & came unto him. My Lord's head laye upon two pillowes upon Mr. Townesend's lap; Ralphe Jackson was mending the swinge which supported him; soe saythe he, "Lifte me up but this once." Then he called to Doctor Poe for his hande, which having, he griped something harde and his eyes began to settle, when he cryed "O Lorde, Lorde," and soe sancke downe withowte groane or sighte or struglinge. At the same instant I ioyned in prayer with him that God woulde receive that Sowle & Spirit, which shorte words beings suddenly spoke by me, he was cleane gone, and no breath or motion in him.

Where the Knight within his scenes doth keep much adoe;
For the Siege of Rhodes all say
It is an everlasting play,
Though they wonder now Roxalana is gon
What shift it makes to hold out so long.
For when the second part tooke butt for Bully
The first did not satisfie so fully:
The Cutter of Coleman Street had more fame
Before the Author changed its name,
And shewed himself an Englishman right
By mending of things to spoyle them quite.
And he's more to blame because he can tell
(No better) to make new strings soe well
Then came the Knight agen with his lawe

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

Against lovers the worst that ever you sawe,
In dressing of which he playnely did shew it
He was a far better Cooke than a Poet,
And only he the art of it had
Of two good players to make one bad.
And these are all the new playes wee have had Indifferent good or indifferent bad.
When they'l be worsor or when they'l be better
Is more for a Prophetie then for a letter."

A.

1591--1607. Letter of Lady Grace Mildmay to her housekeeper at Apethorpe, and Correspondence with various persons and physicians on matters relative to charitable objects and medical treatment.

Lady Grace Mildmay was Grace Sherington, the wife of Sir Anthony Mildmay, of Apethorpe. Their daughter and heiress married Francis Fane, first Earl of Westmorland, who died in 1628.

B.

LYME PAPERS from 1777 to 1782.

Comprising:

Letters relative to the death of Henry Fane, M.P. for the Borough of Lyme Regis, Dorset, from H. Fane, the guardian of John Lord Westmorland, recommending his cousin, Mr. Francis Fane, the late member's son. Also to Lord Westmorland on the same subject. Also a Petition of the Inhabitants of the Borough of Lyme Regis to vote at elections of Freemen.

Mr. Francis Fane was elected on 11th June 1777.

C.

Letters from Mr. Pitt, Lord North, Lord Clarendon and others, including Lord Fitzwilliam and Mr. J. C. Villiers. Also from Mr. Woodford in April 1767 to Lord Burghersh, relative to his engagement with his daughter, recently broken off.

[1779] July 13. Pembroke Hall. William Pitt to Lord Westmorland.

"I left town so soon after I saw you that I had no opportunity of sending you any Information from thence; and you are certainly at least one Degree wiser in the Politics of the Times than I am, as the last Glimpse I had of you was in the Gallery of the House of Commons, where you seemed likely to continue when I left it for Dinner. Since I arrived here I have had no particular Temptation to write to you till the present moment, and I shall now claim less Merit if possible than ordinary in my Letter, as the subject which I principally wish to mention to you is what scarcely interests any one but myself. To spare myself and you the trouble of a long proœmium. I have a Design in Agitation of adding to the Number of Candidates who have already declared for this Place, and offering my Services to the University at the General Election. From the Inquiries I have hitherto been able to make I have great Reason to promise myself success, and if I see no unexpected Discouragement I shall very likely declare my intentions publicly in a short Time. I think I may flatter myself with your good Wishes in this Undertaking and I believe your Assistance if you are so good as to afford it me may be very usefull to me in Emanuel and perhaps with other votes that I know nothing of at present. At least I am sure I may trust to your Friendship for excusing my troubling you on the subject at present, and writing to you more particularly whenever any Thing may occur to me. I have not however yet absolutely fix'd my Resolution of Standing, and must therefore beg you to keep the Idea a perfect secret till you hear from me again. That will probably be very soon, but I hope you will write to me in the mean Time. You will imagine that this object is a sufficient Antidote to the insipidity of a Vacation, which indeed of itself is less this year than usual as our Society is almost as numerous, and as agreeable as it has been in Term. I hope you will be able to give me as good an Account of your Summer Quarters. The Papers did give us Reason to fear that the Peace of the Camp was broken by internal Quarrels, but have since Contradicted the Report. Your Gallant Officers need not I think be in haste to draw their Swords against each other, when they have so good a prospect of a Foreign Enemy, which appears nearer since the Proclamation lately published. The Alarm is I suppose great on the Sea Coast but in this Inland County, our Oxen & Horses continue to Graze in Security, and the Gentlemen of the University seem scarcely more affected than the Brute Creation, except that it produces many Speculative Discussions between Meeke & Villiers and some verbal Criticisms on the Terms in which it is couched. I shall probably continue here about a Month, and if I can obtain a safe conduct, will certainly visit the Camp in my way into the West."

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

1779, July 26. Pembroke Hall, W. Pitt to Lord Westmorland.

"Having had occasion to write above four Hundred Letters within a week, I think I need not apologise for the haste of my last Scrawl to you. I am very sorry however that on that account I omitted giving you Satisfaction in the Enquiries you made relative to my undertaking.

The ground on which I stand is that of an Independent member of the University, trusting (with some Vanity) to the Good opinion of Persons of the same Description, and to the exertions of many Personal Friends.

I should not scruple to profess that my Sentiments and Principles are (as far as I have hitherto considered Politics) not in favor of the present Administration; and from hereditary Connexions I may perhaps expect support from many who are called Opposition Men. But I do not wish to be thought inlisted in any party or to call myself anything but an Independent Whig, which in words is hardly a distinction, as every one alike pretends to it. My Competitors are Mansfield, Euston, Townshend, Hyde, Crofts and perhaps Lord Carysfort. I do not pretend to oppose any one of these in Particular, but I have the greatest Reason to think that I have a great Chance among them. I do not chuse to speak too confidently so early because it is the stale trick of every candidate to puff himself from the moment He has declared. It is impossible for me to give you a full detail by Letter, but you will find me sufficiently disposed to bore you with Particulars when I see you, which will probably be in a fortnight or three weeks. I need not repeat to you how much I shall think myself obliged to you for every mark of Friendship, which your own plan of Conduct will admit of your shewing me on this occasion perhaps the most inter[esting] of my life."

Endorsed: Earl of Westmorland,

Northamptonshire Militia,
Cox Heath Camp,
Maidstone, Kent.

[1779, July. Lord Westmorland to W. Pitt.]

I received yours and am happy to be informed of your intentions as the offer will be a good introduction into the world and the utility of success need not be mentioned. It is unnecessary to assure you of my best wishes at this long distance of time however, particularly as you know how much I declined interesting myself at the last election, I should be sorry to have my name mentioned upon the occasion. I do not think I can do much upon the occasion unless you should be with administration and then perhaps I might a little, let me know who you suppose will oppose you and on what grounds you stand. Townsend I suppose resigns, and then I may tell you my mind. If I can be of any secret service without breaking my line of conduct I shall be happy. Tell me if many of the members of Emmanuel are in Cambridge at Present. The votes for Cambridge encamped are

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES and REFLECTIONS on various POLITICAL SUBJECTS by the EARL OF WESTMORLAND about 1780.

The Miscellaneous Papers comprise:—

1782, March 4. Admiralty Office. Number of Ships of the Line at Jamaica, the Leeward Islands and North America in every month from November 1780 to November 1781.

Several of the Miscellaneous Notes might be usefully read in conjunction with the Report of the Commissioners on the MSS. of Mrs. Stopford Sackville, of Drayton House, as they contain précis of many letters from Lord George Germain, which Lord Westmorland had seen, some of which no doubt have been printed in the report. The more important of the notes are the following:—

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

1780, Jan. 5. Proclamation 3rd June, 1780, by Sir Henry Clinton, approved by Lord G. Germain.

1780, Oct. 4. Lord G. Germain to Sir H. C[linton]. Hints at disagreement between land and sea forces. Advises diversion in Virginia. For a full account of the facts spoken of in these notes see the Report on Mrs. Stopford Sackville's MSS.

1780, Oct. 31. Lord Rawdon (by Lord Cornwallis's request) to Sir H. Clinton and Major-General Leslie, requesting General Leslie's force might be employed in Cape Fear provided that order did not interfere with Gen. Clinton's plans.

1781, May 2. Lord G. Germain to Sir H. Clinton. Disapproves of withdrawing Arnold and Philip's detachment (Sir H. Clinton seem'd of a different opinion). Positive orders to push the war in the southward chiefly, and northward in the hot months; leaves some latitude to Sir H. Clinton in case of alteration of circumstances. Recommends exertions & is satisfied this campaign may be the last. No fears for Canada or Nova Scotia; guard Halifax & Penobscot.

1781, June 5. Expects to hear rebellion at an end south of James river.

1781, July 7. Lord G. G[ermain] to Sir H. C[linton]. Gives advice that French fleet will sail to America, that Sir G. Rodney will follow them, three sail of the line will come with Digby.

1780-82. Naval Statistics, including the number of ships cast away since March 1780, the ships that came home disabled by hurricane and by other causes from March 1780, and comparisons between the numbers of ships of the line and men in 1759 & 1781, and the number of ships to be launched in 1782.

"The established form of exercise according to the standing orders is to be observed by all the corps in camp.

"The manœuvres to be practised in the camps."

[Circa 1780.] Fragmentary notes, without date & apparently in Lord Westmorland's handwriting, of a speech to refute the charges brought against the King of aiming at arbitrary power in the State, one of the reasons being that in the late riots (? Lord George Gordon's riots) he used the troops for the protection of the liberties of the nation instead of for their destruction.

INVENTORIES OF FURNITURE at APETHORPE [in 1705]. List of PLATE taken by SUSAN COUNTESS of WESTMORLAND [pursuant to the will of John Earl of Westmorland, deceased, on May the 14th, 1774.] and papers relative to NASSINGTON COW PASTURE.

ACTS of PARLIAMENT, relating to NASSINGTON and FOTHERINGHAY, AUGMENTATION of the MAINTENANCE of POOR VICARS, &c.

1712. Printed Substance of the Depositions taken at the Coroner's Inquest the 17th 19th & 21st of November on the Body of Duke Hamilton and the 15th 18th & 22nd on the body of my Lord Mohun.

1713. An Act to vest in Trustees for sale the fee of divers lands of William late Marquess of Hallifax in the Counties of York, Middlesex, Surrey, Lincoln, and the City of London. This Act is endorsed "in which is contained the Estate at Fotheringhay in Northamptonshire." But no mention of that place occurs in the print of the Act.

1727. An Act for vesting several sums of money in the Archbishop of Canterbury and Bishop of Ely, given for the maintenance of poor Vicars within those Dioceses.

1777. An Act for dividing and inclosing the common and open fields, meadows, commonable lands, and waste grounds in Nassington, Yarwell, Apethorpe, and Woodnewton within the Prebend or Peculiar of Nassington, in the County of Northampton.

1649, Nov. 10. Lord General Fairfax to the Committee of the West-riding of York on behalf of Mr. Stringer for loss occasioned by the Forces in the late siege against Pontefract.

1650, Feb. 25. Pass for Thomas Stringer * the younger of Charleston, Co. York. Signed, O. Cromwell. Seal.

1702, July 16. Camp of Assenlen. The Earl of Marlborough to the Earl of Westmorland at the Hague. "I have all redy write into England about your conserns I have desired my Lord Treasurer to present you to the Queen."

1704, June 1. Camp at Great Heppach. The Duke of Marlborough to the same. "I have the favour of yours of the 10th of May and am very glad to find what His Royal Highness has been pleased to doe for you is soe much to your satisfaction. I think myself obliged wherever I find a zealous inclination for her Majesty's service to represent the same to the best advantage, and shall be ready on all occasions to give your Lordship farther marks of the truth wherewith I am," &c.

1704, April 18. Lord Godolphin to the Earl of Westmorland. Requesting him to come to town.

1704, June 24. Warrant under the Sign Manual of Prince George of Denmark, appointing Thomas Earl of Westmorland to be one of the gentlemen of his bed chamber from 25th April then last past.

* Thomas 6th Earl of Westmorland married Catherine widow of Richard Beaumont Esq., of Whitley, and daughter and heiress of Thomas Stringer of Charleston, Co. York.

1716, Dec. 15. Hanover. The Earl of Sunderland to the Earl of Westmorland. Informing him that the King had appointed him Chief Justice in Eyre in the room of the Duke of Kingston, made Lord Privy Seal.

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

Same date. Mr. Secretary Stanhope to the same. Apprising him of the same fact.

1722. Jan. 27. Copy of letter from the Earl of Westmorland to the Post Office, complaining of the Oundle Post, and desiring an alteration. "I must protest against the present Post House Keeper of Oundle, who is notorious for opening of letters to the disobligeing of all the neighbourhood There are several persons more fitter for the business than the woman who now hath it."

Queen Anne to the Electress Sophia.

Madam, Sister, & Aunt,

"Since the right of succession to my Kingdoms has bin declared to belong to you and to your family there have always bin disaffected persons, who by particular views of their own Intrests, have entred into Measures to Establish a Prince of your blood in my Estates even whilst I am yet liveing. I never thought till now that this project could have gone so far as to have made the least Impression upon your mind, but as I have lately perceived by publick Rumours which are Industiously spread that the El. P. is come into this Sentiment, it is of Importance with respect to the Succession of your family that I should tell you such a proceeding will Infallably draw along with it some consequences that will be dangerous to that succession itself, which is not secure any otherwise then as the Prince that actually wears the Crown maintain her Authority & Prerogative. There are here (such is our misfortune) a great many people who are seditiously disposed, so I leave you to judge what Tumults they may be able to raise if they should have a Pretext to begin a Comotion. I perswade myself therefore you will never consent that the least thing should be done that may disturbe the repose of me or my subjects. Open your self to me with the same freedome I doe to you and propose whatever you think may contribute to the security of the Succession, I will come into it with Zeale, provided that it dos not derogate from my dignity which I am resolved to maintain. I am ever with a great deal of affection, S. & A., your very Affectionate S. & Niece.

St. James's May 19th, 1714.

To my Sister & Aunt the El. Dowag. of Brunswick & Lunenburg."

Queen Anne to the Electoral Prince.

"Cousin,

"An accident that has hapend in my Lord Paget's family having hindered him from setting forward soe soon as he thought to have done, I cannot defer any longer letting you know my thoughts with respect to the design you have of comeing into my Kingdoms. As the opening this matter ought to have bin first to Mee, soe I expected you would not have given ear to it without knoweing before my thoughts about it. However, this is what I owe to my own Dignity, the friendship I have for you, and the El. House to which you belong, and the true desire I have

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

that it may succeed to my Kingdoms. And this requires of me that I should tell you that nothing can be more dangerous to the Tranquility of my Estates, to the Right of Succession in your line, and consequently more disagreeable to mee, than such a proceeding at this Junctur. I am with a great deal of friendship, Your very affect. Cousin."

"There was another such Letter (still more furious against the P. coming) sent to the Elector." [Printed by Macpherson.]

The Earl of Oxford to the Elector.

"May it please your R. H.,

"Tho I expect Mr. H[arley] every moment in return from your Court and thereby shall have another Opertunity of doeing myself the Honour to present your R. H. with my most humble duty & the Assurance of my utmost service and on this occasion of the Messenger's attending your R. H. with H. M. letter, I presume to lay my self at your feet. I have noe Enemy who knows me who is not just enough to allow me to be Invincibly attached to your succession, nothing comes in competition with that, because I know I please the Queen. I am zealous for the service of your Serene House. I hope therefore I shall find Credet with your R. H. when I humbly lay my sincere opinion before you, I am sure the Q. is most hearty for your succession. If there may be any thing which may render it more secure which is consistent with her Majesty's safety, it will be accomplish'd. It is not the eager designes of some, or what flows from the advice of any whose discontents perhaps Animates their Zeal, can ballance the security you have in the Q. friendship and the dutifull affection of all her faithfull subjects, for as I am sure your R. H. great wisdom would not chuse to Rule by a party, soe you will not let their narrow Measures be the Standard of your Government. I doubt not but this accident which hapened about the Writt may be Improv'd to increase the most perfect friendship between the Q. & your most Serene family. I shall study to doe every thing which may demonstrate the profound veneration & respect wherewith I am,

May it please your R. H.

Your R. H. most dutiful most Hum. & most Obed.,

OXFORD."

Endorsed:—Lord Oxford's Letter to the Elector of Hanover and the Queen's two letters to the Princess Sophia (sic) after the refusal of the Writ to the D. of Cambridge. 1714.

1720, Dec. 22. Rome. William Mildmay to the Earl of Westmorland.

"I made bold sometime ago to inform you of my passing thro' Genoa & Florence to this place, I hope your Lordship will pardon this 2nd trouble with an account of my further progress to Naples from whence again I am but lately returned.

"In travelling through that country fertile in Corn, Vineyards, and Olives. I easily suggested to myself how happy such a nation might be under the enjoyment of so many natural blessings, at the same time that I saw a miserable reduced half starved people, labouring so much under the double oppression of a tyrant prince & false religion, as to be able to call neither their Estates nor their Souls their own.

"Your Lordship is acquainted in the History of this Kingdom, that the inhabitants have ever been of a restless discontented temper and by often shifting themselves from under the subjection of one Power to another, have at last, like the frogs in the fable, obtained a devouring ^{EARL WEST-}

"The Souverainity of the Emperour seems upon many accounts to be directly contrary to their Interest, the distance of their Situation from Him, the tenderness He has for his own hereditary Country, the forms he must undergoe to gain Subsidies from the Dyet, and the Power which He claims over them by a pretended right of Conquest, are all so many motives to engage Him to charge them with Impositions beyond their share, and ever to make their Estate a Sacrifice to the Interest of his other Dominions; accordingly the Revenues He draws from hence amount to an incredible sum, about 800,000 gallons (?) of oil are made in a year, upon each of which He receives 5 Ducats; 'tis impossible to compute the quantity of Wine that is made, the Island of Ischia is said to produce more than 100,000 butts yearly, each butt pays above half the value of the Wine; their Exports consist chiefly in corn, raisins, & oil, and a small quantity of their sweet wines sent to Holland to mix up with the French white Wines; the License for the extraction of these, especially of their corn, is kept up at a high forbidding Price, the Duties upon Imports are equally excessive, to instance only in the English Trade, Our Cloath pays 10 or 12 p.c., dry Cod fish & Pilchards, upon which the common people mostly live, 15 p.c. Lead & Leather something less, besides all this, your Lordship has heard what occasional mulcts He has laid upon 'em for immediate sums, & how upon the exigency of this year He demanded as much as upon Computation amounted to the total of their Revenues, remaining over and above the payment of their other Duties & taxations, at the same time loading them with a number of extraordinary troops under pretence of protecting 'em from any accidental Invasion of Spain.

"For these reasons the Neapolitans make no scruple of declaring their eager desire of once more shifting themselves over to the yoke of Spain; that country encouraged their trade to the utmost and took off all the overplus of their corn, making the return in Bullion; the Pride too of the Spanish Officers who kept great tables & magnificent Equipages, contributed not a little to the quicker Circulation of money; Whereas the Germans who are sent there to make their fortunes, live upon the saving side and make great returns home, and what is still worse, the Neapolitan money being allowed to pass in Germany, above half the current coin has been within these few years drained away.

"Your Lordship may observe the wrong Policy in laying so high a Duty on the Exports, because the Merchants being nevertheless obliged to afford the productions of the Country at the same rate they are sold for from other places, must by that means receive a lesser profit on their trade, and consequently are rendered less able to pay the other Duties & taxations. 'Tis certain that where the produce of a Country is greater than the Consumption, an encouragement ought to be given to the exportation of the overplus; and 'tis owing to this burthen of a Licence for Extraction that so much rich ground in several parts of Calabria (the same as in the Campagna di Roma) lyes at present dead and uncultivated, & even that overplus of corn which is now produced, is carried off by Smugglers in Feluccas to Leghorn, and there laid up till wanted in other markets.

"And yet amidst all these civil oppressions the bigotry of the people is so great as to suffer the Clergy to take the gleanings of all those other liberties which the Emperour has left untouched; but I am the more surprised that the Emperour should suffer the Immunities of the Church to be equally prejudicial to his Interest & Authority as they are hard & injurious to his subjects, their exemptions from all taxes and duties, and their indulgence in a free importation, enables them to undersell their own produce, & expose foreign Commodities at almost an equal price so that as they pay nothing themselves to the charges of the Government, They likewise render his other Subjects less able to pay their share.

MORLAND'S MSS.

"From hence, my Lord, every true Englishman may conceive a just abhorrence of Popery & Arbitrary Power, 2 Evils which in this Country are seen to tend to the manifest distruction of the Liberties and fortunes, & almost to the deprivation of the sence & reason of the greatest part of its inhabitants.

"The person here [the Pretender] who vainly pretends to introduce such a double Calamity into our Nation, has affected lately to appear in all public Conversations & assemblies, so that my friend & I have often been deprived of the pleasure of those entertainments, in order to avoid seeing such Hōnours paid to Him in that Station to which He has neither Right, Title, nor Merit ; what again is almost as bad, his Irish adherents are very diligent in intrudeing themselves into the Company of all English travellers, the method they take to introduce themselves is generally by offering to lend the English Newspapers, for, by the by, I can assure your Lordship that Fogs Journal & the Craftsman come duly to Rome almost every week.

"From hence in a few days time I shall depart for Venice, where I hear Sir Francis Dashwood is already arrived ; whatever commands your Lordship shall please to send to those parts, no one will be so proud to execute as your Lordships most obedient and most humble servant."

1732, May 4. Rome. Letter from Angelo Belloni relative to the seizure of Mr. Thompson, the Treasurer of the Charitable Corporation.

1732, Feb. 9. John Norton to the Earl of Westmorland. From prison in Wood Street. Asks for assistance.

1730, Sept. 12. Amsterdam. C. Billingsley to Lord Westmorland. On the subject of the trade now practised by Jews of melting down the Gold Coinage and its transmission in bars to Holland. Requests him to write to Sir Robert Walpole to assist him in getting to the bottom of the trade.

1731, Jan. 8. From prison for debt in Vianen near Utrecht. Same to same. Proposal relative to the Coinage, and to a Scheme for the longitude at Sea. Requests his assistance with regard to them and to obtain payment of 300*l*. The States of Holland give 100,00 guildens (9,000*l*. sterling) for the discovery of the longitude at sea.

1731, Jan. 9 & 10. Same to same. Proposals for Encouraging the Coinage.

1731, June 13. From prison for debt in Vianen near Utrecht. Same to same. Requests his assistance to procure from the Government payment of 300*l*. disbursed in the public service in Holland relative to the Gold Coinage and the Sinking Fund.

1732, April 17. Same to same. Desires a letter of introduction to Lord Torrington and Sir John Norris to submit his scheme for Longitude, which is built upon the same principles by which Latitude is discovered, and as such was examined and approved by Sir Isaac Newton and the Lords of the Admiralty fifteen years before, though then in its infancy.

1571. Latin address to Queen Elizabeth from the University of Oxford. Chiefly on the subject of the Church of Rome.

1675, Sept. 29. [Edward] Coleman to [Père la Chaise.] "Since Father Saint German has beene soo kinde to mee as to recomend mee to your Reverence soe advantageously, as to incourage you to accept of my correspondence, I will owne to him that hee has done mee a favour without consulting mee, greater then I could have beene capable of, if hee had advised with me, because I should not then have had the confidence to have permitted him to aske it in my behalfe, and I am soe sensible of the Honour you are pleased to doe mee, that though I cannot deserve itt, yett at the least to shew the sence I have of itt, I will deale as freely and openly with you at this first time, as if I had had the Honour of your acquaintance all my life, and shall make noe apologie for soe doing, but onely tell you that I know your Character perfectly well, though I am not soe happy as to know your person, and that I have an opportunity of putting this Letter into the hands of Father Saint German's nephew (for whose integrity and prudence hee has undertaken) without any sort of hazard.

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

"In order then to the plainnesse which I profess I will tell you what has formerly passed betweene your Reverend Predecessor Father Ferrier* and my selfe about 3 years agoe when the King my Master sent a Troope of his horse Guards into his most Xtian Majestie's service under the command of my Lord Duras; hee sent with itt an Officer called Sir Wm. Throckmorton with whom I had a perticular intimacy, and who had then very newly embraced the Catholick Religion, to him did I constantly write, and by him address my selfe to Father Ferrier. The first thing of greate importance which I presumed to offer to him (not to trouble you with lessor matters, or what passed here before and immediately after the fatall Revocation of the King's declaracion for liberty of Conscience, to which we owe all our miserys and hazards) was in July, August, and September 1673, when I constantly inculcated the great danger Catholick Religion, and his most Xtian Majestie's interest would bee in at our next session of Parliament which was then to be in October following, att which I plainly foresaw that the King my master would bee forced to something in prejudice of his Allyance with France which I saw soe evidently and perticularly that wee should make peace with Holland, that I urged all the arguments I could (which to mee were demonstracions) to convince your Court of that mischiefe, and pressed what I could to persuade his Xtian Majestie to use his utmost force to prevent that Sessions of our Parliament and proposed expedients how to doe itt. But I was answered so often, and soe possitively, that his Xtian Majestie was soe well assured by his Ambassador here, our Ambassador there, the Lord Arlington, and even the King himselfe, that hee had noe such apprehension att all, but was fully satisfied of the contrary, and looked upon what I offered as a very zealous mistake, that I was forced to give over arguing, though not believing as I did, but confidently appealed to time and successe to prove who tooke their measures rightest. When itt happened that what I foresaw came to pass, the good Father was a little surprized to see all the greate men mistaken, and a little one in the right, and was pleased by Sir Wm. Throckmorton to desire the continuance of my correspondence, which I was mightily willing to comply with, knowing the interest of our King and in a more perticular manner of my more imediate master the Duke, and his most Xtian Majestie to bee soe inseperably united that itt was impossible to divide them without destroying them all. Upon this I shewed that our Parliament in the circumstances itt was in, managed by the timorous Counsell of our ministers who then governed, could never bee usefull either to England, France, or Catholick Religion, but that wee should as certainly bee forced from our neutrality att their next meeting, as wee had beene from our active alliance with France the last, that a peace in the circumstances wee were in was much more to be desired then the continuance of the warr, and that the dissolucion of our Parliament would certainly procure a peace, for that the Confederates did more depend upon the power they had in our Parliament, then upon anything else in the World, and were more incouraged from thence to continue the Warr, so that if that were dissolved their measures would bee all broken, and they consequently in a manner necessitated to a peace.

"The good Father minding this discourse somewhat more then the Court of France thought fitt to doe my former, urged itt soe home to the King that his Majesty was pleased to give him order to signify to his R. H. my master, that his Majesty was fully satisfied of his R.H. good intentions towards him, and that hee esteemed both their interests as but one and the same, that my Lord Arlington and the Parliament were both to bee looked upon as very unusefull to their interest, and that if his R. H. would endeavour to dissolve this Parliament his Majestie would assist him with his power and purse to have such a new one as should bee for their purpose. This and a greate many more expressions of kinnesse and confidence Father Ferrier was pleased to communicate to Sir Wm. Throckmorton, and comanded him to send them to his Royall H. and withall to begg his R. H. to propose to his most Xtian Majestie what hee thought necessary for his owne concerne, and the advantage of Religion, and his Majesty would certainly doe all hee could to advance both or either of them. This Sir Wm. Throckmorton sent to me by an expresse who left Paris on the 2nd June 1674 stylo novo. I noe sooner had itt but I communicated itt to his R. H. to which his R. H. comanded mee to answer as I did on the 29th of the same month: "that his R. H. was very sensible of his most Xtian Majestie's friendship and that hee would labour to cultivate with all the good Offices hee was capable of doeing for his Majesty, that he was fully convinced that their interests were both one, that my Lord Arlington and the Parliament were not only unusefull, but very dangerous both to England and France, that therefore itt was necessary that they should doe all they could to dissolve itt, and that his R. H.'s opinion was that if his most Xtian Majesty would write his thoughts freely to the King of England upon this subject, and make the same offer to his Majestie of his purse to dissolve this which he had made to his Royall H. to call another, he did believe it very possible for him to succeed with the assistance wee should be able to give him here. And that if this Parliament were dissolved there would be noe greate difficulty of getting a new one which would be more usefull, the constitution of our Parliaments being such that a new one cann never hurt the Crown nor an old one do it good.

"His R. H. being pleased to owne these propositions, which were but onely generall, I thought itt reasonable to bee more particular and come closer to the poynt, that if wee happened to agree wee might goe the faster about the worke, and come to some issue before the time were too much spent. I layd this for my maxime, the dissolucion of our Parliament will certainly procure a peace, which proposition was granted by every body I conversed with, even by Mons^r Rouvigny himselfe, with whom I tooke liberty of discoursing soe farr but durst not say any thing of the intilligence I had with Father Ferrier; next that a sum of money certaine would certainly procure a dissolucion; this some doubted, but I am sure I never did, for I knew perfectly well that the King had frequent disputes with himselfe att that time whether he should dissolve or continue itt, and hee severall times declared that the Arguments were soe strong on both sides that he could not tell to which to incline, but was carried att last to the continuance by this one argument; "if I try them once more they may possibly give me money, if they do I have gained my poynt, if they doe not I cann dissolve them then, and bee where I am now, soe that I have a possibility att least of getting money for their continuance against nothing of the other side." But if wee could have turned this argument and said "Sir, their dissolution will certainly procure you money, when you have onely a bare possibility of getting any by their continuance," and have showne how farr that bare possibility was from being a foundation to build any reasonable hope upon, which I am sure his Majestie was sensible enough of, and how much 300,000^{li} sterling certaine (which was the sum wee proposed) was better then a bare possibility (without any reason to hope that that would ever bee compassed) of haveing halfe soe much more (which was the most hee designed to aske) upon some vile and dishonourable termes, and a thousand other hazards which wee had greate reason to bee afraid of, if I say wee had had power to have argued thus, I am most confidently assured wee could have compassed itt, for Logick att Court built upon money has more powerfull charntes then any other sort of reasoning. But to secure his most Xtian Majestie from any hazard as to this poynt, I proposed that his Majesty should offer that sum upon that Condicion, and if the Condicion were not performed the money should never bee due, if itt were, and that a peace would certainly follow thereupon which noe body doubted, his Majesty would gain his ends, and save all the vast expences of the next Campaigne, by which hee could not hope to better his Condicion, or to putt himselfe into more advantageous circumstances of treating then hee was then in, but might very probably bee in a much worse, considering the mighty oppositions hee was like to meete with, and the uncertaine chances of warr. But admitting that his Majestie could maintaine himselfe by his greate strength and conduct, in as good a Condicion to treat the next yeare, as hee was then in, which was as much as could then reasonably bee hoped for, hee should have saved by this proposall as much as all the men hee must needs loose, and all the charges hee should bee att in a yeare, could bee valued to amount to more than 300,000^{li} Sterling, and soe much more in case his Condicion should decay, as itt should bee worse then itt was when this was made, and the Condicion of his Royall Highnesse, and of Catholick Religion here, which depends very much upon the successe of his most Xtian Majesty, delivered from a greate many frights, and reall hazards. Father Ferrier seemed to bee very sensible of the benefitt which all parties would gaine by this proposall, but yett it was unfortunately delayed by the unhappy and tedious sicknesse which kept him soe long from the King in Franche Comte, and made [him] soe unable to waite upon his Majestie after hee did returne to Paris, but soe soone as hee could compasse itt hee was pleased to acquaint his Majestie with itt, and did write to the Duke himselfe, and did mee the honour to [write] alsoe to mee on the 15th of September 1674, and sent his letters by Sir William Throckmorton who came expresse upon that errand. In those Letters hee gave his Ro. H. fresh assurances of his most Xtian Majestie's friendship, and of his zeale and readinesse to comply with every thing his R. H. had or should think fitt to propose in favour of Religion or the businesse of the money, and that hee had commanded Mons^r Rouvigny as to the latter to treat and deale with his Royall H., and receive and observe his orders and direccions, but desired that hee might not bee att all concerned as to the former, but that his R. H. would cause what propoositions hee would think fitt to bee made about Religion to be offered either to Father Ferrier or Mons^r Pomponne. These Letters came to us about the middle of our September, and his R. H. expected dayly, when Mons^r Rouvigny should speake to him about the subject of that Letter, but hee tooke noe notice att all of anything till the 29th of September, the evening before the King and Duke went to Newmarkett for a fortnight, and then onely said that he had comands from his master to give his R. H. the most firme assurances imaginable of his friendship or something to that purpose, making his R. H. a general Complement but noe mention of any peticular orders relateing to the subject of Father Ferrier's Letter. The Duke wondering at this proceeding, and being obleiged to stay good part of October att Newmarkett, and soone after his comeing back hearing of the death of Father Ferrier, he gave over all farther prosecuting of the former project.

"But I believed I saw Mons^r Rouvigny's Policy all along, who was willing to save his master's money upon an assurance that wee would doe all we could to stave off the Parliament for our owne sakes, that wee would struggle as hard without money as without itt (sic), and wee having by this time upon our owne interests prevailed to get the Parliament prorogued till the 13th of Aprill, hee thought that prorogation being to a day soe high in the Spring would putt the Confederates soe farr beyond their measures, as that itt might procure a peace and bee as usefull to France as a dissolution; upon these reasons which I supposed hee went upon I had several discourses with him, and did open myselfe to him soe farr as to say that I could wish his master would give us leave to offer 300,000*l.* to our master for the dissolucion of the Parliament and show him that a peace would most certainly follow a dissolution which hee agreed with mee in, and that wee desired not the money from his master to excite our wills, or to make us more industrious to use our utmost powers to procure a dissolution, but to strengthen our power and credit with the King, and to render us more capable to succeed with his Majesty as most certainly wee should have done had wee bene fortified with such an argument, to this purpose I pressed Mons^r Pompone frequently by Sir Wm. Throckmorton who returned from hence againe into France on the 10th of November the day the Parliament should have sate, but was prorogued. Mons^r Pompone as I was informed by Sir Wm. did seem to approve the thing, but yett had 2 objections against itt, first that the sum wee proposed was greate and could very ill bee spar'd by his master, in the circumstances hee was in, to which we answered that if by his expending this sum he could procure a dissolution of our Parliament and thereby a peace, which every body agreed would necessarily follow, his most Xtian Majestie would save 5 or 10 times greater sum and soe bee as good a husband by his expence, and if we did not procure a dissolution hee should not bee att that expence at all for that we desired him onely to promise upon that Condiicion which we were content to be obliged to perform first; the 2nd objection was that the Duke did not move itt, nor appeared in itt himselfe, to that wee answered That hee [did] not indeed to Mons^r Pompone, because hee had found soe ill an effect of the negotiation with Father Ferrier when itt came into Mons^r Rouvigny's hands but he had concerned himselfe in itt to Father Ferrier.

"Yett I continued to prosecute, and prest a dissolution of the Parliament, detesting all prorogations, as onely soe much losse of time, and a meanes of strengthening all those who depended upon itt in opposition to the Crowne, the interest of France & Catholick Religion in the opinion they had taken, that our King durst not part with his Parliament apprehending an other would be much worse, 2ndly that he could not live long without a Parliament, therefore they must suddenly meete, and the longer hee kept them of the greater his necessities would grow, and consequently their power to compell him to doe what they listed would increase accordingly, and therefore if they could but maintain themselves awhile, their day would certainly come & in a short time, in which they should bee able to worke their wills. Such discourses as these kept the Confederates and our Malcontents in hart, and made them weather on the warr in spite of all our prorogations, and therefore I pressed as I said a dissolution untill February last when our circumstances were soe totally changed, that wee were forced to change our Counsell too, and bee as much for the Parliament sitting as wee were before against itt: our change was thus, before that time the Lord Arlington was the onely minister in credit who thought himself out of all danger of the Parliament, hee having bene accused before them, and justified, and therefore was zealously for their sitting, and to increase his reputacion with them, and to become a perfect favourite hee sett himselfe all hee could to persecute Catholick Religion, and to oppose the French, to shew his zeale against the first, hee revived some old dormant orders for prohibiting Roman Catholicks to appear before the King, and putt them into execution at his first coming into his Office of Lord Chamberlaine, and to make sure worke against the 2^d as he thought, prevailed with the King to give him and the Earle of Ossory, who married two sisters of meine heere Odike,* leave to goe over into Holland with the said heeren to make a visit as they pretended to their Relacions, but indeed and in truth to propose the Lady Mary eldest Daughter of his Royall H. as a match to the Prince of Orange; not only without the consent, but against the good liking of his R. H. in soe much that the Lord Arlingtons Creatures were forced to excuse him with a distinction, that the said Lady was not [to] bee looked upon as the Duke's Daughter, but as the King's, and a Childe of the State, and soe the Duke's consent not to bee much considered in the disposall of her, but the interest onely of State, by this [he] intended to render himselfe the Darling of the Parliament and Protestants, who would looke upon themselves as secured in their Religion by such an Alliance, and designed further by that meanes to draw us into close conjunction with Holland and the Enemies of France. The Lord Arlington sett forth upon this errand on the 10th of November 1674, and returned not till the 6th of January following; during his absence the Lord Treasurer [Danby] Lord Keeper [Finch] and Duke of Lauderdale, who were the only ministers in any considerable credit with the King, and who all pretended to bee intirely united to the Duke, declaimed lowdly and with greate violence against the said Lord and his actions in Holland, and did hope in his absence to have totally supplanted him, and rooted him out of the King's favour, and after that they thought they might easily enough have dealt with the Parliament till they could gett rid of him, for feare they should sett in spight of them and come to heare that they had used their endeavours against itt, which would have beene soe unpardonable a Crime with our Omnipotent Parliament that noe power would have been able to have saved them from punishment; but they finding att his returne that they could not prevaile against him by such meanes and arts as they had then tryed resolved upon new Counsell, which were to out-run him in his owne course, which accordingly they undertooke, and became as fierce Apostles, and as Zealous for Protestant Religion, and against Popery, as ever my Lord Arlington was before them, and in pursuance thereof perswaded the King to issue out those severe orders and proclamacions against Catholicks, which came out in February last, by which they did as much as in them lay to extirpate all Catholicks and Catholick Religion out of the Kingdome & which Counsell were in my poore opinion soe detestible, being levelled as they must needs bee soe directly against the Duke by people which hee had advanced, and who had profest soe much duty and service to him, that wee were putt upon new thoughts how to save his R. H. now, from the deceits and snares of them upon whom wee formerly depended. Wee saw well enough that their designe was to make themselves as gratefull as they could to the Parliament (if itt must sett) they thinking nothing to be soe acceptable to them as the persecuting of Popery, but yett they were soe obnoxious to the Parliament's displeasure in generall that they would have beene very glad of any expedient to have kept itt off though they durst not to engage against itt openly themselves, but thought this devise of theirs might serve for that purpose, hoping that the Duke would bee soe allarmed att their proceeding, and by his being left by every body, that hee would bee much more affraid of the Parliament then ever, and would use his utmost power to prevent itt sitting, which they doubted not but they would endeavour, and they were ready enough to worke underhand with him for their owne sakes not his in order thereunto, but durst not appeare openly, and to encourage the Duke the more to endeavour to dissolve the Parliament their Creatures used to say upp and downe that this rigorous proceeding against Catholicks was in favour of the Duke, and to make the dissolucion of the Parliament more easy (which they knew hee covetted) by obviating one greate objection which was comonly made against itt, which was that if the Parliament should bee dissolved itt would bee said that itt was done in favour of Popery, which clamour they had prevented by the severity which they had showne against itt before hand. As soone as wee saw those tricks putt upon us wee plainly saw what men wee had to deale with, and what wee had to trust to if wee were wholly att their mercy, but yett durst not seeme soe dissatisfied as wee really were, but rather magnified the contrivance as a devise of greate cunning and skill, all this wee did purely to hold them on in a beleife that wee would endeavour to dissolve the Parliament that they might rely upon his R. H. for that which wee knew they longed for, and were afraid they might doe some other way if they discovered that wee were resolved wee would not. Att length when wee saw the Sessions secured wee declared wee were for the Parliaments meeting, as indeed we were from the moment wee saw ourselves used by all the King's Ministers att such a rate, that wee had reason to believe they would Sacrifise France, Religion, and his R. H. to their owne interests if occasion served, and that they were lead to believe that that was the only [way] they had to save themselves at that time, for wee saw noe expedient fitt to stopp them in their Carrier of persecution, and their other destructive Councells, but the Parliament which sett itt selfe a long time to dislike every thing the Ministers had done, and had appeared violently against Popery whilst the Court seemed to favour itt, and therefore wee were confident that the Ministers having turned their faces the Parliament would doe soe too, and still bee against them, and bee as little for persecucion then as they had beene for Popery before; this I undertooke to manage for the Duke, and the King of France his interest, and assured Mons^r Rouvigny (which I am sure hee will testify if occasion serves) that that session should doe neither of them any hurt, for that I was sure I had power enough to prevent mischeife, though I durst not answer for any good they should doe, because I had but very few assistants to carry on the worke, and wanted those helps which others had of makeing friends. The Dutch and Spaniards spared noe paines nor expence of money to animate as many as they could against France, our Lord Treasurer, Lord Keeper, all the Bishops, and such as called themselves old Cavaliers, who were all then as one man, were not lesse industrious against Popery, and had the purse att their Girdle, the which is an excellent Instrument to gaine friends with, and all united against the Duke as Patron both of France and Catholick Religion. To deale with all this force, wee had noe money but what came from a few private hands, and those soe meane too, that I dare venture to say that I spent more my perticuler selfe out of my owne fortune, and upon my single credit, then all the whole body of Catholicks in England besides, which was soe inconsiderable in comparison of what our adversaries could comand, and wee verily believe did bestow in making their party, that is not worth mentioning, yett notwithstanding all this wee saw that by the help of the non-conformists (as Presbiterians, Independants, and other sects) who were as much afraid of persecution as ourselves, and of the enemies of the Ministers, and perticularly of the Treasurer (who by that time had supplanted the Earle of Arlington, and was growne sole manager of all affaires himselfe) we should bee able to prevent what they designed against us, and soe render the sessions ineffectuall to their ends though we might not be able to compasse our owne, which were to make one brisk stepp in favour of his R. H. to show the King that his Majestie's affaires in Parliament were not obstructed by reason of any aversion they had to his R. H.'s person, or apprehension they had of him, or his Religion, but from faction and ambition in some, and from a reall dissatisfaction in others; that wee have not had such fruits and effects of those greate sums of money which have formerly beene given as they expected; if wee could have made then but one such stepp, the King would certainly have restored his R. H. to all his Comissions, upon which hee would have beene much greater than ever yett he was in his whole life, or could probably ever have beene by any other course in the world then what he had taken of becoming Catholick, &c. And wee were soe very neare gaineing this poynt that I did humbly begg his R. H. to give mee leave to the Parliament upon making an addresse to the King that his Majesty would be pleased to putt the Fleete into the hands of His R. H. as the only person likely to give a good accompt of soe important a charge as that was to the Kingdome, and shew his R. H. such reasons to perswade him that wee would carry itt, that he agreed with mee in itt, that he believed wee could gett others, telling him how greate a damage itt would bee to him if hee should misse in such a undertaking (which for my part I could not then see, nor doe I yett) hee was prevailed upon not to venture, though he was perswaded hee could carry itt. I did communicate this designe of mine to Mons^r Rouvigny who agreed with mee that itt would be the greatest advantage to his Master imaginable to have the Duke's power and creditt soe advanct, as this would certainly doe, if wee could compasse itt; I shewed him all the difficulty wee were like to meete with, and what helps wee should have, but that wee should want one very materiall one, money, to carry on the worke as wee ought, and therefore I doe confes I did shamefully beg his Master's help and would willingly have been content to have been in everlasting disgrace with all the world, if I had not with the assistance of 20,000^{li} sterling from him (which perhaps is not the tenth part of what was spent on the other side) made it evident to the Duke that he could not have missed it. Mons^r Rouvigny used to tell me that [if] hee could bee sure of succeeding in that designe his master would give a very much larger sum, but that hee was not in a Condicion to throw away money upon uncertainties; I answered that nothing of this nature cann bee soe infallibly sure as not to be subject to some possibility of faileing, but that I durst venture to undertake to make it evident that there was as greate an assurance of succeeding in itt as any husbandman cann have a crop in harvest who sowes his ground in itts season, and yett itt would bee accounted a very imprudent peece of waryness in any body to scruple the venturing soe much seed in itts proper time because itt is possible itt may bee totally lost, and noe benefit of itt found in harvest; hee that mindes the windes and the Raines att that rate shall neither sow nor reap. I take our case to be much the same now as itt was the last sessions: if we cann advance the Duke's interest one stepp foward we shall putt him out of the reach of all chances for ever, for hee makes such a figure already, that cautious men doe not care to act against him, or allways without him, because they doe not see that hee is much outpowered by his enemies, yett is hee not att such a pitch as to bee quite out of danger, or free from opposition, but if hee could gaine any considerable new addition of power, all would come over to him as the onely stedy center of our Government and noe body would content (sic) with him farther ; then would Catholicks bee att ease, and his most Xtian Majesties interest secured with us in England beyond all apprehensions whatever.

MORLAND'S MSS.

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

" In order to this we have two greate designs to attempt this next sessions, first that which we were about before, viz. : to put the Parliament upon making itt their humble request to the King that the Fleete may be putt under his R. H. care, and 2dly to get an act for general liberty of conscience. If we carry those two or either of them, wee shall in effect do what wee list afterwards, & truely wee doe not think wee undertake these greate poynts very unreasonably, but that we have good cards for our game, not but that wee expect greate opposition, and have reason to begg all the assistance wee cann possibly get, and therefore if his most Xtian Majesty would stand by us a little, in this Conjuncture, and help us with such a sum of 20,000^{li} sterling, which is noe greate matter to venture upon such an undertaking as this, I would be contented to bee sacrificed to the utmost malice of my enemies if I did not succeed. I proposed this several times to Mons^r Rouvigny who seems alwaies of my opinion, and has often told me that he has writt unto France upon this subject, and he desired me to do the like, but I know not whether he will be as jealous in this point as a Catholick would be, because our prevailing in these things will give the greatest blow to the Protestant Religion here, that ever it received since itt's birth, which perhaps hee would not be very glad to see, especially when he believes that there is another way of doing his master's business well enough without itt, which is by a dissolution of the Parliament, upon which I know hee mightily depends & concludes if that comes to be dissolved it will bee as much as he need care for, proceeding perhaps upon the same manner of discourse which we did this time 12 months, but with submission to his better judgment I doe think that our Case is extreemly much altered from what itt was then in relation to a dissolution, for then the body of our governing ministers all but the Earle of Arlington were intirely united to the Duke, and would have governed his way if they had beene free from all feare, & controuled as they would have been if the Parliament had been removed, but they having since that time engaged in quite different Counsells & imbarqued themselves & interests upon other bottoms having declared themselves against Popery &c. to dissolve the Parliament simply & without any other step made, will bee to leave them to govern what way they list which we have reason to suspect will be to the prejudice of France & Catholicks, because their late declaracions & actions have demonstrated to us that they take that for the most popular way for themselves, and the likest to keep them in absolute power, whereas should the Duke gett above them after the tricks they had served him they are not sure he will totally forget the usage he has had att their hands, therefore it imports us now to advance our interest a little farther by some such project as I have named before we dissolve the Parliament, or else perhaps wee shall but change Masters of Parliament for ministers and continue still in the same slavery and bondage as before, but one such stepp as I have proposed being well made wee may safely see them dissolved and not feare the ministers but shall be established and stand firme without any opposition, for every body will then come over to us and worshipp the rising sun.

" I have here given you this history of 3 years as short as I could though I am afraid it will seeme very long and troublesome to your Reverence among the Multitude of the affairs you are engaged in ; I have also shown you the present state of our case, which may by God's providence and good Conduct be made of such advantage to God's Church that for my part I cann scarce believe myselfe awake or the thing reall, when I think of a Prince in such an age as wee live in converted to such a degree of zeale & piety as not to regard anything in the World in comparison of God Almighty's Glory, the Salvacion of his owne soule, and the Conversion of our poore Kingdome which has a long time beene oppressed and misserably harassed by heresie and scisme. I doubt not but your Reverence will consider our case & take itt to heart, and afford us what help you cann both with the King of heaven by your holy prayers, and with his most Xtian Majestie by that greate credit which you most justly have with him, and if ever his Majesties affaires or your owne cann ever want the service of so inconsiderable a Creature as my selfe you shall never finde any body readier to obey your Comands or faithfuller in the execucion of them to the best of his power then

A subject fitter for a præsident"
"In what sence you will."

A small octavo volume, being holograph memoirs of Thomas sixth Earl of Westmorland commencing thus: "The six foregoing leaves I have thought fit to expunge, and although the design of this book was for another purpose by its being ruled yet I found my time would not allow me to pursue it, being left with a small estate to an ancient title, that considering the pomp my predecessors had lived in this country with a much greater estate, yet the world expected something like it from me or that I must be slightly thought of without making allowance for the diminution of the estate left unto me. Wherefore that I might make the best of what I had to the credit of my family I did as is hereafter expressed, and which together with my observations concerning the rights and advantages that are or may hereafter be made to this family from this estate, also several secret remarks and things necessary to be known by those who shall succeed to it, I shall hereafter put down as they occur to me for their benefit, though some ought to be always a secret to the owners hereof. And as my intention is for their service, so I hope it will be accepted by them, though but in a plain and incorrect manner of writing, for the thing (and not the diction or spelling) is for their advantage, and whereas I have quoted many useful observations and what hath given me lights into many things from the things I have met with in books of this kind left by my predecessors now remaining in the library here, and which if it please God I live to do it, [I] design to collect them together and place them in the repository for deeds and writings which I design to build, so I shall add this for the same good intention to the assistance of those who shall come after me, neither would I be understood as designing or meaning to reflect on any of my predecessors from whom I am so greatly beholden for what I have, next to God the giver of all things who is to be praised for ever."

Folio 11. "Charles Earl of Westmorland by all accounts I could get came into the possession of an estate above the double of what he left it, but being one that cared not for business and having no children of his own left all to the management of those about him. He married for his first wife a very good fortune, who died in childbed, and her estate being in land went away to her heirs upon his death; for his second wife he married a daughter of the then Earl of Cardigan's who although she was young never had any children * * *

Folio 12. "Vere Earl of Westmoreland the brother of Charles by the half blood succeeded to the title, etc. He was a very good natured man but affected popularity too much, living in Kent, where he was greatly beloved, far beyond the compass his estate would allow of, which did involve him and his family in many difficulties, but he did not live long to enjoy the title* but having been very forward and active in the revolution he hoped to make an amends to his family by the rewards he was made to expect due to his merit from Court, but he found himself greatly deceived in the short time he lived and which I would have to be a warning to all not to spend their estates to serve the Court in expectation of being afterwards repaid or rewarded.

Folio 14. * * * "Vere married Rachel, the daughter of John Bence, Alderman of the City of London, who in the plague year got a great estate, she was only daughter; the fortune he paid down with her was but small about 5 or 6,000*l.*, nothing proportionable to the expensive manner of life my Father had put himself into and although in the whole she was a very great fortune to his family, yet coming but in small sums like presents it supplied only a present occasion to stop some clamorous gap and so the family [were] not the better for it but greatly the worse * * * Folio 16. * * * "I have seen a calculation of what my Father received on account of himself and his children by reason of that match to amount unto in the whole about 40,000*l.* * * *

Folio 17. * * * "My Father's manner of living being much beyond his estate he was forced to join with my Uncle in releasing this estate whereby they made mortgages thereof for their present want, but by which means gave my uncle the power of granting away many estates as before spoken of from the Family. My Father did not long survive my Grandfather, my Mother taking upon herself the executorship and not being used to business was greatly misused by those she trusted * * * My elder Brother Vere after my Father's death was by the recommendations of him made to King William, taken under his immediate protection and care and was by him sent into Holland where he was put to the Academy at the Hague and growing to be a very handsome man with performing of his exercises in a good manner and becoming to be an accomplished gentleman, the King took great delight in him so that he become a favourite and was in a very promising way of again raising his Family in reputation as well as fortune being greatly beloved by all and much favoured by his Prince, if it had pleased God that he might have continued longer in this world, but he was taken away by a violent fever which he got at a Ball made by the Princess Anne of Denmark (since Queen Anne) about the time of his arrival at age.† This sudden death of my Brother brought me to the title who was then a Volunteer at sea on board the Revolution under the command of Captain Beaumont where I had served almost two years. In the which I took great delight so that had I continued I might have risen considerably in the world and done well to my Family as others Folio 23. "I went to School at Darrent near Dartford in Kent to Mr. Taylor the Minister of the Parish where I was at the time of my Father's death and some little time longer, and was from thence removed to Eaton with my Brother John*, and when I had gotten to the upper end of the second form I was removed to a school at Kensington to learn mathematics in order for going to sea for which I was designed. I did not stay long there but was sent back again to Eaton. I was at this school of Kensington when Whitehall was burnt which I saw in flames from my own window.

"This shifting about put me quite off from learning, so that I got but into the second remove of the third form at Eaton before I left the school again for altogether and was sent to sea a volunteer on board the Revolution, commanded by Captain Beaumont, afterwards Admiral, and who was drowned with a great many others in the great storm of 1704. I continued at sea till the death of my Brother Vere which was about a year and a half and better from my first going.

"Upon my Brother Vere's death which happened in May 1698† I was by my Mother ordered to meet King William in his way for Holland, she having made application for me to him whilst in London. Upon which I met the King at Margate, who ordered me to attend him at the Hague in Holland; I did so, and was by him ordered into the Academy there: I was very sorry for this change of life having a great delight to the sea where I wished to have continued, but my Mother through mistaken notions I suppose, fancied that because my Brother was so fortunate as to be in the King's favour greatly therefore she hoped I should succeed him in that as well as Estate. I went to Holland with one servant and little money in my pocket, without recommendations to any, a stranger in a strange country. After I had been there three days the King went to his hunting seat at Loe. Sir Joseph Williamson was then ambassador at the Hague who shewed me the greatest civilities. * * *

Folio 26. . . . "About two months after the King's departure I received an order from my Lord Romney, then Groom of the Stole, to go into the Academy, which was very seasonable for me. Sir Joseph Williamson returning about this time for England about a month after this came over Mr. Steⁿ Lion to be my Governor * * * Folio 27. * * * "I could get little but fair promises to subsist on from Court and my Mother believing I was better supplied returned me but little also, so that when the Queen came to the Crown I could not proceed on my travels or return home till my Lord Marlborough who came over soon after the King's death to Holland was so kind (as) to order me 200*l.* from Mr. Smeade the Paymaster of the troops then in Holland, with which money I discharged all, made a short progress about Holland and the other Provinces and in July returned over to England * * *

Folio 30. * * * "About a year and a half after I came over, which was in the second year of the Queen, I was made a Lord of the Bed-chamber to the Prince of Denmark. I am not capable to set forth the just praise due to that good man, so far I can say as the facts proved themselves, that he kept the Queen from being beguiled to her dishonour by sycophants that were about her all the time of his life, for no sooner was he dead but she sullied the great glory she had gained during her reign before, by bringing in a party not able to support her and to go on with the war she was engaged in for the liberties of Europe and had so much success in it, by the blessing of God great victories every year, till persuaded by the crafty designs of her new ministry and her own weakness to discard her successful General the Duke of Marlborough and that Ministry which had raised her name so high beyond any of her predecessors, for so many glorious successes, and putting herself into the hands of weak as well as wicked men to maintain their power, brought her into an ignominious peace and a much baser act, the desertion of her allies just ready to enter upon action, which compelled them to make also then the best peace they could; this sad change would not have been if the death of the Prince of Denmark had not happened, for he kept whisperers off and helped her judgment to stand by those who had so successfully carried on her affairs in that part of her reign.

"I remember at a meeting of several Lords and other great men in the reign of King William as they had fears for the succession, and the Queen beginning her reign with taking into places all those of the contrary party and many who were known not to be favourers of the revolution, and the principles of whence it sprung, particularly Admiral Churchill who had a great sway in the Prince of Denmark's affections and governed the Admiralty under him, these great men were wishing the time to come which was daily expected of the Prince's death that so the Admiralty might also be taken out of the hands of Mr. Churchill, for about this time the Queen had begun to change into the measures of King William's Ministry, and to take them in, from whence afterwards followed her great successes, upon this discourse I did happily prophecy the ill which would follow by saying that whenever the Prince died they would find the loss of him to the Queen.

"The Prince although a foreigner born was become so hardy an Englishman that it was visible to all who were about him, always pleased with their successes and speaking always in a manner viz., natural for a people of a country to do in behalf of their own, so he used to do on the behalf of this Kingdom, looking upon it as his own country. He was mighty easy towards all his servants, affected not popularity, and appearing in public; towards his latter days grew very fat and uneasy to himself with a great difficulty of breathing which made him care little to stir about, would stand still a great while till he became afflicted with the gout.

"About three years after I had been in his service, I was appointed to be his Deputy and Lieutenant in the Cinque Ports, wherein I was cautious not to act anything without first acquainting of him with it, for as I was of a different sentiment to all the rest of his family, and was put into this office on the removal of the Earl of Winchelsea, I had reason to believe my doings would not have the easiest representations made of them especially from Mr. Churchill who was not pleased with my principles."

The writer then proceeds to state that on the occasion of an election at the Cinque Ports he gave cause to Lord Godolphin for complaint to the Prince, and that Mr. Churchill had also told the Prince of some heinous thing he alleged the writer had been guilty of in the office of Lieutenant, concerning which however the Prince had been informed by the writer, who had received his orders therein, and that the Prince on hearing of the matter informed Mr. Churchill it was a lie. Another ground of offence to Lord Godolphin had been the writer's conduct at the time of the Union, relative to the clause for dissolving the council.

Folio 40. "After a long tedious day in debating part of the bill which lasted till late at night, this clause of dissolving the Council was the last put and carried, and then the remainder of the bill was adjourned till the next day. The next morning very early a groom came to my house with orders for me to attend the Prince by eight of the clock that morning at Kensington where the Queen in the winter then was, accordingly I made all the haste I could and went to Kensington where I asked the Page of the Backstairs who had been there overnight, if he could tell on what occasion I was sent for, he told me he knew not and that there had been nobody the day before at Court, but about ten of the clock at night the Lord Treasurer had been with the Queen so then I guessed at the business. Some little time after I had been there the Prince came out of his closet and speaking very kindly to me said, "my Lord there is a business going to be in Parliament wherein the Queen thinks her service very much concerned," and therefore he spoke to me of it, I asked what, he said in relation to settling the Scotch Government and particularly the Council, I then said that matter was passed last night, and that indeed I was for the clause to dissolve them because as it was to be an entire Union the nearer we could make it so the better, to be but one people, and that I thought one Council for the whole United Kingdom was sufficient: he said he was very well satisfied in the integrity of my actions, and for his part he should not direct me, so after talking on other matters he left me. By this discourse I found the Treasurer who was much for having the Council kept up the better to make parties, was the occasion of my journey, but that he had either forgot the last clause which was passed before adjournment or was gone for Kensington before the committee arose which indeed was late."

The writer then refers to the death of the Prince and the appointment of the Earl of Dorset by the recommendation of the Duchess of Marlborough to the Wardenship of the Cinque Ports, but that he could not serve under the Earl of Dorset or any one else than the Prince.

Folios 45 to 47. The writer then states at length a controversy that had arisen between his mother, himself, and Sir James Fuller of Nas-sington relative to the cutting of some poles by some persons in a riotous manner in the Earl's woods of Sulehey, and about which Sir James Fuller had written to the Treasury, alleging that the woods had been secreted from the Crown, whereby a great clamour had been raised in the country, and although the Treasury had professed themselves satisfied with the Earl's title, he could never get a discharge from Lord Treasurer Godolphin. He then sets out the historical state of the case, commencing as follows:—

Fol. 48. "This Estate of Apethorpe and several towns hereabouts did anciently belong to a Lord Mountjoy who sold the same the King Henry the VIII. and went upon the adventures in Ireland which was the practice of many in those days to conquer and settle lands there as hath been since practised in the West Indies. The King exchanged several of these estates with Sir Walter Mildmay for his estates in Wiltshire, which brought him first into this country at which time the King's forest woods as also other the King's desmesnes were farmed out under leases, and the Crown having occasion for money made sale thereof. The Lord Peterborough and Sir Walter Mildmay became purchasers of the woods of Morehey, Westhey and Farming Woods which they afterwards divided between themselves, the Lord Peterborough had Farming Woods and Sir Walter the other.

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

The writer then sets out his title to the woods and to the keeprage of Sulehey, and to a further grant of Crown rights in the forest which he had obtained from King George.

Fol. 55 to 68. He then proceeds to a question between him and Mr. Lynn of Southwick (after his marriage with Mrs. Bellamy's daughter) relative to an enclosure made by him out of the Earl's forest in which account he deals fully with his title thereto.

Fol. 68. "In the year of the entire Union of the two Kingdoms being 1708 and which commenced the first of May was I married the (sic) day of June to a most excellent woman; she was of an ancient family the only daughter of Mr. Thomas Stringer, of Sharleston, in the county of York. She was married first to Richard Beaumont Esquire of Whitley in the said county, who died without having any children, and about three years afterwards I had the happiness to obtain her in marriage."

He alludes at Folio 74 to the birth of a fine fullgrown boy but dead in consequence of injuries inflicted upon his wife during pregnancy by Sir David Hamilton (a Doctor sent for from London by his mother, "who was in many things a very unfortunate woman to her family [and] was so here by her oppiniatry of having this man"), who had ordered her to be driven as fast as possible over the roughest roads for an hour in order to bring on her confinement, and "was sensible he had done her an injury not only to the present child but also to future expectations, and so it hath proved."

Fol. 75. The writer refers to the renewal he had obtained of a Crown grant of the Wardenship of the Cliffe Bailiwick and to the possession by his Family of the Keeping of the Hundred Court of Willowbrook, etc.

Fol. 79. "The grant of this office I have been long hunting after at last I found only a grant renewed to Mildmay, Earl of Westmoreland for his life and lives of two of his sons of which lives my Father was the last."

The Memoirs end at page 82 after which is an entry made on the 11th of August 1773 by John 9th Earl of Westmorland. "I recommend it to posterity not to suffer any rabbits to be in the forest for the future. For some years before I came to the title and to reside here the keepers suffered the rabbits to increase in such quantities that many sales of fine underwood have been almost destroyed to the detriment of the Family I will venture to say for years to come and probably for ever unless great care and pains are taken of the woods for the future that the family will suffer by the damages done by the rabbits several hundreds per annum.

J. WESTMORELAND."

Two volumes of MS., being the journals of Maria, wife of John Earl of Clarendon, of journeys to France, Italy, Switzerland, and Austria, in the years 1791 and 1802-3. The journals are of considerable length; the following are extracts:—

1791. Jan. 21. Paris. "To see the ruins of the Bastille and l'Place de Grève, where the Lanthorn post is remaining on which the Governor of the Bastille & others have been executed by the populace. Saw M. de la Tude, who had been confined in the Bastille for 30 years for having written some satirical verses upon Mme. de Pompadour."

Sunday, Jan. 23. "Went to the Tuilleries to see the King & Queen at dinner; the staircase handsome & large, but those apartments I saw are too small for a Court. The revolution having begun, the Royal Family were afraid of appearing in too much state, therefore the great apartments were not open. * * * The King struck me as having some resemblance to Lord Macartney, the Queen was not so fat as I expected, but to me she has no beauty nor any traces left to make one suppose she ever had much; she is tall and has much dignity in her carriage."

Monday, Jan. 24. "This day there was a skirmish between the Chasseurs & 800 of the people who endeavoured to bring in the provisions for the markets without paying the usual duties at the Porte of St. Denis."

"Rome, April 18. Dined at Lord Clifford's with Sir Richard Hoare, Mr. Bell, and Gerald Wellesley, went from thence with Lady Clifford to a concert at Prince Camille de Rohan, brother to the Cardinal de Rohan, the Maltese Ambassador, from which I was carried to be presented to the Princess Santa Croce, who is the lady of the greatest sway in Rome, and her powers are not only limited to this place for she is said also to govern the Cabinet at Madrid, owing to her friendship with Florida Bianca, the first minister of Spain, who was Ambassador for that Court at Rome 15 years ago, and the Princess of Santa Croce and he have never met since. She still keeps up her influence; she is said to be near sixty, but in gaudy dress and rouge she looks much younger and is still rather handsome."

Wednesday, April 20. * * * * "We ended the morning by going to see the King of Naples' arrival into Rome, which however was not worth the trouble as he came in without any other suite but a few dusty carriages heavily laded, in which were his attendants, but this sight was the occupation of all Rome." * * * *

Friday, April 29. "In the evening we went to Cardinal Bernis' where the Mesdames received company. Mme. Victoire is fat, and in her manners and appearance a country gentlewoman; the youngest, Madame Adelaide, is short and not fat, she does not possess any more than her sister l'air noble, though both look like two good old housekeepers. Cardinal Bernis' address is everything that is affable and good humoured, he is a fat man with a very cheerful open countenance. The Mesdames' Cercle was a very short one, after which I ended the evening with the Duchess of Fleury at Prince Camille's, the Maltese Ambassador, there was collected a chosen set of French who amused themselves in taking the positions of the antique statues, that amusement gave way to a thé à l'anglais to which they did honour by the manner in which they ate and drank at it; the company consisted of Princess Joseph de Monaco, a fair pretty woman something like Lady Derby in her manners, Madame Castelan * * *, Madame de Pondeise, a chanoinesse who has a tender friendship for the Prince Camille and does the honour of his house, her beauties are entirely internal or at least invisible, the Duchess of Fitz-James, who is a fine figure and reckoned handsome, she has very much the appearance of a woman of fashion, the Duke of Fitz James, a bon vivant who loves the pleasures of this world in all their branches, he is not what one would call a clever man in conversation, but he has very much a character à lui, and in all subjects which can be determined by the point of honour he never errs. The Chevalier de Puis-Segur was once admired for his beauty, though that is un peu flétrie he still retains the little manner attendant on the rôle of petit maître; he is clever, at least he is possessed of that sort of light airy French esprit which makes him pleasant in society. The Marquis de Coigny is affectation personified and a strolling actor in appearance, for further particulars vide Shakespear's courtier as described by Hotspur."

Sunday, June 19. Rome. Went to Mr. Fagan's to sit for my picture; dined at a little lodge in the Borghesi Gardens; the dinner was given by Monsieur de Narbonne to the Fleurys, Princess Joseph, Prince Jules de Rohan nephew to Prince Camille, and ourselves. Monsieur de Narbonne I have never yet particularly mentioned, * * * he is reckoned with much reason a man of beaucoup d'esprit, he is very good company, seems well informed, and has a turn for liberality and expence very much in the style of the Comte de Grammont, by which character I should think he might have modelled his own."

"Wednesday, July 2. Geneva. "Went to visit Madame de Stael at Copet, a chateau of her Father M. Neckar, about seven miles from Geneva, she introduced me to Monsieur and Madame Neckar; he talked little, Madame Neckar talked a great deal; she is reckoned a woman of knowledge but rather pedantic. Madame Stael is very clever, an authoress, very ugly, and very free & good humoured, but she astonished me with her curiosity and questions which often went to the most trifling subjects, which reached to every subject the most private in one's situation, circumstances, etc."

Wednesday, August 18 & following days. Visits Monsieur Lavater the physiognomist. "He receives all strangers who send to desire to be admitted to him, he is a thin man about 50, and has a great deal of vivacity and expression in his eyes. He showed us a pretty collection he has made of portraits and drawings. Of his own art, he talked with much enthusiasm; he afterwards came to the Inn and supped with us. He has seen Mr. Fox, of whom he said he had given the following opinion, 'his face is full of judgment, his memory is astonishing, his brows powerful and commanding, his eyes full of genius. His nose is not extraordinary, the mouth the source of his eloquence and of an enormous volubility. His appearance altogether that of a man the most natural and vivacious you can conceive.' Mr. Lavater is respected and adored as a pastor and has a most astonishing eloquence in the pulpit, he has a living at Zurich of about 150*l.* a year."

Tuesday, September 12. Paris. "Went with Madame de Stael at nine in the evening to the National Assembly at which we heard the Abbé Mauri speak * * *, the debate was interrupted by the arrival of the Garde des Sceaux with a letter from the King to declare his acceptance of the Constitution. The letter was read out by the President and received the most violent applause. Monsieur de Lafayette also made a short speech."

The second volume is a narrative of a journey to Paris and Vienna in 1802-3. The following are extracts:—

On the way to Paris, "at Saint Denis and in other towns we observed these two curious placards, the one written on the churches and the other on entering the towns, "Le peuple Français reconnaît un Dieu et la vie immortelle," the other "Citoyens, respectez les propriétés, les biens et les productions d'autrui; ils sont le fruit de son industrie, et de son travail."

Wednesday, July 11. "This day being an annual fête since the Revolution and being this year celebrated with increased parade in honour likewise of the peace with England * * * we went to a gentleman's house in the Carousel to see the review * * * The review consisted of nearly 14,000 troops all picked from the different regiments, the infantry were placed in the court of the Tuilleries which is divided from the Carousel by a iron balustrade and two gateways.

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

* * * * *

In the Carousel was placed the cavalry; Bonaparte came out of the centre door of the Tuilleries and mounted his horse, where a large cortege of General Officers and Aide-de-camps were ready to attend him. Bonaparte was dressed in a plain blue coat and plain hat without lace or feather, he rode a white long-tailed horse; the plainness of his dress was evidently for effect, for his attendants were in their uniforms, both in their own dress and the accoutrements of their horses they were as magnificent as possible. A corps of 200 Mamelukes were the novelty of the day, they arrived at Paris the day before.

July 19. Met Talma the famous tragedian in the Gallery (of the Louvre) walking there with Kemble. Talma entered into a discussion about the best method of cutting out the Roman Toga which he said he alone had discovered so as to give it the proper folds in the drapery. At the time when the Directory wore Roman Dresses Talma was Taillewr en chef to the Great Nation.

July 20. Went in the morning to Versailles. The party we met there was Lord Dalkeith, Lord Montagu, & Sir C. Douglas, who were accompanied by the Duke de Mailly, which made the seeing the Palais very interesting as he had been with the poor King & Gentlehomme de la Chambre during the time that all the horrors were committing at Versailles & he pointed out to us all the different circumstances that occurred as we walked through the apartments & we saw the stain of blood remain on the floor where the Swiss Guard was massacred * * * We were allowed to go into a room which is not generally shown, in which are pictures of Louis 15th & his family as also a picture of the unfortunate Louis the 16th & one particularly interesting of the Queen & her Children, the resemblance extremely striking, painted by Madam le Brun. This picture was saved from destruction by having a placard to this effect written upon it "Respectez un chef d'œuvre des Arts."

August 2. "We went in the evening to a little Theatre called the Vaudeville where we saw a piece which amused us very much. Lord Nelson was introduced, as also an English boy talking bad French with a bad accent. The English character was supposed to be exactly represented by great roughness and boldness of behaviour joined to an ungracious manner, though always performing acts of the greatest generosity.

Aug. 3. The first Consul addressed a small party of soldiers who were selected from different regiments to receive from his hands new standards which he presented with an address which he delivered in a very good manner. His outline of face has a great resemblance to Kemble the actor in miniature, his stature is very low and his figure has no air or distinction. His best appearance is when on horseback, his features are regular and he has a pleasing expression about his mouth, with small eyes very hollow in his head.

Aug. 5. We went in the evening to the Buffa Opera, Madame Tallien was at the Opera; she has made too conspicuous a figure in the Revolution not to excite curiosity in those who had not seen her. The expression of her countenance is particularly cheerful and good humoured; her features are small and regular, she is very pale, white with dark hair and eyes, her person has grown too fat and out of shape, her hands and arms are very handsome.

Aug. 11. We ended the morning at David's to see a famous picture painted by him, the subject the Rape of the Sabines. David is esteemed the best existing painter at Paris, he has been an active person in the Revolution, after having owed his first success to the Court, and he is said to have committed some of the most atrocious acts of any of the monsters of the Revolution. He is in his person the most frightful of men.

Aug. 11. In the evening we went to Madame Tallien's, now Madame Cabarus; we were desirous of seeing her from her being a person of so marked a character in the Revolution though her disposition to gallantry would exclude her from being received in good society.

August 16. Left Paris. Chalons, as indeed the whole road, is becoming very interesting to travellers by its having been the one the King went when he intended to make his escape from France, as also the Duke of Brunswick's army having encamped within six leagues of Chalons when the united armies had penetrated into France. At St. Menoud the inhabitants entered into conversation and told us several very interesting anecdotes about the King; the gentleman of the house suspected it was the King when the carriage stopped to change horses by a snuff box set with diamonds which the King took out of his pocket, this suspicion was confirmed by his trying to conceal himself as he sat in the carriage. These people said he travelled with too much display, for at that period of the Revolution everyone going towards the frontier was suspected, and that the King had a new carriage of immense size which could not fail attracting notice. As soon as the carriage drove off the Post Master came across to his neighbours and said "Je gage que c'est le Roi qui vient de passer," and he set out across the fields to give this notice at the next post. His neighbours were anxious, they said, that the King should not be molested, so they went to the commanding officer of the Regiment then quartered at St. Menoud to tell him what had passed, they said, "Que ce Regiment était comprise de gens tres loyaux" and accordingly a soldier was detached to intercept the Post Master; the soldier was on horseback and the other on foot, but the Post Master from knowing the country he evaded the pursuit though they were once or twice in sight of each other.

September 29. Vienna. "At 11 o'clock I was called for by Madame Rouramously to go to the Palace to be presented to the Emperor and Empress. * * * Several people were waiting in the anteroom for audiences; these people were of all descriptions, country women in their gold caps, abbés, courtiers, etc.; for the Emperor receives any person who has anything to ask or to say to him. Each person goes in separately or with those who present them, and a very few minutes after our arrival Madame Rouramously and myself were admitted. The Emperor was standing in a small room by himself, his manners are shy without being cold, he is little and insignificant in his appearance but not unpleasing, he talked to us for about ten minutes and then bowed, when we retired.

"From our audience with the Emperor we traversed all the staircases as also several long passages and at last arrived at the anteroom to the Empress' apartment. We were introduced to her by a lady who came out to receive us.

"The Empress had two ladies waiting upon her, she is short, pale, and very plain, but her manners are lively and she has a good deal of address."

EARL WEST-
MORLAND'S MSS.

October 6. Colonel Werota dined with us, a distinguished officer who had served with great ability both in the Austrian and Russian Etats Major. He was an agreeable man and told us several anecdotes about Sowaroff.

Sunday, October 10. I was awaked by a procession * * * formed of all ranks of the Bourgeoisie, which were marshalled according to their ages, beginning with children and proceeding on in gradation to old age; all were chanting a solemn dirge or supplication to God to send rain. The great drought which has lasted four months and has destroyed all vegetation, dried up the springs, and prevented the tillage of the land, occasions great apprehension in the ensuing season.

October 22. Went to a Ball given by the Russian Ambassador to the Grand Duke Constantine who was arrived that day from Russia; he has an ugly flat face and his figure is bad, and by all accounts his mind corresponds with his person.

November 5. Went to Madame Kingsky's. Madame Kingsky has been the greatest beauty of Vienna and still retains much beauty and the most captivating manners, she had been married at 16 years old to Count Kingsky, a man disagreeable in his character & person and who left her immediately after the ceremony, and with whom she never lived; she had passed her life with credit to herself with a perfect reputation, and had been the admiration of great numbers of people. She has lately attached herself to General Marfield an Officer in much credit for his military conduct, an agreeable man but worn down and looking old, though under 40 years of age, from fatigue and hard service, and in no ways a captivating person. This gentleman has however produced so great an interest in Madame Kinsky that she is doing all in her power to get a dispensation to marry him by dissolving her marriage with Monsieur Kinsky.

"Nov. 30, arrived in Paris, where we stayed two months; the town was full of English and foreigners, particularly Russians, who were making a great display. Those people who chose to be presented at Bonaparte's Courts were invited to many magnificent dinners and assemblies given by the Ministers, but as ourselves with a very few other exceptions did not feel inclined to pay homage to Bonaparte, the theatres and the entertainments given by foreigners were mostly our resources. Dancing was at this time become a real science at Paris both for ladies and gentlemen, many of whom spend eight or nine hours a day in practising, and several of the performances at balls in the French country dances & quadrilles were really equal to some of the most celebrated professional dancers, and the balls were quite spectacles. I saw nothing of the Court but at one ball given by the Minister de la Marine to which some tickets were given to the English Ambassador to distribute; the entertainment was most magnificent, the rooms spacious, numerous and most expensively furnished and brilliantly lighted. Madame Bonaparte was there seated in a Fauteuille in the centre of one side of the large ballroom, her chair was surrounded by les dames du Palais, les Prefec-teurs (sic), and various attendants. Madame Bonaparte's appearance was very pleasant, her manners were quiet and genteel, and her figure extremely good.

She retired after a short time; the staircase was lined with grenadiers when she arrived and also upon her departure." "We arrived in London on the 6th of February after an absence of seven months, 1803."

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF CAPTAIN STEWART, OF ALLTYRODYN, LLANDYSSIL.

CAPTAIN STEWART forwarded with his MSS. a box comprising 1 bundle and 8 small tin boxes, containing a very large collection of original deeds, rentals, a few Court Rolls, and other documents of a miscellaneous character commencing in the reign of King John, or early in the reign of King Henry the Third. They refer to property in Liverpool, Kirkdale, Bootle, and Walton, in the County of Lancaster, to the City of Chester, and to Cockfield Hall and Earls Hall in Cockfield, in the County of Suffolk, and to various other places. The deeds range in date from the twelfth to the eighteenth centuries. CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

The early deeds relate chiefly to Liverpool and Kirkdale, and commencing as they do at the end of the twelfth or beginning of the thirteenth century, they form a valuable collection which would prove of importance both to the local historian and genealogist.

Attached to many of the deeds are several very fine seals in a good state of preservation, but time did not admit of a detailed examination of the contents of the box with a view to their arrangement.

One interesting deed shewing the adoption of an heir, was noticed, and is sufficiently valuable from its unique character to justify its insertion at length.

"Upon Thursday Jany. 25th it pleased God to give a great victory against the Irish army; at which time the Lord was pleased to deliver into our hands the most of their great commanders and the most of their Foot; Serjeant (sic) Major Gen. Gibson, Sir Michael Ernley, Sir Francis Butler, Col. Munch, Col. Warren, and Lieut. Col. Gibbs; besides those who were slain, Lieut. Col. Pain, Lieut. Col. Boulton, Capt. Sandford, with three or four Captains more; about 1,500 Prisoners, six pieces of Ordnance and all their carriages and ammunition taken, and their whole army slain, taken, or dispersed, whereby it comes to pass that we are possessed of far more prisoners than we are either able to master, or this town (which hath been so long besieged, and thereby distressed, and hereby relieved) is able to maintain. Whilst these men were employed in Ireland they did perform very good service, and now they seem to be very willing to take up arms on this side. Upon which consideration we have thought fit to send over unto you into Ireland (blank) hundred of them to be by you disposed of as you think fit. Part thereof are natural Irish, the rest English lately come out of Ireland, of which you may make the best use you think most advantageous. This Sir was a complete victory their whole Infantry being utterly defeated, and all slain, wounded, or taken except some few that scattered.

It was the work of the Lord of Hosts and to him be the whole honour and glory ascribed, which as it is a great encouragement to us to depend upon God, so it may be a great encouragement unto you and to all men that do observe the Lord's dealing with these men; how they prospered whilst they fought for God, and how it hath succeeded with them since they deserted the cause of God, which that it may prosper and succeed in your hands as it hath done is the earnest desire and hourly prayer of your very faithful and affectionate friends and servants.

1648 [-9]. March. To the Right Honble Thomas Lord Fairfax.

The humble petition of the Mayor, Aldermen, and others, the inhabitants of Liverpool, and of divers other gentlemen and freeholders within Westderby hundred and other places adjacent within the county of Lancaster sheweth, that your petitioners are credibly informed that Lieut. Col. Venables, now Governor of Liverpool under your Excellency, really intends to leave his said place and to betake himself for the present expedition in the service for Ireland; and for as much as your petitioners are well assured of the fidelity and aptness of Col. John Moore in the execution of the said governor's place, being a person of known integrity to the State, and a great sufferer in the late wars, and for his reality to the good cause, promoted through God's assistance by your Excellency against the adverse malignant party; he having also a considerable estate within the said town and places adjacent, which is a further tie upon him: We humbly desire that the said Col. Moore (in case of removal of the said Lieut. Col. Venables) your Excellency would be pleased might be admitted Governor of the said town and the castle there, and may have power upon occasion to command the godly party in that county, and to vouchsafe that he may have your Excellency's commission for that purpose, wherein you shall greatly pleasure and encourage your petitioners and the rest of the well affected and godly party in that country, and your petitioners nevertheless (as in duty bound) shall daily pray etc. The petition is numerously signed.

1643. 11 August. 1643. 12 October. Orders agreed upon at Preston by the Deputy Lieutenants of the county of Lancaster.

1. It is ordered by the whole Board upon complaint by the Commissioners in Yorkshire that Major Eden shall be removed from Colne to Manchester and then delivered over to the Provost Marshall General, there to be secured till further order.

2. It is ordered that Hornby Castle shall be forthwith demolished according to the order of the House of Commons in that behalf. CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

3. It is also ordered that a letter be drawn and sent to Westmoreland to signify to the gentry of that county that the five parishes in Yorkshire are associated unto us, and that what shall be done to them by any of Westmoreland shall be taken as done to us in Lancashire.

4. It is also ordered that care be taken of Col. Shuttleworth, his tenants in Westmoreland, and his friends banished out of that County.

5. It is also ordered that Capt. Ashurst be required to see the castle of Hornby demolished and to have a special care that all the materials of that castle be preserved from spoiling till further order be received from the House of Commons for the disposal thereof, and that he shall not use any fire for the demolishing of it.

6. It is ordered that the King's Receivers of his Revenues in the North shall pay the four preachers in Lancaster called the King's preachers their annual pensions in such manner as hath been formerly accustomed.

7. Item. It is thought fit that the ministers serving and such as are needful there at the several Churches and Chapels within this County where there was or is want, shall have maintenance at a sequestration and especially out of church livings if there be sufficient; and Parliament to be acquainted therewith to have their allowance thereof.

8. It is also ordered that Ralph Ashton of Downham Esq^{re}, the Receiver of the King's Revenues in the County of Lancaster, or his deputy, shall defray to Mr. Thomas Townson of Lancaster all such moneys as now are or hereafter shall be by him disbursed for the repairing of the castle of Lancaster.

9. It is also ordered that Mr. Ralph Baynes and the rest of the gentry of the five parishes of Bentham, Clapham, Horton, Ingleton, and Thornton shall have liberty to buy ammunition of powder and match at Manchester from time to time as occasion shall require, they paying for the same.

10. It is also ordered that John Pincocke of Whittle-in-le-woods shall be allowed by the sequestrators of the mills, part of the impropriations of the rectory of Winwicke, the sum of 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* for a millstone laid by him at those mills and employed there since the sequestration thereof granted.

11. It is ordered that the Yorkshire poor exiled from the West Riding and now residing in this County here, shall have relief out of sequestrations, and they to nominate sequestrators or agents, who are to have lands and estates set out for them by Col. Rigby.

12. It is also ordered that the Estate of the Vicarage of Boulton-near-the-Sands shall be forthwith sequestered for the public use.

13. It is ordered that all persons that go out of this County into the enemy's quarters shall be secured and imprisoned when they return.

14. It is ordered that the hundred Snaphance muskets and the 200 Greycoats and the Portmanteles, Knapsacks, and other small things, i. e. Cartridges and Belts belonging to those Snaphances shall be delivered to Colonel Rigby, he paying for the carriage of them.

15. It is also ordered that the 70 pair of pistols and the 70 Carbines and the other things belonging to them shall be delivered to Colonel Ashton.

16. It is also ordered that the Estates of all persons sequestered refusing to redeem their Estates by way of composition shall be delivered unto such Captains and other Officers at reasonable rates and valuations, and in discharge of their pay, as shall hereafter repair unto the deputies or agents therein entrusted. Such Captains or their Officers bringing with them the warrant of any two or more of us for the discharge of the said deputies and agents.

17. It is also ordered that the former division of the hundred of Westderby allotted for the keeping and maintaining of the two garrisons within the said hundred, that is Warrington and Liverpool, be confirmed; and that the moneys levied or to be levied within the parishes of Warrington, Winwick, Leigh, Yarescot and Wigan allotted to the garrison of Warrington, and so of the rest of the parishes within the said hundred allotted to the garrison of Liverpool, be first employed towards the maintaining of the soldiers belonging to each garrison; and the overplus as well upon Lyes and taxations, as of all estates sequestered or to be sequestered, which shall be raised within the said hundred, shall be accounted for and paid over to the public use.

18. It is ordered that Mr. John Okay of Boulton shall be the General Auditor of this County, and that all Receivers and other Officers shall make their accounts unto him from time to time of all their receipts and disbursements as they shall be thereunto required.

1643. 16 November. Orders agreed upon at Preston by the Deputy Lieut^s of the County of Lancaster.

1643. 19 November. Manchester. Letter signed by T. Stanley, Ralph Asheton, Richard Holland, Robert Hyde, Tho. Birche, to Col. Moore at Liverpool, concerning ammunition.

1643. 20 November. Tarvin. 1644. 18 October. Geiton [Gayton]. 1644. 8 November. Geiton. 1645. 5 December. Chester. Letters from Sir William Brereton (Commander in Chief of the Parliamentary forces in Cheshire), to Col. John Moore at Liverpool, announcing his movements and the reputed movements of the King, the Earl of Warwick, the Earl of Manchester, the Lord General.

1643. 21 November. Pass for John Wilson, signed "Essex." Fine seal.

1643. 9 December. "A copy of my [John Moore's] letter to Sir Tho. Stanley." "Sir, We are informed very credibly that the shipping from Chester doe intend to assault us to-morrowe and therefore I would desire you to send hither all your forces to be at the Rendezvouz betwixt here and Bankhall by 9 of the clocke to-morrow. I have sent out warrants to all the townships hereabouts to appear here in the morning."

1643. 13 December. Preston. Col. Alex. Rigby to Colonel Moore. I this last night received letters from Sir Thomas Fairfax, Col. Ashton, and Col. Holland to prepare all my forces in readiness, and to expect a present call from them to join with them for a present expedition, and to command a public fast on Thursday next, then to pray for our good success. This maketh me in a great distraction, not daring to send my forces to Liverpool, besides it will be of some danger to remove all my forces out of the heart of the County from whence they may be ready to march to any hand upon a visible occasion. When you desire forces it is good to signify what accommodation you have for them in victuals, money, powder, and ammunition and where and how you intend to dispose them. I pray God preserve you and all us. Endorsed by Edw. Moore as "in the Lord Chief (sic) Baron Rigby's hand.

1644 [-5]. 3 January. Toxteth Park. W. Lewis to Col. Moore as to the wrong done him by asserting he gave intelligence to Latham concerning certain officers who were taken.

1644 [-5]. 6 January. W. Ashurst to Col. Moore. "The howse of Peeres graunted a reprieve unto Sir John Hotham untill Saturday the 4th of Jan., who was adjudged by the Court Marshall to have dyed on Tewsday the last of December. But the house of Commons not consenting, the Court Marshall gave order for his Execucion on Thursday the 2nd of Jan. which was accordingly done and his head cutt off, and the day before which was the first of Jan. his sonn Mr. Hotham lost his head.

"The Lords have not yet passed the ordinance for disinabling the members of both howses from all offices and commaunds marshall or civile; we have a great expectation what they will doe in it, for many of those that understand the state of our affaires thinke it necessary to pass. We have been setling a constant pay for the Scottish Army.

"The Queene of Sweden hath sent a commissioner with great profession of love in a letter to both howses of Parliament.

"The Lords have agreed to the ordinance for putting the Archbishopp of Canterbury to death, and by the said message sent us word that they agreed with us as to the Directorie, soe that the Archbishopp and the service booke dyed together. I hope you will see the new Directory ere long in print. For the treatie, we are preparing instruccions about it, I shalbe able to write more fully to you by the next. We have lately intelligence that Col. Ludlowe with a regiment of Wilshire horse of about 300 did charge and route 1400 of the King's forces, tooke good bootie and some considerable prisoners w^hch made him not so closely to pursue the enemy, but he returning, quartered at Salisbury, which is an open towne, the enemy ralyed and about 3 of the clock in the morning fell into his quarter and have redeemed theire owne and taken about 150 horse and men, but the Colonell with the rest escaped.

"The nexte day a partie of ours tooke Colonell Feilding and some other considerable prisoners but not equall to our losse."

1644 [-5]. 6 January. Letter from Edward Chesnall to his brother Col. Moore on behalf of Mrs. Chadwick, the widow of the parson of Standish.

1644 [-5]. 16 January. Lathom. Letter from Edw. Rawstorne to Col. Moore touching the exchange of prisoners.

1644 [-5]. 7 and 22 January. London. Letters signed by Lord Warwick, Admiral of England to Col. Moore, his Vice-Admiral for counties Lancaster and Westmoreland, as to vessels seized.

1644 [-5]. 21 January. Draft Letter in Colonel John Moore's handwriting unaddressed, but endorsed "My Lords, to Holland, Egerton, Stanley."

"At my last being with you, there came several informations concerning the Lathom House; and, at my coming to Liverpool I writ what

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

I learned hoping ere this some forces would have been sent to have secured the country from the great outrages by them daily committed ; and the persecutions and pressures of the honest hearted doth daily so ring in my ears that I protest they are able to break the heart of any truly affected man, so that if I should forebear to certify you thereof I should account myself a very disloyal man both to my God and country.

"In discharge therefore of that trust reposed in me, I present these lines to let you know that if you do not timely prevent, there will be three more garrisons made ; to wit at Gillibrand, Crosse Hall and Black Lodges ; and had I not put some few into Knowsly House they had intended that for a fourth, by which means they will wholly run over these parts, and also much weaken Warrington.

"These things considered I hope I need not to press you on, but as we have all taken the covenant to assist one and other, so you will with all speed send forces to block them up, as also that you will take course to furnish me with ammunition and victuals with an order to receive (sic) men according to the former order at Bolton. I hope now you conceive the cessation was to be broken, for yesternight they beat up Capt. Ireland's quarters at Knowsly, took four men and above twenty horse. The party that came forth was commanded by Colonel Vere and did consist of three troops and three foot companies and another party to Mr. Machalls and other sequestrators in Sefton parish.

"Our men carried themselves very gallantly ; and though they lost their horse, yet I hope we shall keep the house in despite of their forces. I have sent him more ammunition this day. Col. Vere offered Quarter-master Hutchins that if he would deliver up the house he and Molyneux and Ratcliffe should have the command of 200 men and keep the house. Thus have I laid open to you the sad estate of these parts and at the writing hereof the honest clergy and the commonalty in these parts came to me to let me know their woeful condition, in that they durst not remain at home for fear of being taken forth of their beds in the nights and be carried away with these merciless men. Thus referring the premises to your grave consideration, with my prayers to the Almighty to direct you in your consultations I rest your faithful friend to serve you."

1644 [-5]. 24 January. Another letter on the same sheet as the above.

"Having so opportune a nuncio I could not let pass without presenting a few lines unto you to desire you to expedite some forces into these parts, for truly, if you let them range another week I persuade myself we shall not have the worth of horse or cow left us, so that our country will be undone both in tillage and housekeeping. I must also entreat you to hasten to Col. Boore (sic) to Liverpool and that you would cause the assessment for victuals to be forthwith sent in for we have no meat in these parts that will maintain us long. Thus having nothing else for the present to trouble you with, with my best wishes I rest your faithful friend."

1644. 12 April. London. Rules and orders for regulating Vice-Admirals, signed by Lord Warwick, and dated Warwick House.

1644 [-5]. 27 January. Particulars observable for the better settling and maintaining of the garrison at Liverpool.

1644 [-5]. 29 January. Chester. John Lord Byron, Governor of Chester, to Col. John Moore. "Captaine Moore having continued here upon his parole to sollicite his exchange hath at last procured the perfecting thereof betweene himselfe and Captaine William Edwards, a coppie whereof I send enclosed and for the restraint therein mencioned lett you knowe hee was noe officer in that armie which was raised for the suppression of the rebellion in Ireland neither was an officer in anie Regiment till after the cessation agreed upon there. For his religion I doubt not but you are very well satisfied that hee is a protestant. Captaine Edwards for whom he was exchanged before hee knewe of the exchange, distrusting whether that would passe, and havinge gained by the in-treaty of his friends and his ingagment to bee a true prisoner, more then ordinarie liberty, hath most unworthily made an escape. I looke uppon the exchange as perfecte and have therefore required Captaine Moore his stay here in assurance theise proceedings will give you satisfaccion therein. For those prisoners that remaine with you I desire your continuance of civell usage to them, and thankfully acknowledg theire former civillities received, and shalbee ready to returne the like to any prisoner of yours. For what charge shall fall in areare uppon anie of the prisoners with you I shall suddenly see it discharged and shalbee ready to give the like credyt to anie your prisoners."

1644 [-5]. 29 January. Chester. William Moore to Col. Moore, Governor of Liverpool, touching his exchange with Captain Edwards.

1644 [-5]. 27 February. Manchester. Draft Letter. Col. John Moore to his uncle Col. Ashton, for relief of the garrison at Liverpool. "There is also Mrs. Blundell of Ince, Mrs. Ireland of Lidiatt, Mrs. Scarsbricke of Scarsbrick, and Mrs. Morton of Sefton, who are very pestilent in our parts and ceazeth upon all their husbands Estates so that if ye do not take course to send an order to send them to their husbands and Mrs. Ireland in to Cheshire, the commonwealth will suffer very much."

1644 [-]. 18 March. Col. Ashton to Col. Moore. "Wee received a letter about 5 a clocke this eveninge wherein hee (sic) expresseth that the Princes [Rupert and Maurice] are joyned; that hee feares their designe maye bee for Lancashyre by the waye of Leverpoole or Hale ford. The other passes hee will look to, only desyres care of them, for which purpose Colonell Hoghton and I have written to Col. Egerton to afford you what assistance he cann. Bee vigilent to send out scouts to discover the motion of the enemie and I hope you will bee sufficiently seconded, for about 5000 Scotts are come this night to Ratchdale and marching towards Sir Will. Brereton, who is drawne of from Chester and Beeston Castle. I suppose hee will meet the Scotts about Northwitch and I hope wilbee ready to assist our country in case the enemie approach towards you. Wherefore I shall advyse that so soone as you discover any approach towards you, to send immediatly to him and desyre his assistance, for alas, you knowe wee are weake and onable. I have sent to Col. Bradshaw to send 3 companyes and wee will gett what more we cann and come towards you, but our dependance must bee on god as our only helpe, and Sir Will. Brereton's and the Scotch forces as instruments. I will pray for you and give what helpe shalbee in the power of, yours Ralphe Assheton."

1644 [-5]. 24 March. Two drafts in Col. Moore's handwriting. The first addressed to the Committee of Both Kingdoms, and the other to Col. R. Ashton and Col. Rigby.

The first is as follows:—"In the Interim I make bold to present these lines to certifie your honours the state of our Country, we lie with a considerable strength before Lathom as also before Greenehaigh, but the rumour of the princes cominge into these parts did much encouradge the papists and malignants: and truly they are the far greater part in my division; my humble Suite therefore to your Honours is to know what course to take with them and with your non covenanters, for if we should comitt them, our garrisons would not be able to hold them, and if they be suffered to goe at liberty, it will much discourage the honest partie. I must also become petitioner to your Honours for some ammunicion for the garrison, and if it stood with your honours' pleasure to cause a hundred fierlocks sent with the ammunicion, would save much money which we are forced to spend. Thus craving your Honours' honorable censure for my boldness, with my prayers to the Almighty to prosper you in all your undertakings I humbly take leave."

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

In the letter to Col. Ashton, Col. Moore asks for forage and provisions for his garrison. At the end of his letter he says, "The Princes are returned but we conceave it is but to weary our men."

1644. 4 April. "From my quarters at Lathom." Col. John Moore to the Earl of Warwick. "There came intelligence to us the other day that there had beene a great battell fought betwixt the Scotts and the E. of Newcastle's forces which continewd two dayes, but the Lord was pleased to give the victory to the Scotts. The Lord Fairefax forces hath taken Leedes, Wakefield, and the Lord Savill's house, his younger sonne hath taken a Scottish barge which was goeing to Newcastle laden with ammunicion. The enimie hath forced Wem. Our forces lies still before Lathom and we are now beginninge to mine; by the next I hope I shall be able to send your honour better accounts."

1644. 4 April. "From my quarters at Lathom." Col. John Moore to the Lords Commissioners of England and Scotland. Giving information similar to the above as to the engagement between the Scottish and Royalist forces, and also as to his operations before Lathom House. "Sir Tho. Tildesley his regiment doth dayly give alarums to my garrison. They have attempted to come over a ford at Hale, but we have with our ordnance beaten them backe."

N.D. Another letter from the same to the same on the same sheet as the two preceding letters, undated, but written about the same time. "Since my last to your honours I have receaved intelligence that their is 6000 Irish rebells ready for our parts, onely lackes shippes to transport them, and that the enemy hath sent from Chester to Dublin for guns and amunicion, whereupon immediatly I sent to acquaint Capitaine Richard Townley who is Admirall of the Irish Seas. I likewise had notice that the Lord Biron hath mustered all his forces in Cheshire, but they were not halfe armed, and that Prince Rupert hath sent 1000 blew coats to him and is expected himselfe. We lie still before Lathom, but your honours called away Col. Ashton and his regiment which doth much animate the malignants. They sallied forth of the house upon Wednesday last and we lost five and they fower. They likewise sallied forth that evening, but we beate them in without losse and they lost two. If your honours would be pleased to hasten some forces to Wem or Shrewsbury it would be a means to divert the enemy. I must also become a petitioner to your lordshippes for some armes and ammunicion for truly I am not soe well harnessed as I could wish."

1644. 11 May. Warrington. Sir John Booth to Col. Moore respecting a prisoner released by the writer and imprisoned again by Col. Moore.

1644. 13 May. Draft letter from Col. Moore to Lord Fairfax, General of the Northern Army at the League before York, upon general affairs.

1644. 31 May. Manchester. Letter signed by T. Stanley, Raphe Assheton, Richard Holland, J. Bradshaw, Tho. Birche, to Col. Moore, requesting that some of the ammunition which has come to Liverpool may be sent to them. "The enemy, vizt. Prince Rupert, lyes about Burie and Ratchdale with part of his forces, and General Goring with 2 or 3000 horse in Cheshire betwixt Stopford and Woodheade."

1644. 3 June. Similar letter. "Prince Rupert quarters about Bury and Ratchdale plunders the Countrey and some are of opynion that they are drawing towards Yorkshyre, but the difficulty of the passage makes us doubtfull: hee will first bee Mr. (if he cann) of all the townes as well as the countrey, wherefore it concernes us to bee carefull and to make all provysions that maye bee. Wee have dispatched a messenger to the L^d Denbygh to entreat his march to us and wee shalbee ready to afford you all the assistance that possibly we cann."

1644. 20 June. Pass under the sign manual and seal of the Marquis of Ormonde, the Lord Lieut. of Ireland.

1644. 1 November. Draft letter from Col. Moore to whom is not stated. "It hath pleased God to deliver the town of Liverpool into the hands of our noble Lieut. Gen. Sir John Meldrum whose care and pains I am not able to express, only this I dare be bold to say that under God he is the man that must either preserve his country, or we are like to run into inevitable ruin by the factions which daily increase amongst us, which is no small grief to all those here. I mean to nominate none, but as I have a long time being a suitor unto you, so I must still continue that you would take some course that a happy union may be amongst us, for you know a house divided cannot long subsist. I must also entreat your assistance concerning my place at Liverpool if any opposition be, it hath pleased the Lieut. Gen^l to shew his noble favours towards me and I doubt not but that you will know what he hath writ concerning my carriage. And I hope your having known me from Ireland, you will be able to testify of me to the honourable house or committee if occasion be. In the interim, it hath pleased the General to put me in the Government which I hope by the mercy of God I shall faithfully perform. For the particulars of the rendering of the town I refer you to our Lieut. General's relation. This in haste with my best wishes." Then follows a list of the prisoners taken.

On the other side is a copy in Colonel Moore's writing of the letter from Sir John Meldrum to the Committee of Both Kingdoms. "The partialities and divisions amongst the gentlemen here are so great that I cannot but leave the charge of the command in Liverpool in the hands of Colonel Moore, he being a member of the House of Commons, a gentleman of an ancient family, a great lover of the cause, and who hath sustained great losses in his personal estate, until such time as by order of Parliament or your Lordships, that charge be otherwise disposed of. As concerning his personal carriage during the time of the siege, I have informed myself fully that whilst the mariners did stick to him he wanted neither courage nor conduct which did appear in several skirmishes and by sustaining a fierce assault with a great loss to the enemy, where a commander of great experience and practice, having to deal with so violent an enemy as Prince Rupert) might have done less than he did; all which is humbly remitted to your Lordships' further directions." [See S. P. Dom. Interreg. E. 17, p. 105.]

1644. 1 November. A long doggerel poem signed "John Mainwaringe" on the subject of the surrender and retaking of Liverpool by the parliamentary party. It is dedicated to Sir John Meldrum, Col. John

The Duke of Richmond and the Erle of Southampton are expected dayly from the Kinge with propositions."

1644. 11 November. Westminster. Letter from Ralph Assheton to Col. Moore informing him that the Ld General is satisfied with his integrity and reality to the Parliament and very willing to confirm him in his place as Governor of Liverpool. . . . "The Assembly of Divynes have brought in their worke to the House of Comons for Church Government and Directory of worshipp which is to bee debated in the Howse tomorrowe, which doubtless will give good satisfaction to the whole Kingdome and the issue prove advantageous. Little action hath beene performed by the Armies since the last defeat the King had at Newbery."

1644. 12 November. Bolton. "At a generall meetinge of Sir John Meldrum Leiftenant Generall of the Northerne forces, and the Deputy Leiftenants of the Countie of Lancaster at Bolton on Tuesday the twelfth of November 1644, it is ordered as followeth:—

1. That the towne and port of Liverpoole shall for the present bee maintained with a garrison of three hundred foote and one troope of horse. And that for their present maintenance the arreres of the last assesments of victualls throughout the Countie shall be collected and brought into Leverpoole to the Providores there with all expedition. And that the Deputy Leiftennants within their severall divisions are to cause it brought in. And that further provision sufficient for the garrison there shall be brought into the said towne and port out of every division throughout the said County, viz^t, out of the sequestrations of the whole countie.

2. That there shall be provision layd in the said garrison sufficient for the maintenance of six hundred men for six months.

3. That the 6 peeces of ordinance in the towne are thought to bee sufficient for that garrison only that the short sacre (sic) shalbee exchanged for a culverin at Manchester.

4. That Captain Tatham shall deliver from aboard his shipp into the towne the greater of the peeces which were taken on Worrall side from the Enemy, which is to bee accounted as one of the six; and likewise the bullets which were taken at Worrall.

5. That the other gunnes which were taken in the Frigate att Liverpoole shalbee delivered by Captaine Tatham to the right owners."

1645. 29 December. St. James's. The Earl of Northumberland to Col. Moore. "I have received your letter of the 13 present and do returne you many thanks for the same. The occasion you had of sending part of your forces to assist att Skipton is by the rendering of that place now taken away, and certainly you can not employ them anywhere with so much advantage att this tyme as about Chester. Sir Will. Brewerton was lately apprehensive of some partie coming to relieve that towne which made him resolve to draw off part of his forces with a purpose to fight the enemy att a distance from Chester, but I beleve there is little danger that any strength can come to trouble that seege especially now that God hath so blessed us in the takeing of Hereford.

We have this day received another letter from his Majesty offering upon such securitie as he therein demaunds to come with 300 in his Companie to London to the end he may there in person treat with his Parliament, so as he and his Companie may returne againe to Oxford or some of his other garisons att their pleasures; he likewise offers to put the militia into the hands of severell Commissioners which he names, one halfe of the number being of such Lords and others as are and have bene all this while engaged against the Parliament, in whose hands I beleieve we shall hardly ever trust ourselves, these conditions are nothing satisfactorie, and that is all I can for the present say to the letter, the house having yet taken no resolution upon it." Seal in fine condition.

Dixon, and Capt. Proctor.

1. Ordered that the Church Government within this Island shall be settled according to the Government established by the Parliament of England.

2. Ordered that Col. John Moore shall be desired to write a letter to the Presbtry as from the council of war and desire the Presbtry to declare the cause wherefore Mr. Andrew Lawe was suspended at Strangford, and withall to let them know that by reason of the great want of ministers in this Island, this council hath required Mr. Lawe to execute his function till further satisfaction be given to the council of war.

3. Ordered that a council of war shall be holden for the present once a week for the better regulating of the island, and to begin upon Thursday (come sennight) at Down and so to continue to further order.

4. Ordered that the articles in my Lord General's Army to be put in execution for swearing and drunkenness and other criminal faults shall likewise be put in execution.

5. Ordered that if any soldier either of horse or foot shall commit any outrage upon the country to the terror or damage of the inhabitants, and upon complaint made to the Officer, if he do not take course to see the party grieved righted and the offender punished, then the Officer is to make satisfaction.

6. Ordered that no inhabitant shall depart out of this Island towards the enemy's quarters without a pass from the Field Officer upon pain of being accounted as an enemy.

7. Ordered that no soldier shall depart out of this Island without a Pass from his Officer upon pain of death.

8. Ordered that no boatman shall carry any soldier out of this Island without a Pass from the Officer; he shall forfeit his boat.

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

9. Ordered that the Marshal General be at Strangford to receive John Smyth and Owen Cullen tomorrow by 10 o'clock and to see Smyth executed.

10. Ordered that every Officer within their several quarters shall upon Thursday (come sennight) deliver the several lists of all the inhabitants within this island unto the Council of War holden at Down.

11. Ordered that if any of the inhabitants within this island have conveyed any bedding forth of it since the 29th of December and do not forthwith cause it brought back; it being proved against him he shall be expelled the island and forfeit his estate here.

12. Ordered that if any soldier run upon the score in his quarters more than he is allowed by the State, he is to ride six hours upon the horse with a musket tied at either leg and forfeit a week's pay or provision.

13. Ordered lastly that every Capt shall cause these orders published by beat of drums or sound of trumpets; and they are likewise to cause them set up in some public place that everyone both soldiers and others may take notice hereof.

1646 [-7]. 6 February. Orders to be observed by Lieut.-Colonel John Blagrove and Major Richard Heapie, within my quarters belonging to my garrison at Strangford.

1646. 13 April. "From our Campe on Bacon Hill." Copy of Sir William Brereton's summons for the surrender of Lichfield Close, besieged by the Parliamentary force, directed to Sir Thomas Tildesley and Colonel Bagot, and copy of their answer dated "Lichfield Close Apl. 13th 1646," to following effect.

Sir—Thoug your summons hath beene longe expected the answer shall bee shorte. Wee will keepe this garrison (God willing) with our lives and fortunes for the King our Leige soveraigne by whom we are intrusted. This is the Resolucion of the whole garrison together with your servants.

THO: TILDESLEY, HER. BAGOTT.

Rough copies in Col. Moore's handwriting of several letters on the subject of the visit of King Charles to the Scottish camp at Newark.

1646. 5 May. "From Col. Rossiter's tent at the Camp before Newark." William Pierpoint, William Armin, Edw. Ascough, Anthony Ireby, and Thos. Hatcher, to the Speaker. "We were this morning about 10 o'clocke credibly informed that the K. with 3 others came a greate speede this morning about 7 o'clocke to Southwell and went to the house of Mounsir Mountrell [Montreuil] the French Agent. About 12 this day two of the Scotts commissioners brought us a letter a copy whereof is here inclosed; the 2 commissioners presently returned and in this surprize we could not for the present thinke further than to desyre by them he might not remaine, which they approved of; and that we might speedily write there of to them at Farneton [Farndon], which was consented to, and we are now going thither accordingly, and shall imediately advertise you of our further proceedings, and doe beseech to know your pleasures with all possible speede how we shall direct and guide ourselves herein." Following this is a copy of the letter above referred to.

"A copy of a letter from the Lord Lothian,—Right honourable The discharge of ourselves of the duty we owe unto the Kingdome of Engl. and to you as Commissioners from the same moves us to acquainte you with the K.'s coming into our army this morninge, which haveinge overtaken us unexpectedly hath filled us with amazement and made us 'like men that dreame. We canot thinke that he would have been soe unadvised in his resolucions to have cast himselfe upon us without a reall intencion to give full satisfaccion to both Kingdoms in all their just and reasonable demands in all those things that concerne religion and righteousness. Whatsoever be his disposicion, or resolucion, you may be assured that we shall never entertaine any things not corresponding with our purpose, nor countenance any endeavours that may in any circumstance inroach upon our league or covenant, or weaken the union or confederacy betweene the nacions. That union of the Kingdoms was the matter of many prayers and as nothing was more joyfull to us than to heare it is set on foote, so hitherto have we thought it well to drawe to mainetaine it. And we trust to walk with such faythfullnes and truth in this particuler, that as we have the testimony of a good conscience within ourselves, soe you and all the world shall see that we minde your interest with as much integrity as our owne, being confident you will entertaine noe other thoughts of us. Signed by comande of the commissioners, LOTHIAN."

Southwell, 5th of May, 1646.

[The original letter is amongst the State Papers at the Public Record Office. This copy is inaccurate in several places.]

"Note, the King sent to the Scotts generall for a guide before he was taken notice of to be at Southwell." A copy of another letter dated at Worcester on the 6th May follows. It is addressed to the Speaker and gives no more news, but expresses the apprehensions of the writers that the Scots will treat with the King upon matters only affecting their own interests, and not upon subjects which would be beneficial to both kingdoms. The writers "desire that by comon advice the present opportunity may be improved for setling of religion and the peace of both Kingdoms which as it hath always beene, soe is it now and shall ever be the earnest desyre and constant endeavour of your affectionate frends and servaunts, Loudune, Lotherdall, Bartlet, Johnstoune, Kennedy."

On another sheet are some rough notes in the same handwriting as all the above (i.e. Col. Moore's) on the same subjects.

1646. 26 May. Leaguer at Oxford. Letter from Sir T. Fairfax (signed ; seal in perfect condition) to the Committee of the Parliament for Irish affairs, for 1,000*l.*

1646. 1 June. Warrant from the Committee of the Navy to Sir Harry Vane, junr., to pay 406*l.* to Col. Moore, owner of the ship Moorcock.

1646. 10 June. Newcastle. Copy of a declaration headed "Charles R.," and addressed to the Speaker of the House of Peers pro tempore, that the King is willing to treat for peace, and requires the Parliament to disband all their forces and garrisons throughout the country on his doing the same. Below is an order for the disbanding of the Royal garrisons directed to the Governors of the towns of Oxford, Lichfield, Worcester, Wallingford, and other places.

1646. 12 August. Declaration by the Roman Catholic Clergy of Ireland assembled at Waterford, against the Articles of Peace transmitted to them from the Supreme Council. Annexed is a declaration signed "David Ossoriensis," dated 18th August 1646, on the same subject.

1646. 25 August. Manchester. Letter signed J. Bradshaw, W. Ashurst, Tho. Birche, H. Fletewood, to Col. Moore, to report proceedings relative to drawing troops into Warrington.

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

1646. 21 August. Belfast. Arthur Annesley and William Beale to Col. Moore relative to the sending of despatches, &c. to Parliament, and upon other matters.

1646. 29 August. Three draft letters, two to the Committee for Ireland, and one unaddressed, but possibly to Lord Lisle, in the handwriting of Col. Moore, complaining that neither arms, clothes, nor money have been sent for the use of the troops waiting to embark for Ireland. He begs that money and six months provisions of biscuit and cheese may be sent, "for 4 score our men will not live upon meale as the Scots doe." Each of the three letters is to the same effect, and they were probably sent simultaneously to ensure compliance with the writer's request. In the third of them Col. Moore asks for "12 or 20,000 boles of meale at thirteene shillings per bole."

1646. 4 September. Draft letter (?) in Col. Moore's handwriting, dated at Liverpool and addressed to the Committee of the Lords and Commons for the affairs of Ireland, asking for money and authority to compel the delivery of arms, ammunition, and transport to the troops about to embark for Ireland.

1646. 4 September. Liverpool. Draft letter addressed to Philip Lord Lisle as to the difficulties of procuring ships for the transport of the troops to Ireland.

"The seamen doe aske far dearer rates then formerly they were accustomed to have, therefore we must become sutors to your Lordship to procure an order from the Admiralty that we may have power to take them, we giving 2^s a man and 14^s horse and man." The letter is not signed.

1646. 16 September. Lord Lisle to Col. Moore. Signed "P. Lisle." Warrant to embark with troops.

1646. 26 September. Salisbury House. Lord Lisle to Colonel John Moore. Holograph, unimportant.

[1647. October ?] Col. Moore to whom is not stated. This evening at five a'clocke I receaved a letter from Colonell Moneke with a letter of yours inclosed in it wherein you writt to desyre Col. Coote's regiment and what forces I can make to joyne with him and to meete you at Hill o' Tare this night, and since theare [is] a rumour that you sent orders and men by Cap. Mollineux for my march, and that he is either taken or slaine which is noe small greefe to me and is the cause of presenting these lines to the end you may conceive noe ill opinion of me in not waytinge upon you accordinge to your desyre and withall to certifie you that (God willinge) with all speede I can I will drawe forth with what foote I can spare, but truly want of money together with the poverty of these parts I feare will be a meanes to disinable us for wayting upon you soe speedilie as I could hartily desyre.

My earnest suite therefor is that you would be pleased to take into your consideration our sad condicion and to expydate some monies to us and withall that you would appointe what place we shall march unto, of which your comands (God willing) I will not fayle to performe to the uttermost of my power; this in extraordinary hast with my prayers to the Almighty to prosper you in all your undertakings."

1647 [-8]. 1 January. Indenture of Lease whereby Col. Moore, Governor of the County of Louth and the Garrison of Dundalk, lets to Thomas Lawton, commissary of victual of the said garrison, the Moyle water mill for one year at a rent of 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to be paid quarterly.

1647 [-8]. 21 January. Dundalk. Petition signed J. Blagrave, Tho. Greene, Peter Kennard, Tho. Croft, Walsingham Cooke, Leo. Elger, Geo. Street, &c. from the officers of Col. Moore's regiment to their Colonel, that he will fill up the post of Major, now vacant, by promoting out of the ranks of his own regiment, not by appointing a stranger to the post to their prejudice.

1647 [-8]. 22 January. Dublin. From "W. Methe" to his cousin Col. John Moore at Dundalk (Col. Moore married the Earl of Meath's niece) on behalf of the bearer, brother to Major Bolton and the Lord Chief Baron, who has lost all his estate during the rebellion. Seal.

1647 [-8]. 29 February. Order of the Parliament appointing William Ashurst, Clerk of the Crown in the County Palatine of Lancaster, the office being void "by the delinquency of Alexander Rigby of Burgh Esquire."

1647 [-8]. 2 March. Acknowledgment by Henry Gargrave that he owes Col. Moore 40*s.*

1647 [-8]. 22 March. Copy of Order by the Commissioners at Carne House for Col. Moore to retain possession of manors, lands, and premises in the Counties of Kildare and Meath, parcel of the possessions of Sir John Dongan, Bart., a rebel, and to receive the rents thereof till 1 November 1648, together with the benefit of the estate of the said Sir John Dongan in Dublin if not disposed of.

The names of the Commissioners were John Brice, Anthony Dopping, William Sandes, George Booth, John Harrison, John Cliffe.

1647 [-8]. 22 March. Cork House. Authority from the Commissioners for Ireland to Col. Moore to take and retain the possession of several castles and manors in County Meath, he paying thereout 3*l.* per week over and above the contribution now paid out of the premises.

1647, 24 April. Liverpool. Col. J. Moore to William Lenthall, Speaker of the House of Commons. "Your extraordinary favours emboldeneth me to present these lines to entreat your assistance to this bearer, Mr. Bixsteth, an Alderman of Liverpool and a Copyholder of the Manor of Westderby, of which the honourable Houses have been pleased to make me steward, and he has come to solicit the Parliament in the behalf of the manor and the manor of Wavertree which also appertaineth to it. They have since the time of William de Ferrers ever belonged to the Crown, they are copyholds of inheritance and the fines upon every descent or alienation have always been the third part of the rent, but of late the Earl of Derby hath claimed them; it is the greatest royalty the King had in these parts, and of the ancient rent of 140*l.* per annum at the least, and the Earl being a delinquent and an exempted person, and his lady now labouring to make his composition, I conceive the honourable houses may do well to restore that land to the Crown and settle the fines as formerly they have been. Truly Sir, the tenants are most of them very religious men, which makes me so bold as to write to you in their behalfs.

"They have suffered great losses by the Earl's means who hath endeavoured to break their customs and raise their fines for his own advantage. They have ever faithfully adhered to the Parliament, and some of them have lost their lives in the service, most of them their personal estate, by shewing themselves for the Parliament.

"They live within two miles of Liverpool and upon all occasions have been ready to assist that garrison. Sir, I must also become an earnest suitor to you in the behalf of Liverpool which is the town I have the honour to serve for, and the country adjacent, that if the Earl of Derby or the Lord Molyneux do make their peace, that these petitions which Mr. Elsing hath may be read. Sir, these parts have been ruined by them, and I hope the honourable houses will in convenient time give reparation forth of their and the Papists' estates.

"Thus fearing to be over tedious, with my prayers to the Almighty to prosper you in all your undertakings, and to send us a joyful meeting I take leave."

1647. 3 June. Helbrick [? Hilbree]. Draft letter from Col. Moore to [not named]. Respecting news from Ireland of the defeat by Sir Charles Coote of O'Neill's forces, and that one Col. Farrell who was esteemed the best Commander he had, and other officers and 1,000 men had been killed.

1647. 4 [? 24] June. Dublin. Draft letter from John Moore to [not named], commencing "Right Honourable. Since my last letter to your Lordship, the Lord Marquisse of Ormond and wee have sealed the articles, and hee is to deliver up the sword upon the 28th of July, and I doubt not but by the blessings of God ere long to give your honour an account that these parts are reasonably well settled, I am this day, God willing, for Dundalke, to take in some garrisons which are to bee under my command." Reports that they had had a skirmish with some of the enemy, and had defeated them. [The articles were signed on June 19.]

1647. 27 June. Dundalk. Col. Moore to Colonel Monck. "This day I had intelligence that one Cornett Laws had beene with Brian Gernon, an officer in the Irish Army, whereupon I sent a party forth and apprehended him who being brought before me I tooke his examinacion and he showinge me your passe to treat with Gernon and forth of my respect to you I released him though I must deale clearely I cannot but take it ill of him to come into my quarters and not give me notice, he knowinge my employment with the honourable parliament of Englande. Sir, there is no dayes but these parts are plundered by the rebells, and the goods are bought by those that are employed forth of the North, they passinge a by-way.

Therefore my earnest request to you is, that you will order that those that shall come to buy cattill in these parts shall enter how many they buy, to what markets they go, and from whom they bought and to enter them in the towne-maiors books to the end if they be stolne, it may be knowne who sold them. This thing is so reasonable that I doubt not of your order and if they faile therein they are like to runne the hazard."

1647. 2 July. Dublin. Letter from Arthur Annesley, Sir Robert King, Sir Robert Meredith, and Colonel Jones, Lords Commissioners for Ireland, to Col. Moore at Dundalk, as to the pay of the army.

1647. 19 July. London. Edw. Brabazon (Lord Brabazon, eldest son of William, Lord Meath) to his cousin Col. Moore at Thomas Court, praying him to use his indeavours to obtain him a regiment of horse, promised by Sir Robert Meredith. "It is my ambition to have some honourable command in the army that might inable mee to doe service against those bloody and barbarous people the destroyers of our nation and religion."

In a postscript: "There is not much newes stirring, the report is the army is remooving into Kent and the King with it and the Prince expected. Sir Tho: Fairfax is lately voted Generalissimo of all the forces of England and Ireland." Seal.

1647. 23 July. Letter from the Marquess of Ormond, Lord Lieut. of Ireland, to Col. Moore, one of the Commissioners from the Parliament of England, and Governor of Dundalk, on behalf of Capt. Chas. Townley and Capt. William Constable.

This letter is endorsed by Col. Moore's son, Edward Moore, "Immediately after this Col. John Moore, then one of the 3 Commissioners for the Parliament of England, received all the power from the Lord of Ormonde and ruled and governed the whole Kingdom of Ireland as one of the 3 Commissioners from the Parliament of England, to his dying day. Besides at his death he was Governor of Dublin. He died in June 1650."

1647. 24 July. Dundalk. Draft letter from Col. Moore to Col. Mason, respecting a complaint that some of the writer's men had taken several unarmed country people prisoners, and as to a proposed exchange of prisoners.

1647. 27 July. Drogheda. Chidley Coote to Col. Moore. Gives notice of the siege of Trimm. Requests that intelligence of it may be sent to Colonel Conowit [Conway] so that he may advance with all speed and save the garrison. Unless this is done the writer fears Dundalk or Drogheda will be the rebels' next design.

1647. 28 July. Dublin. Order signed by Arthur Annesley, Sir Robert King, Sir Robert Meredith, and Colonel Michael Jones, Lords Commissioners for Ireland, to Col. Moore that, as the Rebels are before Trym, he and his men shall marche to the relief of the garrison.

1647. 29 July. Drogheda. Sir Hen. Tichborne to Col. Moore (holograph), giving advice and instructions respecting Col. Moore's campaign in Ireland.

1647. 20 July. Kil . . . James Earl of Clanbrassil to Col. Moore asking permission for a messenger of his to go to Dublin.

1647. 29 July. Kil . . . Lord Clanbrassil to Col. Moore. Complimentary.

1647. 31 July. Dublin. Colonel Michael Jones to Col. Moore as to stopping of all tithes in County Louth for the public service.

A very interesting account in the shape of a diary, commencing on 31st July and ending on the 11th Aug. 1647, of the movements of Col. Jones' army from Dundalk to the relief of Trim, and of the battle of Dungan Hill.

The following is a copy of it:—

Saturday the last of July 1647.

Collonel Moor his Regiment marched out of Dundalke about thrie a clock in the afternoone and that night quartered beyond Garlinstonne a litle, wher not being molested they lodged that night in the open field safly, himself, his livetenant Collonel [Blagrove], his Maior [Heapie], Captaine Green, Captaine Kinerd, and other inferior officers with souldiers foure hundreth, being from Dundalke 7 miles.

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

Sunday the next morning August the 1.

After we had served God with prayers and praises we advanced forwardes towards Tradath making bot litle way till we came thither, and on this side the towne we quartered in the field that night safly, being from oure former nighte's quarter 9 miles.

Munday, the 2 August.

We removed oure quarter toward the Sea some two miles from the former place, in which day the Earle Clanbrizel his Regiment refused to march any further but contrarie to comand marched as though they wold have returned home, bot ther mutinous intentione was stopt by Collonel Moore who rod after them with a few horse who by threatnings and promises moved them to returne.

Tuesday, 3 August.

We marched through the garisone of Tradath towards the place appointed for the Randevoes which was the hill of Glernie wher expecting to have met Colonel Jhoons with his forces was not then come up. Wherfor being bot a smal partie and now not far from the place wher the enemie lay, we wer the more watchful. The enemie hearing of our advancing being then lying in seige against Trimme, commanded thrie troupes of horse to give us alarm which they did, and in the interim removed ther seige from Trimme towards Port Laster.

Wednesday, the 4 August.

Collonel Jhones came up with his forces of horse and foot about eleven o'clock about which tyme we understood of the enemie's removing frome Trime. Wherfor we marched not farr that day, bot rested oure selves at Castle tounne Tarah, some trie miles from our former night's lodging in the which night the enemie's horse came and gave us a second alarme.

Thursday, the 5 August.

Our Armie advanced forward and came to quarter within a mile of Trimm wher being glad to sie our freinds released as it wer (of ther imprisonment) we remained all night.

Friday, the 6 August.

We marched by five oclock in the morning through Trimme and so laid ourselves against the Castle of Trimilstonne, General Prestonne with his Armie being at Portlaster within fyve miles of us. The first comanded men wer led on by Lieutenant Collonel Blackgrave about five a clock in the after noone, wher the musketires continued playing against the Castle that night.

Saturday, the 7 August.

In the morning the Enemie was descri'd to be marching towards Dublin, yet did oure souldiers continue in ther intencions against the Castle which about two a cloack in the afternoon was given unto us upon quarter. Then presently we removed and returned through Trimme fearing that Prestonne wold have assaulted Dublin (which was much feared). Wherfor we made haste after him and so descride his Armie within two miles upon oure right hand. Oure Armie that night quartered at St. Johne's Tounne, bot the enemie removed two miles further from us wher they lodged themselves most securly that night ther being a great bogg betwixt them and us.

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

Sunday, the 8 August.

Collonel Court [Coote] his regiment of horse being sent abroad on Saturday nicht to beat up the enemie's quarter which becaus of the bogg was impossible, returned verie early on Sunday morning. Who told us how and wher the enemie lay. Wherupon we presently advanced towards the enemie, who thinking themselves not safe eneough wher they lay all nicht drew downe to a small hill upon ther right hand being in compas nine or ten akers of ground all trenched round about as if they had done it of purpose for their owne saftie, yet all availed nothing, for God encouraged us to leap over ther walles. It was Collonel Moore his fortune to comand in the rere that day, yet was he the first that had the occasione to joyne in fighte, a partie of Coll Kittas his men being comanded doune from ther bodey to keep a passe did for awhile dispise the busines, yet it pleased God to bless Collonel Moor and his men, himself leading them on to gain the winde and passe of them, and so made them runne for it, by which tyme the two bodies of the enemies and ours did joyne, and God blessing our Armie with valer and corage did so charge both with foot and Horse that they wer glad to leav that place and flie to ane other for refuge, which sanctuarie was a great bogg which though manic tyme formerly had been a strong tower to defend them, yet it pleaset God to make it at this tyme a snare to entrapt them: oure horse did surround the bogg, and our foot marched upon it after them, they keeping still in a body close together, but in end wer so overtaken that few escaped to tell news, of seven thousand, I think not seven hundred. Then afterward we returned both horse and foot to rest oure selves, bot before we gave rest unto our bodies we sacrificed our prayers and praises to God for oure victorie, and so continued all nicht upon that hill till the next morning.

Munday, the 9 August.

We pursued the way that General Prestone with his small partie did escape which was towards Manouth in the countie Kildaire on of the strongest Castles in Ireland which upon challendg was presently surrendered and we quartered that night; then next morning.

Tuesday, the 10 August, having found letters in General Prestonne his Cabinet which wer sent by Barmiel [Barnewell] of Kilbrue who (like Judas saluting us with a kisse) in oure marching towards Trimm for the relief thereof did mean nothing bot oure destructione, we came to his house and caried him with us prisoner to Dubline, wher he ought to hang like a traitor, bot that he mad his escape. At Killbrue we quartered that nicht, wher we made oureselves merrie with such provisione as that place afforded.

Wednsday, the 11 August.

We marched homeward through Tradath and so to oure garisone at Dundalke, having sustained no losse in oure Regiment but two men; thus did the Lord prosper and blesse us at that tyme.

1647. 21 August. Dundalk. Col. Moore to the Commissioners for Ireland. Draft letter asking for an order for 101*l*. to pay off a debt which has been incurred on behalf of the garrison at Dundalk.

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

1647. 28 August. Lisnegarvy. Lord Conway to Col. Moore as to certain men of Col. Moore's regiment, apparently deserters.

1647. 3 September. Dundalk. Draft letter. Col. Moore to the Commissioners, as to whether he may grant protection to certain of the inhabitants of counties Louth and Monaghan.

1647. 17 Sep. Dundalk. Col. Moore to Col. Jones, the first part unimportant. At the end of the letter Col. Moore says "I also make bold to acquainte you that there is some exigents come forth against most of the gentry of this county to appeare at the High Court to answere unto certaine bills of Treason; it doth much startle them and they conceave they were protected for a yeare. Sir, thus much I thought fitt to acquainte you with and referr to your grave consideracion."

1647. 1 October. Carlingford. Col. Trevor to Col. Moore, as to the levying of the Contribution for the maintenance of the Army in Louth. The letter is endorsed in the handwriting of Col. Moore's son "A letter from the great Coll: Trever in Ireland to Moore." There is a good seal.

1647. "A relation of the severall passages of our march in October last.

Monday the fourth of October we marched in the beginning of the night from Dundalk.

Tuesday the 5th of this moneth we rested in the morning within fyve myles of Droghedah, and about 9 or 10 of clock marched untill wee came about one of the clock within a myle of Droghedah, wher wee rested a while and wer drawn upp to prayers. Therafter wee marched thorow the towne, Colonell Trevour's troope ryding in our vann and Major Palmer's troope in the reare. That night wee quartered at a towne called Dulake (Duleek) some four myles from Droghedah.

Wednesday the sixth of October wee marched from our quarters about eight a clock in the morning and having about noone comed over against the hill of Tara ther wer some horsemen espyed upon the syde of the sayd hill; our officers supposing they had been enemies went out a convenient number of them to know what they wer, but finding them to bee friends they presently returned and wee marcht till wee came within three myles of Trime and quarter'd in a village neer Brilsoune (? Burrelston).

That day the armis took in Castle Riccard and ane other castle. In Castle Riccard, Captain John Martin with sixtie men wer left.

Thursday the seventh of October wee marched from our quarters by the towne of Trime and intending by a neer way to come to Portleister wher the armie lay, wee crost the Boyne, but when we wer over, understanding the way to bee impassible for our horsemen and our baggage the causeys beeing broken, we returned and passed the river at a foord two myles above the former and overtook the armie at Portleister.

Now on the day preceeding the Generall had removed from Castle Riccard to Portleister, and sumoned them in Portleister to render it upp but they refusing, in the night hee planted his ordinance against it, and having begunne early in the morning to batter it with two great gunnes, befor eleven of clock on Thursday on syde of the wall fell and overwhelmed severall of the defendants, the rest betaking themselves to the bogge by the which the castle is situated escaped. Only one musketeer standing upon the verie topp of the wall came downe with the ruines thereof having received no great hurt, and had made an escape if his legge had not stuck between two stones, but imediatly the souldiers killed him. Our men having burnt the house and killed a woman or two, marched thence to a castle three myles of and within three myles of Aboy (Athboy) wher they encamped this night. CAPT. STEWART'S MSS.

On Fryday the 8th of October wee arose early in the morning and march'd towards Aboy, passing by a castle of the Earle of Westmeathe's in which our troupes found much corne and great plentie of strong beere. A part of our horse comanded by Sir Thomas Armstrong wer sent about to besege the norwest syde of the towne. The rest of the armie marched towards the south syde of the towne; Colonell Jones his men horse and foote wer drawne uppe on the right hand next to the towne, Colonel Monke his men wer drawn uppe on the left hand furthest off, ther beeing a highway and two hedges between both. In the mean tyme they in the towne florished their coloures on the toppe of ther castles. Ther was a gate house about musket shott of the towne out of which foure of ther men came thinking to have shott our horsmen that wer ryding upp and downe, but they having before drunke hard at the Lord of Westmeathe's house came furiously ryding between the Irish and the gatehouse and having killed some they chased the rest to the towne and so wonne the gatehouse. The rest of our men disdaining to bee behinde these horsemen in courage, without any comand, together with the same horsemen brake into the towne wher Lieutenent Donellan in Colonel Moore's regiment with some others brake into the church and by force took the steeple which comanded all the rest of the castles in the towne, having killed those whome they found therein. The generall seeing the steeple gained and the courage of the souldiers, comanded three or foure regiments more to advance wherupon the enemie take downe ther coloures and call for quarters. They had quarters given them for ther lyves; wee lost no more then one or two men in the taking of this towne, wee hadd some shott who afterwards died. Ther we taking in this towne Captaine Dardis, Governor, Captaine Dullan, Captain Stanley and ane other with ther companies and inferior officers, hee also that was governor of Portleister was taken heer. This night we quartered neer to the place wher wee wer drawn uppe.

Saturday the 9th of October a comanded partie of 500 horse was sent to Dublin for provision, Colonel Monk having the vanne marched towards Kelles and encamped a little of the way two myles short of the towne. Colonell Jones having left Colonell Bailie's regiment of foot and three troopes of Colonell Pitsonbeye's [Ponsonby's] horse in guard at Aboy marched also, and after nightfall quarter'd in Kells.

Sunday the 10th of October, Colonell Jones and his men march betymes out of Kelles and draw uppe at Ardlennan, a strong fort belonging to Lieutenent Colonell Cruce, to guard which wer left 25 men. Our armie horse and foote beeing drawn uppe in a ring about this fort, and the defenders beeing sumoned to render it, yeelded it, having condiconed to departe with the baggage and ther armes. This force was comitted to the custodie of Major Richard Perkins and his company being then a captain in Colonell Kenniston [Kynaston] his regiment. Therafter wee marched two myles further to Nabor, a fort environed with water to which ther ar onely two narrow passages to enter. Wee quartered that night in the towne, Colonell Monk and his men quartered a myle from us towards Ardlennan. This night or the next day some horsemen of Colonell Coutes ryding abroad to plunder in the cuntry wer partly killed and partly taken by the Irish tories who carried the prisoners to Bealahoe [Ballyhoe] out of which they wer releved when we received the castle.

On Monday the 11th of October wee lay all day in our quarters. This day the generall. sumoned the Irish to deliver upp the fort, threatning if they would not the extremities of warr against them. At length they considering ther inabilitie to resist ycalded the fort having conditioned to march away with ther armes and baggage. In the afternoon they marched away beeing in number neer fourscore, and the fort was comitted to the charge of Lievetenant Colonell Napper and Captain Gallant who entred the same with ther companies beeing both in Colonell Kenniston's regiment. This day Colonell Trevor (having with a partie of two or three hundred horse gone from us on Saturday) returned with a prey of three hundred cowes with some fyve hundred garrans which he broght out of the countie of Cavan. And this day Sir Thomas Armstrong with a partie of 500 horse was sent out also to pillage the enemies quarters, who returned on Wedinsday next to Bealahoe with some 800 or 900 cowes.

Tuesday beeing the twelfth October oure armie marched some foure myles to the castle of Bealahoe, our ordinance and carriages wer sent about ane other way it being not possible to [get] them there the way that the armie came. Colonell Monk and his men having this day the vanne marched about by Lagen water and encamped on the north syde of the water, besieging the castle on the countie of Monaghan syde wher they built brest works from which they shott often against the castle. This night Colonell Long's regiment and some horse had the ground on the syde of the water.

On Weddinsday the 13th of October our ordinance came upp; the generall sumoned the castle but they within refused to deliver it, but at length when our men wer drawn uppe with ordinance against it, Colonell Fleming who was Governour heerof coming out to parley with Colonell Jones conditioned to deliver it, hee beeing permitted to departe the nexte day with his men armes and baggage. This night Colonell M^oore and Colonell Floore [Flower] theire regiments wer on the guard against the castle.

On Thursday the 14th of October the armie beeing readie to march, Colonell Flemin and his men marcht out, and imediately Luetenant Colonell Blackgrave and Captaine Ward being both in Colonell Moore's regiment marched in with ther companies, the charge of the castle beeing comitted to them."

1647. 20 October. Millefont. Holograph letter from his "affectionate kinsman Moore," to Col. Moore, Governor of Dundalk, to summon the country and to come himself to Dromgoolestown on Monday next, as he intends summoning the Barony of Slane.

1647. 9 November. Lysnegarvy. Colonel Monck to Col. Moore, complaining that his soldiers have to pay excise for the meat they buy at Col. Moore's market of Dundalk, and begging that it may be remedied. He also complains of the conduct of some of the Colonel's officers and accuses one of them (by name Rice) of keeping up correspondence with the enemy. Monck is resolved to call some of the officers before a council of war.

Appended to this is a note in Col. Moore's handwriting in answer.

1647. 24 Nov. Notes in Col. Moore's writing. "The informacion of Anthony Townely Esq^{re}, High Sheriff of the County of Louth, who informeth that he had intelligence that there was 400 horse by the appointement of Owen Roe O'Neale, under the comands of Callecathy Mack Mahon to burne and robb and spoyle the County of Louth and that they were in gathering together in the Barrony of Dartry in the County of Monaghan being the lowest barrony."

1647. 10 December. Lysnegarvy. Col. Monck to Col. Moore. The writer has daily complaints of Colonel Moore's severe measures towards such of Col. Monck's men as go to Dundalk to buy provisions; "but you have not only debarred me from that privilege (of marketing at Dundalk) but seized on such cattle as my officers buy in other quarters for the maintenance and subsistence of my souldiers. Wherefore I shall intreat you to restore backe the cattle againe to those from whom you tooke them, and for the future not to offer the like." He gives further particulars as to the treachery of Rice, the officer mentioned in his former letter.

1647. 13 Dec. Dundalk. Col. Moore to Col. Monck. Has received Col. Monck's letter saying that daily complaints are made to him by the Newry garrison of Col. Moore's severe and harsh treatment of those who come into his quarters to buy provisions, and that he (Col. Moore) allows his men to pillage and rob the buyers of their money and provisions. "For the first," says Col. Moore in reply, "I hope I have learned soe much civillity as to be severe to none unless they misbehave themselves and for the other I scorne to tollerate any under my comande to pilladge any; neither doe I beleive any such thinge as is informed you." Explains the seizing of Captain Parratt's cattle.

1647. 13 Dec. Dundalk. Col. Moore to Col. Jones, complaining of threats and uncivil language used against the writer by Captain Parratt. Two similar letters on the same date, one to Col. Monck; in the second, which is not addressed, Colonel Moore adds, "I conceived he had noe intencion to whip me, because he spoke soe openly, but I should be readie to be whipt by him as I was the last Thursday morninge, he also swore he would be reveng'd on my quarters, but was soe drunke that he fell downe the staires." are dead. Sir, I make bold to present these lines to acquainte you with [torn off] and withall to desyre you since that Mr. Cooke hath refused to be major that you will be pleased to grant me a commission for Mr. Jackson who will bring in a good company and is a very able souldier and [illegible] is unwilling to part from me, hense I entend to put that company to mine. Sir, I doubt nothing your response, and you shall find me readie to serve you in any thinge that shall be in my power.

1647. 25 December. Dundalke. Col. Moore to Col. Jones. Draft letter with respect to the charges made against the writer by Col. Monck (see above). Col. Moore urges in excuse the orders of the Commissioners that no cattle were to pass from Dundalk to the north parts.

1647. 28 December. Wicklow. Col. Jones to Col. Moore. Regrets the loss of Major Heapy and his men and wishes "it may be a warning to men to be more uppon there keepinge then many are in these times."

1647. Dublin. Col. Moore to Col. Michael Jones, one of the Lords Commissioners for Ireland, on the deplorable state of his grarrison at Dundalk and enclosing "the humble proposalls of Col. John Moore Governor of Dundalk to the honourable Col. Micheale Jones, comander in chief of the loyallist forces."

The proposals are nine in number.

There is a note in the same sheet as follows:—

"Captaine Palmer and myselfe ceazed upon 77 cowes and calves and 3 garrons of Captaine Parrott's and some others who gave us an alarme at three o'clock in the night, we conceaving them to be the enemy pursued them and their troop and [illegible] all but 22 cows, 2 calves and one garron which I had for the use of the garrison. I also ceased upon some 14 or 16 garrons which I keepe for Dragones."

for his transporting of them, and giving security that they shall not engage against the Parliament, and withal that he should put such Officers upon them as had served the Parliament, in regard that many who have formerly pretended to raise forces for Venice, have been employed against the Parliament, and particularly divers officers who had commissions for that service by power derived from the Parliament were engaged in Colchester against this army and several of their Commissions taken from them. I desire therefore that there may be no interruption given to this gentleman (who hath approved himself so faithful to the parliament ever since the wars began) in the transporting of the said Regiment of 1,050 men; but that he may receive all encouragement; having made choice of very faithful and well deserving officers to command the men who have always been in the Parliament service. Capt. Gethins being with me after such time as I had engaged myself unto Lieut. Col. Rushee had a promise from me of such number of men as I could spare, not prejudicing my engagements unto the said Lieut. Col. Rushee, which I am willing to grant him to have such a number of men as remain undisposed of above the said Regiment to Lieut. Col. Rushee, to which he expressed his acceptance and consent. I desire that all expedition may be used in getting the men on shipboard." The letter is endorsed in Edward Moore's writing. "This letter is from the great Lord Fairfax who is at this time General of all the Parliament army, sealed with his own coat armour and signed with his own hand. The Lord keepe you from dangar. We are hear in les saftiy then you for ther you know your enymys, and hear we doe not. The Lord in merciy looke uppon us, for the devishons of rubin (Reuben) are great; the armiy is very hiy, and the King is stobarn. The parilement stand uppon ther owne gard, we looke every day for a sige, but I hope God will pretect his owne. The army will never rest till the have porged some of ther grose ungustis and bribary. I thanke my God you are both in the siti and army and parilement votid for one of a thounsand and the saye Fare fall honist Colinell Moore for he will stand when all selef sikars will fall. For your businas it goith very untordly one by reson of this trubills, by the next you shall hear more. Pray writ a sharpe lettart to the comity of the navy that they will doe you justis, for I can not get one penny from them. Truily I thinke the are the basist rogis in Crisindom. Grine [Giles Greene, Navy Commissioner] and Bence is your back frends. Pray writ to Mr. Roules [John Rolle] for he is your good frend. This destarshons mackes me unsearten of my coming down, nether doe I know if I shall have the convenienc of a letar or now the next post, for if the parilement and armiy fall out all ways will be stoped. The Lord send me to se you onst agane and I will ashuar you I will never part from you agane so far distant whilst I am your obedant wife, Mary Moore."

Edward Moore has endorsed the letter "A letter writ all with my mother owne hand, by which you may see that Col. John More was acompt a juste and honnist man. Had he bene but a silfe siker he might have maid his esteat many thousant a yeare."

[1647.] 22 June. The same. "My dear love—I resevid your lettars from Doblin and bleece God you are safe gonn over. I would not wich you heare agane for things are in the most sadist condishon that ever mortills beheld. Every day we looke for Ser Thomas Fearfaix is army whether in love or with forc it is not knowne. The army doth cary themselves so fare that the gane the harts of all the counties and the pitishon to Ser Thomas that he shall not lay down armes till things be seteled. The Army doth acxus 4 of the Lords and 11 of the hous of comans. I will inseart as meany as I can remembar but I have fount the note hear inclesid I send you. If you did but know how I am trubilled with the times and your occazons, you would say it is God that prausarvith my witis. I have much to doe to kipe my goods, for the Parilement to plesse the sittie hath past an order that noe parilament man's goods nor lands shall be protected, and this wicke I intend to pitishon the hous. By the next I will send you more for I dear not writ much the times are so dangrus. If things goe well with me I will be doun very shortly. Phillpot is the worst enimy you have in Ingland. The Lord send that onst you will but take notis of them that doth you wrong, he is boulstred up by the 2 Bencis, the will have me to doe what Phillpot will have with out making any accounts or eles I shall have noe muiny. The have crost me 3 times and be the 4 time I hope some of them must come to accounts and if I doe not lift some, let me be made a foolle as the world have me to be, for ther is not one man in England hath the like unguistis (injustice) you have, but have pasions (patience) you shall se them porged, some wich are ungest must out. Your frend Greene must be caled one; I will ashuar you he is your arch enemy. I can get noe muny as yet for your shipe but am in very good hops if I will but bribe and yild that Bence shall be payed that which Philpot owse him out of your muiny. But good my dear, keepe the ship at sea what ever it cost, for we shall have it at last, and when she is to leve pray let them bring her to London, for if she wear hear I could have her in the sarvsh (service). Dear love have a care of your selefe for your poore wife and childarens sacke. Nede (Ned) hath bine veary sicke but I bles God he is well recorved. The are all well eles. My ant Bramston is ded. Praye present my humble sarvst to my Lord and all at Thomas Cort. The plag (plague) is very hote hear; it is the next dore bot 2 to Ser Gregory Nortons owear aganst us. The hous is shut up. It is my Lady Drakes family, the ould lady. The King is at Nwee markit, the armiy doth not much regard him for he is veary stobarn to them. The Lord knows ther intenshon. The cavilears are veary meary to se us contend but I hope the will have noe case. I have sent the conishon to the ship and I hope to send muiny eare it be long; for God's sacke let me hear from you so soone as you cane for I much . . . (torn) to hear how you doe, and how you and Ormane agne. I hope to see you ear you will looke for me and till then with many a tear I will rest in grife till I se you my most dearist love and the comfort I injoy on earth. I can writ noe more for tears but that I am your obedant wife, Mary Moore."

ceased upon them and disarmed and secured them; from whome he tooke 60 swords at least with pistolls carbines and musketts, and then the Lord Lisle comeinge to Leverpoole with Sir Rich. Greenevill, Sir Thos. Stanley and Mr. Holecroft came to Leverpoole and fetched the Lord Lisle and Greenevill to Warrington and Sir Thos. Staneley commanded this informer to goe along with them and comeinge to the Eagle and Childe in Warrington their came one of Lift. Col. Egerton's souldiers to Sir Thos. Stanley and moved in the behalfe of one Tho. Constable who was then a prisoner and Sir Thos. Stanley replied By God's blood he could never be quiett for a company of puretannicall rogues and that he would rather fight against Manchester than any towne in England for they were a company of puritanicall rascalls.

"This examinant likewise saith that he informinge Sir Tho. Stanley that Mr. Tho. Mollinex the lawyer had one or two good horses of his sonne in law Mr. John Egerton who was then with the army and that Mr. Mollinex did give intelligence to Chester, whereupon Sir Tho. Stanley comanded this examinant to fetch them in, which he did and then Mollinex comeing to Sir Tho. Stanley he so far prevayied with Sir Tho. that he caused this informer to redeliver the horses to Mollinex and with all gave this informer a very great check; then this examinant his officers seinge that their Colonell Sir Tho. Stanley did see much countenance papists and malignants were so dishartened, as also by his calling of them pricke eared rogues, that they were resolved to leave him.

"The examination of Cap. Andrew Ashton concerning the losse of Leverpoole who saith that upon the 7 of June 1644 his Liuetenant, Ensign, and many of his souldiers were burnt with powder and that upon Monday morning the 10th of June the ordnance began to play about 2 of the clocke in the morninge and played till 12 and then at one o'clocke they fell of firing the towne and by God's mercy were driven backe, and the seamen haveinge the left winge garde of this examinant's company were accustomed to joyne close with this examinant's company, but that night were drawn down close to the water side and not past some sixe of them were seene neare this examinant's garde. Then about 12 o'clock Cap. Tattam's shipp begininge to sale downe, at which his souldiers were much dismayed and one Mr. Morton who then carried the collors to the seamen came unto me and asked the reason of it and why their was noe remedy (?) and desyred me to goe and see where the Colonel was and what was the cause, and I replied I could not well goe because my officers were burnt with powder and there might be some inconvenience in my absence. Yet he urging me to goe and saying he would stay with my company till I returned, I went to the towne and in the hall I found Cap. Philpott and asking him what newes, he cried out the towne was betrayed and I said God forbid and asked were my Colonel was, who being up aleaven days and nights together, was lain downe to rest himselfe, yet I heareing this made bold to call on him, and he forthwith gott up and called for his horse to rid the rounds, but before he tooke horse James Moulton who comanded the seamen came and told the Còl. that Cap. Ireland, Cap. Aspinwall, Lift. Heap, and Strangweyes were of the garde and that their was not soe many men upon all the gards as were upon this informer's and his and likewise said the towne was betrayed. Upon which the Col. desyred this examinant to go aboard Cap. Tattam to know what course they would take and whether he would sticke to us that we might fight it out or eles that we should beate a parley, but he being saleinge downe this informer asked the Colonel whether he must goe aboard Cap. Clarke to which the Colonell condescended and thereupon James Moulton helping this examinant to a boate, this examinant with Moulton and Cap. Phipott went aboard Cap. Clarke, and Philpott as soone as he came aboard cried the towne was betrayed, at which Cap. Clarke replied "James Moulton I chardge you to goe presently and fetch all my men aboard," and when this examinant heard this he told him that he was sent from the Colonell to have their advice and to know whether they would stand to him that they might fight it out, otherwise he must be forced to sent forth a parly. Yet notwithstanding Cap. Clarke would not withdraw his comands, but sent away his longe boate and a ferry boate to fetch of his men. Then this examinant seeinge that he would retorne noe answeare to the Colonell, and he pressinge Cap. Clarke to let his men stay untill a parly was sent, but Cap. Clarke would not condescend unto it, thereupon this examinant desyred Cap. Clarke to know what he should doe with his men, the seamen being drauen of and the guards being left naked soe great a space, Clarke replied "Put your men aboard with mine, they shall fare noe worse than mine," who then set this informer ashore with James Moulton. Which Moulton went presently to call of his men before this examinant could finde the Colonell, and with all desyred Mr. Moulton to stay or eles we should have all our throats cut; but he refusinge this informer goeing towards the Colonell saw the enemy entringe the workes, and he comeinge to the Col. told him that the enemy was entringe and thereupon the Colonell drawinge his sword and offeringe to draw up a party to beate the enemy backe, the souldiers refused, hearing the enemy was in the towne and thereupon this informer ran to the water side leaveinge the Colonell in the towne, and that beinge in the water their came a boate and this examinant making towards it saw the Colonell come from the workes to the water and soe tooke boate their being very many shott made at them. Andrew Ashton."

N.D. [1648 ?] Paper endorsed "Concerning tithes of several parishes in Lancashire.

The parish of Hyton [Huyton] is an impropriation belonging to the Lord Mollineux, who is now in arms; it is worth 140*l.* per annum. Mr. Bell is the minister and there doth belong to the Vicarage but 20 marks per annum. We desire that 50*l.* per annum may be added to it.

1651. 29 August. Liverpool. Richard Worsley to Edward Moore concerning the Earle of Derby's rising in the North and the encounters which had taken place between him and the parliamentary forces under Colonel Lilburn. "The steward belonging to Mr. Ireland of Bewey, credibly reported that the Earle of Darby beeing lately att Bewey said that he would give two thousand pounds that hee had his daughters forth of Liverpoole, and then hee would burne it every sticke, and all the townes about it. And Mr. Ireland kepte six and twenty coves and the Earle's forces came thither, and left not one doore of the house unbroken but all they could find they spoyled, and for cheeses they cutt them into peeces and threwe them into the lanes that which they lefte. The Earle lyinge at Preston and blockinge up the bridge and streets ends, Col. Lyleborne lay at Houghton Tower with his forces, and could not conveniently enter at Preston, but the Earle sent a parle to Col. Lyleborne and while they were parlinge drew away his forces to Wiggan, intendinge to spoyle the regyment of foote that were comeinge from Manchester to Col. Lyleborne. But then there came an old woman to Col. Lylehouse and tould which way the Earle was marched, and then Col. Lyleborne did drawe after him as fast as hee could and heard that hee was in Wiggan, and blocked up the streets ends for feare of the regiment of foote. And then the Earle's forces fell on very desperately that Col. Lyleborne's men reatreated almost halfe a myle to a syde of a wood, and then faced about againe, and putt the Earle's men into the towne againe, and there they foute (fought) up streete and downe, and killed all through the streetes and in houses. Col. Trisley [Tinsley] killed, Col. Veere wounded sore and taken, Major Ashust the report is that he is kilde, one Lord killed and almost all the gentlemen and greate papists of this countrey that rose with the Earle 1659 [-60]. A sheet of paper upon which the drafts of three letters are written; the last one is dated the 2nd Jany 1659, and the two others were probably written about the same date. Two of them appear to be signed "E.M." The hand-writing is like that of Edward Moore.

The first begins: "By the last post the good and hapy newes of the restabliſg (sic) of the Parliment was brought to my hands it being the only visible mercy onder heaven to setell in this embroyled nation God's laws & his good people deare bought liberty, & likewise how there was yet remaining a formidable army not retorne to there obedience, sume of which frackments, namely a trope onder the commant of one Capt. Medowcraft, which are rased by the late orders from Lambert being all great Anibabtists are in this county & kepe very strik wacht on Warrington Bridge. They have on Satorday last taken severall gents prisoners by whose order I know not, and on Sunday last there came a strike (strict) warrent to me & to 3 or 4 letell townes of mine for to command us to bringe so many men completly armed, with every one a month pay before hand & for every towne to find each man 12*d.* p. diem during the time of service, now what all this may amount tow, God only knows, if Lambert's army doe stand out, and besids in our county scarse being one, I mene of quality which are for the Parliament. Therefore as bound in duty, & contince (conscience) I have here delaid what I am able & willing to doe and desire the delivery of this to the Speaker (which when you have red seale up) what I have write with God's assistance I shall, if the Speaker send me a comission, endeavor to performe to the hassard of my live and fortune. that is: to rase 300 foote and 100 horse, most of them all my tennents & freinds, the most of them having formerly ingaged for the Parliament under my faithier. I shall likewise sees of Leverpooll & declare for the Parliment, and quistion not but what with my friends and actions by a comission from the Speaker that in a very short time to be so formidable, that in these parts none shall be regent but those that owne the Parliment for the suprame atority. Thus desiring your pardon for this bould intrusion the only mens which prompt me to it is the knowledge of your reale afiction to the Parliment & the goodnes which perpetuilly sway in you affording me to feare the quality of Sir Your humble servant & kinsman E.M."

The second letter is to the same effect and possibly to the Speaker, and the third, also similar in effect and signed "E.M." renews the writer's offer to raise a troop of horse and another of foot to march to Liverpool and declare for the Parliament. It is dated the 2nd of January 1659.

1659. 28 Dec. Thomas Sturmy to his cousin Edward Moore upon business matters. At the end of his letter he says: "The newes here this day is that two shipps men of warr of the Hollanders are by the English taken, another burnt, and two more sunke and spoyled and the English in pursuite of more of them. No newes of any adresses for peace; Acts prepareing to rayse money by poll officers & servants wages, and by head money is wanting."

Mr. Kitley of Barking in Essix deposed that one Mrs Yaxley of Ilford (a papest in that county) coming to his house Aug. 13th being in discourse with his mother said "they say that next Thorsday will be the hottest day that ever was in England." She rep. "Howe can that be, the hottest season of the yeare being now past" to which she answer "I know not wheather it will be the hottest for weather or action." This Mrs Yaxley coming to the same house a weeke after the fire, Mr Kildley said to her with sume truble "I have often thought of your hot Thursday," to which the said Mrs Yaxley replied "it was not upon the Thorsday but hapend upon the Sunday after." Mrs Yaxley hereing these words proved against her endeavored to avoyed the same, seeing that upon the 13 Aug. she did inded tell Mrs Kitley "that they say the next Thorsday would be the hottist (but said noe more) which she said she had heard from one Finchman an ould woman of Ileford whoe was sent for and exsamened by a justice, denied that ever she had any confrence with Mrs Yaxley or ever said any such thinge (this is all proved by Mr Kitley, his mother and sister upon oath).

Will. Ducket Esqr a member of this house informed that one Hen. Baker of Chippenham in the county of Wilts coming from market with one John Woodman of Killoway in the same county, the Thorsday before the fire begane in London, they had some discourse about the bieing a yolk of fatt bullox wherein they deferred because Woodman whoe was to sell them was disposed to kepe them a while longer; but the said Woodman being in farther discourse speaking of Bonefires maid of late, "You are brave blades at Chippenham you make great bonefires; but you shall have your bellies full of them ere it be long," aded that if he lived one weeke longer he should see London, a sad London as ever it was since the world begane and in sume short time after he should see as bludy a time in England as ever it was since England was England. When this was deposed by the said Hen. Baker the above Parilment man sent warrant for the said Woodman But he fled and cannot be heard of since.

Rob. Hubert of Rone in Normandy acknowledged he was one of those that fired the house of Mr Farriner a baker in Puding lane, confessed that he came out of France with one Steven Peidlee* about 4 months before the fire and went into Sweden with him, where they stayed 4 months and then they came together into England in a Swedish shipe called the Skiper where he stayed on bord with the said Peidlee till the Saturday in which the fire brake out; then Peidlee taking him out of the shipe caried him into Puding Lane and he being ernist to know wheather he would cary him, he would not satisfie him till he had brought him to the place and then he tould him he had brought 3 bales and gave him one into his hands to throught (throw) into the house; and he would have bene further satisfied in the designe as he said before he would exequet it, but Pedle was so impatient he would not here him, and then he did the fact which was that he put a fire bale at the end of a long pole and lighting of it with a pice of match put it in at a window and stade till they saw the house on fire. He confessed there were 23 complices of which he said Peidlee was chife.

Mr Graves, a Frinch Marchant liveing in St. Mary Axe, deposed that in regard he knew Mr Hubert very well he went to the Prison to see him, and said to him he did not belive that he was gilty, to which Mr Hubert replied, he confest he was gilty as abovs said, and said he was merely drawne in by Monser Peidile, but not out of any malice to the English Nation, but from a desire of the reward which he promised me upon my retorne into France.

That this Monser Hubert lived a papest and died one although it was given out that he was a Huginet. Mr. Lowman the keper of the White Lion prison went with him and he brought him exactly to the place.

Then the Baker Mr Fariner was examined whoe deposed at 12 that night according to his usall custom he went through all the house and there was noe fire then and that it must be fired on purpose.

Dawes Waymansell Esqr one of his Majesty Justices of peace deposes he saw a man apprehended nere the Temple with his pockets stufed with cumbustable matter of wile-fire flixe and tow.

Dr. Jo. Parker deposes that he saw a person throught (throw) some cumbustable matter into the ould Ballife which was an Apotycary Shope as he thinkes, and that immediatly thereupon he saw a great smoke and smelt the smell of brimston. The person that did it ran away but upon the onterie of the peopell he was taken and caried to the gard.

Mr Randle, Mr Haslem, and Mr Hum. Boyer deposes that they saw a pearson flinging sumething in to a house nere St. Anto[lin's] Church and that there upon the house immediatly was all on fire and the smoke thereof infested the houses on the other side of the way and when thise was done there was no fire nere the place by a quarter of a mile.

Mr Michell March an officer in the traine bands in Sir Rich. Browne's Company deposed that he tooke a Wallone in the time of the fire nere the Nax Head in Leadinhall Stret with an instrument maid like a darke lantern full of cumbustible wile-fire and sent the fello to the gard.

Newton Killingworth Esqr deposed that he apreghended in the time of the fire a parson [person] whereon he found much cumbustable matter and fortien blacke things of a longe figger and that they were so hote although there was noe fire nere them that he could not indure to hould them in his hands; this parson being so surprized he could say nothing but acted the part of a madman. He sent him to the gard.

Sir Jo. Maynard a member of this House deposed, saith that he had sume of the combustable stufe in his hands and though it were in its naturell concistance and unfired yet the heate of it was scarce to be indured by the touch.

Mr Freeman of Southworth Brewer, whoes house there was latly borned deposed that about a quarter of an hower that day before his house was on fire there was found in a whele wrights yard full of wode nere him, in the neth of a whele, a paper where in was about a pound of such combustable wile-fire as abovesaid. How his house was fired he knew not, but he deposes it could not be by any accident for that there had nether bene fire nor candell in the house (being an outhouse) of all that whole day.

Mr Richard Harwood deposes that he being nere the Feathers Tavern by St Pauls upon the 4th of Sep^r he saw through a great in a seller sume-thing like wildfire by the sparkiling and spitting of it, whereof he gave notise to sume souldjers nere there whoe caused it to be quenched.

I had order from the Comitty to acquaint you that we traced severell pearson haprehended upon strong suspistion during the fire, to the gards, but could not make farther discovery of them."

1670 [-71]. 11 March. "In the Parliament house." Fragment of a letter addressed to Edward Moore and franked and sealed by Sir John Coryton Bart.

1670. 26 September. "Articles of agreement made concluded and agreed upon . . . Between Sir William Cony of Lincolnes Inne Fields in the County of Midd. Knight, Sir John Poyntz of Iron Acton in the County of Gloucester Knight and Edward Moore of Banke Hall in the County of Lancaster Esquire of the one parte and Samuell Laurence of London Gentleman of the other parte in manner and forme following:" Relating to a sum of money raised in the county of Hertford for the pay of a company of soldiers commanded by Sir John Northwich, which was never paid. The agreement is that Samuel Laurance is to find out in whose hands the said money is lodged on consideration of getting one fifth of it when it is recovered.

1670. 3 October. Crooke. Jane Strangways to Edward Moore respecting a commission which he had promised to do for her in London.

"Capt. Savage left Bank Hall the last Wedensday was seven night. The Sunday before I was with him at Knowsley where I had the honer to kiss my Lord Darby's hand. Capt. Savage towards the evening when the wine had got the uper hand of his witt proved very rude and gave very oprobrious words to my Lord, and if his Lordship had not bene extreame sivele it might have made a great breake betwixt the two fammalseys.

But the next morning he was very sory for what he had sayd and they parted very good friends."

1670. 27 October. Charles Hoghton to Edw. Moore respecting the candidature of his friend the son of Mr. Henry Ashurst as burgess for Liverpool asking Mr. Moore to give him his interest. Seal.

1670. 10 November. S. James's. Thomas Ross to Edward Moore. "This morning his Majesty sent to me Col. Rob. Philips of the Bed-chamber with a comand to desist for pretending to bee Burgess of Leverpoole, his Majesty resolving that one Sir W^m Bucknall shall, if possible, bee thq man. Had I stood and carried it, I must have acknowledged it to you, and though I must now goe without it, my obligation is still the same."

1670. 25 November. Knowsley. "Upon Wednesday last the Earl of Derby was at Liverpool recommending by word of mouth what he had done before by letter to recommend Sir William Bucknell to that town for their Burgess. When he came to town he sent for the Mayor and his brethren and along with them came Sir Roger Bradshagh, Sir Gilbert Ireland, Sir Jeffries Shakerly and Mr. Norris of Speake.

"Sir Gilbert Ireland did in a formal starched harangue fall very foul upon Sir William Bucknell terming him an Exciseman etc and what not, and on the other side as much to commend and extol Sir George Lane.

"Wherein he was seconded in all he said by Sir Roger Bradshagh, Sir Jeffries Shakerly and Mr. Norris. All letters to his Lordship on the behalf of Sir William Bucknell he caused to be read by the town Clerk in hearing of them all, whereunto the Mayor and Aldermen gave great respect and he believes will be heartily for Sir William Bucknell; but the three knights and the Squire were thereupon very angry and spoke with disrespect of all those persons that had writ to his Lordship on the behalf of Sir William Bucknell. The letters read were from Prince Rupert, Duke of Monmouth, Lord Keeper [Bridgman], Duke of Buckingham, Lord Manchester, Lord Bishop of Saint Asaph, and Lord Ashley. In short one of the knights (and confirmed by his comrades the other two and the Squire) did utter words to this purport; that is, that this letter did look like an imposition, and he therefore as a commoner and in the name of the Commons of England did protest against such kind of practices; that excisemen and such persons as had to do with the management of his Majesty's revenue were very unfit persons to serve in Parliament, and that the mentioning the King was against the privilege of the Commons of England, and that if these were suffered the King might as well call Burgesses into the House of Commons by special writ, and then good night to the liberty of the subject. In short these Sirs and the Squire spoke seditiously enough, and may be [with] consequences of such kind as may not tend to His Majesty's service. In fine these four did all they could to vilify the duty of excise with other His Majesty's revenues and all persons employed therein as unfit to serve and sit in the House of Commons, which house ought to inspect their actions. And his Lordship did the more wonder to hear this from these persons because some of them have formerly pretended the quite contrary and here by the way one may perceive that it is themselves and their passions and factions they intend really to serve, and the King but in pretence or at least so far as may suit with their inclinations, but not one inch further."

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

1670. 17 December. Bank Hall. Letter unsigned and unaddressed, (but probably from Mrs Moore to her husband) about the Election of Sir William Bucknell member for Liverpool.

"My dear — to relate the whole passage of our Burgesses would prove tedious to my clerk without I had 500 Guineas to throw abroad.

"The first remarkable thing which Sir William did was to allot so many houses as was thought fit for the entertaining of all the free men of the town etc in which the Birches pretended to be extremely busy, and before Sir William came made a great bustle in gathering a sort of rascalion fellows together at some particular houses where they owed money and did guzzle and drink upon Sir William's score about 3*l*. 7*s*. before his coming.

"Which houses were Thomas Bridge's, Peter Allen's, and H. Jobson's. The rest of the houses for the reception were Mr Tempest's, William Acker's the White Lion, Robert Simpson's, Thomas Holand's, John Story's, Edward Sutton's, John Blundell's, Thomas Birche's, and William Poultkna's. Those that were entertained at the three first houses were cried up to be a very considerable party by the Birches and that they had gained them for Sir William, intimating also that for Mr Moore his interest was so inconsiderable, that it was not to be spoken of, and that it was them only which had procured the most considerable party.

"The next day after his coming he with the Alderman and another gentleman was sworn free of the town, and after the ceremony was past Sir William presented the Mayor with 50 Guineas and the Alderman with a handful which was judged to be as much, all which was refused by the Mayor, only told them that as they were freely made free, if they pleased to bestow it in plate, and give it to the use of the town it should be received with a grateful acknowledgement; which Sir William and the Aldermen engaged should be done and greater than was may be expected. To the poor there was given 15*l*. to be distributed. To Mr Hunter the Minister he gave 20 Guineas, to Mr Leigh 5 Guineas and to his Wife the Alderman gave 5 Guineas. To Mr Glover Sir William gave 5 Guineas, to a poor man in prison one Darron a Butcher 5 Guineas. The third day after he came to Liverpool he with a very considerable number dined at Bank Hall and also my Lord Colchester with a great number from Knowsley; but after dinner Sir William etc returned back to Liverpool excusing himself in this—that it was very requisite for his being at Liverpool for the despatching of the writ, and also of treating with the townspeople. Some few days after he came with the Aldermen only and stayed a night and was very obliging and spoke extremely civilly; he returned the next morning after breakfast. The Friday after was the day of the Election, against which day I sent for Cousin Hockenhulle and others who accordingly came; I received your letter that day and Sir William's enclosed which I sent to him by your Son but it was after he was chosen before I came to town, and so when your Son delivered it they were returned from the Hall to Mr^s Ecklesto's at the Cross where there was a dinner provided for my Lord Derby etc and he also dined there with them and there was a great deal of respect shewn him. He invited my Lord and Sir William to Bank Hall. My Lord at the very first accepted the invitation and told him he would wait on him which he did accordingly do, as also my Lord Strange, Mr Roberts, Mr Liegh of Brich, with Mr Bispam and a great many others too tedious to name.

"Sir William came that night with my Lord but did not stay long, because the next morning he was to leave the town for good and all, and therefore went to take leave with them. The next morning he returned accompanied with the Mayor, Aldermen and great part of the town, and after a short stay went with my Lord to Knowsley where he was to dine, and so from thence went the same night to Warrington where he stayed till after dinner the next day, and as it is reported he gave Mr Nickson who preached there instead of Mr Ward 10 Guineas.

"Mr Nickson is Sir Gilbert Ireland's Chaplain. Sir Gilbert carried himself very unworthily as Sir William can inform you. Sir William went after dinner to Manchester, and stayed there the next day till 2 of the clock. All this is no satisfaction to me for I have not received one line from you since the 9th of this month. If you do not intend for home, shortly, if it please God to enable me with strength I will be for London, for it is strange to me for other men's business to be followed and our own neglected. Capt. Liegh told me you had removed your lodging. We are furnished with little other discourse than of Mr Chisnell's losing his mistress and that he hath already sent down his horses and my Chief's letter which my Lord made the first and second course. I forgot to give you an account of the treat which the noble Alderman made to all the freemen of the town at Mr^s Athertone's which is judged to stand him in 50*l*.

"He bought a little dappled nag of my Lord Colchester and gave him 12 Guineas, Sir William proffered Cousin Hockenhulle 15 Guineas for another which he refused, but upon further consideration would fain have put him upon Sir William but it would not be accepted Sir William has I hear left 100*l*. with Sam Birch to defray whatever charge could be demanded in Liverpool after he was gone, but he hath not at all followed his directions for Mr^s Athertone is unpaid for two dozen bottles of Sack, which troubles me very much that such a thing should be mentioned of so worthy a person Mr William N.D. (But after 1660.) Paper endorsed "What I can prove as to my silfe" in Edward Moore's writing, containing a statement of facts intended to show that he had never taken arms on behalf of the Commonwealth, that he had done everything in his power to further King Charles II.'s restoration, and that he was a good Protestant, and had taken the oaths of allegiance and supremacy. The notes were probably compiled by Mr Moore to vindicate himself before the King and Council against the charges of some person by which he had been removed from the Commission of the Peace, as it recites that His Majesty was pleased to appoint him on the Commission and that he discharged his functions therein to the best of his judgment "tell by severall callumines (calumnies) and lies, by his intrist, whose carricter her followes I was put out of Commission agen." The character of the person alluded to here does not appear, part of p. 2 of the paper being torn off.

N.D. Paper endorsed "As to my wife's qualifications" in Edward Moore's writing. Probably written when his estates were confiscated at the Restoration owing to his father's adherence to the Parliamentary party.

"But if anything he objected upon my wife's accompt against me I answer:—

1670 to 1800.

Many London letters in this Collection are Stamped with the Penny Postmark which was of the following shape

The earliest instance of this mark is on a letter dated on the 9th of December 1681, written by the Bishop of London to Sir John Moore when Lord Mayor, and instances further occur at intervals down to the year 1754.

Mr Vincent in his last Edition of Haydn's Dictionary of Dates (1881) says that the Penny Post was first set up in London and its suburbs by a Mr Robert Murray, an upholsterer, in 1681; that he assigned his interest to Mr Dockwra a merchant in 1683, that the Court of Kings Bench in 1690 adjudged that it belonged to the Duke of York as a branch of the General Post, and that it was thereupon annexed to the revenue of the Crown. This institution was improved and made a two-penny post in July 1794.

The MSS. between 1677 and 1800 contain correspondence of no importance, and upon matters of interest to the writers only, between the following:—

1677 [-8]. 29 Jan. "Resolved that an addresse be presented to his Majesty expressing the thankes of this house for his Majesty great care of the Protestant religion, by marrieing his neece to a Protestant Prince, and humbly to beseech his Majesty that his Majesty would be pleased to admitt no treaty of peace, but such an one as leaves the French King in no better state and condition to offend his neighbours then he was left in by the Pyrenian treaty, for the obtaining of which his Majesty shall never want the ready assistances and supports of this house, that neither ourselves nor any other of the Allies shall hold any comerce or trade with the French King dureing this War." [See Commons' Journals, ix., 428.]

1677. 9 June. Long Whotton. John Wilde to his brother Sir John Moore "At his howss in Minchin Lane." On family matters, the bad health of his wife and son, the latter, he says has had "A very dangerous foote, the chirurgins have had him in hand a long time, and wee could not perceave they did him any good, but left it as bad or worse then they found it ; but at last they did all conclude it was the evill and noe way then but to carrie him to London that he miggt have the King's touch."

1678. The heads of the King's Speech to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen.

The King advertised them of the malicious Rumours that were endeavoured to be spread to the disadvantage of himselfe and the Government upon the prorougeing of the parliament. His Majestie (said) there was noe reason for the same for that his Majestie would be alwayes firme and steady to the Church of England and the Religion established by Law, and that it was his Resoluton to Governe by the Law and make that his Rule.

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

And to show it was his intension soe to doe, hee intended whatever straights and difficultyes hee putt himselfe unto speedily to disband the Army that all the world might see he did not intend to governe that way.

That his Majesty would search into the bottom of the plott and prosecute the Offenders as farr as evidence would goe according to Law.

His Majestie desired theire care to prevent malicious and false Reports of ill men that he was assured would turn what he did to the worst sence; that he desired nothing more than peace and trade, and depended on the Sitty for their care being alwayes Loyall.

His Majestie thereupon enquired what Guards they kept and being informed by my Lord Maior one Regiment by night and parte of one by day, His Majestie declared he left it to them to doe what they thought fitt in that particular and my Lord Maior adding the greate concerne of the Sitty for feare of his Majestie's person;

His Majesty thanked them for their care and sayd he was alsoe in feare and would accordingly have a care of himselfe.

His Majesty desired them to goe home and satisfy all honest men.

1678. 17 August. Tunbridge Wells. William Carslake to Sir John Moore.

"Much Honored Sir,

Twas an affliction to me after my long absence to find that on that very daye I returned you went out of towne to the waters and since that on that daye I was bound hither you had been in towne and were just gone out about the very houre I called, but there's a greate providence, to which I desire to submit, in those lesser as well as the greater affaires of our Lives, here are a considerable number of your brethren but I should more gladly have seen you and your Lady. We have here Sir Richard Chiverton, Sir Thomas Blowdworth, Sir Thomas Davyes, Sir James Edwards, Sir Henry Tulse, Sir John Shorter and Sir John Peake went but on Monday the sickness of his Laydes father (who but a few dayes before was here with her) occasioning theire removall. Sir Thomas Player is also here. We have had nothing so considerable here as the sudden marriage on Fridaye last weeke of Sir W^m Buck a young Baronet of Lincolnshire to one Miss Skinner a merchant's daughter in London. She was woman or companion to the Countesse of Arundell (the Lady to the eldest son of the Duke of Norfolk) whome he never sawe until he dancd with her on the Thursday night but it seems he thought on her that night and intimated something of it on the morrowe on the walks, on which the Lord Davencourt eldest son (of) the Earle of Scarsdale and the Lord Greye of Werke and some other young Gent prest him on to marry presently and after the morning prayers here in the new Chappell they would willingly have finished the busines but none of the ministers were so hardy as to adventure without a license but they at length got one from the Surrogate at Tunbridge and were married at Bidborough a little Church by Southborough and in the Lord's daye morning he came with his Lady on the walks. Another sad providence here that on Mondaye a poore Coachman dyed whose leg was broken by his fall out of the box and the wheels running over him on the Lord's daye afternoone on the weeke before as he was driving to the Chappell to the afternoone Service. I have reason to mind these both having had a much more pleasant being here hitherto, all the raine that hath fallen since being no waye enough to allaye the Dust here. The weather so encouraging and my melancholy having been so discouraging both in my long journey and in London since and here also I hope unless greatly interrupted to continue here all August in the meane while should be glad to receive your comands here where we have a post comes every night in the weeke besides many other conveyances, daily by coaches from the three Tuns in Gracechurch Street neare Cornhill. I onely nowe add my very humble services to yourself and good Lady and Madam Lewes if you are yet with her and to misse, and rest,—Sir, your humble and much obliged servant, WILL. CARSLAKE."

1678 [-9]. 22 March. Sir ffr. Winington his speech to the house of Commons.

The King cannot pardon treason against the Government for then the Government cannot be safe from evill ministers; could kings have done it, would not Brembree, Tresillian and the Spencers have been pardoned, a King should be a sanctuary of the people from oppressions of evill ministers but not a refuge of enemies to the Government, the protector of such an archtraitor as Danby. Sir, if Danby may be pardoned, then the popish Lords in the Tower may be also pardoned, and all the Jesuits in Newgate may be pardoned, is this the way to secure Lawes and the protestant religion? The King is a limited power, or ells he could not be as ours is, limitation is then to the good and behoofe of the people, but if sheltering an open and notorious tratour, the minister of the present mischeife, and comon center in whome all the lines of ruine and confusion meet, is this for the good and behoofe of the people, prerogative is to abate the rigour of Justice, and not to illude and destroy it. If ministers may be pardoned at the prince's pleasure for all the wrongs that they do the people, though the Prince be sworne to protect the people from all those wrongs, and is therefore trusted and paid, there is no security in all our pretended free and legall Government, it is a mere cheate we are all arrand slaves. Besides this treason is impeached in Parliament, therefore not pardonable out of Parliament, it is a national and Catholique treason, the life and root of our Government is invaded, a pardon here is so unreasonable a thing, that it ought to be placed to his account that dare plead it, or range it amongst the rest of his evill Counsellis, the preparing a bill in the House of Lords is not a punishment but a pardon; a kind of salvation by act of Parliament, who can be delivered that can plead such a president to escape impunable and carry away honours and wealth, the reward of treason, and the poor people's spoils, and all at such a time as this, circumstanced with plots and conspiracies, if this must be good, yea meritorious to invade property, betray the kingdom, sell the people, encourage popery, subbourne witnesses, and strangle and murder the discoverers of the plot. Remember how you use him. You make him an example for all the rest. If he must live, let him survive his glory, or at least degrade him, sequester him, that is reduce him as small as Sir Thomas Osborne and as lean and as indigent, leave him not that he hath got by his many traitrous actions against the kingdoms. I am bold to say that those Lords and Comons that agree not to these, speak one word for him and two for themselves. And would do the same thing to and with the same security, that is, by a license to cheate the king and kingdoms for five years. If this must be, then pray lett there be a claus in the bill to pardon all villanies and treasons against the Government whatsoever and that for the poor as well as the rich. Let not the great rogues only escape and goe away rewarded. Was Greene, Berry and Hill hanged for killing of Godfrey, and must he escape that so bitterly discouraged and menaced the discoverers? And what reason was there that Grove and Ireland should dye for being in the plott whilest he is pardoned that would have concealed and shifted and turned it upon others. To conclude, if after this discovery made by God we do not do our parts, God well send deliverance another way.

To the Honorable the Comons of England in Parliament assembled.

The humble petition of certeyne Citizens whose names are hereunder subscribed in behalf of themselves and others convicted of a Ryot and fyned unreasonably for the same.

SHEWETH

That upon the Tryall of an Issue in an Informacion exhibited against your Petitioners and several other citizens for a Ryott pretended to be committed the 24th of June 1682 at Guildhall London in the election of Sherriffes for the said City and County of Middx by the late Lord Cheife Justice Saunders (before whom the cause was tryed) he the said Chiefe Justice Saunders denied your Petitioners comon justice by over ruling at the said Tyrall severall chalenges duly made to the array one where of was that Sir Dudley North and Sir Peter Rich who Impennelled the Jury were Sherriffes of London. And also by refusinge contray to Law to Seale a Bill of Excepcions then duely tendred him by which and other undue meanes and practices the defendants were found Guilty.

That after the verdict soe obteyned Sir Tho. Jones, Sir Tho. Raymonde, and Sir fra. Withins, then Judges of the King's Bench, contrary to their duty rejected a mocion made by your Petitioners' counsell for fileing a postea in the same cause which had been concealed or imbezilled by Mr Ward then a Clerke of the Crowne office and concerned against your Petitioners which postea if not concealed would have discharged the said verdict.

That your Petitioners being thus and in divers other things denyed the benefitt of the Law were with other defendants afterwards in Trin. Terme 1683 by the said 3 Judges last mentioned (the said Chief Justice Saunders being dead) unreasonably fined severally as is in the paper hereunto annexed mencioned and were by imprisonment and otherwise forced to pay the said fines soe imposed on them.

Now for as much as the said proceedings are highly Criminall and very greivous to your Petitioners and most properly examinable and punishable and your Petitioners onely releivable in parliament.

Your petitioners in behalfe of themselves and others soe fined and oppressed as aforesaid doe most humbly beseech this honorable house to take the premisses into consideracion and to give such redress and reliefe therein as to your great wisdom and Justice shall seeme meet.

1686. 6 September. Windsor Castle. Sir Robert Vyner to Sir John Moore.

WORTHY SIR,

I HAD the favour of yours of the 28th of August but my hand was then and since too lame for answer.

I finde by your account there's 1600*l.* due, and hope you will accept an assignment on the Exchequer for the whole money being at present a greate strainger to mee I only expect one quarter in a little time, which is ordered.

CAPT.

1687. June. Mr J. Radcliffe to Sir John Moore, relative to encroachments in the River Thames in Wapping and an intended action by the Corporation of London against the Earl of Clarendon. Seal.

1687. 20 October. Petition of George Moore to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury relative to lands discovered by him to be enclosed from the Forest of Delamere.

CAPT.
STEWART'S MSS.

1689. 1 June. Sir John Moore to his kinsman Charles Moore, Minister at Worplesden, Surrey. Refers to his Mayoralty year and the attacks made against him by a party in the Common Council.

1687-89. Several papers and letters relating to the affairs of Mr George Moore, merchant, London.

1685, November to 1690, June. A list of Ships in the Honourable East India Company's service.

1690-1. 3 William and Mary. 17 March. Bond from Sir John Moore to Charles Bludworth and Charles Stafford to pay £500 for the use of Mrs Matilda Moore daughter of Dame Mary Moore, widow, and sister of Sir Cleave Moore, Bart., when he the said Sir John Moore shall be repaid a mortgage on Sir Cleave's Lancashire Estate for £12,650.

1690. 21 November. Ursula Hull to Sir John Moore.
Right Worshipful and worthy Sir,

I presume upon your goodnes to make a favourable construction of my not coming to wayt on you so long; I being in no cappacity to bring money to answer your expectation, doe moast humbly beg your pardon herein to a poore widow that truly honners your worship, and wishing I could show that honest mind I beare to all the world. I heare you have buried your good lady long since, may it pleas you worthy Sir to pardon my boldness herein, if it should pleas your worship to have thoughts of another and have as yet not disposed your thoughts to any be pleased without offence to let me tell your worship of a lady a moast truly vertuous modest maiden gentlewoman who hath neither father nor mother nor brother or sister, she hath 400*l.* a year besides much money; her 400*l.* a year is free land of inheritance to give to whom she pleas, a more pious modest and good woman is not to be found.

A gentleman of your knowledge can sattisfy you of the truth of all. But noe one under the sun knows of this my writing but myself only, though I am a mean woman she is most worthy, I beseech you Sir to pardon this boldnes in your worship's most faythfull and very humble servant Ursula Hull."

1693. 22 February. Sir William Wilson to Sir John Moore, as to the building of Appleby School and Master's House, with suggestions as the material to be employed.

1693. 28 March. Scotland Yard. Sir Christopher Wren to Sir John Moore.

"Sir, I received your letter with Sir Will. Wilson's, and I am sorry I was out of the way when you were pleased to call upon me. I am satisfied there is roome sufficient in the ground for the designe I drew according to your first thoughtes with roome for boarders; if you have new resolutions I can cast easily a new designe suitable to your own intentions. If you have roome for Boarders it is noe great addition of charge, in regard it is but a floor over the Hall, and it is certainly better for the Boyes to be alwaies under their master's eye then to board at distance in the village, and I should thinke that a lesse sallery with advantage of roome for Boarders, is more considerable then a large allowance without it, and to have gentlemen's sons well accomodated is that will bring reputation to the schoole, and a good interest to the master, for which reason you will alwaies have choyce of worthy men to succeed in the schoole, because it will be more desirable to any person then a mere sallary, but all this is submitted to your own judgement. I have considered Sir William's estimate upon his own dimensions wherin he accepts all carriages lead and inside worke and yet I believe it will rise higher. Yet I cannot be positive till I am informed of the prices of the contrey materialls which I supposed Mr Woodstock would have informed me off, if at least you continue your thoughtes to send him down, when I have the prices of materialls I can certainly then give you a true estimate by particulars of the whole charge after you have fully resolved of the designe. Till I have your farther instructions I remain your most humble Servant, CHR. WREN."

1695. 18 September. York Buildings. Holograph letter, Samuel Pepys to Sir John Moore Kt. and Alderman and President of Christ's Hospital, recommending Jane Broscup a widow to him for remembrance. "I cannot omitt this occasion of acknowledgeinge the respect due to you from myselfe; not upon the general score only of old obligations of Friendshipp and neighbourhood but of the particular interest which I (with others) have in the acknowledgements due to God and you for your late munificence to Christ Hospital. God graunt you long to live, a wisesse of the happy fruit of it, to that house and to the publike."

Hopes to make himself serviceable to the Mathematical Foundation.

1694. 26 November. Gopshall. Ch. Jennens to Sir John Moore recommending Mr Whiston of Norton the Bishop of Norwich's Chaplain for the post of Schoolmaster of the School Sir John Moore was erecting at Appleby.

1694. 24 June. Receipt of the Master Governors and Overseers of Christ's Hospital in Firbie in the parish of Bedale, Yorkshire, to Sir John Moore for 15*l.* the moiety of a yearly rent charge of 30*l.* payable out of Edmonton Woods, Co. Middx. to Christ's Coll. Hospital in Firbie.

1692-93. 14 March. Ashby de la Zouch. Mr Sa. Shaw to Sir John Moore relative to an under teacher for school erected by Sir John at Appleby. Is not without hope the charity will extend as far as his schools "the place of your former Education," which are much straitened for want for a salary of an usher. "I know I need only to suggest it, for that the liberal man of himself desireth liberal things."

1694-5. 23 January. Christ's Hospital. Nath. Hawes (Treasurer of Christ's Hospital) to Sir John Moore. Eulogizes him especially upon his New Writing School "wherein I verily believe you have outdone whatever of that kind in extant in the whole world." Begs the favour of his allowance for his Statue to be placed in a niche in the New School. He has employed the "Statuary," Mr Gringlin Gibbons, the bearer who desires to have his robes.

In another letter Mr Hawes alludes to a picture of Sir John Moore for Christ's Hospital by Mr Linton.

1695. 15 October. Sir William Wilson to Sir John Moore, relative to the building of the School at Appleby he is carrying out for Sir John. Mentions "his relation" at Appleby, also Mr Geo. More "and Mr Tho. More." Does not intend to put any carving save his [Moore's] coat of arms and crest which is a "More Cock." He desires to have at the Upper End of the school Sir John's Statute placed as it is to be in his school at Christ's Hospital, and a table of marble under it, with the Founder's will thereon as to the whole management of that Foundation. "This will be a true speaking monument when length of time and corrupt men may alter your charitable intention if committed to parchment only, that is not the only good it will do but it may so please God that when such men reads this as are able to do works of Charity that this may stir up their good nature to lay out some of their wealth which God has given them to do deeds of Charity with."

N.D. Copy of the Speech addressed to the Lord Mayor at the opening of Sir John Moore's (the President of the Hospital) new writing School in Christ's Hospital to which was annexed by Sir John the revenue of 6 tenements amounting to more than 60*l.* per ann., built under the School, and a house for the writing master.

Exr. C. J. YORKE.

1745 [-6]. 19 Jan. Berwick. R. Burnett to whom is not stated; the letter begins "Dear James." "I am sorry to write you that our troops have met with a second disgrace, not indeed so considerable as Preston Pans, yet I am afraid it will be attended with very bad consequences. The following is a collection from my own and severall other letters by the night's post from Edinburgh, viz. : that on Friday morning our army marched from their camp near Falkirk to a piece of ground west from that place called Falkirk Moor, where they had a river on their right. The rebels made a shew to march through Norwood wood but that being a feint they filed off all on a sudden and passed the river on the right of our army which obliged the General to alter the position of our troops and to order the three regiments of dragoons to march forward on the front of our army and attack the rebels, to give time to draw our foot up in line of battle, which the dragoons did to pretty good purpose, breaking their first line, but were repulsed by their second, upon which the rebels came on with great hast and fury before our army could be got quite form'd; upon which a general action ensued; Lord Cobham's dragoons on our right, Gardiner's (now Legonier's) and Hamilton's on the left. These last ran away (as they always will) on the first attack which threw our left into great disorder, and which contributed much more towards our miscarriage, Providence declared against us by so ordering it that at this instant began a terrible storm of wind with a rain the like hardly seen before, with this circumstance that it was in the face of our men, so that after the first fire our army were of little service. The right of the rebels flew in sword in hand on our left, where we suffered considerably, at the same time our right did their duty extremely well where Cobham's dragoons and a few of the rally'd runaways did great execution. We have lost by some accounts 200, by others 300 men, Sir Robt. Munro, Lieut. Col. Whitney, & Biggar are missing & Lieut. Col. Jordan wounded by a musket ball.

"Our troops are said to have had the disadvantage of the ground and owing to the badness of the artillery horses we had not one piece of cannon on the field of battle. We had twelve battalions of foot which with the dragoons made I reckon in all about 7,000 men exclusive of volunteers, but Mr Strangeways just come to town from the field of battle tells me the number of the rebels was much greater, they covered before the attack a great deal of more ground, he believed them to be nearer 12 than 10,000 men. As the night drew on both armies retired, ours doubtless in confusion, because all our tents, a little of our baggage and seven pieces of cannon have fallen into the hands of the rebels, & our whole army's returned to Edinburgh where they are joined by two regiments of foot that march'd thro' this town Monday and Tuesday last. Sir George's and Lord M. Ker's dragoons are ordered from Hexham &c., with all expedition to Edinburgh. Our people continue under their wonted infatuation capable always of being imposed on & deceived in that article of the strength of the rebels & their significance. They are (sic) where they should be infinitely jealous as well as extremely industrious to gain better intelligence than hitherto they have been capable of procuring, nor ought they ever to believe any accounts to the disadvantage of the rebels either from pretended well affected or disaffected they are equally capable of imposing tho' from different motives. It is surprizing our Commanders will give the rebels such chances by fighting as able men as themselves with numbers inferior, while it's in their power to wave battle till they can be on more equal footing, for my own part I think the rebels should not have the chance of success except they were able to beat a superior army. Every man of them knows they fight with halters about their necks; our men have no such stimulus."

1747. Edinburgh Castle. Hon. Simon Frazer de jure 13th Lord Lovat, to whom is not stated. "Your letter was safely conveyed to me sometime ago, but my confinement is so close that I had no opportunity till now of telling you how much I reckon myself obliged for your friendship. I want words to express my obligation and my present melancholy situation affords me no other way of doing it.

I thank you dear sir for all your kind offers, the only one I have at present occasion for I willingly accept of, which is your endeavour to do me service in my unhappy circumstances; and as I am ignorant whether I shall be brought to a trial or when, the only way I know you could conduce to this is either by your own interest or that of your friends with some of the gentlemen about Court, it is certain that my present condition has a very gloomy aspect, but in one respect I reckon it a happy one, for it introduces me into a train of thought which I might otherwise perhaps have been long unacquainted with. Misfortunes are never messengers without some end; they either coming to correct past errors or to reform the present or to prevent the future, and I hope I shall be directed now upon them in that light and find the right use of them. I have in a short life learned much of its vanity and folly that . . . * so terrible to my nature is hardly more so to my reason than . . . again into the stormy sea of life; my small knowledge of this life affords me but a disagreeable prospect, and though I am ignorant of the next, reason and religion encourage me to hope for happiness.

My misfortunes I look upon as a blessing because they warn me to prepare for death, and should a short life be my lot, convince me how vain it would be to employ it otherwise than as a nursery for another and better state ; in short I hope to live but do not fear whatever be my fate, I am convinced whatever is is right, but I wander on insensibly without thinking this is a letter.

THE PROGER MSS.

N. S.
MASKELYNE'S
MSS.

Mr. Story Maskelyne has sent up for the Commissioners' inspection a small bundle of papers temporibus Charles I. and Charles II. consisting of letters addressed to Mr. Edward Proger 1621-1713, Page of Honour to King Charles I., groom of the Bedchamber to King Charles II. and Ranger of Middle Park, Hampton Court ; with other letters and papers which were in his possession. They are prefaced by an account (of comparatively recent date) of the Proger family, which would appear to have been one of some distinction in Monmouthshire and Brecknockshire.

This account also shows the pedigree of the papers which follow it down to the date of its composition, which is probably the end of the 18th century. The following is a calendar of them, in which only those which are of more than general interest are set out verbatim.

Copy of the monumental inscription on the tombstone of Mr. Edward Proger, who was born June 16th 1621 and died Dec. 31st 1713.

1637, Nov. 25. Receipt signed "Edm. Hodgson clericum" and "Robert Marsh" to Philip Proger Esq. for 8*l*. to be employed for repairing the cathedral church of S. Paul's. It is stated to be entered in a ledger book of Merchant Tailors Hall.

1646, Dec. 7, N.S. Paris. Notice signed "F. Cornwallis" and witnessed by "E. Croftes" that by the King's command Mr. Edward Proger has been sworn Groom of the Bedchamber to the Prince.

Sir Frederick Cornwallis for his fidelity to King Charles II. during his exile, was created on April 26th 1681 Baron Cornwallis. He married Elizabeth daughter of a Mr. Croftes and died in 1662. He was succeeded by his eldest son, and was the ancestor of the Marquesses Cornwallis.

1649 [-50], Jan. 14, O.S. "Jearsey." King Charles II. to Edward Progers.

"Progers I wold have you (besides the embrodered sute) bring me a plaine riding suite with an Innocent coate, the suites I have for Horsebacke being so spotted and spoil'd that they are not to be seene out of this Island. The lining of the coate and the petit teies (?) are referred to your greate discretion, provided there want nothing when it comes to be put on. I doe not remember there was a Belt, or a Hatband, in your directions for the embroider'd suite, and those are so necessarie as you must not forget them. Charles R."

1650, Jan. 3. [N.S.] Madrid. Lord Cottington to Mr. Proger. Upbraids him for not writing. "Thankes be to God wee are here all in health, and are very well received, and our Master as much honoured as wee can desire, but I doe translate to them the old English Proverbe vizt Lesse of their Courtesie and more of their purse. . . . The King spares not one day of leysure from his hunting, he is active and healthy, and as young as when I saw him last. The Queene is tall for her age and very beautifull, of a good and pleasant disposition, and (which is above all) said to be already with child."

Francis Lord Cottington (so created by King Charles I.) was Chancellor and Under Treasurer of the Exchequer and ambassador to the Court of Spain under that King. He went into exile with King Charles II. and died childless at Valladolid in 1653.

1650, March 26. "Kirkwall in Orkney." James Marquess of Montrose to Mr. Proger. "Sir, I receaved yours by Mr. Hay and am wery sorry for his error which you know wes non of my default as I hopes you heave knoven by Jhons. I heave directed this bearer lieutenant Collonell Heburne to know his Majesties commaunds and informe you of my condition, for particulars I will remitt all unto him, and assure myself that you will upon this nik of tyme, wherein his Majesty is so strangly concerned, use all your best meanes to which I will add nothing but that whatsomever may befall I will never leave to be, Sir, your most dutifull reall freind to serve you, Montrose.

1650, April 5. [N.S.] Madrid. Lord Cottington to Mr. Proger. The King goes to Breda to treat with the Scottish Commissioners. The rest of the letter consists of gossip (of no particular interest) about the Spanish Court.

1650, April 20. [N.S.] Madrid. Lord Cottington to Mr. Proger.

"Wee are all well in health thankes be to God, and still used with greate civillity and courtesie, with no litle hope of some good negotia-

The Agent [Ascham] sent from the Parliament landed at Port St. Mary by Cadiz where he still remaineth sick, and with no small apprehension, as he hath reason, for he comes from People extreamly abhorred by these Wee yet heare nothing of his Majesties arrivall at Bredah nor of the Scotts being there. God give him good resolutions, and that he desert not my Lord of Montrose, who onely as I conceive must bring them to reason "

1650, Aug. 13. Arran. James (1st) Duke of Hamilton to Mr. Proger. He regrets the persecution which the King's servants have to undergo at this time, but is confident that it will shortly be decided whether His Majesty will regain his interest in England or not. He is at the service of Mr. Proger. The Hamilton seal is appended.

1650, Aug. 14. "At our Court at Dumfermline." Free conduct under the sign manual "Charles R." by King Charles II. of pass and repass to the "Sieur de Progers" who is employed on the King's business. The warrant is countersigned Robert Long.

1650, October. Perth. Signed "Charles R." Signet for a patent of 2,000 acres of land in Virginia to Edward Proger, Groom of the Bedchamber.

(1649-50), Jan. 19. Jersey. King Charles II. to Mr. Proger. Signed "Charles R." and commencing "Poge." Relating to a letter which His Majesty had received from Mr. Proger stating that Lord Jermyn had contracted for the fifteenths due to him, without his authority. Mr. Proger is ordered not to "part with the adjudication till he has given you security for the fifeteenths; excepte the prise be caried into some port in France, for if it be not caried thither but into Villafranka I may areste the hole shipe till I have my rights paied me, but if it be I am afraide I shall gett littell justice against them: howsoever if it faile you are to receive 750 pisto: for me out of the prise that was taken since, which I am sure will be paied, which will doe all my business." The rest of the letter is in cypher. It ends "Your very loving friend Charles R."

N.D. (between 1649-1660). Jan. 22. Same to same. Unsigned, commencing "Poge" and ending "Your very affectionate frind." The names are in cypher.

N.D. (1649-1660) Oct. 16. Same to same, signed "Charles R.," expressive of the confidence felt by his Majesty in him. Partly in cypher. There is a note on the top of the letter in the same writing stating the cypher to be "Harding's cypher."

[1651] Aug. 4. "From a river syde 20 myles from Carliell." The Duke of Hamilton to Mr. Proger. "Dear Ned, I feare my last letters to you from Stirling are miscaried wherin I gave you a large account of your Master's condition which (nowe, being surprysed with the sudden goeing of this bearer,) I can not possiblie doe, more then to tell you that the late misfortune a partie of his had in Fyfe, by the imprudent cariage of one of his generall persons doth not discourage him from prosecuting his desygnes of goeing into England whither he is nowe upon the marche and advanced within 20 myles of Carliell, it is his positive pleasure that you make all the hast you can to him and I hope you shall not need to feare a purge Farewell."

Appended to this letter is a note in the handwriting of King Charles II. and signed 'C. R.' as follows: "The army being on there march I could not write to you myselfe, pray make all the hast you can hither. Remember my service to * * *, C. R."

1651, Feb. 18. [N.S.] Toulon. Prince Rupert to Mr. Proger. "Deare Progers—I have receaved yours by Carteright and give you many thanks for the good news you tell me of my freinds being well att the Haye, if you please to take the paines to come hether which I extrealty (sic) desire you may, be pleased to take up such a some of monys as you need of for that Journay and I will see it repayed here without faile, come yourselfe or send answer the same waie with alle speed to

Your faithfull freind to serve you Rupert."

1651, March 10. [N.S.] Paris. Free conduct for Mr. Proger signed "Henriette Marie R." and commencing "Henriette Marie par la grace de Dieu Reine de la Grande Bretagne, &c.," and stating that the "Sieur Proger" is employed to go on the service of "nostre trescher et tres honoré fils le Roy de la Grande Bretagne" to Prince Rupert and Prince Maurice.

The document is sealed in black wax with the Royal arms.

Seven letters from Lord Cottington to Mr. Proger. Dated at Valladolid the 7th April 1651, 20th June 1651, 21st Nov. 1651, 12th Dec. 1651, 26th Jan. 1652, 23rd Feb. 1652, and 14th May 1652. On private matters of no general interest.

(1652 ?), June 28. Prince Henry Duke of Gloucester to Mr. Anthony Mildmay. "Sir, I hope you remember the promise you made to me, when you went from hence. My liberty perhaps will not be graunted, yet methinkes some enlargement should, and I not be thought to intend my pleasure more then my health, in desireing it. You can best iudge, how farr it will be best, to proceede in my behalfe, I would have nothing askt that may be thought unfit, nor any thing that is not so, if likely to displease. This you may be sure of and therefore not doubt to use your own liberty (without regard to myne) in considering first what is safe, then the satisfaction and benefit of, your loveing freind, H. Gloucester."

Appended to this letter is an interesting account in a modern hand (it is undated but must have been written after 1735). The following is a copy:—

"This letter is from Henry Duke of Gloucester the third son of King Charles the first. The following extract from Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, may assist us perhaps in developing the object of it. 'The Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Gloucester were removed from the government of the Countess of Leicester, and sent to the Isle of Wight, where Mildmay was Captain; and the care of them committed to him,* with an assignation for their maintenance, which he was to order, and which in truth was given as a boon to him, and he was required strictly "that no person should be permitted to kiss their hands, and that they should not be otherwise treated, than as the children of a gentleman;" which Mildmay observed very strictly; and the Duke of Gloucester was not called by any other style than Mr. Harry. The tutor (Mr. Lovel) was continued and sent thither with him, which pleased him very well. And here they remained at least two or three years. The Princess died in this place; and according to the charity of that time towards Cromwell, very many would have it believed to be by poison, of which there was no appearance, nor any proof ever after made. But whether this reproach and suspicion made any impression on the mind of Cromwell, or whether he

* The Duke was given into Mildmay's charge in August, 1650, and liberated in February, 1652-3.

N. S.

' had any jealousy that the Duke of Gloucester, who was now about twelve years of age, and a prince of extraordinary hopes, both from the comeliness and gracefulness of his person and the vivacity and vigour of his wit and understanding, which made him much spoken of, might at some time or other be made use of by the discontented party of his own army, to give him trouble, or whether he would shew the contempt he had of the Royal Family, by sending another of it into the world to try his fortune, he did declare one day to the Parliament, "that he was well content that the son of the late King "who was then in Carisbrook Castle, should have liberty to transport "himself into any parts beyond the seas, as he should desire," which was at that time much wondered at, and not believed; and many thought it a presage of a worse indication; and for some (time) there was no more speech of it. But notice and advice being sent to the Duke by those who wished his liberty, that he should prosecute the obtaining that order, and release, he, who desired most to be out of restraint, sent his tutor, Mr. Lovel, to London, to be advised by friends what he should do to procure such an order and warrant as was necessary for his transportation. And he, by the advice of those who wished well to the affair, did so dextrously solicit it, that he did not only procure an order from the parliament that gave him liberty to go over the seas with the Duke, and to require Mildmay to permit him to embark, but likewise 500*l.* from the Commissioners of the Treasury, which he received to defray the charges and expences of the voyage, being left to provide a ship himself, and being obliged to embark at the Isle of Wight, and not suffer the Duke to go on shore in any other part of England. This happened in the latter end of the year 1652.' (See Vol. 3rd, p. 526.)

"This letter was most probably sent by the Duke to Mr. Mildmay by his tutor Lovel; and it appears thereby, that hints had actively been thrown out by that gentleman to his Royal Prisoner that his enlargement may possibly be effected. The style in which it is written is mild and conciliatory, clearly portraying the amiable disposition which historians of every party have attributed to that young prince. Even the repugnant writer of 'the History of the House of Stuart' acknowledges that 'he was the most virtuous of the three brothers, and the most beloved.' He died of the small pox on December 3rd 1660.

"Anthony Mildmay was the youngest son of Sir Thomas Mildmay, Knight. He was carver to King Charles the first, whom he carefully and constantly attended during his imprisonment in the Isle of Wight,* and in Hurst Castle, and (he) with Mr. Herbert, afterwards Sir Thomas Herbert, Baronet, were the two authorised to bury the King. (Collins' Peerage. 8vo. 1735, p. 775.)

"It is natural therefore to suppose that he was friendly to the young Prince, as far as the temper of the times would allow him to shew it."

1661, March 25. Whitehall. Warrant under the sign manual, Charles R., and countersigned "Edw. Nicholas" for the delivery to Mrs. Frances Rich or whom she shall appoint "one bracelett of diamonds and rubyes which was seized on as goods of Oliver Cromwell, we being satisfied that it properly belongs unto her."

1664 [-5], Feb. 13. A copy of a resolution of the House of Commons that Mr. Progers Mr. Coventry Sir Maurice Berkeley and Colonel Fretzwill are to return the thanks of the House to the King "for his greate care grace and favour expressed to this House upon all occasions in the preservation of their Priviledges."

* Sent as a spy upon the King. See Clarke Papers, ii., 267.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF LORD STAFFORD, OF COSSEY HALL, NORFOLK.

STAFFORD'S
MSS.

The documents which are noticed in the following pages naturally fall under two distinct classes, those, namely, in the first place, which relate to the manor of Cossey and its adjuncts, and, secondly, those which are connected with the successive lords by whom it has been occupied. Each has its own special interest; yet the two are so closely interwoven that they do not warrant a separate treatment, for they frequently become united, and almost always throw light upon each other. They are, therefore, here arranged under one chronological sequence, which makes us acquainted with the history of Cossey from the thirteenth century, when a solitary membrane of a court roll tells us the names of several of its inhabitants, and perpetuates the memory of their disputes with each other, and the fines which they were required to pay to their lord. The series increases in interest as it advances. The rolls which contain the household expenses of several members of the noble families connected with the lords of Cossey deserve a more detailed notice than could here be afforded them; for they fully illustrate many particulars connected with the furniture, dress, food, and daily life of the nobility and gentry of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, which are of exceptional interest. Several extracts have been made, with the same object, from the wills of members of the Jerningham family, by whom this property has been held since the time of Queen Mary Tudor. The thanks of the compiler of this list are especially due to the noble lord by whom this property is now occupied for the facilities which he had the goodness to afford during the progress of the examination of his papers.

[1438]. A roll of paper containing:—

1. A statement of the descent of Humphrey de Stafford, Earl of Buckingham, Hereford, Essex, Stafford, and Northampton (born A.D. 1402), from Miles of Gloucester, in right of which he claimed a seat in Parliament. This claim was probably made upon the death of his mother in 1438. He was created Duke of Buckingham 24 Sept. 1444, and was killed at the battle of Northampton.

* From this point the days of the month are not numbered.

2. A list of 38 advowsons and rights of presentation to churches, priories, chapels, and hospitals in various counties.

3. Inspeximus of a writ of King Edward II. (15 March 1317) to the Escheator south of Trent, to allot to Margaret, the wife of Hugh de Audley, her property in the inheritance of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester, killed in the battle of Bannockburn, 25 June 1314.

4. Inspeximus of the inrolment of the said property allotted to Margaret de Audley, specifying the manors, lands and advowsons in England and Wales.

5. Inspeximus of writ of Edw. II. (15 Nov. 1317) to Roger de Mortimer, the King's lieutenant in Ireland, to make partition of the lands in Ireland belonging to the said Gilbert de Clare, between his three sisters and co-heirs.

6. Inspeximus of inrolment of the said partition and purparty allotted to the said Hugh and Margaret de Audley.

The said Hugh de Audley died 21 Edw. III., leaving Margaret, his daughter, sole heir, then being 30 years of age, and the wife of Ralph, Lord Stafford, who died 31 Aug. 46 Edw. III. 1372.

1553 [-4]. The Privy Council [of Queen Mary] to Sir Henry Jerningham, Vice-Chamberlain to Her Majesty and Captain of her Guard.

They have received his letters by which they understand his towardness in the execution of his charge. To supply his want of the number of the guard they have spoken to John Peers to give order for that matter. My lord of Norfolk cometh thi sday to Greenwich, and will be at Gravesend to-morrow. They ask him to send to my Lord Warden as often as he may by water, to understand what he does, and the state of the country in East Kent. The oftener he writes the more pleasure he will give to the Queen. St. James', xxvij. Jan. 1553.

P.S.—He will do well to forbear the giving of any adventure till the coming of my Lord of Norfolk.

Signed, Winchester, Bedford, Edward Derby, Henry Sussex, Pembroke, Wm. Petre.

To Sir Henry Jernengham . . . at Gravesend or thereabouts.

1553. Bill made x. Nov., 1 Mary certifying that Thomas Spense, steward of the household of Robert, Archbishop of York, has received of Sir Henry Jernyngham, Vice-Chamberlain of the Queen, 21 wethers sold to Davy Huggaynes, butcher of Westminster, by one Edmund Sleighe, servant to Mr. Ellis Markham, for 2s. 8d. a wether.

Received also of the said Sir Henry Jernyngham 5*l.* 18*s.* for three fat oxen and six wethers sold to William Knyghte, butcher in East-cheap, for 33*s.* 4*d.* an ox, and 3*s.* a wether. Signed, Thomas Spense.

1554. A roll of paper, much damaged at the top, containing the accounts of the receivers of the manor of Thornbury, &c., with the Castle of Thornbury, the property of the Lord Henry Stafford, ending at Michaelmas, 1 and 2 Q. Mary.

1557. Queen Mary to Sir Henry Jernegan. "Marye the quene." Having appointed the Earl of Pembroke to be her lieutenant-general to have the care and special oversight of the town of Calais and the neighbouring parts on that side, commands Sir Henry to put himself with such force as he is able to make for the wars, both horsemen and footmen of his servants and others his friends, to be ready to set forward at such time as he shall be commanded. Westm., last of April, 3 and 4 Phil. and Mary.

1557 [-8]. Jan. 5. Writ of Thomas [bishop of] Ely, and E. Waldegrave to John Skynner, Esq., "one of the clerks of the Avereye," to deliver to [Sir Henry] Jarnyngham, Master of H. M. Horse 50*l.*, for the conveyance of certain soldiers travelling to Callais for the defence of the same. Greenwich, 5 Jan., 1557. Much injured by damp.

A note on the back states that this was the balance of 360*l.* which Mr. Jerningham received at his going to Dover.

1557 [-8]. Sir Henry Jerningham to Valentine Browne, Esq., the Queen's treasurer at Dover, requiring him to deliver to Andrew Sanders having the charge of 300 soldiers under the writer, by way of prest 300*l.* to be "defalked upon their full pay hereafter to be made unto them." Dover, 10 Jan. 1557.

1557 [-8], Jan. 13. Valentine Brown is required by Sir Henry Jernegan to deliver to Andrew Saunders having the charge of 300 soldiers, by way of prest, 300*l.* to be defalked upon their full pay, hereafter to be made unto them. Dover, 13 Jan. 1557.

Receipt for 300*l.* by Andrew Saunders.

1558. Receipt by John Fothergyll, of London, gent., dated 7 July, 4 and 6 of Philip and Mary for Mr. Valentine Browne, Esq., and Andrew Sanders, gent., servant to the Right Hon. Sir Henry Jerningham, Knt., Master of the Horse, 139*l.* 2*s.* 4*d.*, "as a remain of such money as he received by way of imprest for his late voyage to Dover with 300 soldiers under him." Signed.

1558. Marquis of Winchester to Sir Henry Jerningham, Master of the Horse to the Queen. Perceives by his letter that he is doing very good reparation about Dover, wherein he shall do great pleasure to the Queen, if it may take effect, and not be changed when it is well begun, as it hath been many times of late by the government of the town. All the timber and stores for the pier were delivered to the town "which requireth to be called for again, for it was a great store of many things." The bulwark on the cliff was given by the Queen to one of her servants, and stored by the writer for the surety of the town, who desired to take the keeping thereof without any charge to the Queen. "In the end they desired ordnance. powder, and shot at the Queen's charge, which stayed that bargain: and now it runneth in decay, and will utterly decay if it be not used. Therefore I think you can do no better than to take the Queen's warrant to you, and so dispose of it when ye shall think best." 1 Aug. 1558. Signed.

1561-1563. An account of all such things as John Brame hath sent over to Cossey to his master and his lady, and others his receipts and payments, during the 4 and 5 years of Queen Elizabeth [17 Nov. 1561-16 Nov. 1563.

The Privy Council to Sir Henry Jerningham, requiring him to order the constable and tenants of Leostoff to deliver to the bearer hereof certain canvas and poldavies, taken by pirates from Anthony le Boal and other subjects of the King of Spain, and bought by one Amiot of Leostoff, according to the proofs addressed to Sir Tho. Wodehouse, vice-admiral, for that purpose. Greenwich, 12 June 1565. Signed, Wm. Northt, Edward Derby, E. Clynton, Pembroke.

1569. The inhabitants of the town of Cossey to Sir Henry Jerningham.

Some unkind trouble having lately arisen between him and them by reason of some matter in variation, they desire him to condescend, without any further trouble in law, that all contention between them may be compromitted and determined by some gentlemen of this country, by whose order they will willingly stand. Cossey, vij. April 1569. Signed by Tho. Clarbourne, clerk, and others.

1574 [-5]. Sir John-Sulyard to the Lady Frances Jerningham at Cossey, reciting that on 26 January the Master of the Rolls has ended the long controversy between Mr. Goldynge and the writer concerning the wardship of Eliz. Garneyes, which is very hard. The writer has to pay 530*l.*, "whereof my portion or part is in your hands. The residue of 1595. Sir Robert Cecil to Mr. Jerningham, in answer to two applications from Mrs. Jerningham, (1) that she may have her third out of a third that is to descend to Her Majesty by Mrs. Bedingfield's death, and (2) that she may be trustee of those thirds during the minority of the ward. Shows how he cannot consent to either request. "And whereas you have received my lord's letter and made me a good answer to it, my lord hath willed me to tell you that he accepts well of it. And for some others, as Mr. Bradbury and Mr. Duzanio, who seek to impugn that course which is taken; by that time they have made their reckoning they will find their labours the best reward for their travail." From the Court at Norwich, 10 Oct. 1595.

[1569?] "The painter's bill," for preparation against a funeral about the time of Queen Elizabeth.

1596. The last will of Henry Jernegan of Oxeburghe, co. Norfolk, Esquire. "My body to be buried in the parish church of Cossey, where the bodies of my late parents were buried. On the day of my burial there shall be distributed to the poorest there present 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; to the poorest prisoners in Norwich 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and 24 gowns to be worn by 24 poor men and women to be chosen in Cossey or other towns adjoining, upon the day of my burial. Whereas by the will of my father Sir Henry Jernegan, knt., deceased, I am charged with the maintenance of an hospital at St. Olaves, in Suffolk, and whereas in the execution thereof I have been somewhat slack, in consideration thereof I have left the said lands to descend to my son that he have due care for the accomplishment of his grandfather's mind and make an orderly supply of such things as by me have been omitted. And whereas by the will of the late lady Frances Jernegan, my mother (to whom I was executor), four hundred marks were to be employed to certain uses as yet unaccomplished, I request my executor to pay the said money to such uses as are in the said will appointed as also for the discharge of my debts."

Gives to his wife Frances the wardship of her son Henry Bedingfeld, "also the lease of his lands which I hold of the Queen during the minority of the said Henry; also to her all my goods and all my household stuff at Oxburghe House, which I bought of the executor of her late husband Thomas Bedingfeld, Esq.; also all his plate, except such as is before disposed to my children; also all my horses, geldings, naggs, sheep, and other cattle, as also all my stuff and household furniture at Cossey and Wingfield."

"To Henry Jernegan, my son, all my armoury. Whereas, by the will of my father certain plate was given unto me, viz., one great gilt bason and ewer, two great gilt livery pots, one small goblet of gold with a cover, one great goblet all gilt, with a cover, called the "Monk's Head," with the charge that I should neither sell them nor put them away; and whereas by the will of my late mother certain plate was given to my children, viz., to Henry, one basin and ewer of silver, and one pair of great livery pots parcel gilt, to remain to his heirs, in accomplishment whereof I will that within forty days after my decease my executors shall deliver all this plate to my son Henry under the same conditions. I also give him his grandfather's gown of satin furred with luzerns and my best velvet cloke. To my daughter, Ellen Jernegane, and to my brother and sister Throkemorton to every of them one ring of gold of 40s. To Lady Powlet, my sister Walgrave and my daughter Arundell, to every of them a jewel of 100s.. I confirm by this my will to my four sons, Thomas, William, George, and Edward, the grant of their several annuities, now in the custody of Mr. Dereham, and I require my wife to give to each of them one bedstead and featherbed full furnished and two pair of sheets, and also hanging of arras or tapestry to furnish every of them a chamber. To my son Thomas, one of my geldings, with one of my velvet saddles and other furniture thereto belonging. I will that the plate given unto him and his brothers by their grandmother's will, be delivered to them within three months of my decease, with their christening plate, and to each of them, of my special gift, so many ounces of plate as shall be worth 10*l*. To Richard Bodney, my servant, an annuity of 15*l*. by year during his life, upon condition that he will serve my son Henry, if he will accept his service, and add 100s. by year. To John Clerke an annuity of 10*l*. for life, to John Messenger, 100s. by year, to Robert Harman, 100s. by year, to Thomas Harman 60s. by year, upon condition that they shall not refuse to serve my said son if he shall require them, and give them such wages as they had of me. To all the residue of my servants one year's wages, and their meat and drink in my house one month next after my decease. The residue of my goods to my wife Frances Jernegan, whom I appoint my sole executor. If by advice of her friends she refuse to execute my will, then I revoke all my legacies before set down in this my will (the annuities to my sons and the green chamber (20*l.*), the dining room (120*l.*), my lady's chamber (24*l.*), the inward chamber (2*l.* 13*s.*), the brewhouse, the stables, the kitchen.

The furniture of some of the rooms has been valued and the gross amount entered in the margin, as above. In most particulars the details correspond so nearly with the survey of 1635 as to render a more minute account unnecessary.

Note of the number of beds, pillows, &c. in the house.

1632. Sept. Note of bedding sent to London.

1632 [-3]. March 4. Thomas Worswicke "to the right hon. my good mistress, mother to the right Hon. Henry Lord Stafford, at Clarkenwell."

Has received the paper book and the other book of survey. Hopes to do something for the good of her house. The order sent touching Mr. Whitgrave shall be executed by the writer's cousin Wolrich. Much information about King's Pools, their rent, tenure, &c. Mrs. Elizabeth Harcourt had a lease of them from Queen Elizabeth, which lease is now overthrown. Baily Bradbury. Mr. Norton will be at Penkridge [co. Staff.] presently after Easter to hold a great court. Dat. Stafford's Town, 4 March 1632.

P.S. About Mr. Craddock's rent, and King's Pools' Heads, "which lieth under the walls of Stafford."

[1637?] Answers (seven in number) to interrogatories administered to — (who for the five years last past had been baily of the manor and soke of Cossey), in a suit in which Sir Henry [Jernigan?] and others were the defendants, respecting the customs and fines of the tenants, the presentments and ameracements. Notices respecting the Thwaite field, Birch field, the Dirt meadow, Ringland, Honningham, Eastern Common, the common Bruery, &c. Much injured by damp.

1637. Sketch of the history of the manor and soke of Cossey, its component parts, and the courts therein held. "The house well built, with gardens and walks situated in the parks, a fair dove-house well stored, and a malt-house, let to a farmer for 230*l.*" The parks contain near 1,000 acres, "and at the Conquest was found by inquisition upon record to be then an ancient park replenished with a great number of deer and xxvj. wild cattle, and was well stored with fallow deer till within these iiij. last years; but formerly in old Mr. Jernegan's time with red deer, but now it is disparked, but not dispaled. 1637."

Account of the rivers, fish, and swans. Notice of owners from Edward the Confessor to Henry VIII. Anne of Cleve had it for her life. Given by Queen Mary to old Sir Henry Jernegan for his service when she went to Framlingham Castle. "I have 300 and more copy tenants." Note of certain customs of the manor.

1642, August 16. [William] Lord Stafford to [his father] the Earl of Arundell and Surrey, at Malines. Hopes he is amended of his leg. Cannot find any beer which the Earl will like. Hopes William, the butler, will arrive to-morrow with Lord Arundell's drink from Holland. Hears that the Nonsuch waters have safe come to Dunkirk, will send them the day after they arrive. Antwerp. 16 Aug, 1642.

1644, Oct. 17. Edward Bradford to the Lady Jernegan at Cossey Hall. Has received her letter and 40*s.* in gold. "I protest to God we had waded so far that we had nothing left to raise any money at all." Parliament business requires time and charges. The opinion of Mr.

LORD
STAFFORD'S
MSS.

Walker, their solicitor, is encouraging, as he has obtained an answer to their petition, and Mr. Pelham will "prefere" their certificate. "The houses lie all void but one, and in that dwelleth a poor knight and little hope of the rent." Mr. Stinte is unwilling that the wainscote should be sold. Mr. Jerningham is like to have nothing, and his man Harry does not vouchsafe his letters. London 17 Oct. 1644. Signed.

P.S.—"Mrs. Davis in this business has not spared to pawn all she can make shift for,* and she hath done it most freely. She hath sent here enclosed a token to Mall." Asks him to speak to Ralph Palmer to have a care of the Guild House rent.

1644, Nov. 7. The same to the same. Has received her letter and 44s. in gold. Is sorry for the great charge and delay. Attended with their counsel on Friday last, and will attend every Friday until they are heard. There are 14 cases on the paper before theirs' and above 40 after. Are waiting for a letter in his master's name to my Lord of Pembroke to see if he will hasten their cause, he being one of the chiefest lords on this committee. Asks her to send up Sir Ralph Dutton's bonds. Presents service to Mr. Jernegan. "Houses are so plentiful and lie so many void that there is nobody will buy nor take." London 7 Nov. 1644.

P.S.—Mrs. Davis thanks her ladyship for her noble love and care of poor Mall, to whom she sends a small token. Asks her to speak to Ralph Palmer to have a special care about the Guildhouse farm.

1648 [-9]. Letter of protection from Oliver Cromwell. "These are to command and require you, and every of you, that you henceforth forbear to molest the person, seize, take, plunder, or carry away any of the horses, oxen, sheep, corn, household stuff, or any other goods whatsoever of, or belonging to, Sir Henry Jerneghan, of Cossey, in the county of Norfolk, as you and every of you will answer the contrary at your utmost perils. Given under my hand and seal at Whitehall the 4th day of Jan. 1648. O. CROMWELL.

To all officers and soldiers whom this may concern.

1674, May 13. "A particular of all the goods that were left at the lodge of Sir Henry's when I went away, and George Smith was then come with his family."

1675-6, March 9. Permission granted by James, Duke of Monmouth, chief justice of all H.M. forests, to Francis Jerningham, esq., to hunt and hawk within the forest of Windsor under certain conditions. Whitehall, 9 March 1675-76. Signed, with seal.

To her sons George Plowden, Cotton, and Joseph, to each 20*l.*, and to her son Cotton half her silver plate, and to her brother Cotton, his wife, and each of his children, 20*s.* apiece for a ring. To her grandchild Dorothy Draicot her best diamond ring. To her servant Elizabeth Heughs one whole year's wages (which is 7*l.*), and all her wearing clothes, if she be with her at her death. To Judith 20*s.*, and to old Martha East 40*s.* Her lease from the Dean and Chapter of the parsonage of Shiplake she gives to her son Francis Plowden, whom she appoints sole executor. Date, 21 May 1691. Signed, and with armorial seal.

* Two lines are here cancelled in the letter.

1712, March 27. Will of Anne Andrews, of the parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, widow. To her daughter Anne Andrews, 10*l.*, &c. Residuary legatee, her friend Adam Colclough, esq. Mark and seal.

1730. Last will of Sir Francis Jernengan, of Cossey, Bart., dated 11 June 1720. Appended is a note stating that he died 27* Aug. 1730.

1732, Sept. 12. Will of Sir John Jernegan, of Cossey, Bart. To his executrix all his purchased lands in Cossey, and also the woods in Painswick, to make up for the deficiency of her jointure, for her life. Also 11*l.* yearly to Elizabeth Wrongry, and 27*s.* yearly to Michael Laws. All the residue to his wife Dame Margaret Jernegan, whom he appoints sole executrix. Sept. 12, 1732. Copy.

1734, Sept. 22. Agreement between Dame Anne Jernegan, of Costesse, widow, relict of the late Sir Francis Jernegan, of the one part, and Sir John Jernegan, Bart., of the said place, of the other, by which the former releases to the latter all her lands, houses, jointure, &c. in the same during the actual life of either of them, he giving unto her yearly in the mansion house of Costesse, her lodging, board, washing, fire, candle, and all wines necessary, and also board, lodging, washing, fire, and candle to her servants, and the same to Mr. Francis Jernegan, with the manning and maintaining of a horse or two both summer and winter. He shall also pay to the said Dame Anne Jernegan the sum of 212*l.* yearly without any deduction. Also certain arrangements as to the payment of rents due at the Michaelmas next following. Dat. 22 Sept. 1734. Signed.

1747. J. Jerningham to his father Sir George Jerningham, of Cossey. "We are both very well, and we desire your blessing, and that you would please to send us both a pair of shoe buckles and 2 knives, for the French ones are good for nothing. Pray excuse me wrighting so ill, for I was in a hurry."

On the same sheet is an account of the expenses of "Mr. Jacky" from Aug. 20, 1747, and of "Mr. Billy" who arrived Oct. 18, 1747, kept in livres and sols, by Rev. Alban Butler.

On the same sheet is a letter from Rev. Alban Butler to Sir George, the beginning of which relates to finding lodgings and a servant at Lille. He then refers to the expenses of the boys. "We will endeavour by degrees to be more and more perfect in economy, and I see shall improve by little and little without disconcerting them. I would never have them really want anything necessary, as knives, and give them a little thing more at Christmas, Shrovetide, &c., and now and then a little encouragement to induce them to their business more earnestly.

"If it be no trouble I should be obliged to you if you could throw among your baggage some fishing lines and an English and Irish peerage which a brother I have in Pall Mall, opposite St. James's Square, at the Golden Ball (James Butler, a hosier and haberdasher) has for Mr. Talbots here. Masters beg you bring them each a pair of buckles, and a knife and fork with a sheath. They break and lose such things very often."

1748. Will of Sir George Jerningham, Bart., of Cossey. To be privately buried at Cossey. Bequeaths to his wife, his only daughter Mary, and his three sons William, Edward and Charles, landed property at Painswick and Cossey. Legacies to his brother Charles, his physician, and his brother Edward. Mr. Philip Southcote to be his trustee. Residue to his eldest son John. 2 May 1748. Cancelled.

1751. Letters of confraternity granted by Emanuel Pinto, master of the hospital of S. John of Jerusalem at Malta, to William Jerningham, with permission to wear a golden cross representing a knight of the order. Malta, 23 Oct., 1751. Copy.

"The voyage of Italy, or a complete journey through Italy, with the characters of the people and the description of several towns, churches, monasteries, libraries, palaces, houses, gardens, tombs, villas, antiquities, &c. Written first in short for the use of a noble friend, and since enlarged upon for the use of English travellers." The bottom part of the title page is cut off, and the name of the author is nowhere given. It appears, however (from p. 287), that the author visited Rome during the pontificate of Pope Alexander VII. (1655-1667) and that he had been in Milan in 1637 (p. 147). When he revised his notes Ferdinand II. (1619-1637) was emperor (p. 563) and Louis XIV. King of France. On p. 595 is a note which was added after 1646. The writer was a man of extensive reading and refined taste, as is proved by his remarks upon the various works of art which he mentions. He notices the libraries in the towns through which he passed. In the description which he gives of Ferrara he writes "See here the convent of the Carmes or Carmelites, in whose library are seen these books among others; a manuscript of John Bacon and of Thomas Waldensis, both Carmelites and both Englishmen" (p. 584).

THE MANUSCRIPTS BELONGING TO SIR N. W. THROCK-MORTON, BART., KEPT AT BUCKLAND HOUSE, FARINGDON.

SIR N. W.
THROCK-
MORTON'S MSS.

The documents connected with the early history of the ancient family of Throckmorton (extending as far back as the beginning of the reign of King Henry the Third) are deposited partly at Coughton Court, in the county of Warwick, and partly at Buckland House, near Faringdon. It was intended that the more ancient charters and papers should remain at Coughton, where a fireproof room was built for their safe custody, and that the more modern records should be placed in the library at Buckland.

Some years ago the kindness of Sir N. W. Throckmorton afforded me the opportunity of inspecting the papers at Coughton Court, and a notice of my visit may be seen in the Third Report, p. 256.* That division of the series which is preserved at Buckland has recently been opened for my inspection, and its more important contents are specified in the following Report. In it I have taken no notice of a large collection of miscellaneous papers (for the most part between the years 1650 and 1750, which relate chiefly to the domestic history and household expenditure of the family), for these, although not devoid of interest, did not, in my opinion, come within the scope of the Commission on Historical Manuscripts. The more important of the manuscripts now remaining at Buckland are the following:—

"I must not forget to mention that one interesting looking coffer could not be opened. It is of old oak, bound with bars of polished steel, and of considerable antiquity as well as elegance of workmanship. A steel plate covers a large portion of the front, and thus the keyhole (if there be one) is inaccessible. The plate is secured by a spring, as it would seem. At all events it baffled our attempts to remove it: and the contents of the coffer are consequently unknown." The secret has now been discovered, and the casket is found to contain a large number of early charters, the precise nature of which is yet unknown.

A splendid volume in large and thick folio, written upon vellum in the xv. century, being the Missal used in the parish church at Buckland. Unfortunately it is injured in several places by damp, and a few leaves are lost.

The Calendar contains notices, some obits, and benefactions connected with the parish, but the leaves on which they are written are much discoloured by damp. The following memoranda, however, are legible:—

On 17 January, S. Hilary, occurs a notice of the obit of Richard Holcot, to be perpetually observed in the church of Buckland. He gave a benefaction of xijd. to the church annually, with bread and beer to the clerk for ringing the bell. Another donotian of xivd. annually to the church, and the gift of a cow are mentioned, but the entry is defective.

On 6 March the obit of John Pyrke is noticed as being to be perpetually observed by the churchwardens [yconomis] because of his gift of a cow. Under the same date are entered gifts of viiijd. to the vicar and viiijd. to the churchwardens, apparently by the same benefactor, but this is doubtful.

July 4. The Translation of St. Martin. "Dedicatio ecclesiæ de Buclond."

The festival of St. Edmund, king and martyr (November 20), is distinguished as "the day of the frary chirche."

December 3 is marked as the "Dedicatio ecclesiæ de Cadbury."

December 28. "Sanctus Elphege, protector de Rownsevalle."

December 29. "Sanctus Thomas, protector de Hounslow."

A volume on vellum, in small folio, written apparently between the years 1445 and 1456. It contains a *MANUAL according to the Use of the Church of Sarum, of which the chief contents are the following:—

1. Calendarium.
2. Benedictio salis et aquæ.
3. Aspersio aquæ benedictæ tempore paschali.
4. Ordo ad catecheuminum faciendum.
5. Litaniæ Sanctorum.
6. Consecratio fontis.
7. Ordo ad facienda sponsalia. [The form by which the husband takes the wife and the wife the husband, are in English.]
8. Benedictio thalami nuptialis.
9. Ordo ad visitandum infirmum atque unguendum.
10. Forma ad absolvendum quemcumque de plena remissione peccatorum semel in articulo mortis.
11. Interrogatio infirmi per presbyterum, secundum S. Anselmum, cum benedictionibus.
12. Litaniæ et orationes dicendæ in exitu animæ.
13. Orationes dicendæ in lotionem corporis.
14. Orationes in sepultura corporis.
15. Orationes dicendæ in obsequiis mortuorum.
16. Missa pro defunctis.

* "Manuale, sic dictum a manu, quia assidue habetur ad manum, et in eo continentur omnia quæ spectant de sacramentorum et sacramentalium ministracionem. Item benedictiones tam fontium quam aliorum secundum usum ecclesiasticum benedictorum." Lyndwood, iii. tit. 27, p. 361.

A volume upon vellum, written in the fifteenth century, with the Title, "Here begynneth the Mirroure of Synners."

SIR N. W.
THROCK-
MORTON'S MSS.

It begins: "For that we ben in the way of this fayling liffe, and oure dayes passene as a schadowe, therfore it nedithe ful ofte to recorde in owre mynde that thing that oure frealte and oure dedely sykenes makithe us ofte to forget."

At the end of the volume, in a later hand, are several exhortations to good life addressed by a father to his son.

In Psalmos Expositio.

A commentary upon the Psalms, giving the text, with an exposition, derived chiefly from S. Augustine and Ca[ssiodorus]. In folio, written upon vellum in the xiiijth century.

Beg. "Cum omnes prophetas Spiritus Sancti revelatione constat esse locutos, David prophetarum eximius."

A volume in folio, upon vellum of the xiiij-xiv centuries.

1. Sermones facti per episcopum Parisiensem [Petrum Lombardum?] scilicet, de Pœnitentia, in Quadsagesima, de Extrema Unctione, de Sacramento Altaris, de Adventu Domini. Printed at Paris in 1541. See Cave ii. 221; Ceillier xxiii. 52.

2. Petri de Riga Aurora.

Beg. Hic incipit Aurora, id est, quæ vocatur Bibliotheca versificata. It belonged to Sir Robert Throckmorton, Bart., in 1684.

A book of Hours of our B. Lady, with various prayers prefixed and interspersed. Of the sixteenth century, coarsely ornamented. "Liber Jacobi Sutton, armigeri."

A collection of prayers on various occasions, during Mass, before and after Communion, &c. In quarto, written upon vellum in the fifteenth century. It is much mutilated, all the paintings having been cut out.

Fines (original) respecting the following manors:—

Buckland.

Molland.

Olney, from 39 Edw. III.

Sherrington, 13 Ric. II.

Ravenston, 16 Hen. VII.

* Another copy of this poem is at Coughton, and two others in the British Museum Harl. 6353 and Add. 5841. Its author (who has recorded in it some curious historical facts) was probably Thomas Throckmorton, eldest son of Sir Robert, he died 13th March 1614, aged 81. "The life of Mr. Thomas Throgmorton," says the Rev. Mr. Cole, "was one continued persecution for his religion, his estate being always under sequestration and his person very often in prison." Addit. MS. Brit. Mus. 5841, fol. 107.

SIR N. W.
THROCK-
MORTON'S MSS.

A volume of letters and papers connected with the plot of Titus Oates.

1. Letter from I. H. giving an account of the first trial of Mr. Fitz Harris, with a short abstract of the speeches of Mr. Williams and Mr. Winnington. Saturday 4 May 1681.

Beg. "There was Shaftesbury attended by the Whigs below; Albemarle, Arundell & his Lady, Scarsdale and the Loyalists above in the gallery."

2. Another account of the same trial.

3. I. H. to Mrs. Celier, at the Pressyard, giving a fuller account of the said trial, with notices of the behaviour and speeches of Winnington, Williams, Sergeant Maynard, and Mr. Solicitor Finch. May 5, 1681. Seal.

4. Anon. to Mrs. Celier, giving an account of the trial of Fitz Harris (different from the last), with a detailed notice of several incidents that occurred during the time. He deposed to certain events which took place, he said, at Windsor, where were three consults about the murder of Sir Edm. Godfrey. Danby's wickedness now falls on his own head, and Sir William Waller is hated by his old friends. The printer of the Norwich address has been found guilty of printing a libel against the Parliament.

5. Anon. to Mrs. Eliz. Celier, on the further prosecution of the trial of Fitz Harris. The writer reports on the authority of Fitz Harris's wife, upon the acquaintance of her husband with Everard in France, of the conversation that passed between them on Twelfth day last, upon Everard's application to be translator of English pamphlets to the French ambassador and on the libel to be shewed by Mrs. Wall to the king, with various other minute details connected with the same story. Mr. Budly [Bedloe] discovers 30,000*l*. and lands belonging to the Jesuits.

6. "Out of my Lord Castlemain's letters concerning Mr. Edward Fitz Harris," consisting of extracts dated 1681, May 2, 5, 12, 16, 19; June 9, 16, 21, 23, 30; July 4, 7, 11, and 14, in all amounting to six leaves in folio.

7. Newsletter. Monday, Sept. 26, S. V. [1681]. Turberville has sworn against his patron Arnold. Dugdale, Turberville, Smith, Baldran, and Mayberry [Mowbrey] have taken a house and live together near Exeter Change in a court, which is called Evidence Court. Lord Windsor has married a Frenchwoman from Montpelier; and his son, since he turned Whig, has lost 3,000*l*. at play amongst that party. There has come out an excellent epitaph upon College, and one of the Whigs has deposed that he (College) delivered him the "Raree Show," being a villanous picture of the king's most private actions. "The narrative of the plot" is coming out with additions and pertinent pictures. A very bitter libel against the Duke of Monmouth; and Chetwin, the witness, has petitioned the Lords of the Treasury for several houses in London belonging to Lord Castlemain.

8. Newsletter, dated London, Sept. 29, 1681. Great discoveries are expected to be made by Dr. Tongue's papers. The king will continue at Newmarket. Ben Harris has made several discoveries against the authors of many villanous pamphlets and other matters against the brotherhood. Mighty sums are said to have been offered to the King if some people come into play again, as the writer had been told by Lord Halifax. To-day has been a great contest between the Tories and Whigs about the election of the Lord Mayor, and Sir John Moor has been elected, to the no small vexation of the godly.

SIR N. W.
THROCK-
MORTON'S MSS.

9. London, 3 Oct., 1681. Fresh witnesses still come in against E[arl] of S[haftesbury]. Laws are to be put in execution against Dissenters. Sir George Jeffreys has ordered that next Sunday the constables are to fall upon Meeting Houses with all severity. Lord Russell, Mr. Jones, Ralph Mountague, and Thinne are returned on the grand jury of the county of Middlesex. Lord Shaftesbury petitioned to be sent to any of H.M. plantations. [Sic. To his own plantation of Carolina.] "Mr. Giffard."

10. 13 Oct, 1681. Account of the proceedings of the Grand Jury at Westminster. Publication of various political pamphlets, of one of which (named "No protestant plot, but a popish sham") Shaftesbury is thought to be the author. Oates is indicted for affronting the Lord Mayor elect. The Earl of Murrey, Secretary of Scotland, has tendered the Test to the Duke of M[onmouth], which he refused. Sir Robert Clayton is endeavouring to get His Majesty's pardon. The Bills will again be tendered at Oxford. "Mr. C. G."

11. London, 16 Oct., S.N. The writer heard yesterday that one William Smith of Islington, the schoolmaster, who testified at the trials of the five Jesuits that Oates was at his house on 2 May, has now declared that what he swore at his trial was false. "Mr. Gifford."

12. 24 Oct., 1681. Lord Huntington has kissed the King's hand and pretended repentance. The proceedings against Rowse at the Old Bailey are printed by order. When Shaftesbury acquainted the King of his wish to be transported to Carolina, His Majesty answered that he would leave him to the law. Lord Carlisle challenged Shaftesbury, who declined to fight. A paper has been found in Shaftesbury's closet to the effect that the Papists designed to destroy the Protestants; that the Duke of York should be deposed. "Found by Mr. Gain [Gwyn] in a velvet bag in Shaftesbury's closet."

13. London, 7 Nov., 1681. The Duke of Monmouth, Lord Grey and Herbert, have printed a scurrilous paper against the Earl of Huntington, which certainly was made by Ireton and reprinted by Curtis. His Lordship intends to challenge one or two of them, being lame. The bustle between Dr. Laver and Smith. "Two cures only less than miracles have been done by Bishop Plunket's blood." Booth has offered the king ready money to farm the Catholics' estates, a measure opposed by Lords Halifax and Thanet. The Lord Mayor intends to forbid Oates from harbouring in the city. All conventicles will be suppressed next Sunday.

14. London, 17 Nov., S. V. [1681]. Preparations for Lord Shaftesbury's trial. Pilkington has kissed the King's hand. The Earl of Tyrone was bailed out of the Gatehouse last Saturday. Yesterday was the Queen's birthday, when her lacemaker in the city, having made a bonfire in honour of his mistress, had his windows broken, and his house endamaged. Turberville had 600*l.* to swear against Lord Stafford. Curtis has put up the sign of Sir Edm. Godfrey at his house. Several Presbyterians, Quakers, &c. have been forced to give security for their behaviour. Titus Oates has removed his lodging and grows contemptible among his own gang. He has left off his scarf, the badge of his Doctorship, and means to part with his gown too. Several little popes were burnt on 5 November. One was drawn like a Presbyterian by the Westminster lads. Publications by L'Estrange and Dangerfield. This being Queen Elizabeth's birthday the mob are beginning their procession to burn the Pope in Smithfield.

15. London, 24 November, 1681. Many think Fitz Harris was fooled out of his life. Eight witnesses against Shaftesbury. The Lord Chief Justice told the jurors they were not to consider the credibility of the witnesses, but were bound in conscience to find the bill, if there were two witnesses in law. The witnesses were in danger of being torn in pieces, and the sheriff with his officers could scarce hinder it. All the Judges were there. Immorality of Mr. Sergeant, who is half cracked. The king said he cared not sixpence whether the bill were found or no.

16. London, 15 Dec., 1681. Resolutions are taken to swinge the Papists off without further consideration. The Whigs smile and all for a Psalm. Shaftesbury receives the compliments of the people, and on Tuesday was invited by the Company of the Skinners. On Saturday he sent bailiffs to arrest Justice Warcup upon the Bench, but they were sent to Newgate. Monmouth has gone to divert himself in Sussex, and has quitted his house in Hedge Lane. Several French protestants have come over, one of whom stole a necklace and plate out of her lodgings; but this is said to be a plot of the Jesuits. Prince Rupert dined with Shaftesbury last Saturday.

17. Thursday, 8 December, [1681]. Bonfires in several places for Shaftesbury's deliverance. Several presentments against recusants, as the Earl of Powis, Sir John Yates, Lady Yates, &c. An order from the Council to seize Papists going to their chapels. Informations against conventicle tub-preachers. Lord Hunsdon, because one in a coffee-house said he was a Tory, threw his periwig into the fire. Fresh orders expected against Catholics.

18. Monday, 19 Dec., 1681. Turberville died yesterday. The writer heard from Chase, the king's apothecary, that he said he believed he was poisoned, but his disease proved to be the small-pox. He sent for the minister of the Savoy, who denied to come, but Dr. Tennison, parson of S. Martin's, came, before whom he declared that all that he had given in against Shaftesbury was true. He said before the Council that he had 600*l.* to attest against Lord Stafford.

19. London, 21 Dec. On the 17th the Pope was burnt in Smithfield, the Duke of Monmouth and Lord Grey present. The rabble all the while drank healths to the King and the Duke of Monmouth "conjunctively." The procession went from Whitechapel, and was brought to Chancery Lane, then down Holborn to Newgate, and so to Smithfield. In the first pageant was Sir Edm. Godfrey. In the second was a pillory in a frame drawn by horses, in which were three Irish: over one was written, Suborner, and over the other two Suborned. In the third were Friars and the Pope's herald. In the fourth was the Pope, with a "towser" between his legs.

In Dryden's poem, called Absolon and Architophel [sic], are represented the lively characters of the Duke of Monmouth and Shaftesbury, also Howard, Sir William Jones, Bethel, Winnington, and most of that party, under Jewish names, together with the Doctor of Salamanca, as Corah. After which are nobly described the Duke of Ormond, Halifax, Hide, Seymour, and most of the loyal party. Dryden has already been presented with 100*l*.

SIR N. W.
THROCK-
MORTON'S MSS.

On T[itus] O[ates], called Malchus, in Naboth's vineyard.

"Titus of Salamanca, for oats so famed,
Why is he now by poets Malchus named?
Of Titus' crime Malchus the mullet did bear,
For Titus swore, and Malchus lost his ear."

20. Thursday, 29 Dec., 1681. Several conventicles have been disturbed, but no greater feat done yet than returning the name of Holdesforth into the Crown Office.

21. Thursday, 5 January, 1681 [-2]. Oates is summoned to appear before the Council to-morrow to answer several papers, sent over by the Duke of Ormond, which were said to have been found in the pockets of one of Oates's agents who had died in Ireland. Many complain of the French protestants. The condemned priests are not yet gone, Sir Thomas Player, &c. having petitioned that they be executed.

22. Thursday, 13 January, 1681-2. Oates appeared at Council, but denied the papers to be his, so he is again dismissed, and the papers sent back to Ireland. The conventicles are disturbed everywhere. Several were indicted in Southwark for keeping them, but all found Ignoramus. The rector of All Saints, Colchester, has put out a book called "The Black Nonconformist." The strain is that of a madman. The two Macnamaras are now discharged from Newgate, but poor Bernard Denis is laid up in the Marshalsea for debt. The condemned Priests will soon embark for Scilly; sheriff Pilkinton is to see them on board. Sir Philip Floid will take his trial for murder. The Duke of Monmouth appeared last week about the court; but the King sent express order that he should not come so near any more. The last new inscription on the bakehouse where the fire broke out is as follows:—"Here by the permission of God [fire] broke loose upon this protestant city from the malicious hearts of barbarous papists, by the hand of their agent Hubert, who confessed it in this place, and declared the fact, for which he was hanged, viz., that here began that dreadful fire that is described and perpetuated on & by the neighbouring pillar, anno '81."

23. Monday, 16 January, 1681 [-2]. Oates and Prance are very low in money matters, and have seen their best days.

24. Thursday, 26 January, 1681 [-2]. Last Monday lords Shaftsbury, Escric, Whitaker, Willmore, and Aston appeared at the King's Bench. Hickeringill appeared before Doctors' Commons and behaved insolently. Yesterday was a new play called the Royalist, where the Salamanca Doctor is exposed. The condemned priests are not yet gone. About 40 well armed men went to a town near Edinboro' to break ground for a rebellion. The government of Tangere is given to Col. Kirke. Sir Philip Loyd is to answer the appeal brought by Holborn's wife in February. This day was the trial about the Jesuits' Estate, as they call it; but it went against Oates and Savage.

25. Thursday, 2 March, 1681 [-2]. Farewell, an attorney of Clement's Inn, has published a letter and is resolved to stand the brunt. Sir Edm. Godfrey's brother was yesterday afternoon with Prance in his dining room.

26. Thursday, 9 March, 1681 [-2]. The duchess of Portsmouth has parted for France.

SIR N. W.
THROCK-
MORTON'S MSS.

27. 16 March, 1681-2. The Duke landed at Yarmouth, where, and at Norwich, he was welcomed with great joy, the seamen running up to their necks in water to receive him. His arrival at Newmarket on Saturday put every one into an exstacy. He was well received by the King. The Duke of Ormond is daily expected at Newmarket. The earl of Arran succeeds to the government of Ireland.

28. 17 March, 1681-2. The King has said that if the Parliament petition for the pardon of Fitz Harris he shall be hanged at the door of the Parliament House.

29. 30 March, 1682. The Morocco ambassador is still at Newmarket. Gascoigne, Tempest, and York have been brought in Not guilty. Judge Gregory behaved very scurvily against the prisoners. In a trial between Sheriff Pilkinton, Defendant, and Boldworth, a Tory perfumer by Temple Bar, the jury gave 800*l.* damages. Lady Danby is very ill, and leave was refused to Lord Danby to visit her. Oates has taken a house in Throckmorton Street. The chapels of late are very crowded. Hopes Mr. Picard has returned safe from his journey.

30. Thursday, 6 April, 1682. Yesterday N. Thompson, Mr. Farewell, and Mr. Pain owned the letter sent to Prance about the death of Sir Edm. Godfrey, but the Lord Chancellor ordered them to be committed to Newgate. The King, the Duke and whole Court will be here on Saturday. The Duchess will come in a man of war. The Duke will not return to Scotland; the King is never out of his company now. Several scurrilous ballads have come out against the Duchess of Cleveland. Last Friday Monmouth, Shaftsbury, Bedford, Essex, &c., dined with the Lord Mayor, but at their own invitation. Monmouth still rolls about in an old coach. Last Sunday the constables were busy at the Popish chapels, and several persons were sent to the Round House. Sir William Waller skulks in Buckinghamshire for fear of creditors. The young Lord of Northumberland will be married to Lady Ogle.

SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT UPON THE MSS. AT STONYHURST COLLEGE.

STONYHURST
COLLEGE MSS.

In the Appendix to the Second Report, p. 143, is printed a list of a portion of the MSS. belonging to the Library of Stonyhurst College, the continuation and conclusion of which appeared in the Appendix to the Third Report, p. 334. These two lists describe the collection as it existed in the year 1872.

Since that time, however, several important additions have been made to the Library, and others will probably follow ere long. It has been thought expedient to bring into one collection many valuable papers which hitherto have remained in localities where their importance was not only recognised, but for which a central place of deposit, at once safe and commodious, has now been provided at Stonyhurst. To this collection contributions are still being made, and others may be expected. Although, as might be expected, they relate chiefly to the history of the Society of Jesus, yet they contain documents of general interest, civil as well as ecclesiastical, from the period of Queen Elizabeth to the end of the 18th century. The documents contained in the following pages refer to the latter period of history.

JOSEPH STEVENSON,

A collection of 88 "Original Returns of Popish Recusants for the County and City of Oxford, made by the Parsons, Vicars, &c., of the several Parishes here enumerated, by command of the Queen and the Diocesan, and returned to the Office of the Registrar's Office at Oxford."

It consists of the following documents:—

1. A.D. 1705-6, Feb. 21. Staunton Harcourt and South-Leigh. No Popist recusants. Robert Bright, curate.

2. 1706, March 29, Taynton. No Papist. Edward Loggan Griffin, vicar.

3. 1706, June 6, Eynsham. "These are to certify that the adevouson of the said vicarage doth not belong to any Papist, and that there is none such in my parish, nor, God be thanked, no Dissenter. Ita testor Joh. Rogers, Vic. ibid."

4. 1706, June 20, Harpenden. No Papist. M. Stapylton, rector.

5. 1706, June 20, Rotherfield Pepper. No Papist. Tim. Huxley, rector. This return is addressed to Mr. Geo. Cooper, registry of the diocese.

6. 1706, June 21, Headington. No Popish recusant. Tho. Allen, vicar.

7. 1706, June 21, Sarsden. One Popish recusant, a servant known by the name of John Beale, and no other. John Griffin, curate. Addressed as No. 5.

The following pages contain an abstract of the original wills (unless otherwise specified) of various Priests of the Society of Jesus which are now deposited among the archives at Stonyhurst. Along with them occur a few wills of persons who did not belong to the Order. As an illustration of the curious information which they contain, I invite the attention of the reader to entries which he will find under Lewis, William, and Stonor, John.

STONOR, John, of Stonor, son of Sir Francis Stonor, of Stonor, knt., deceased, at present resident in the Dweersen Keyenberg at Louvain, makes his will. His body to be buried in the church of St. Peter, at Louvain, near his wife, Catherine de Lyere. At his funeral service it is his express wish that no bread be given to the friends invited to his exequies, although it be the custom, but that one "muyd" of wheat should be given to the poor of the parish of St. Pierre in baked bread. His debts to be paid before any application of his property. For one year a daily mass to be said at the altar nearest his tomb for himself, his wife, and his relations, six "patars"* to be given for each mass, to be said by his neighbour Hère Voghelsank. To the poor of the parish of St. Michael (torn) to be distributed at the discretion of the pastor. To Mlle. Jane Chamberlayn, his cousin, 103 florins yearly out of the 133 florins due to him yearly from the town of Mons, of which Maister Vincent le Mayre has been the receiver. To Damoiselle Anne Malapert, daughter of his late wife, the remaining 50 florins for life. The remainder of those rents after the death of the said Chamberlains and Malapert to return to his heirs. To the Irish Fathers of the Order of St. Francis two double ducats. To Father Barnes, the father confessor of St. Monica, 50 florins. To Monsr. Clifford one double ducat. To Mlle. Marie Worthington, "ma filiole," one double ducat. To Mons. Chamberlayn, his cousin, dean of Ghent, "la tenture" [the hangings] of blue velvet on which my arms are embroidered, together with the knots and appurtenants.† To the same the enjoyment of the 25 florins which he has from the Pheasant in Dorpstraate, belonging to Jean Van Ermegheen, of Louvain, which on his death are to revert to the heirs of the testator. To the sodality of Our Lady at the Jesuit Fathers, of which he formerly had been Prefect, 25 florins. To Mlle. de l'Espinoy, widow of the late Mons. Chamberlain, his uncle, as likewise to Mlle. Marie and Sister Franchoise, his cousins, to each a double ducat. To Mons. Adrian Malapert his great portrait, and that of his late mother, both taken from the life; and to George, Philip, Caterine, and Jane, his children, to each a double ducat. To the nuns of St. Monica 15 florins. To M., the Vicar-General, Dean of "St. Goule" at Brussels, a ring belonging to his late uncle Chamberlain, with the inscription, "Mors bona bonis, mala malis." To Mlle. Boxhorn, his [statue of] Nôtre Dame, with the crown of gold and the sceptre as it stands on the buffet, together with the garden of flowers and the box of wood wherein to keep it. To sister Jenneken la Roulx, nun of the hospital, one double ducat. To his nephew, John Crouche, "mon filiole," who is in England, the debt of 40 florins borrowed from him by his nephew, Francis Stonor, when the said Francis went hence into England. 50 florins to pay for a robe for F. Susius, a religious of the College of the Society of Jesus in this town of Louvain. To Mlle. Jane Chamberlain his silver porringer [escucille]. To Jean Boon, tenant of his garden, his wife and children, and to Mary, his servant, to each a florin; and to widow Bayken, also a florin. To Cathelyne de Rostere, his servant, out of regard to her long and faithful services (if she be with him at the time of his death), the enjoyment of his house in the Dorpstrate for her life, that, namely, which used to be occupied by Mlle. Gilkins, with its appurtenants, with remainder to his heirs. Also the bed which she now generally uses, the bed-clothes and all the chemises which belonged to his late wife, his gold ring with the name of Jesus, a "robille and basquin" belonging to his late wife, with 100 florins to help her to redeem certain lands. The residue of his goods to be employed for the greater glory of God and the extension of the Catholic Faith under the direction of the English Jesuit Fathers of S. John of Louvain, at the present time resident at Liège. Appoints as his executors

WRIGHT, Joseph [Rev.], of Lakenham, co. Norf. Devisees and executors, Philip Carteret and Richard Meredith. 22 July 1752. Signed and sealed. 11.82.

SIR PHILIP TATTON MAINWARING, BART., OF PEOVER HALL, CHESHIRE.

The Mainwaring deeds and MSS. are of considerable interest and merit a fuller report than it is possible to give them at present, but unfortunately I found them in great confusion and could do little more than roughly sort them during my stay at Peover.

SIR P. T.
MAINWARING'S
MSS.

The Mainwarings, whose family has been seated at Peover ever since the Conquest, besides a vast quantity of deeds and evidences relating to their lands, have the good fortune to possess State Papers, Diaries, Household-books, and Literary MSS. of the 17th century, which cannot fail to be of interest, and which would probably furnish a rich harvest of curious social and domestic details to any one who would carefully examine them.

Many of the Peover deeds are of the time of Edward III. or earlier, and about five hundred of them are older than the reign of Henry VIII. The earliest of these are some charters granted in the 12th century by the Earls of Chester.

Amongst more modern deeds, MSS., letters, accounts, memoranda, and law-papers, all mingled in terrible confusion, I found in the course of my search most of the Peover evidences that were set out by Dugdale in his unpublished "Chartularum Mainwaringianum"; and it was with no little interest, after almost despairing of finding it, that I at last came upon the original charter which was granted by Hugh Keveliock, Earl of Chester, to Ralph Mainwaring on the marriage of the latter to his daughter Amicia, and which raised so animated and protracted a controversy in the 17th century between Sir Thomas Mainwaring and his neighbour Sir Peter Leycester of Tabley, the author of the "Antiquities of Cheshire." This charter, with three others which were granted by Hugh Keveliock, and by Randal Blundeville, his son and successor, I copied literatim for this report.

The Peover muniments include many Extents, Rentals, Mises, Court Rolls, Final-Concords, and Pleas-at-Chester, that I had no time to examine. They also include several Pardons, Patents, and Commissions, under the Great Seal, from the time of Henry VI., and several Commissions with wafer-seals attached, undated and signed in blank by Charles II., which appear to have been entrusted to a Colonel Roger Whitley* in 1659 for him to fill up and make use of at his discretion.

* A Colonel Roger Whitley was Governor of Aberystwith Castle when it surrendered to the Parliamentary troops during the Civil War. The safe conduct he received on the occasion of that capitulation is amongst the MSS. at Peover. If not the same person it is possible that he was the father of the Colonel Roger Whitley who is above mentioned, and who after the Restoration was appointed Deputy Post Master General.

SIR P. T.
MAINWARING'S
MSS.

The most important of the literary MSS. preserved at Peover is an unpublished History of the Mainwaring Family, compiled in 1669, by Sir William Dugdale for Sir Thomas Mainwaring, whose father Sir Philip had some years previously endeavoured, but without success, to raise a subscription to cover the author's expenses in compiling a county history of Cheshire on the same plan as his "Antiquities of Warwickshire."

I much regret not having had time to examine the old Diaries, Household-books, and letters, of which there are so many at Peover, as they probably contain much interesting matter illustrative of Domestic History and Prices. Besides such MSS. I found a few of a literary and historical character, the titles of which I noted, and also ten large volumes of Post Office Accounts and Letters of the time of Charles the Second. These Post Office Records formerly belonged to the Colonel Whitley already mentioned. He attended the King in his exile, and after the Restoration was appointed King's Harbinger and Deputy to Lord Arlington the Postmaster General.

I now proceed to describe more particularly those of the Peover Charters and MSS. which I had time to copy or note.

A charter granted, about 1170, by Hugh Keveliock, Earl of Chester, to Ralph Mainwaring on the marriage of the latter to Amicia the grantor's daughter. The seal is unfortunately gone:—

H[ugo] Comes Cestrie constabulario, dapifero, et omnibus baronibus suis et universis ballivis et hominibus suis Francis et Anglicis, tam presentibus quam futuris salutem. Sciatis me dedisse et concessisse et hac presenti carta mea confirmasse Radulfo de Meinilwarin cum Amicia filia mea in libero matrimonio servitium Giliberti filii Rogeri scilicet servitium trium militum faciendo mihi servitium duorum militum, ille et heredes sui mihi et heredibus meis; Quare volo et firmiter precipio ut nullus super hac eum vel heredes suis vexet vel amplius quam servitium duorum militum hoc predicto tenemento requirat: Testibus R[oberto] abbate Cestrie; Bertreda Comitessa Cestrie, Simon Thuschet, Rogero de Liuet, Giliberto filio Pigot, Roberto fratre suo, Frumaldo de Ridford, Willelmo de Meinilwarin, Roberto filio Hamonis, Bertramo Camerario, Roberto de Meinilwarin, Ranulfo de Lec, Radulfo clerico, Petro clerico qui hanc kartam fecit, et multis aliis. Apud Lec.

A charter of the same Earl by which he grants to "Andrew the Countess's man" and his heirs, the right to keep a boat for fishing in the Dee. The large seal of hard wax painted black is in fine preservation. It represents on the obverse a mounted knight in armour, and on the reverse bears indistinct impressions of two smaller seals:—

H[ugo] Comes Cestrie constabulario, dapifero, justiciario, vice-comitibus, ballivis et omnibus hominibus suis Francis et Anglicis, salutem. Sciatis me concessisse et dedisse petitione comitisse, Andree homini Comitisse et heredibus suis tenendum de me et de heredibus meis unum batum ad piscandum in aqua de De ubicunque voluerit libere et quiete sic unquam aliquis melius et liberus habuit in De. Testibus comitessa B[ertreda], Rogero de Liuet, Ricardo de Luuet, Helia Avenel, Willelmo filio Ricardi, Willelmo Barba appellato clerico comitis, Picot de Lund, Roberto saraceno, Godefredo camerario, Nicolao capellano qui hanc cartam scripsit.

This charter, and the next one also, is endorsed:—Ista carta intrata in rotulis scaccarii Cestrie coram domino Depirye camerario ibidem anno regni regis Edwardi tercii a conquestu duodecimo.

A charter of Randal Blundeville (Earl of Chester 1186-1232), by which he grants and confirms to Nicholas fitz Robert and his heirs a right of fishing in the Dee. Part of the large seal, in green wax, is still attached, and represents on both sides a mounted knight:—

SIR P. T.
MAINWARING'S
MSS.

Ranulfus Comes Cestrie constabulario suo et dapifero, iusticiario et vice-comitibus, baronibus et ballivis suis ets omnibus hominibus suis Francis et Anglicis et omnibus tam futuris quam presentibus salutem. Sciatis me dedisse et concessisse et presenti carta mea confirmasse Nicholao filio Roberti et heredibus suis pro homagio et servicio suo unum liberum batellum in aqua de De, tenendum de me et de heredibus meis libere et quiete et ad piscandum die ac nocte cum flotnettis et draghnettis et stalnettis et cum omni genere retium et subter pontem Cestrie et supra pontem et nominatim apud Etonam et ubique usu alia libera batella piscantur: Reddendo annuatim mihi et heredibus meis ab illo et heredibus suis quatuor denarios in Nativitate sancti Johannis Baptiste: Et prohibio super forisfacturam meam x librarum ne aliquis predictum Nicholaum aut heredes suos inde disturbet: Et quod faciant de piscibus quas capient quod eis bonum fuerit. Hiis testibus Radulfo de Megnilwarin, Phillippo de Orrebi, Juhello Luningneio, Hugone et Ricardo de Bocdele, Roberto filio Picoti, Roberto Sarraceno et Radulfo fratre suo, Ranulfo Dubbeldei, Ricardo filio Radulfi, Philippo filio Willelmi, Petro clerico, Thoma clerico presentium scriptore, et multis aliis apud Cestria.

Another charter of Randal Blundeville, by which he confirms to the monks of St. Werburgh, in Chester, a moiety of a salt-work in Northwich. A double seal of white wax, similar to the one last mentioned, is still attached to this charter, and is in fine preservation:—

Ranulfus, comes Cestrie omnibus tam futuris quam presentibus salutem. Notum sit vobis me concessisse et presenti carta mea confirmasse in puram et perpetuam elemosinam deo et ecclesie sancte Werburge in Cestria et monachis ibidem deo servientibus dimidiam salinam in Norwicho que adjacet Wittonie quam Willelmus de Venables eis dedit liberam et quietam ab omni terreno servicio sicut carta predicti Willelmi testatur. Quare volo et firmiter precipio quod predicti monachi predictam salinam in perpetuum habeant et teneant sicut liberam elemosinam absque omni vexatione et exactione et servicio seculari. Hiis testibus Rogero constabulario Cestrie, Radulfo de Monte alto, seneschallo Cestrie, Radulfo de Mesnilwarin, Roberto filio Picoti, Willelmo de Verdun, Petro clerico presencium scriptore et multis aliis apud Cestria.

A Charter of Inspeximus of Edward III., to which is attached a fine specimen of the Great Seal in green wax.

It recites a Charter of Edward I., by which, before he came to the throne, he granted in the 40th year of his father's reign, to Thomas Mainwaring, view of frankpledge, wreck of the sea, freewarren, &c., in the Manor of Waubroun, or Waverbroun.

A Charter of Confirmation, dated at Bladen, 41 Edward III., by which Edward the Black Prince confirms the grant of his great-grandfather recited in the foregoing Charter of Inspeximus. Attached to this Charter, and to the cords attaching the seal of the Charter just mentioned, is a fine impression of the seal of the Black Prince as Earl of Chester.

Of the historical and literary MSS. at Peover the following are all that I had time to note.

The arraignment of the Earls of Essex and Southampton at Westminster Feb. 29 Thursday 1600 [-1601]. [59 pp. Apparently the report of an eye witness.]

The Arraignment of Mistress Turner, Widowe [for the murder of Sir Thomas Overbury in the Tower], the 7th of November 1615. [7 pp.]

SIR P. T.
MAINWARING'S
MSS.

This appears to be the report of an eye witness. Possibly it was drawn up by Sir Arthur Mainwaring, whom some of the witnesses alleged had been bewitched by Mrs. Turner.

A MS. book, in a parchment cover, containing the following articles:—

1. A discourse written by Sir Henry Manwaringe [M.P. for Dover 1620 to 1623] and by him presented to the Kinges Majesty, anno domini 1618—Wherein are discovered the beginnings practises and Proceedings of the Pyrates, who now so much infest the Seas together with His Advice and direction how to surprise and suppress them. [53 pp.]

2. Observations towching the Royal Navy and Sea Service. [47 pp.]

3. An abstract out of Recordes of such Courses as the Kinges of this Realme have used to Raise Munitions and men upon occasion of State at Publique Charge out of Regall Power. [Originally 69 folios, but the last 15 are now missing.]

NOTE.—Sir Henry Mainwaring was a Captain in the Royal Navy and was lieutenant of Dover Castle from 1620 to 1623. It is curious to find from the State Papers (Domestic Series, James I., vol. clx.) that he was himself accused of piracy and of having seized a French merchant vessel whilst we were at peace with France. Sir Edward Cecil, who succeeded him as Lieutenant of Dover Castle, also succeeded him as Member for Dover in the Parliament which met in Feb. 1624.

A Collection of Speeches in Parliament in 1640. [By Sir Philip Mainwaring, who was M.P. for Morpeth in that year.*] Originally 456 pages, but the title and first 15 pages are wanting, and the 16th and 17th pages are imperfect.

DUGDALE'S HISTORY OF THE MAINWARING FAMILY, already referred to, commences by proving that the earliest Mainwarings on record were descended from Ranulphus, the Domesday owner of Peover. It is a large folio volume written on vellum in a clerk's hand and illustrated with emblazoned pedigrees and coloured drawings of monuments.

The title runs as follows:—

CHARTULARUM MAINWARINGIANUM sive Transcripta integra, et excerptiones multorum venerandæ antiquitatis Autographorum, modo penes THOMAM MAINWARING de PEVER in Com. Cestriæ Baronettum:—Plurimorum quoque Recordorum, ac Instrumentorum in Archivis Regiis, (Arce scilicet LONDON: ac Castro CESTRENSI) Registris itidem antiquis et autenticis, alibique existentium.

There is no pagination to this MS., but the references to the paragraphs and the deeds they cite are made throughout by means of seventeen alphabets. The first paragraph being numbered and lettered 1 A, the second 1 B, and the last 17 Z.

Only a few pages of Dugdale's MS. from which this work was transcribed have been preserved.

A continuation of this work was written by Sir Thomas Mainwaring, and is now bound up with it. The title runs as follows:—

SIR P. T.
MAINWARING'S
MSS.

An history of the MAINWARINGS of PEOVER within the County of CHESTER, written by SIR THOMAS MAINWARING of PEOVER aforesaid Baronett, and proved by the Records and Deeds before mentioned.

All which sayd Deeds belong to and are in the possession of the sayd SIR THOMAS MAINWARING att the tyme of the writeing hereof.

Except such DEEDS which are expressed to be in the custody of other persons.

The following paper in Dugdale's handwriting is attached to a fly-leaf of the foregoing volume, and is interesting as showing the terms upon which he was willing to compile the projected History of Cheshire:—

3o Martis 1658.—Answere unto certein proposalls made to me by Sir Philip Manwaring, as to my undertaking to write historically of the Antiquities of Cheshire, in such sort as I have done of Warwickshire.

1. That if I undertake the same taske, I dare not promise to begin to collect my materialls in order to it, till above this time two yeare (God sparing me life and health) in regard I have other things in hand, which I suppose may detain me so long, as till that time.

2. There must be treaty had with the Gentlemen of that County and their consents obtained, that I may have free accesse to view and take notes out of their antient writings and Evidences.

3. That I may have the like free accesse to all the Records in the Castle at Chester, without paying fees, and also to the Bishops Register.

4. That Mr. Leicester of Tabley do communicate to me what he hath gathered or obtayned in reference to such a worke, from private Evidences, or any publike Records.

In consideration of which taske; forasmuch as I must have an Artist with me to view the Armes and Monuments in the Churches, and to draw them out, I thinke my selfe well worthy of a hundred and fifty pounds per annum, to be payd to me quarterly by some one gentleman, who shall undertake so to do; and to continue till I shall have accomplisht the worke and fitted it for the presse; which I shall promise to do with all the expedition that I can; and that in case I depart this life before it be finished, that my collections shall be faithfull[y] delivered into the hands of such Gentleman who doth undertake to pay me what I agree for.

I am offred more then I here propose, in case I would undertake a county here neere London, which in respect of its largenesse I do decline. Signed William Dugdale.

The following letter, without date, address, or signature, refers to the same subject:—

Sr—It is desired that Mr. Dugdale will a little explain himselfe in his Answere to the proposalls that were made to him the 3d of March

Sir P. T.
MAINWARING's
MSS.

1658. For though it is beleevd that Mr. Dugdale will be at the charge of all the Cuttes, yet he hath not so expressed himselfe. It is expected also that he be at all the charge in printing it, because he will have all the benefit of the book when it is printed; Onely it is probable that those which contribute will every one of them expect a booke, It is also expected that Mr. Dugdale sette a time which he will not exceede in the composing and making the sayd booke ready for the presse, For many gentlemen may perhaps be unwilling to contribute, unless they know the utmost of the charge they shall be putte to; when these things are knowne, as soone as may be, I shall try what the Gentlemen of our Cōuntry will do, & Mr. Dugdale shall ere long know what is resolved upon.

This letter is endorsed with notes in Dugdale's hand, as follows:—

1. As to the Charge of the Cutts, I say that for the draughts, in order to them I will take upon me to fit them for the Graver; but the plates and graving I expect that those particular Gentlemen, whose ancestors they concerne, should be at the charge of them, which shall be as frugally managed for them by me, as may be.

2. The charge in printing I will be content to undergo, and so also the charge of the rouling presse for the cutts, though it will be great.

3. And I shall present every Gentleman that contributes, with a Booke fairly bound.

4. As to the time within which I may accomplish the same, I cannot positively determine thereof; but thus much I will undertake, that if I be not prevented by death or sickness, to perfect the worke and print it within the compasse of five yeeres after I begin to set upon it.

A letter from Sir William Dugdale addressed to his "very worthy and much honoured friend Sir Thomas Manwaring at Baddeley neere Nantwich in Cheshire. Post payd 3d." Dated at "London, from Mr. Ashmoles chamber in Middle Temple Lane 28^o Jan. 1668:"—

Honoured Sir.—Being now come to London, I have taken the first opportunity to answere the remayning part of your Letter, which I received by the hand of Sir Thomas Delves (all the rest thereof being answered by a Letter sent by him, upon his return, which I hope you have received).

That which I now have to say, being this; vizt that this inclosed is an exact copy from Doomsday book of what your ancestor Ranulph held of Hugh Earl of Chester at the time of that general survey. It is written (as all that booke is) with those abbreviations as you see. I presume you know what they meane, if not I shall expound them to you.

That Elizabeth who was wife to Richard Cholmleigh of Cholmley in 4 H. 7 and 5 H. 8 (for I finde her in both those yeares) was daughter to Ranulph Brereton of Malpas, Esq^{re}), but I have yet no copy of the deeds which proves her so to be; my work at present being to discover from my Lord Cholmleys evidence what they will make good for proof of her descent, which I have only done in the way of pedigree, and taking the times.

The word Ringaldus I have found in Spelmans Glossary which is the same as is Seneschallus, Surrogatus, Prefectus, or Prepositus.

This is all I have at present to say; resting your most humble servant,
W. Dugdale.

[P.S.]. At St. Albans I heard it reported with great confidence that the parliament was to sit againe the first of march, notwithstanding the prorogation; but I do not finde such newes here. There is no news of moment.

SIR P. T.
MAINWARING'S
MSS.

I have a briefe note from the charter roll of the Tower in 4^o E. 3 that Agnes de Manwaring had free warren granted to her in Wormicham at that time. If you have it not, I will get a copy thereof if you please.

At the end of the "Chartularum Mainwaringianum" the following Letter Missive, with a wafer seal attached, has been inserted on a fly-leaf. It is addressed "to our Trusty and Wellbeloved Philip Manwaring Esqr.:"—

Charles R.—Trusty and Welbeloved, Wee greete you well. Whereas Wee have occasion to speake with yow about Our very especial Service. Our will and pleasure is, That yow immediately make your repayre Unto Us. And hereof yow may not fayle as yow tender Our high Displeasure, and will answere the contrary at your uttermost perill. Since if yow shall neglect to attend Us, Wee cannot but conceive yow yow [sic] to bee ill affected to Us and Our sayd Service, and shall be forced to proceede against you accordingly. Given att Our Court att Chester the 24th of September [1642].

The following copy of a letter from King Charles II. [to Colonel Whitley ?] has been attached to a fly leaf of the "Chartularum Mainwaringianum":—

I am soe much informed of your good affection to me that I cannot doubt of your readiness to assist me with the loan of an hundred pounds, which I will repay to yow as soone as I am able, and the acquittance which the bearer shall give yow (who knows the way of returning it to me) shall be your discharge and oblige me. And I shall take your readiness to assist me herein very well from you,

And shall always be your affectionate friende,

Charles R.

A large folio volume of 934 pages (many of which are blank) in the handwriting of Colonel Whitley; without title or date.

It contains a great number of miscellaneous articles and definitions arranged in alphabetical order, and it may have been a common-place book.

A MS., without title or date, consisting of 600 loose foolscap pages (many of them cancelled), apparently written by Colonel Whitley as materials for a Dictionary. It contains long treatises on Armies, Fortification, Government, Tactics, &c.

A bundle of letters (with more legible copies of the same in Colonel Whitley's handwriting) addressed to Colonel Whitley by Joseph Williamson. Dated, at the Camp at Cologne, $\frac{7}{17}$ Jan^y 1673 to $\frac{14}{24}$ April 1674.

Colonel Whitley's Diary of his movements, visitors, engagements, &c., for every day from April 11th 1684, to July 15th 1697. [On loose sheets of foolscap.]

Lastly I have to mention—Ten large folio volumes of Post Office Records bound in vellum, and several stitched quires of Post Office Accounts.

Six of these volumes, lettered respectively $\frac{A.E.}{A.}$, $\frac{A.E.}{A.}$, $\frac{R.W.}{B.}$, $\frac{R.W.}{C.}$, $\frac{R.W.}{D.}$, and $\frac{R.W.}{E.}$, contain Debtor and Creditor Statements against the names of the Post Office officials, and of other persons engaged in forwarding the Royal Mails, from 1673 to 1677.

The books marked A.E. seem to have been kept for the Earl of Arlington and these marked R.W. for Colonel Roger Whitley.

The remaining four volumes of this set of Post Office Records consist of Letter Books into which the official correspondence of the Post Office was regularly copied.

The earliest of these is endorsed "English letter book, 1672," and contains copies of letters addressed to Post Office agents in England from October 26th, 1672, to March 31st, 1676.

The three other Letter Books are consecutive, and contain copies of letters on Post Office business from September 25th, 1673, to October 2nd, 1677.

I much regret having been unable to make any extracts from these State Papers, but I trust they will be consulted and turned to account if ever a history of the Post Office is undertaken. They seem to have come into the possession of the Mainwarings through the marriage of Sir John Mainwaring, the 2nd Baronet, with Elizabeth₂ daughter of Colonel Whitley.

SIR P. T.
MAINWARING'S
MSS.

In the same chest with the papers and books just described I found a great quantity of deeds, law-papers, memoranda, and letters belonging to Colonel Whitley, but I had not time to examine them. I also found six Commissions signed in blank by King Charles II., one of which is dated 1659.

Colonel Whitley's Diary is the most recent of the Mainwaring MSS. that I took any note of, but, as I have already stated, there is a considerable quantity of MS. material at Peover in the form of old Household-books and letters, which in all probability would well repay examination.

In conclusion I desire to express my hearty acknowledgments for the kindness and hospitality I received at the hands of Sir Philip and Lady Mainwaring whilst inspecting the MSS. at Peover.

H. BARR TOMKINS.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE MISSES MARY MELLARD BOYCOTT, AND MARGARET ANNE BOYCOTT, OF HEREFORD.

BOYCOTTS'
MSS.

The following manuscripts, which were submitted by their owners to the Historical MSS. Commission to be reported on, formerly belonged to Mr. Serjeant Earle, who held the post of the Lord Protector's Serjeant-at-Law during the Commonwealth. He had previously been nominated one of the Parliamentary Commissioners for negotiating the Treaty of Uxbridge, and for many years he was the leader of the Norfolk Circuit. The papers show that he was Recorder of Norwich, and was appointed a Commissioner of Assize on the North-western Circuit in 1656 and 1657.

The first paper and the Council Minute appended to it are of historical interest, as showing how strongly the gentry and King Charles the First were opposed to the enfranchisement of copyholders, and others are interesting as recording particulars of the presents of rings and robes that were customarily distributed by the Serjeants-at-Law on their appointment.

1. Petition of Sir John Hobart, Knt. & Bart., to the King. (Undated.)

Recites: That the Petitioner's father Sir Henry Hobart Knt. Baronet late Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas held the Manor of Aylsham from the King under a Lease of which 23 years are unexpired and obtained the King's leave to purchase it or exchange lands for it and that accordingly the King referred the finishing of the contract to the then Lord Treasurer: That since the death of the petitioner's father the Manor has been granted with other lands to certain trustees for the Mayor Commonalty and Citizens of London who have contracted to sell it to Thomas Leman, John Some and others of its copyhold tenants who intend to enfranchise its copyhold lands "which may not only be prejudicial unto your petitioner, but also inconvenient in point of government in those parts": That the Mayor etc. "at the making of the said contract did not knowe that the said Leman, Some and Pratt purposed to make any number of Coppiholders to be freeholders of smale tenements" and he therefore Prays his Majesty to signify his pleasure that the said Manor should be conveyed to the Petitioner and his heirs on his paying as much as Leman, Some and Pratt should have paid for the same.

At the Court of Whitehall: 7^o Decembris: 1632.

His Majesty considering how dangerous the infranchising of Copyholds wilbe to government, and holding the petitioner's desire very reasonable and well grounded, is graciously pleased to referre the further consideration hereof to the Right Honourable the Lord Treasurer and to Mr. Attorney Generall, who are to take course for satisfying the Petitioner's desire herein so as the Petitioner be obliged to keepe the Tenants copyholders according to his Majesty's intent, and his owne promise. Signed FRAS. WINDEBANK.

2. Extract from the Minutes of Proceedings in the House of Commons.

Die Lune 12^o Julij 1641.

It is this day ordered in the house of Commons that the Benchers of every Inns of Court be authorised by this house to receive the moneyes payable by this Act from such as are members of their severall societyes and also to receive from the principalls of the severall Inns of Chancery belonging to their Societyes such moneyes as are paid by the members of those severall Inns of Chancery. And it is further ordered that the Benchers of the said societyes of Inns of Court shall present a list of the names of such persons as have paid in their moneyes and alsoe of the sums paid by them, to the end it may appeare to the Treasurers who have paid in their moneys that they may give acquittances to the severall persons that have paid the same.

H. ELSINGE, Cler. Dom. Com.

Die Lune 12^o Julij 1641.

It is this day declared by the House of Commons that all such as are Utter Barristers ought to pay 10*li.* within the intencion of the Statute.

H. ELSINGE, Cler. Dom. Com.

3. Copy of Opinion of Serjeant Earle and the Attorney General, on a proposed new charter to be granted to the city of Norwich. Unsigned and undated. Eight paragraphs commenting on the ten clauses of the proposed charter, or in answer to ten questions referred to the writers. It commences "May it please your Lordships," and is endorsed "Serjant Earle and Mr. Attorney their Certificate."

The fourth paragraph runs as follows:—

To the seaventh tending to enforce such as inhabite and trade in the Citty as Cittizens to take their Freedoms at reasonable rates and beare the offices of the Citty: It seems to us to equall That such as take the benefitt of the trade of the Citty should beare their equall burthens in the Charge of the Citty But wee know not that it hath beene done by Charter.

4. [1656 or 1657.] An opinion of Serjeant Earle, the Attorney General and the Sollicitor General to the Protector. Undated.

May it please your Highnes,

In obedience to your reference Wee have considered of the Peticion of John Thompson &c. and of the Proposals thereunto annexed for Telling, Searching, weighing, sealing and packing upp of Calves skyns to be exported. And of the Act of Parliament of 27 H. 8 Capt. 14. And of an Act [1656 cap. 5] made at this Parliament entituled An Act for exportation of severall commodities of the breed, growth and manufacture of this Commonwealth. And Wee find that your Highnes and the Parliament have by the said Act appointed the Surveyor of the Customes or Chiefe Waiter in each Port and Towne to Oversee the Searching, weighing, telling and packing upp of Calves-skyns to bee Exported. Soe as Wee humbly conceive your Highnes and the Parliament having committed the Employment and oversight petitioned for upon the Officers in the Act mencioned Your Highness will not upon the suggestions in the petition and Proposals thereunto annexed conferr the same Employment upon others with a charge upon the People. And if any defect be in the Lawe or abuse in the Officers it is proper to be remadied by the Parliament.

Which nevertheles with all Submission Wee leave to your Highnes wisdoms and Judgement.

Signed, ER. EARLE, EDM. PRIDEAUX, WILLIAM ELLYS.

5. A Minute of the Privy Council.

Tuesday 23rd Feby 1657 [-8]. At the Counsell at Whitehall.

Ordered. That his Highnes Serjeant at Law, Mr. Aturmy Generall, and Mr. Solliciter Generall be desired to give a Meeting to the Committee of Parliament for the Improvement of the Revenues of Customes and Excise to-morrow Morning at ten of the Clock in the Inner Court of Wards to give their Advice to the said Committee upon the Act of Parliament whereby that Committee is constituted.

W. JESSOPP, Clerke of the Counsell.

6. An Opinion of Serjeant Earle and others with respect to encroachments on St. James's Park. Dated 24 Decem. 1657.

Wee are informed that severall persons in the time of the late King or in the time of King James erected severall houses soe nigh the wall of St. James Parke that the same doe overhang the Wall soe as the Raine descending upon the said Houses doth dropp and fall upon the same Wall to the hurt and decaying of the same. This being the case Wee are of opinion That demaund being first made to the present and respective Owners and Farmers of the said severall houses to reforme the said Nuisance, that if it bee not reformed within a convenient time after such demaund made, his Highness may have a Writt of Quod permittat against them respectively to abate the Nuisance.

Signed, ER. EARLE, EDM. PRIDEAUX, WILLIAM ELLYS.

7. A Copy of the report submitted to the Privy Council by the Surveyors appointed to examine the encroachments on the wall of St. James's Park. Dated October 16th 1657, and signed by John Embree, John Miller and William Dobyons. 1½ pp.

Endorsed:—"16 Octob. '57. Copie of the Order (and Certificate) before the Counsell Concerninge the New Buildinges upon James his Parke Wall. Reference to me with others."

8. A letter, signed by Lord Burghley, and addressed "To my Loving friend Thomas Payne gent. Steward of the Q. Majesty's manor of Cawston."

After my heartie commendacions. Whereas Mr. Clement Paston Esquier farmor of her majesties Warren of Conies within her Manor of Cawston in the Countie of Norfolke hath informed me of many disorders committed in that warren by dyvers persons in frequenting those groundes disorderly; These are to requyre yow to make sarch the Court rolles of the Q. Manor aforesaid [for such] presentmentes and penalties as have been made and Imposed in the Court there for the killing or feriting of Conyes in the said Warren and to delyver unto the said Mr. Paston copies thereof under your hand with the dates, having cause to use the same for his more quyet enjoying of the said farm and preservation of the game there. So fare yow well. At my howse in the Strand this xxviiijth of April 1578.

Your Loving Friend, W. BURGHEY.

Tho. Payne, Steward.

9. The same to the same "from the Court at Westminster this ix. of March 1579" asking the latter to search the rolls of the Manor of Cawston on behalf of Sir Edward Clive.

This letter is signed by Lord Burghley. On the blank page is a long and very illegible business letter signed by Thomas Payne. On the outer page of the same sheet are written several stanzas of a poem, in Payne's handwriting, which commences as follows:—

Who seketh the renowne to have
And eke the praise of vertue's name
Of wisdom rare he ought to crave
With gladsome wyll to make the same.

10. Letter of Thomas Sydney to the same, dated 5th of Aprill 1580. Certifying that Bridget Reve, one of the daughters and coheirs of the late John Reve of Cawston, is willing that George Sawyer her brother should take up to her use such copyhold lands as she ought to have by the death of her father.

Addressed "To my vearye Frend Mr. Payne at Etringham."

11. A letter from Sir Walter Mildmay to the same, dated 11th of Feb. 1580 [-81], requesting him to make diligent search in the court rolls of the Manor of Cawston for deeds concerning a certain ground called Jerbridge Wood or Jerbridge Park, and to deliver copies of the same to Roger Towneshend Esquire or to the bearer thereof.

12. A letter from the same to the same, dated 20th of June 1581, requesting him to search the court rolls of the Manor of Cawston for any evidence touching the sheep pasture there called the Eld corse, and to deliver a copy thereof "to Mr. Clement Paston Esquier her Majesties Fermor of the said manor."

This letter is addressed "To my loving Frendes Thomas Payne, and Arthur F[o]unt[a]yn[e] gent., and other her Majesty's officers within her manor of Cawston in Norfolk to deliver theis."

12. A letter, signed by Lord Salisbury and Sir Julius Cæsar, dated "From the Court at Whitehall this xxiiiith of March 1608 [-9]."

The address, which is torn, runs as follows:—" . . . loving freind John [Fountaine ?] gent., Steward of his [Majesties] Mannors of Cawston, [Rougham] or Riffam, and [. . .] ham, in the countie of [Norfolk] or to his Deputie."

This letter begins "After our hartie commendacions Whereas directions have bene sent unto yow heretofore in print, to take fines of such Copieholders, etc."

13. A letter, signed by Lord Salisbury and Sir Julius Cæsar, dated "From Whitehall this xxth of December 1610, and addressed at foot "To our loveinge Freinds John Fountaine Esqr. his Majesties Bayliffe of the said Mannor, Edward Hamond clarke, George Sawyer, Edward Lombe and his majesties Heyward there for the tyme beinge."

BOYCOTTS'
MSS.

This letter asks for a further and more exact rental of the Manor of Cawston than his Majesty's Commissioners had recently returned, and is endorsed "My Lord Tresurer his Letter—20 Dec. 1610."

14. The Oath, on the Parliamentary printed form, of Erasmus Earle Esqr., that the sum of seventy pounds is the twentieth part of the estate he was possessed of "at the time of the making of the Ordinance of the 29th of November 1642, for Assesments, or at any time since to the day of the date hereof. Such Mannors and Landes as were settled upon my eldest son and other my Children, before the said 29th Nov. 1642 and such Mannors and landes, as were assigned to my said Eldest son for the Terme of 1,000 yeares or thereabouts, for the Assuring of the payment of 800*l.* and interest for the same excepted, And desperate debts about 80*l.* also excepted.

Note.—From the names of the persons to whom Rings were to be given it would appear that this paper was drawn up towards the end of the year 1648. Philip Jermyn was raised to the Bench in Oct. 1648, and Mr. Justice Cresheld refused to act after the execution of Charles I. In Foss's "Biographia Juridica," under the name of Justice Atkins, it is stated that the last call of Serjeants at Law in the reign of Charles I. took place on May 19th 1640, but these papers would seem to prove the contrary.

19. Copy of a Memorandum dated "The 7th day of June Anno Dom. 1652." Signed by Chief Justice Oliver St. John and Sir William Drake.

Whereas I have this day agreed to Admit Sir William Drake of Sharneloves in the county of Buckenham knight and Barronet into the Office of Chirographer of the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster For the having of which office the said Sir William Drake hath heretofore obtayned Letters Patents of the late King:—If betweene this and the end of Michaelmas terme next it shall be thought fitt by the Councell of the said Sir William to have the said Letters Patents Inrolled in the said Court of Common Pleas For the better strengthening of his Right and title in and to the said office Then it is agreed betweene me and the said Sir William that such a saveing [clause] shall be added upon the Roll upon which the said Letters Patents shall be entered at the foote of the Inrollement of the said Letters Patents As shall be thought fitt by Sergeant Browne and Mr. Hales of Councell with the said Sir William Drake or by either of them And by Sergeant Earle of my Councell For the preserving of such Right and Tittle As I and my Successors Cheife Justices of the said Court of Common Pleas have or of right ought to have to dispose of the said office in the future After the determinacion of the said Letters Patents by the death of the said Sir William or otherwise.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF LORD MUNCASTER, M.P.

The muniments at Muncaster Castle are carefully kept in tin boxes, and a hand-list of them has been recently made, so that any particular document can be readily found. I subjoin notes of the more important of the mediæval deeds, the references to which indicate their respective positions in the different bundles.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

The second section of this report is a calendar of the contents of a volume in which are transcribed a great number of letters and official documents relating to the government of the border land of England and Scotland during the early years of the reign of James I.

The third section consists of extracts from the logs kept by Admiral Pennington, in the reign of Charles I., before the outbreak of the Civil War.

Two letters of later date give some particulars concerning the Rebellion of 1745.

33. Bond of Rauland Thrylkelde and Lancelot Thrylkelde to John Pennington, knight, to abide by the award of Thomas, Abbot of Furness, and other arbitrators. October 6, 9 Henry VII.

35. Award of Henry, Earl of Northumberland, lord of the honors of Cockermouth and Petworth, Lord Ponyns, Fitzpayn, and Brian, between Sir John Pennington, knight, and John Lamplugh, esquire, to whom jointly he had granted the "office of Maistir forstership" of all his woods and game within his lordships of Eskdale (Esshedaille) and Wastdalehead (Wasedaillehed), co. Cumberland. Neither is to execute the office without the assent of the other. May 4, 19 Henry VII. Sign-manual affixed.

61. Grant of arms by Charles II. to Sir Edward Nicholas, late Principal Secretary to the King's father, in augmentation of his own arms. The arms granted:—Argent on a cross gules, a cross imperial, are to be used either alone, or in the first place quarterly with the proper arms of the grantee's family:—Argent a fesse wavy between three ravens sable. Crest, a lion azure starry. Dated at Castle Elizabeth in the island of Jersey. December 17 in the first year of the King's reign, 1649. Sign manual "Carolus R." The seal is missing. The margin is illuminated with shields, etc.

70. Copy of an award by Edmund, Bishop of London, between the Dean and the Canons Residentiary of St. Paul's. February 15, 1554.

A. 3. Grant by Henry, Earl of Northumberland, and lord of the honour of Cockermouth, to his esquire John Pennington, of the office of Bailiff of Copeland, co. Cumberland, for the term of his life. December 14, 1470.

B. 3. Agreement between James Laybourne of Konnyswyke, co. Westmoreland, esquire, and Sir John Pennington of Muncaster (Monkasty), for a marriage between Thomas, son and heir apparent of the said James, and Margaret, daughter of the said Sir John, relict of John Lamplogh. February 8, 2 Henry VII.

4. Acquittance from Nicholas Rigmaydene of the county of Lancaster, esquire, to John Pennington, knight, for eighty marks in part payment of the marriage (maritagii) of John Rigmaydene, son and heir of the said Nicholas with Catherine, daughter of the said John Pennington. A.D. 1489.

5a. A similar acquittance for 10*l.* from Nicholas Righmaidyn of Weddacre, esquire. July 26, 8 Henry VII. (Cf. XLVII. 25, 26.)

A folio volume in a parchment cover, fastened with an ancient clasp. It contains copies of letters and other documents relating to the Commission appointed by James I. for the pacification and government of the borderland of his two kingdoms. They are all in one small, neat hand, and almost in chronological order. There is reason to believe that they were made for Joseph Pennington of Muncaster, one of the Commissioners, from originals in the possession of Sir Wilfred Lawson, the most active of his colleagues, and the custodian of their papers. The name of Graham is generally given as Grayme, and Grey as Gray, but in the following calendar I have modernised these and most other proper names.

LORD
MSS.

f. 1. [February 25, 1605.] The King to Sir William Selby, Sir Robert Delaval, Sir Wilfred Lawson, Sir William Seaton, and Sir William Hòme, knights, Joseph Pennington, Edward Grey of Morpeth, Patrick Chirmeside of East Nisbit, John Charteris (Chartrows) of Amesfield, and Gideon Murray of Elibank, esquires. Commission for the speedy suppressing of offenders in the counties of Northumberland, Westmoreland and Cumberland, and in the shires and parishes of Norham, the Holy Island, and Bedlington, parcel of the county palatine of Durham, and in the shiredoms and towns of Berwick, Roxburgh, Selkirk, Peebles, Dumfries, and in the stewardries of Kircudbright and Annerdale. (Printed in Rymer's "Fœdera.")

f. 2. February 25, 1605. The King to Edmund, Lord Sheffield, President of the Council in the North, and to his two justices of assize in the counties of Northumberland, Cumberland, and Westmoreland, and to Sir Thomas Hesketh, Attorney of the Court of Wards and Liveries, Sir William Selby, Sir Robert Delaval, Sir Wilfred Lawson, Joseph Pennington, and Edward Grey of Morpeth. Commission of oyer and terminer. (Latin.)

February 14, 1604 [-5]. Whitehall. The Council to the Commissioners appointed for the government of the late borders. Instructions as to the execution of the commission. Those malefactors of the surname of Graham who have been received to their submission are not to be meddled with for any offences committed before their submissions. Persons under bail to appear at the gaol delivery are to be left for trial there. All persons living within the bounds of the commission, or in certain other specified districts, are to be forbidden the use of all manner of armour and weapons, and of horses, "savinge meane naggs for their tillage," excepting noble men and gentlemen and their household servants. The evidence of a Scotsman against an Englishman, and of an Englishman against a Scotsman is to be received.

f. 3. N.D. The King to the Commissioners. Instructions as to the execution of the Commission. One of the English side is to be commander of the rest for the first three months, and then one of the Scottish side for three months, and so afterwards alternately. All deadly feuds are to be suppressed. Fugitives from one country to the other are to be delivered to the ordinary officer on demand. All idle vagabonds are to be expelled from the bounds of the commission. All in whom there can be expected no hope of amendment may be removed to some other place, "where the change of aire will make in them an exchange of their manners." The armour "which hath served the broken people within those bonds in their lewd actions may be taken from them." A certificate of proceedings is to be sent to the Councils of both kingdoms every two months, or oftener.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

f. 4. February 23, 1604 [-5]. Whitehall. The Council to the Commissioners appointed on the English side. Order to meet at Carlisle "on the Monday seavnnight after Easter daye next" at latest.

f. 5. April 9, 1605. Carlisle. Articles agreed upon by the Commissioners. (Printed in Nicolson and Burn's "History of Westmorland and Cumberland," vol. i., p. cxxvii.)

f. 6. February 22, 1604 [-5]. Verbal instructions delivered to the Commissioners by Viscount Cranborne at the Council Table. "After we had received the names of such as had submitted themselves, we should after our returne, consider of 150 of them fytt for his majestee's service, and by sendinge away of whome the countrie might be best eased."

February 23, 1604 [-5]. Verbal instructions delivered to the Commissioners by the Lord Chancellor at York House, as to outlawries and pardons.

March 23, 1605. Edinburgh. Alexander Dunfermeling, Lord Chancellor of Scotland, to Sir Wilfred Lawson. Letter accompanying the Commission, sealed with the Great Seal of both kingdoms.

April 17, 1605. Dumfries. The Commissioners to the Council. We met at Carlisle on the 6th inst., and summoned all the Grahams who were bound for themselves and their followers. Whereas two of every branch were bound, we have ordered that six of the principal of every branch shall be bound for themselves and their followers, and that each of these six shall find two sureties. We have made orders "for the better government of the broken people of either countrie," subject to reform by the Council. We send a list of one hundred and fifty Grahams who have submitted themselves, and whom we think most fit to be sent away. Many of the said Grahams appear to be poor labourers and undertenants to the rest. Many complaints are made by English and Scots alike about offences made before the death of the late Queen.

f. 7. "The copie of the names of the Graymes which are to be sent away." One hundred and forty-nine names are given. Among them are:—1, William Graham of Mote; 2, Arthur Graham, his brother; 3, Richard Graham, son to Walter of Netherby; 4, Richard Graham, alias Jocks Ritchee; 6, John Graham, alias All our Eames; 7, Hutchin Graham, alias Young Hutchin; 13, George (sic) Graham, alias Geordies Sandie; 15, Richard Graham, alias Long Ritchee; 67, Thomas Graham of Easton, alias Ritchies Wills Thom.

f. 8. April 17, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Scottish. Since our departure from you today, we have learned that the leaving out of Richard Graham, son of Walter Graham of Netherby, is so evil taken, that we shall be taxed of partiality. We wish therefore to add his name to the list. We desire also to have all the different branches of the Grahams before us, face to face, so that we may see which are most fit to be sent away.

f. 9. April 18, 1605. Dumfries. The Scottish Commissioners to the English. Concerning Richard Graham of Netherby, and the offence against John Skelton.

April 26, 1605. Greenwich. The Council to the Commissioners. They forbid them to punish persons for actions done by virtue of warrants from the Earl of Cumberland, who deserves well of the King.

April 29, 1605. The Court. The Earl of Cumberland to the English Commissioners. Encloses a copy of the King's warrant.

f. 10. June 22, 1604. Greenwich. The King to the Earl of Cumberland. Warrant to stay the prosecution of those who, on the King's first entry into England, had in rebellious manner disturbed the peace and spoiled many persons, but who were known not to have been malefactors before that time.

May 6, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Cumberland. Concerning their proceedings against Hetherington and John Musgrave.

f. 11. May 4, 1605. Greenwich. The Council to the English Commissioners. Order for the postponement of the trial of Robert Wallis of Hamilton on a capital charge.

May 6, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to Viscount Cranborne. At the gaol delivery at Carlisle, four persons have been condemned and executed for murder, and one for horse-stealing.

May 6, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Council. The country is at present peaceable, and not much infested with murder or theft.

May 12, 1605. Newcastle. The same to the same. At the gaol delivery for Northumberland, six persons have been condemned for horse-stealing and other felonies. We do our best to encourage true men to complain of such as have committed felonies.

f. 12. May 17, 1605. Greenwich. The Council to the English Commissioners, in reply to the letter dated at Dumfries on the 17th of April. The King's clemency towards the Grahams who have submitted themselves has been shewn in pardoning their lives, and furthermore in disposing of them so that they shall be in no worse condition than his other good subjects who were not offenders, being appointed to be sent to serve in the garrisons and cautionary towns of Flushing and Brill, places where many honest men desire to be maintained in service. You are to appoint two very discreet persons to conduct them to Newcastle by the last day of June, whence one hundred will be conveyed to Flushing, and fifty to Brill. For the charges of their journey to Newcastle, we require you to provide as much money as will serve them at the rate of 8*d.* a day to every man, and 4*s.* a day for each of the conductors, and the money so disbursed by you will be repaid out of the Exchequer.

Same day and place. The same to the same. It has been no pleasing information to his Majesty, and evil news to us, to hear of the escape of twenty-eight or twenty-nine prisoners from the prison at Carlisle. It seems strange that you have not told us what has become of them, or what course has been taken for the recovery of them.

f. 13. April 7, 1605. Carlisle. Sir. W. Lawson to Viscount Cranborne. Having heard that the prisoners condemned when the Earl of Cumberland was his Majesty's Lieutenant here had broken the prison on Wednesday last at night, I have repaired to Carlisle, where I find that twenty-nine out of thirty-three have escaped. Enclosed is a list of their names. Eight are Scots, who have gone to Scotland; the rest are Englishmen, of whom nine or ten should have been met yesterday between Penrith and Appleby, travelling southwards.

"The names of the prisoners that made an escape forth of Carliell Castle." Seven bear the name of Armstrong, and five that of Graham.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

April 27, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir J. Charteris. Concerning the escape of the eight Scotsmen from the Castle.

f. 14. April 29 ("this penult of Aprill"), 1605. Dumfries. Sir J. Charteris to Sir W. Lawson. I have spoken to Lord Maxwell, who is steward of the country, and master of most of the Scotsmen, so that none of them should be "resett" or "have any supplement" within his Lordship's bounds, urging him to send his baily to take up their houses and remove their wives and families. The countries must be charged to rise and assist the garrisons.

June 2, 1605. Berwick. The English Commissioners to the Council. Two of the escaped prisoners, Matthew Graham and Richard Blackburne, have been apprehended. It will be difficult to get men of some quality as conductors of the Grahams for 4s. a day.

f. 15. Same day and place. The Commissioners to the Council. We have taken order that Sir Henry Leigh and Sir William Cranston, with the horsemen in his Majesty's pay under their charge, shall go to the west parts, to search for the condemned prisoners who have escaped from Carlisle, and, if they have taken the woods, to demolish their houses and expel their families, and to apprehend their "aiders and comforters." Forty horsemen have been enrolled for this service.

June 3, 1605. Berwick. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Salisbury. Confirms his letter of April 27.

June 2, 1605. Greenwich. The Council to the English Commissioners. Each of the two conductors of the Grahams is to have 6s. a day instead of 4s., and each may have a lieutenant with an allowance of 4s. a day. Whosoever of the men appointed to go to the cautionary towns shall run away, must expect to be punished with death.

f. 16. June 13, 1605. Berwick. Thomas Parkinson, Mayor of Berwick, to the Commissioners. "I caused a drume to warne all the ould servitors, such as were or had been officers, to meet together in the parado, where I read and shewed your letter." William Breddiman, gentleman, sometime under-marshal, and William Nodder, gentleman, late officer to Sir John Skinner, offered themselves to be leaders, and William Lambe, late officer to Captain Bowyer, offered himself to be lieutenant. These are approved by general opinion of all. They will not fail to be at Carlisle on the 18th. They pray that they may be well paid, and desire to have allowance for two drums.

June 27, 1605. Edinburgh. Sir William Cranston to the English Commissioners. I have burned all the houses on the Scottish side, at Staykhue.

June 29, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Scottish. We have denounced seven of the principal men of the hundred-and-fifty Grahams as fugitives, and we pray you to take order for their apprehension.

f. 17. Same day and place. The same to Sir William Cranston. Order to repair to Carlisle with all speed.

"The names of the principall Graymes that made default. 1. Hutchin Graime alias Young Hutchin," and six others.

June 29, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Scottish. We send a copy of his Majesty's warrant delivered to us by Hutchin Graham. We have answered him that he should have what in duty and reason thereunto appertained, but he, giving it out to be a warrant to free him and all his clan from going over to Flushing or Brill, absents himself and sets a lewd example to others.

May 13, 1605. Greenwich. The King to the Commissioners. Warrant to spare the lives of Hutchin Graham and other malefactors who were in the field when Sanders Ringell Armstrong was taken, and to whom, for that service, pardon was promised.

June 29, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Governor of Brill, or his deputy. We have received orders from the Council for sending away fifty of the Grahams to Brill, under a sufficient conductor and lieutenant, who are thence to return. We have chosen Thomas Carleton as conductor, and William Lambe as lieutenant. They have spent long time in the wars, and being now desirous to serve his Majesty, we commend them to you for employment.

June 28, 1605. Carlisle. The same to the Mayor of Newcastle. We should have sent one hundred and fifty of the Grahams by the last of the month, but their appearance has been so slack that we can send only fifty, who are to be shipped to Brill. We hope to send one hundred for Flushing within four days.

f. 18. June 30, 1605. Carlisle. The same to the Earl of Salisbury.

Same day and place. The same to the Council. Three of the escaped prisoners have voluntarily submitted themselves to prison, where they now remain with the four that fled not and the two that were formerly apprehended. At present the woods yield some relief to the others. We summoned the bondmen to appear on the 21st inst., then again on the 25th, and again on the 28th, but there appeared only eighty-five. We have therefore sent fifty to Brill, and delivered the others to their conductor, William Breddiman, and his lieutenant, William Nodder. We have caused Hutchin Graham and seven others to be denounced as fugitives. He is a man generally evil thought of here. We marvel at the absence of Sir William Selby from this service, and of the ten men in his Majesty's pay who are with him.

f. 19. List of the fifty Grahams sent to Brill.

f. 20. The fifty Grahams sent to Brill to the English Commissioners. Many of us who were true men confessed ourselves offenders, by reason of the Earl of Cumberland's promise that provision should be made for our wives and children, nearly a thousand in number, as good as that which we had upon Esk. We therefore pray for the fulfilment of this promise. We could in a month raise three hundred able men to serve his Majesty under our own leaders. We are willing to go to the mouth of the cannon, to the block, or to the gibbet, to show our loyalty.

f. 21. The same to the King. Petition to the same effect.

May 13, 1605. Greenwich. The King to the Commissioners. Warrant as before.

f. 22. June 26, 1605. Skipton. The Earl of Cumberland to Sir W. Lawson. Encloses a letter from the Council, dated June 1, 1605.

June 1, 1605. Greenwich. The Council to the Earl of Cumberland. Complaint has been made to us by William Wicklyffe, servant to the Earl of Northumberland, of an attack made on him and the Earl's auditor and others travelling along the borders, by certain persons who robbed them, and carried him to prison. He says that there are certain persons, chargeable with offences of their own, who can make proof against Roger Witherington and Randell Fenwick in this matter. They are to receive assurance for coming and going in safety.

MUNCASTER'S

July 1, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Cumberland. David of the Bankhead has come in and humbled himself to his Majesty, and it is thought that Hutchin and others will do likewise to-day.

f. 23. June 25, 1605. The Earl of Montrose to the English Commissioners. Although you have determined to transport certain of my cousins to Newcastle on Saturday night, there to remain in ward, I entreat you to permit Richard Graham, son of Walter of Netherby, to remain with me. I will be answerable for him to the King, to the Council, and to you.

June 30, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Montrose. We may in no way alter the list of those who are to be sent over to the Low Countries, and the name of Richard Graham is on the list sent to us by the Privy Council of England.

July 4, 1605. Newcastle. Thomas Riddell, Mayor of Newcastle, to the English Commissioners. I pray you to give me certain warning of the coming of the hundred men, otherwise I shall be forced either to stay a ship, or to stay them, at the King's charge.

July 6, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Governor of Flushing. As we cannot get the whole number of a hundred Grahams, we send seventy-two under the charge of William Breddiman and William Nodder.

[July 6, 1605.] Testimonial of the English Commissioners that David Graham of the Bankhead, appointed to go to Flushing with others, differs from most of the rest of his surname in that generally he has not been accounted a thief or a "resetter" of thieves, but a man of more civil government and behaviour than most of the rest.

f. 24. July 6, 1605. Carlisle. Testimonial of the same that Richard Graham, appointed to go to Flushing, is the eldest son of Walter Graham of Netherby, the chief of all the Grahams dwelling between Leven and Sarke, who should receive such favour as to his "demerit" shall appertain.

July 7, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Salisbury. We have sent seventy-two Grahams to Newcastle. Hutchin Graham of the Gards and John Graham, alias Jock of the Pear-tree, have much hindered this service, and their offence ought not to be passed over.

Same day and place. The same to the Council. We have sent seventy-two Grahams to Newcastle, with 2s. apiece for three days, 7l. 4s., and 19l. for their conductors. Of the seven principal Grahams whom we denounced as fugitives, four have submitted themselves, and have gone with the others, viz., Richard Graham, son of Walter of Netherby, David Graham of the Bankhead, Alexander Graham of Kirkanders, alias Geordies Sandie, and Hutchin Graham of Rowcliffe. Hutchin Graham of Gards still gives out that he has a free pardon for himself and all his, whereas the King's warrant applies to five only, of whom two dwell in Scotland, one has been hanged, and one has willingly gone to Flushing. Jock of the Pear-tree is the other. We have expelled the families and uncovered the houses of those who still stand out. There are persons of other surnames whose lives have been no better than those of the Grahams.

f. 25. List of fifty-four Grahams named in the schedule and sent to Flushing.

f. 26. List of eighteen Grahams, sent to Flushing in place of others named in the schedule, who are dead, sick, or hurt, or otherwise unable to go.

List of twenty Grahams, named in the schedule, who are unable to go, with the causes of their unfitness.

f. 27. List of nineteen Grahams who have not appeared.

List of six Grahams, who were named twice in the schedule.

July 6, 1605. Skipton. The Earl of Cumberland to Sir W. Lawson. Comments on his proceedings.

July 11, 1605. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Cumberland. In defence of his proceedings.

f. 28. July 14, 1605. Skipton. The Earl of Cumberland to Sir W. Lawson. Expresses satisfaction.

July 18, 1605. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson. Enclose a letter from the Earl of Northampton, and ask for his advice in the matter.

f. 29. July 10, 1605. Whitehall. The Earl of Northampton to the English Commissioners. Enquires as to the truth of the petition of George Graham and William Graham, alias Rosetrees the younger, who say that they have not been guilty of any crimes. Petition, etc., enclosed.

July 20, 1605. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. If the two Grahams mentioned in the Earl of Northampton's letter are not already gone to Brill, they may be respited; otherwise enquiry must be made as to their behaviour, especially during what is called "the busie weeke."

f. 30. August 4, 1605. Haddington. [Sir William Seaton] to the English Commissioners. Invites them to send one or two of their number to Hawick on the 26th inst. to be present at the trials.

August 6, 1605. Same place. The same to Sir W. Lawson. Sir W. Selby or Sir W. Lawson would be the fittest to attend at Hawick. The English Commissioners must inform Sir William Cranston, before the 20th inst., of the person or persons selected, and of the number of the train, because the commodity of lodging is much worse at Hawick than at Dumfries.

f. 31. August 14, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir William Cranston. We have been expecting to hear from you and to receive some of those who broke his Majesty's castle, and some of the fugitive Grahams, who, we hear, go about openly at Edinburgh and elsewhere.

August 8, 1605. Newcastle. Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey, to Sir W. Lawson. The commissions of oyer and terminer for England and Scotland are distinct, and it appears to us that we have nothing to do with the meeting of the Scottish Commissioners at Hawick.

June 27, 1605. Westminster. The King to the English Commissioners. Warrant for a certificate concerning forfeited recognisances.

August 20, 1605. Grafton. The Earl of Northampton to the English Commissioners. Sir Henry Leigh has asked for the escheats of the goods of fugitives and their abettors, with the benefit of all forfeited recognisances, on the English side, in order to enable him to bear the burden of his service. The King, however, will not grant his suit until he has heard your opinion in the matter.

MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

f. 32. April 30, 1605. Normanby. Lord Sheffield to the Commissioners. Warrant for the apprehension of Nicholas Musgrave and others, for assault upon one Thomas Lancaster.

July 13, 1605. York. The same to the same. Encloses and supports a petition from Hugh Carliel of Birtley.

N.D. Hugh Carliel of Birtley to Lord Sheffield, Lord President of the North. Petition for the apprehension of Thomas Rotherforth of Rochester, John Rotherforth, alias John the Galliard, and seven others, notorious offenders, who cut off the petitioner's left hand. He has been striving for nine or ten years to have them apprehended, although they go publicly abroad.

f. 33. August 31, 1605. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Sir William Selby alleges that his men are too busy to apprehend the persons named in the Lord President's letter. The Sheriff of Northumberland is absent, and very busy about his Majesty's affairs, touching recusants, etc. Give directions to Sir Henry Leigh to apprehend them, and subscribe our names. We perceive that Sir W. Selby will keep his men to himself, and will not be at our directions. There are nightly divers stealths in this country, and they are likely to increase. It is desirable to write to the Council for authority to send away persons of bad disposition for the King's service abroad.

September 7, 1605. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. Supports the suit of Sir Henry Leigh to the King.

September 1, 1605. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to Sir W. Lawson. I send the articles concluded at Hawick. There was a somewhat vehement disputation. The Commissioners of Scotland "made no bones" to kill such fugitives or felons as made resistance. I was not of that opinion concerning those that should be taken on our side. Give Sir Henry Leigh your opinion in the matter. He is very discreet, but he relies much on your judgment.

August 28, 1605. Hawick. Articles agreed upon by the Commissioners, concerning the prosecution of suits between Englishmen and Scots.

f. 34. September 7, 1605. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby. Concerning forfeited recognisances.

September 7, 1605. Same place. The same to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. Concerning the apprehension of offenders in Northumberland.

September 13, 1605. Carlisle. The same to the Scottish Commissioners. Common report says that the Armstrongs of Kinmouth, who were the principal prisoners who escaped from Carlisle Castle, remain quietly at their houses, and that Hutchin Graham with his followers, who were the chief causers of the disobedience of the Grahams, go openly up and down, in Scotland. This is a hindrance to the King's service, and a pernicious example. Postscript.—Four of the Grahams who were sent to Flushing (whose names are given) have returned without licence and fled to Scotland. Pray give order that they may be apprehended.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

f. 35. September 14, 1605. Isell. The same to Sir Henry Leigh. Concerning the wife of Ritchies Geordie.

September 17, 1605. Dumfries. Lord Amesfield to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning a horse bought at the last fair at Carlisle by a gentleman of Scotland, William Glendynninge (Glendon).

July 19, 1905. Whitehall. The Council to the Commissioners. Order enquiry into the petition of Mungo Ribton.

f. 36. N.D. Mungo Ribton of Cockermouth to the King. As he was travelling in Gillesland, co. Cumberland, with William Wickliffe, esq., and William Stockdale, upon the affairs of the Earl of Northumberland, they were beset by a company of barbarous people, who spoiled them of horses, money, and apparel, to the value of 200*l.*, and carried away Wickliffe and Ribton into Scotland as prisoners, and ransomed them, to the overthrow of their estates and families. They also spoiled Stockdale of all that he had, to the value of 100 marks. The petitioner prosecuted the matter at Carlisle, but no punishment has been inflicted upon the offenders, or recompense on him. He prays for the apprehension of the said offenders, and of one of the chief of them, Geoffrey Carleton, who remains near London.

September 20 [1605]. Lord Applegarth to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning a horse.

September 17 [1605]. Dumfries. William Glendynninge to Lord Applegarth. Concerning the same.

September 26 [1605]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Lord Applegarth. Concerning the same.

September 26, 1605. Same place. The same to Sir J. Charteris. Concerning the same.

f. 37. September 7, 1605. Appleby Castle. William Hutton, Christopher Pickeringe, Gerard Lowther, and five others, constables of the Earl of Cumberland in the forest of Nichol, and the parish of Arthuret, co. Cumberland, to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Desire to be sworn as constables, and to be allowed to bear arms.

September 27, 1605. Morpeth. E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson. In support of Sir Henry Leigh's suit to the King.

September 6, 1605. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to Sir W. Lawson, J. Pennington, and E. Grey. In support of the same.

f. 38. [September, 1605.] Sir W. Selby's opinion concerning the same.

October 6, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby. Concerning forfeited recognisances.

October 7, 1605. Same place. The same and J. Pennington to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. Many of the Grahams have returned, and daily return. We will commit such of them as have returned without warrant, until the pleasure of the Council be known. None of the nineteen fugitives, or of the Armstrongs of Kynemouth, have been brought in, although several letters have been sent to the Scottish Commissioners, and to Sir William Cranston. We send you a draft of an answer to the Earl of Northampton concerning Sir Henry Leigh's suit. Postscript:—By Sir H. Leigh's means, Hutchin Graham has submitted himself to his Majesty's mercy. We have committed him prisoner to Carlisle Castle.

f. 39. October 7, 1605. Same place. The same to the Council. About twenty-four of the Grahams who were sent to Flushing have returned, and it is said that as many more have landed in divers parts, and they are daily expected here. Some have licences of divers sorts, as some to return within two months, etc. We have issued a warrant to Sir H. Leigh for the apprehension of such as have returned without licence. The better sort much dislike the return of the Grahams. There is some stealing here, and it is likely to increase by reason of the return of these Grahams. Sir H. Leigh has done good service with regard to Hutchin Graham.

October 8, 1605. Same place. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Salisbury. Being one of the Knights of the Shire for the county of Cumberland, and also one of the Commissioners for the middle shires of Great Britain, I desire to know whether it is the King's pleasure that I should come up to serve at the Parliament, or remain here.

f. 40. October 7, 1605. Same place. The same to the Earl of Northumberland to the same effect.

List of nineteen Grahams returned from Flushing, with and without licence.

October 7, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to Sir H. Leigh, Provost Marshal at Carlisle. Warrants for the apprehension of such Grahams as have returned without licence, and for the detention of Hutchin Graham.

f. 41. October 15, 1605. The Duchy House. The Earl of Cumberland to Sir W. Lawson. I had some conference yesterday with the Earls of Suffolk and Salisbury, and they resolved that it was fit that you should come up to the Parliament, and thus acquaint their lordships with your proceedings.

October 23, 1605. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Northampton. They endorse the opinion of Sir W. Selby concerning the suit of Sir H. Leigh.

October 23, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Cumberland. I am troubled with an infirmity in my leg and unable to undergo a long journey. We have appointed a gaol delivery at Carlisle on the 6th of November, and another at Newcastle on the 11th. I therefore crave that my absence may be pardoned. Otherwise on further advertisement I shall perform the commands given to me to the uttermost of my power, if I can travel but ten miles a day. More of the Grahams are returning daily. If some order be not taken, they will all be shortly at home again.

f. 42. Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Salisbury. To the same effect.

October 24, 1605. Same place. The same to the same. By the negligence of the gaoler's servants, who left the door open when they brought in the prisoners' supper, five notable thieves escaped out of the gaol here last night, of whom one only has been taken again. There remain eight to be tried at the next gaol delivery. This is the third time that prisoners have escaped since the present sheriff entered office.

Same day and place. The same to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. To the same effect. The Scottish Commissioners have been invited to attend the gaol deliveries.

f. 43. Same day and place. The same to the Scottish Commissioners. Demands the apprehension of certain persons, and invites the Commissioners to attend the gaol deliveries, to see justice indifferently ministered. Two of the prisoners who have escaped from Carlisle are Scotsmen.

October 19, 1605. Whitehall. The Council to the English Commissioners. His Majesty has been acquainted with your care and diligence in sifting out the manner and means of the return of the Grahams from service in the Low Countries. His pleasure is that all who have come with a pass shall be sent back to Newcastle to be there embarked and returned to the captain under whom they served. We have written to the Mayor of Newcastle and to Viscount Lisle, Governor of Flushing. It has been usual to grant leave of absence for two months to ordinary soldiers, and the Governor and his deputy did not know that the men sent over from your parts were destined to remain beyond the seas without returning. You are to proceed according to justice against those who have returned without licence concerning their former offences, and keep them in prison until his Majesty's pleasure is known. The passports subscribed by the name of Philip Thormington are counterfeit, for he is not captain of any company in those parts. Sir H. Leigh has done acceptable service in procuring the submission of Hutchin Graham, who is to be detained in Carlisle Castle until further directions. When these orders have been obeyed, Sir W. Lawson is to repair to Parliament.

f. 44. October 14, 1605. The Court at Hinchbrook (?). The Duke of Lenox to the English Commissioners. The King has promised to give leave to young William Graham, alias Rosetrees, to return from Brill, upon your certificate of his honesty and good behaviour, which pray send by the bearer, who will wait for it.

September 28, 1605. Hampton Court. Sir Roger Wilbraham to the same. On behalf of George Graham of Burnefoote, who has shewed his loyalty in apprehending one Sander Rynion, a rebellious malefactor. You have threatened to press him for service in the Low Countries. He is lame and impotent, and he has the charge of a wife and twelve children.

May 23, 1605. Warrant from the Earl of Cumberland to stay proceedings against William Taylor for a burglary said to have been committed thirteen years since. He has been employed in his Majesty's service and has deserved well therein, especially in the taking of Robert Sandie, a notable thief and murderer, who was at the murder of Sir John Carmichael. Taylor had a promise of mercy from the Bishop of Carlisle and Sir Charles Hailes.

October 13, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Concerning the gaol deliveries.

f. 45. October 28, 1605. Whitehall. The Earl of Salisbury to Sir W. Lawson. Considering your infirmity, the King is not strict in the matter of your coming up at the time of the Parliament, and he refers it to your own discretion.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

November 14, 1605. Newcastle. The English Commissioners to the Council. Some of the Grahams have been apprehended at Newcastle. We have proceeded against two for leaving the King's service. The prisoners here say that of the seventy-two sent to Flushing there are at most fourteen remaining there. Sir H. Leigh has had no great success in apprehending them. He alleges that they flee into Scotland. Hutchin Graham's example has not been followed. Four notable thieves were executed at the gaol delivery at Carlisle, and ten at Newcastle. The King's pardon to particular malefactors encourages others. In our opinion the provinces within our commission ought to be exempted from any general pardon by special proviso. English malefactors are received in Scotland, especially in the west.

f. 46. November 14, 1605. Same place. The same to Sir Roger Wilbraham. George Graham of Burnfoote did not any service to the King on the borders in the apprehension of Sandie Rynion. When all the Grahams were commanded to come before us at Carlisle, he stood out and caused his sureties, two honest men, to forfeit a thousand pound bond, to their utter undoing. He stands outlawed of felony, and, as we are informed, he was in "the ill weeke" at the spoiling of Orton, the burning of Richard Johnson's house, and the spoiling of Little Orton, in the first year of his Majesty's reign.

f. 47. November 12, 1605. Same place. Sir W. Selby and Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Salisbury. On Sunday, the 10th instant, on our way from Carlisle to Newcastle, we first heard of the horrible and graceless conspiracy against the King and the whole state. Knowing that William Ord, a pensioner of 20*l.* per diem in Berwick, had the keeping of the Earl of Northumberland's castle of Prudhoe (having been preferred to that place by Thomas Percy the traitor) and had become a recusant, we thought good to search the said castle, before going to Newcastle. We found none there except servants. Ord had left on the previous day. He was as likely as any to conceal the said Percy. There is not a more suspicious place in this country. We only learned that Percy was there a fortnight before.

November 12, 1605. [Newcastle.] The English Commissioners to the same. The postmaster of this place has received a packet from George Whithead, captain for the Earl of Northumberland in the castle of Tynemouth. After some conference, we have thought it our duty to send it to you, so that if the said Earl be in his Majesty's good favour it may be delivered to him, otherwise that it may be disposed of as shall seem best to you.

November 14, 1605. Newcastle. Sir W. Lawson to the same. I have heard of a warrant directed to Sir Henry Widdrington by the Lords of the Council, authorising him to take into his hands the castles of Alnwick, Tynemouth, and Cockermouth, in the county of Northumberland, as being in the custody of Thomas Percy the traitor, or of his adherents. The matter for Cockermouth is mistaken. It is in the south-western part of Cumberland, nearly forty miles from any part of Northumberland, and in my custody, who, I trust, shall never be so far destitute of God's grace as to become an adherent of that vile traitor. The castle itself is for the most part ruinous. My wife's son dwells in the gate-house, by my direction. About fourteen years since, the Earl of Northumberland made me Lieutenant of the Honour of Cockermouth, with a fee of 10*l.* With this office I have the keeping of the castle, which is situate within two miles of my house. The dispossessing me of this castle, which is of small moment either for offence or defence, will breed in the heads of the people an opinion that some suspicion is held of my loyalty, and disgrace me in the government of these parts.

f. 48. Same day and place. The same to Sir Vincent Skinner. I pray you send by the bearer 50*l.* for my allowance of 100 marks per annum, which began on the 11th of February, as by his Majesty's privy seal will appear.

November 14, 1605. Same place. The English Commissioners to [the Earl of Salisbury?]. Demand for 23*l.* 4*s.* laid out by them in the conveyance of fifty Grahams to Brill, and seventy-two to Flushing.

November 15, 1605. Gunnerton. Sir Henry Widdrington to Sir W. Lawson. I cannot meet you at Carlisle according to promise. I desire you to make known to the Sheriff of the county and the justices of the peace, such matters as I have made you already acquainted with, for the apprehending of the persons named in the proclamation. As you are interested in Cockermouth Castle, I doubt not that you will have due regard thereof until I may be with you.

November 15, 1605. Carlisle. The justices of the peace of Cumberland and Westmoreland to the Council. These counties are quiet, and there is no likelihood that the traitor Thomas Percy, or any of his adherents, can work any tumult or trouble there.

f. 49. November 16, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Salisbury. Since Thomas Percy became a Papist, he has not cared to converse but with men of his own quality, and others of a better religion have not been desirous to have much to do with him. He has not commonly resorted hither, save at the times of the Earl of Northumberland's audit. The Grahams are in hopes of a pardon at the end of this Parliament. I was hardly able to undergo the journey from Newcastle to Carlisle yesterday.

Same day and place. The same and J. Pennington to Sir William Cranston, Provost Marshal and Commander of the horsemen in his Majesty's pay. On behalf of the poor men of Rawniock. We have received no answer from you concerning the fugitives and the breakers of the castle at Carlisle.

November 15, 1605. Same place. The same to the keeper of the gaol at Carlisle. Warrant to detain malefactors apprehended by Sir H. Leigh.

f. 50. November 16, 1605. Same place. Sir W. Lawson to Christopher Irton. You will do well to send away your wife and children, and to remain at Cockermouth Castle until the coming of Sir Henry Widdrington, who will put you forth and put others in. You must obey the warrant from the Lords of the Council.

November 15, 1605. The Scottish Commissioners to the English. Concerning the time of a gaol delivery.

N.D. The Earl of Northumberland to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning his stay in the north.

November 23, 1605. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. Concerning the letter from the Scottish Commissioners.

Same day and place. The same to Sir W. Selby. I wish that the Grahams who have returned might be apprehended, so that they might be proceeded against before the meeting of Parliament on the 21st of January. I would gladly go if able to travel.

f. 51. November 23, 1605. Langley. Sir Henry Widdrington to Sir W. Lawson. I am sending my cousin, Mr. Carnobey, to enter Cocker-mouth Castle for his Majesty's use, and to place such persons there as he shall think fit.

November 24, 1605. Bothel. The same to the same. I have received letters from the Council desiring that I should forbear to seize or enter Cocker-mouth Castle, and that it should continue in your keeping. You know that I have not been forward or hasty in this matter.

November 19, 1605. Whitehall. The Council to same. We were misinformed concerning Cocker-mouth. We would not prejudice your reputation, for we know your good service.

December 4, 1605. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to the same. Concerning the gaol delivery. I have apprehended many prisoners, so I that I hope there will be a good bar at Newcastle. My horses are spoiled with over much riding. Stealing is very much abated in this quarter.

December 4, 1605. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to the same. Concerning the gaol deliveries at Carlisle and Newcastle.

f. 52. December 5, 1605. Barmore. The English Commissioners to the Scottish. Invitation to a gaol delivery at Carlisle on the 13th of January. The Lords of the Council say that the King is highly offended with the return of the Grahams from Flushing and Brill. Sir H. Leigh affirms that he has cleared the border of England, and that they are received in Scotland. You may safely account all English Grahams in Scotland to be of this number. We also desire the apprehension of the prisoners from Carlisle Castle and other fugitives.

December 10, 1605. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby. Concerning the gaol delivery, etc.

December 10, 1605. Same place. The same to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. Concerning the same.

f. 53. December 4, 1605. Hollows. Sir W. Cranston to Sir W. Lawson. On behalf of William Urwen, alias Kange, who has been indicted for an old offence.

December 10, 1605. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Cranston. Concerning William Urwen's case. Demand for the apprehension of fugitives from England.

December 11, 1605. Cavers. Sir W. Cranston to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. I am as careful as any in advancing his Majesty's service.

December 25, 1605. Peebles. The Scottish Commissioners to the English. The nearest farmships on your side should be carefully "re-searched," for we are informed that the fugitives have their maintenance there, dreading our side more than their own. Our country is so desolate, that you had but little contentment in remaining with us. Three or four of us with Sir W. Cranston will attend your gaol delivery on the 13th of January.

f. 54. December 31, 1605. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. There has not been much stealing, and there would be less if the fugitives were once apprehended. I hear that about twenty of the Grahams from Brill have lately landed at Leith. Mr. Pearson returned on Christmas eve. He says that he could get no money [from the Treasury], unless he stayed ten days longer.

January 1, 1605 [-6]. Same place. The same to Mr. Pailler, Clerk of Assise in the northern circuit. Asks for the indictments against the Grahams.

December 31, 1605. The same to William Marton, Thomas Carleton, and George Crookbane. Concerning the apprehension of the Grahams.

December 20, 1605. The Earl of Cumberland to Sir W. Lawson. God has called my Lord my brother out of this vale of misery, and you have lost an honourable friend. My brother passed an estate in Cumberland to the Earl of Salisbury, myself, and others. The King has granted Carlisle Castle to me for my life and the life of my son, which you know my brother wished.

f. 55. December 16, 1605. Lodging in King Street. The Bishop of Carlisle to the same. I send a copy of the King's speech in the beginning of the Parliament. I took great comfort to hear of the good justice done at the late gaol deliveries at Carlisle and Newcastle. Constancy in such proceedings will, I trust, bring a blessing of peace and truth to that poor country. I hope that you will come here a few days before the 21st of January.

January 13, 1605 [-6]. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Salisbury. Few or none of the Grahams have been apprehended since the 14th of November, although many more have returned, to the terror of the better sort here. If the Grahams were not, these parts would be as free from blood and theft as Yorkshire. As their business is not settled in any good sort, I pray for directions about going or staying. I am somewhat better, but I wish to be spared from so long a journey. I cannot offer sufficient thanks for your favour concerning Cockermouth Castle.

Same day and place. The same to Mr. [John] Taylor. I condole with you the loss of so great a friend as your master, the Earl [of Cumberland]. It is fitter for me to stay in the country than to travel to London. If the Earl of Salisbury think fit that I should undergo the office of Sheriff for this year, I shall do my best to discharge the same, although I have no great reason to desire it.

January 17, 1605 [-6]. Carlisle. Certificate of pardon to Rynion Nixon for receiving an outlaw into his house.

f. 56. April 26, 1605. York. Sir Charles Hailes to the English Commissioners. Concerning the imprisonment of John Hilton.

May 4, 1605. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to Sir Charles Hailes. Concerning the same.

May 10, 1605. York. Sir Charles Hailes and Sir John Ferme to the English Commissioners. Concerning the same.

April 21, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Northumberland. On Monday last all the Commissioners, save Sir W. Selby and Sir Gideon Murray, rode from Carlisle to Dumfries, where upon the next day one Alexander Armstrong was tried and executed for the death of Sir John Carmichael, his Majesty's late Warden. I cannot but commend the Scottish Commissioners for their care for his Majesty's service. If a convenient number of men from both sides of the border, inured from their youth upwards to blood and theft, were picked out or otherwise sent away, the rest would be the sooner reclaimed.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

f. 57. April 21, 1605. Same place. The same to the Earl of Cumberland. To the same effect.

April 21, 1605. Same place. The same to Lord Cranborne. To the same effect.

July 7, 1605. Same place. The same to the Earl of Northumberland. Among the one hundred and thirty-two Grahams sent away, we have sent all in the schedule who are of any account, except Hutchin Graham and John Graham, alias Jock of the Pear-tree. There are some bad men of other surnames whom it would be good to send away. At the last gaol delivery three persons dwelling within the liberties of Egremont were executed for murder. A man within your liberties of Cockermouth was slain with the wheel of his own wain. I have seized the wain with the four oxen and the two horses that were yoked in it, for your use, as a deodand.

f. 58. July 5, 1605. Edinburgh. Sir William Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. Warm expressions of friendship. Lord Berwick is here, "but a Lord of a doubtful lordship." He will return to Court as Earl of Dunbar. Though you have wealth, we have liberality. Knightships with you are common merchandise, with us they are rewards of virtue. Captain Boyare has been made a knight in this our solemnity.

August 14, 1605. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Seaton. I am glad that some Englishmen deserve to have the order of knighthood at Edinburgh, as well as some Scotsmen at London. I am troubled with an evil leg, but Sir W. Selby will not fail to be at Hawick on the 26th instant.

N.D. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the trial of prisoners.

f. 59. List of fugitives and outlaws who entered not to the King's mercy, upon his proclamation or since, for the most part bearing the surname of Graham, Armstrong, Foster, Urwen, or Blenkinsopp. Some of them are charged with killing the Provost of Dumfries; one, Edward Armstrong, is charged with twelve murders.

f. 60. Petition to the King from Walter Graham of Netherby, and seventy-eight others, for the most part bearing the name of Graham. We and others, after the death of the late Queen, disorderly and tumultuously assembled with all the warlike force and power that we could, and invaded the inland part of the eastern side of Cumberland, and spoiled many Englishmen, with fire, sword, robbery, and murder. Some among us of evil judgment had persuaded us that until your Majesty was a crowned King in England, the laws of the kingdom ceased and were of no force, and that all offences done in the meantime were not punishable. We have deserved death and the confiscation of our lands and goods. Many of us have wives and children who may be able, with better education, to do good service to your Majesty in some other parts of your dominions. We therefore pray that we may be relegated and banished, as an evil colony, to some other parts of your kingdom, there to spend the residue of our days in sorrowing for our offences. We bind ourselves and our posterity to be of good behaviour towards all your subjects.

f. 61. List of seventeen feuds between different families.

List of persons outlawed for felony in Cumberland, between the 34th and 44th years of Elizabeth, one hundred and ten in all, for the most part bearing the surnames of Graham, Foster, Hetherington, or Urwen.

f. 63. List of persons indicted of murder, burglary, or felonies not pardoned, seventy-nine in all, for the most part bearing the surnames of Graham, Foster, Hetherington, or Armstrong.

f. 64. May 23, 1605. Warrant from the Earl of Cumberland to stay proceedings against William Taylor (as before).

August 14 [1605]. Carlisle. Warrant from the justices of assize to the Sheriff and the Clerk of the Peace of the county of Cumberland to stay proceedings of outlawry against John Matthew and others.

f. 65. Note of the forfeited recognisances in the counties of Westmoreland and Cumberland.

October 13, 1605. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the gaol delivery to be held at Carlisle.

List of persons to be sent to Carlisle to appear before the Commissioners on the 6th of November, charged with stealing horses, oxen, and sheep.

f. 66. List of such Grahams as stand indicted and convicted of murder, burglaries, etc., both before and after the death of Queen Elizabeth. 1. Hutchin Graham, alias Ritchies Hutchin, outlawed for the murder of Thomas Graham, son of Ritchies Will, and of John Orfeur, gentleman, son of William Orfeur, esq., then in the Queen's service. "Item Hutchin Grayme aforesaid for bringing the lord of Buckclough (Bucleuch) and other Scotts men to the breaking of Carliell Castle, and was the third man that entered the same to the fetchinge of one William Kinnoul forth thereof." Item for taking 200 bushels of big malt and oats from the inhabitants of Cargoe. Item for speeches against the late Queen and the King. Item for spoiling William Nixon of the Bowe and for burning Johnston of Little Orton. 2. William Graham, alias Mickle Will, his brother, convicted for several murders, etc. 3. George Graham, alias Ritchies Geordie, his brother, convicted for thirty different stealths, etc. 4. William Graham, alias Carlisle, his brother, convicted for several horse-stealings, etc., and for taking prisoners into Scotland from Little Orton. 5. Richard Graham, alias Lenox, his brother, and five others convicted of the same or similar offences.

f. 67. List of persons to be apprehended by Sir H. Leigh, for robberies in "ill week," and at other times.

f. 68. December 18, 1605. Sir W. Lawson to Sir H. Leigh, Provost Marshal. Warrant for the apprehension of John Hetherington and others.

January 13, 1605 [-6]. Carlisle. Proclamation by the Commissioners against the retention of arms and of horses not required for tillage in certain districts, save by noblemen and gentlemen. Order for the suppression of the office of water bailiff. Order that Englishmen and Scotsmen shall enjoy like privileges in all market towns within the middle shires of Great Britain.

f. 69. January 17, 1605 [-6]. Carlisle. Sir W. Selby, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to Sir H. Leigh. Warrant for the apprehension of all persons of the surname of Graham who have returned from the Low Countries, and all other outlaws and fugitives.

January 17, 1605 [-6]. Carlisle. The Commissioners to Sir W. Cranston. Warrant for the burning and demolition of the house of

MUNCASTER'S

Walter Urwen of Kirkpatrick, where the horsemen of Sir H. Leigh in pursuit of William Graham were reviled, and assailed with stones and spears.

January 22, 1605 [-6]. Newcastle. Articles framed by the Commissioners for the service against the Grahams and other outlaws. Netherby is to be garrisoned by fifteen horsemen under Sir H. Leigh, and the Hollows by a like number under Sir W. Cranston.

f. 70. January 22, 1605 [-6]. Newcastle. The Commissioners to Sir H. Leigh. Warrant for the levy of horsemen.

January 24, 1605 [-6]. Newcastle. The English Commissioners to the Sheriff of Northumberland. Warrant for the apprehension of Robert Davison of Alnwick, servant to Thomàs Percy the traitor, indicted for the murder of Roger Smyth, unless William Halle of Heppell, who now has custody of him, will enter sufficient security that he shall not escape.

January 25, 1605 [-6]. Newcastle. Certificate by the English Commissioners of the reprieve granted to Richard Graham of Randelinton and Arthur Graham of Leven briggs, convicted of departing from the Low Countries without licence.

January 26, 1605 [-6]. Newcastle. Certificate by the English Commissioners of the reprieve granted to Michael Davison of Bitlestone, on the score that he was under twelve years of age when he committed the felonies for which he was convicted.

January 25, 1605 [-6]. Newcastle. The English Commissioners to the Council. Five persons were executed at Carlisle, of whom two were Scots, and seventeen at Newcastle, of whom four were Scots. Few of the Grahams who returned from Flushing and Brill have been apprehended. They expect a general pardon at the end of this Parliament, and in the meanwhile shift from place to place. If the Grahams were not, the country would soon be freed from theft. We desire that Sir W. Lawson may be allowed to stay with us.

f. 71. Same day and place. Sir W. Selby and Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Salisbury. Six of the persons convicted at Newcastle were followers of Percy the traitor.

Various notes on the condition of the borders.

f. 72. January 30, 1605 [-6]. Carlisle. The Commissioners to the keeper of the gaol at Carlisle. Warrant for the detention of George Graham of Longtowne, and four other Grahams.

List of the Grahams who threatened the tenants of the Earl of Cumberland.

January 31, 1605 [-6]. List of the Grahams who have returned, and who ride in troops, with pistols and lances. Geordies Sandie, Young Netherby, and thirteen others.

February 20, 1605 [-6]. Hole House. Sir W. Cranston to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the prisoners whom he has in his custody, and those of whom he has taken bonds.

February 21 1605 [-6]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Cranston. Concerning the same,

f. 73. Same day and place. The same to Sir H. Leigh. Concerning the gaol delivery.

February 26, 1605 [-6]. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to Sir H. Leigh. Warrant for the detention of Walter Graham of Netherby, and six other Grahams.

February 7, 1605 [-6]. Edinburgh. The Scottish Commissioners to the English. Concerning the time of the gaol deliveries.

February 21, 1605 [-6]. Berwick. Sir W. Selby to the English Commissioners. Concerning the same.

f. 74. February 24, 1605 [-6]. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Concerning the same.

February 26, 1605 [-6]. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. Concerning the same, deprecating delay.

Same day and place. The same to Sir W. Cranston. Enclose list of persons to be sent to Carlisle for trial, with particulars of the charges against them.

f. 75. February 27, 1605 [-6]. The same to Sir H. Leigh. Warrant for the apprehension of certain persons.

f. 76. Same day and place. The same to the same. Warrant for the apprehension of William Graham of Mill hill, and Fergus Graham, alias Wills Fergie.

List of charges of theft, etc.

f. 77. List of the Grahams returned from Flushing and Brill, who are fugitives—forty in all.

List of the Grahams who are outlaws and fugitives—eighteen in all.

March 1, 1605 [-6]. Penrith. Sir William Hutton to Sir W. Lawson. On behalf of Dicks Davie Graham.

f. 78. February 24, 1605 [-6]. Whitehall. The Earl of Salisbury to the Commissioners. The King desires to know how they have proceeded against the "runagates" from the cautionary towns.

March 3, 1605 [-6]. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. The Earl of Salisbury does not seem to understand how distant the Northumberland Commissioners are from the West border. As you have been lately at Carlisle, you can satisfy him about the Grahams. I am displeased that the Provost Marshal left Eskdale without leave, and that any of the Grahams or other fugitives have been enlarged. Sir W. Cranston should be commanded to return to the Hallows.

March 3, 1605 [-6]. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Concerning the time of the gaol deliveries.

f. 79. February 28, 1605 [-6]. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. Concerning the same.

March 2, 1605 [-6]. Cranston. Sir W. Cranston to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. I will send as many of the prisoners as I can to Carlisle.

March 5, 1605 [-6]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. Concerning the time of the gaol deliveries, and the answer to be made to the Earl of Salisbury.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

f. 80. Same day and place. The same to Sir W. Selby. I would as gladly spare your travel as my own, but this business requires your presence at Carlisle.

March 6, 1605 [-6]. Same place. The same to Sir W. Cranston. Concerning the time of the gaol deliveries, and the transmission of prisoners to Carlisle.

f. 81. March 9, 1605 [-6]. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to the other English Commissioners. Concerning the time of the gaol deliveries, and the answer to be made to the Earl of Salisbury. Suggests a meeting at Hexham rather than at Carlisle.

Same day and place. The same to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the place of meeting.

f. 82. March 11, 1605 [-6]. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the proposed meeting at Hexham.

March 12, 1605 [-6]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. Concerning the same.

March 11, 1605 [-6]. Carlisle. Henry Leigh (junr.) to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning certain persons arrested by him.

f. 83. March 12, 1605 [-6]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to Henry Leigh. Order that the Grahams in his father's custody shall be kept within the Castle.

March 13, 1605 [-6]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Henry Leigh and others. Enquiry concerning the number of Grahams who have returned from Flushing and Brill.

March 20, 1605 [-6]. Hexham. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Salisbury. Many of the Grahams returned from the cautionary towns, some fugitives of that name, and divers of those who broke out of Carlisle Castle, remained dispersed in Esk and in the adjoining countries of Scotland, with desire rather to hide themselves than to do much hurt. When Sir H. Leigh and Sir W. Cranston, with thirty soldiers, came to garrison in Esk, they withdrew themselves among the Carlises, the Johnstones, and other families related to them. After Sir W. Cranston's retirement to his own house, many of them returned. Some thirteen have been apprehended, and the rest have been forced to leave Esk. The people of Cumberland abhor and fear the name of Graham. We have required Sir W. Cranston to return to his place of garrison, and given the like order to Mr. Leigh in the place of his father. The state of Cumberland and Northumberland has grown better since the issue of the Commission. There is no stealing save of trifles, and this is as rare as in other shires in England. We have advised the Earl of Cumberland that his grounds should not be farmed to the wives and friends of the Grahams. We have committed to Carlisle Castle divers of the Grahams who have neither been offenders of late years, nor returned from the cautionary towns. Their restraint will not a little bridle their friends who are out. We desire that felonies committed in the middle shires should be exempted from pardon by a special proviso. We enclose several lists.

(1.) The names of the Grahams returned from the cautionary towns without licence—fifty in all.

(2.) The names of the Grahams returned from the cautionary towns with good passports—eight in all, three of them prisoners in Carlisle Castle.

(3.) The names of the Grahams dead since their return from the cautionary towns—six in all.

(4.) The names of the Grahams committed for felony for departing from the service—two in all.

(5.) The names of the Grahams returned from the cautionary towns with counterfeit licences—two in all.

(6.) The names of the Grahams who have good passports at large without return. Matthew Graham, alias Plump, and young Hutchin Graham, a prisoner in Carlisle Castle, the ringleader of the first nineteen fugitives, who would not go into the low countries.

(7.) The names of the heads of the Grahams committed to Carlisle Castle upon suspicion of giving "recett" to their friends:—Walter Graham of Netherby and William Graham of Rosetrees, and six others.

(8.) The names of the Grahams and other fugitives apprehended by Sir Henry Leigh between February 18 and March 13, and sent to Carlisle:—Alexander Graham, alias Bell Sandie, Matthew Graham, alias Plump, and four others, three of whom were of the twenty-nine who broke the Castle.

(9.) The names of the Grahams and other fugitives apprehended by Sir W. Cranston since February 18, but not sent to Carlisle according to directions—eight in all, among whom is John Graham, alias Jock of the Pear-tree, a notable thief, "none of his name worse."

(10.) The names of the condemned prisoners who broke Carlisle Castle, and are now in custody—ten in all.

f. 86. March 20, 1605 [-6]. Hexham. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Cumberland. Concerning the fugitive Grahams.

f. 87. March 16, 1605 [-6]. Cranston. Sir W. Cranston to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Concerning the prisoners in his custody.

March 20, 1605 [-6]. Hexham. The English Commissioners to Sir W. Cranston. Order to return to the Hallows with fifteen horsemen, and to remain there or in some other garrison place near Esk until further order. Peremptory order to bring his English prisoners to Carlisle.

March 19, 1605 [-6]. Same place. The same to Sir Henry Widdrington, High Sheriff of Northumberland. Desire to know the names of such as are to be exempted from the general order for disarmament.

f. 88. Same day and place. The same to Sir William Fenwick. To the same effect.

Same day and place. The same to Mr. Talbot. Desire a list of persons indicted.

March 11, 1605 [-6]. Whitehall. The Council to the Commissioners. We have received complaint from certain inhabitants of Ridesdale and Tindale in Northumberland that you use "more severe and straiter proceedinge" than was intended by the King, by taking into question offences done upon the borders many years ago. They give an instance of one Michael Davison condemned in January last for certain felonies and burglaries committed twelve years ago, when he was but twelve years of age, and of a cousin german of his lately executed for the same offence. We cannot but be somewhat doubtful of your due observation of his Majesty's meaning.

March 25, 1606. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to the other English Commissioners. Concerning the answer to be made to the Council.

Same day. Usworth. Sir W. Lawson to Sir R. Delaval. Concerning the same.

March 20, 1605 [-6]. Hexham. Certificate that execution had been stayed in the case of Fergie Graham of Wall, convicted of felony committed "in the ill week."

March 26, 1606. East Nisbit. Sir Patrick Chirmside to Sir W. Selby. Concerning certain complaints.

March 27, 1606. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning certain complaints. Encloses a list of persons cited to appear at Dumfries and Jedburgh, on charges of stealing horses, cattle, etc.—twenty-three charges in all.

f. 91. March 30, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. I have sent to Sir H. Leigh the names of the persons against whom complaint is made in Sir P. Chirmside's letter, "requiringe that no tyme be forslowd to performe what is required" for their apprehension.

Same day and place. The same to Sir H. Leigh or his son. Concerning the same.

March 27, 1606. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to the other English Commissioners. Concerning the answer to be made to the Council.

f. 92. March 29, 1606. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Concerning the same. Richard Graham of Randelinton, who was prisoner in the High Castle of Newcastle, has gone away. On account of sickness he had liberty of the Castle. Graham of the Rosetrees entered into recognisances for him. He may be able to get him again.

March 31, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to J. Pennington. Concerning the proposed meeting of the Commissioners.

April 2, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to the other English Commissioners. Concerning the same.

f. 93. January 5, 1605 [-6]. John Taylor to Sir W. Lawson. Offers to recommend him, through the Earl of Cumberland, for the office of Sheriff.

April 6, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to the Scottish Commissioners. I have directed Sir H. Leigh or his son to attend you at Dumfries and Jedburgh with the persons named by you. I desire that all offenders be sent in reciprocally to receive punishment where their offences were committed, without respect of nation.

f. 94. March 27, 1606. Cranston. Sir W. Cranston to the English Commissioners. I returned out of Esk because I found it unprofitable to stay there. I will return as soon as my health permits me to travel. You will find after experience that his Majesty could be better served with less stir. I was forced to admit outlaws to bond because my company was dispersed in two or three parts, and I had not the commodity of a gaol. After a lawful advertisement I will present such of yours as fell into my hands, or else a sufficient penalty. As for such as offended in Scotland I will await the advice of "the conjunct commission." If you will needs be commanders, I desire that your discretion may appear as well as your authority. Think not that my body can be everywhere to do all your services. Our own courts approach. I am charged with the apprehension of the Grahams and several other duties. None come to me with armour. For me to ride to their several houses would be an infinite travel.

f. 96. April 14, 1606. Carlisle. The same to Thomas Musgrave, Captain at Bewcastle. Warrant for the delivery to the King's horsemen of Rynion Blackburne and three others, to be carried to Jedburgh.

April 8, 1606. Dumfries. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning his movements.

April 12, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Seaton. Concerning the same.

April 3, 1606. Penrith. Sir W. Hutton to Sir W. Lawson. Mr. Henry Leigh has a warrant to apprehend Thomas [Hetherington] of Holesheils for Hector [Armstrong] of Twedon, who was slain by the garrisons of horsemen and footmen under the conduct of Captain Reed and Constable Ord [in or about August, 1603], they being in Lyddesdale by command of Sir Richard Musgrave, the deputy to the late Lord Lieutenant. The killing of him was the best service that was done for the border of England these twenty years, for he was a principal murderer, a great and common thief, a spoiler, and a leader of the rest. If the Commissioners of Scotland shall so earnestly seek for redress of such a notorious thief, what good shall we expect of them? Those whom they complain of will be ready to answer for the fact before the King and Council. "The poore man Holesheiles is marvellously frighted with feare to enter into Scotland," and Lord Cumberland's business is thereby left undone.

f. 97. April 13, 1606. Henry Leigh to Sir W. Lawson. Gives an account of a fray between Sir W. Cranston and some men who came out of an alehouse near the sand beds of Esk.

April 10, 1606. Barmore. Sir W. Selby to the other English Commissioners. Concerning his answer to the Scottish Commissioners and the answer to be made to the Council.

N.D. The same to the Scottish Commissioners. In the roll of names of such as you desired to be sent to Dumfries and Jedburgh, there are those of some men of good quality, free from suspicion of theft. The matters alleged against them were done under the government of the late Earl of Cumberland, by command of his under-officers. We are enjoined by the Council to forbear to call such in question. If, therefore, any of them are now sent to you, I doubt not that you will forbear to proceed against them.

f. 98. April 13, 1606. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. I think that the Scottish Commissioners will not care to do according to his Majesty's pleasure. It is requisite that Sir Richard Musgrave and Sir William Hutton should have notice of what we desire to know of them at the next gaol-delivery at Carlisle.

April 11, 1606. Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Concerning the petition of widow Graham of Brackenhill.

April 15, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. On Thursday last, as Henry Leigh and his man were riding from Dumfries to Milleys, the latter was shot in the ribs by Robs Fergie, one of the fugitives. They lost a mare, and their cloaks, and hardly escaped, both upon one horse. Robs Fergie is said to be since dead. On Saturday Rob of Medopp was rescued from Sir William Cranston.

Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Salisbury. Recommend that the Sheriffs should be brought to account.

f. 103. April 21, 1606. Edward Hali of Weyhill, co. Northumberland to Sir W. Selby. Anticipates trouble on account of his testimony concerning a felony.

April 25, 1606. Christopher Pickering, Sheriff of Cumberland, Thomas Salkeld, Henry Blenco, Sir William Hutton, Lancelot Salkeld, Richard Denton, and Thomas Lamplough, to the English Commissioners. After due consideration of your enquiry, we have found that any forbearance used towards any that were border malefactors has bred greater hurt to the country, and greater insolence in them. Most of these offenders have been so rooted in their "desolate" kind of life that it is almost impossible to reform their disorder. The due execution of justice has always wrought better effect than lenity.

May 2, 1606. Newcastle. Ra. Lawson, Ralph Delaval, Henry Guevara, Thomas Gwinburne, Robert Brandlinge, Robert Midford, James Raynes, John Delaval, Joshua Delaval, John Browne, Thomas Middleton, Edward Charleton, and R. Fenwick, to the English Commissioners. To the same effect.

April 19, 1606. Jedburgh. Sir Patrick Chirmside and Sir Gideon Murray to the English Commissioners. Concerning the persons required to appear before them and before the English Commissioners respectively. Enclose a list of the former containing forty-eight names, among which are those of John Musgrave of Edenhall (Ednell), William Musgrave of the Castle, brother to Mickle John Musgrave, Thomas Hetherington of Holesheiles, and Thomas Orde, called Constable Orde in Berwick.

April 27, 1606. Crellinge. Sir W. Cranston to the English Commissioners. Concerning the same.

May 3, 1606. Newcastle. The English Commissioners to Sir W. Cranston. Complain that of forty persons demanded none were sent to their gaol delivery, nor any of the Grahams or English fugitives. Require him to go to the Hallows with his horsemen and there to abide until discharged.

Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Cumberland. On behalf of Fergus Graham of Wall, co. Northumberland, who has in great part made satisfaction for felony committed in "the ill week."

Same day and place. Certificate of the opinion of Sir William Fenwick against the pardoning of old offences.

May 5, 1606. Appleby. Sir W. Lawson to the Speaker of the Parliament House. Solicits pardon for his absence. Cumberland is now as free from blood and theft as most parts of England. At the last gaol delivery, on the 24th of April, there were but two found guilty, the one of petty larceny, and the other of a small felony, who had his [benefit of] clergy. Northumberland is not altogether so free. One was executed and the other reprieved. If the runagate Grahams were apprehended and brought to justice, these countries would continue peaceable.

Same day and place. The same to the Bishop of Carlisle. I send this to London by Sir Edward Musgrave. If the Grahams could be apprehended, or banished from Esk, this country would become as peaceful as any other. There are bad men on the other side. At the last sessions of the peace I earnestly moved, in accordance with your letter, to have the bridge built of stone, but few or none were inclined thereto, as the charge would be at least 800*l.*, and there is no certainty of the continuance of the water in its present course.

May 9, 1606. Denholme. Sir W. Cranston to Sir W. Lawson. I am sorry that your brethren and you have complained of me at Court for having released some of the Grahams on their bonds. If any of you please to attend, you shall hear my defence before the Council on the 17th of this month.

f. 109. April 30, 1606. Whitehall. The Council to the Commissioners. Instructions for the punishment of the Grahams and others according to their offences. Proposal to send some of them to Ireland. Appointment of the Bishop of Carlisle as a Commissioner. (See Domestic State Papers, April 29, 1606.)

f. 110. May 11, 1606. Skipton. The Earl of Cumberland to the Commissioners. I cannot but commend your discreet and even proceedings. The King and the Council are absolutely resolved to have the country reduced to civil obedience. I am now going to the Court, where I shall ever be ready to move the King and the Lords on your behalf. Sir Charles Hailes intends to set forward from York on the 19th inst. for Carlisle, in order to assist you in the service.

f. 111. May 15, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. Encloses the two foregoing letters.

Same day and place. The same to Sir C. Hailes. No fugitives have been apprehended since the last gaol delivery, nor is any gaol delivery yet appointed. You may therefore think it well to stay your journey.

May 11, 1606. Skipton. The Earl of Cumberland to Sir W. Lawson. Desires him to confer with the persons appointed to protect his interests.

May 3, 1606. John Tailor to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the conveyance of the letter from the Council.

f. 112. April 16, 1606. Whitehall. The Earl of Suffolk to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. On behalf of the bearer, William Graham, alias Rosetrees.

Good Friday, 1606. Sir H. Leigh to Sir W. Lawson. On behalf of the same, whom the King has been pleased to call "the honest Grayme."

May 11, 1606. Twisell. Sir W. Selby to Sir W. Lawson. I send a letter from the Earl of Dunbar. He requires great secrecy, and therefore made me his clerk, not trusting his own secretary. For aught I know, we two shall be the only English Commissioners at Carlisle on the night of the 20th inst.

N.D. The Earl of Dunbar to Sir W. Lawson. The King at my last parting from his presence, and by letter since the 1st inst., has commanded me to have special care of the peaceable state of the late borders, by apprehension of the disobedient Grahams, the twenty-nine condemned men who broke Carlisle Castle, and other fugitives, and their abettors. I am informed that Sir Richard Lowther of Cumberland gives "recett" to the Grahams. I pray you to make diligent search in his house about daybreak on the 20th inst., and to bring any fugitives whom you may find there to Carlisle that night, where Sir W. Selby will meet you. The good of this service consists in secrecy. Although I am not acquainted with you, the good opinion held of you by his Majesty and others makes me confident to trouble you with this business.

f. 113. May 13, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby. Being a bad secretary, and unwilling to trust my clerk with the secrecy of this business, I shall not write to the Earl of Dunbar until that be effected which he has appointed.

May 19, 1606. Hexham. Sir W. Selby to Sir W. Lawson. This day Maxwell, Johnstone, Buccleuch, Sir Gideon Murray, and Sir W. Cranston, on the Scottish side, and Sir William Fenwick and I on the English, with convenient numbers of men, search all Esk and the countries adjoining, for the disobedient Grahams, the condemned men who broke Carlisle Castle, and other fugitives, by direction of the Earl of Dunbar. I am ready to go towards the waste of Tindale, where there is a great assembly under colour of a great hunting.

May 20, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Dunbar. I have made search for disobedient Grahams in the house of Sir Richard Lowther, but I have found none.

May 21, 1606. Sir W. Selby and Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Dunbar. Six English Grahams and William Armstrong, son of John Armstrong of Kinnmout, one of the condemned men who broke Carlisle Castle, have been carried into Scotland. We have received instruction concerning them from the Council, and we therefore pray that they may be safely sent to Carlisle gaol. We also desire the delivery of three other Armstrongs, breakers of Carlisle Castle. Sir W. Cranston has not delivered the prisoners for whom we applied to him. We desire that you will by your own authority cause Sir W. Cranston to return to the Hallows or to some other convenient place near Esk. Finding our own commands not well obeyed, we think it vain to trouble him by writing. If you prevail as little, we shall be compelled to complain further.

f. 114. Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Salisbury. (See Domestic State Papers.)

f. 115. May 11, 1606. Dunbarton. Sir W. Seaton and Sir P. Chirm-side to the English Commissioners. Concerning the proposed meeting of the Commissioners at Carlisle.

May 27, 1606. Sir W. Selby, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to the Scottish Commissioners. Concerning the same. Enclose list of fourteen persons whom they wish to be brought to them upon the 14th of June at latest—Grahams, Armstrongs, Urwens, and others.

Same day. Carlisle. The same to John Musgrave, leader of the horse-men under the command of Sir H. Leigh, Provost Marshal. Warrant for the apprehension of fugitive Grahams, and breakers of Carlisle Castle.

May 19, 1606. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the transmission of letters.

May 25, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Selby, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. Concerning the same.

Same day and place. The same to the Mayor of Newcastle. Desire to know whether he will deal with the Grahams to be sent to him as his predecessor did with the former Grahams. Report that the two Grahams already delivered at Newcastle have escaped. "It will not be well taken above."

May 26, 1606. Newcastle. Lyonell Madison, Mayor, to Sir W. Selby, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington. Will obey the directions of the Council. There is a ship now preparing for the Low Countries.

f. 117. May 26, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Selby, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to the Council. Testimonial in favour of Henry Leigh.

May 29, 1606. Morpeth Castle. E. Grey to Sir W. Selby, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington. Concerning the transmission of letters.

May 17, 1606. Edinburgh. The Scottish Commissioners to the English. Concerning their proposed meeting.

June 3, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Selby, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. Concerning the same.

June 1, 1606. Same place. The same to the Scottish Commissioners. Concerning the same.

f. 118. June 2, 1606. Same place. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Cumberland. Sir Charles Hailes is now at Carlisle. Expressions of friendship.

Same day and place. The same to John Taylor. Concerning his correspondence with the Earl of Cumberland.

Same day and place. Sir W. Selby, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to Sir H. Leigh. Desire to know how the fifteen horsemen under his command, now sent to garrison in Esk under John Musgrave, are to be paid.

June 3, 1606. Same place. The same to the Council. We have been here since the 20th of May, and shall continue by turns to attend the service. We have sent John Musgrave of Plumpton with fifteen horsemen to garrison in Esk, and have written to Sir W. Cranston to lie there also with his fifteen. We went thither with the Sheriff on the 30th of May, and remained until the Earl of Cumberland's officers had taken peaceable possession of divers tenements within his grants, returning the same evening to Carlisle. No resistance was made. We have left to your consideration certain grounds reputed to be part of his Majesty's manor, and not within the forest of Nicholl granted to the said Earl. A house called Brackenhill is challenged by the widow of Richard Graham lately deceased, as purchased by his father from Sir Thomas Dacres. We shall proceed against the Grahams according to your instructions. Richard Graham of Randlinton has broken prison. We have reprieved Arthur Graham. There is no likelihood of getting a convenient number of them to send away. There are not now remaining in Esk or within the Earl of Cumberland's grants much above thirty Grahams, married or unmarried, fit to be sent away to make up the number of those that are returned or dead. Most of these absent themselves, preferring, it seems, to die at home with shame than to serve his Majesty abroad with credit. Hutchin Graham had a commission under the privy seal for the apprehension of Sandies Rynion. We hope that Jock of the Pear-tree and Jocks Ritchie will be sent down from London, together with William Bell, alias Cutler. Jock of the Pear-tree is one of the five who betrayed Sandies Rynion, and so within the remission. Five worse men cannot be found among all the Grahams than those who are within the remission. The country continues peaceable.

f. 120. Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Cumberland. We went with the Sheriff to Arthurett Church, and your officers took possession of divers tenements without resistance. We have reserved the case of Thomas Musgrave and other tenants at Bewcastle for the consideration of the Council, as also that of the widow of Brackenhill. We have acquainted some of the principal Grahams with the King's purpose to transplant some families into Ireland. We find them so willing that they humbly entreat to be settled in the places appointed before winter. We intend to send the unmarried within your grants to the cautionary towns. We pray you to show compassion towards the wives and children of such as willingly went thither at first and did not return. We have not favoured the Grahams or any others more than Christian charity binds us.

Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Salisbury. List of the fifteen horsemen under John Musgrave, gent.

f. 121. June 9, 1606. Twisell. Sir W. Selby to the other English Commissioners. Concerning a letter from the Earl of Dunbar.

June 10, 1606. Morpeth Castle. E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Concerning the gaol delivery.

List of the imprisoned outlaws at Berwick—seven Englishmen, all Grahams or Fosters, and eight Scotsmen, Grahams, Armstrongs, and others.

June 14, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby, Sir R. Delaval, and E. Grey. Concerning certain offenders.

June 14, 1606. Edinburgh. Sir W. Cranston to the English Commissioners. Concerning the persons demanded by them. Excuses for his absence.

f. 122. June 21, 1606. Carlisle. Henry, Bishop of Carlisle, and Sir Charles Hailes to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the gaol delivery. There is no discord among the soldiers.

June 23, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to John Musgrave. Warrant for the conveyance of certain prisoners to Carlisle.

Same day and place. The same to Thomas Musgrave, Captain at Bewcastle. Warrant for his attendance on John Musgrave with twenty horsemen.

June 24, 1606. The Earl of Cumberland to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Recommends Sir Ralph Sidley.

f. 123. July 2, 1606. Carlisle. Note of the delivery of certain prisoners.

June 26, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. Concerning their proposed meeting.

June 22, 1606. Twysell. Sir W. Selby to the other English Commissioners. Concerning the delivery of prisoners to John Musgrave.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

f. 124. June 24, 1606. Greenwich. The Council to the Bishop of Carlisle and the rest of the Commissioners. The acquittal of twenty-three persons out of the twenty-seven arraigned at Carlisle and Newcastle, will make them bolder. If you will certify the Council in Scotland that only two out of fifty Scotsmen accused for recent felonies have been sent to you, they will doubtless take order for the furtherance of the King's service. We wish all means to be used for the apprehension of the Grahams who returned from the cautionary towns. Let a pardon be drawn for those mentioned in your letter of the 3rd inst. It appears that divers of the Grahams and other surnames were formerly planted in the province of Connaught, where they have grown to be men of good desert and quality. Sir Ralph Sidley being likely to have the disposing of a great quantity of land called Rosecommon (Rose common), is well able to place forty or fifty households there. He will give you information as to the commodities of the place, and the fertility of the ground, which will doubtless be welcome to those who are threatened with the hands of justice. All severity should be laid upon such as are unwilling to go, the greater part of them having deserved punishment. The country should contribute towards providing them with a stock at the first plantation. We will deal with the King for the charges of their transportation.

f. 125. Note of the particular misdemeanours of Hutchin Graham.

1. On Monday after the death of the late Queen, he neglected to stay his friends from their invasion, although admonished to do so by the Bishop of Carlisle, who saw them from the ramparts of the castle. 2. On Tuesday following he brought one hundred and forty of his kinsmen and friends, English and Scottish, to the town of Cargo, near Carlisle, and provided them with victuals for themselves and their horses, free of cost, at the charge of the town. He had for many years taken this town into his protection, receiving from each husbandman four pecks of malt yearly for black mail, these pecks being of Carlisle measure, 20 gallons to the bushel. 3. On the Wednesday following, he crossed the Eden into Grinsdale, where he and his company as men of war erected two "pensills" of linen cloth on the tops of lances. 4. On that day he and his company, armed with jacks, spears, pistols, and steel caps, assaulted Capt. Bowyer, or his lieutenant, and his soldiers. 5. Seeing a company of the townsmen of Carlisle coming to the rescue of his Majesty's soldiers, he and his company went westward. They spoiled a place called Bow, robbing men in the way, and afterwards spoiled the town of Orton, where they burned the house of Johnston and took prisoners. 6. He went back to Cargo, and there divided such spoil as was brought in by his company, he and young [Graham of] Netherby as captains taking an eighth of the whole spoil. 7. Having obtained from the King a promise of remission, he has not made restitution to the parties grieved. He refused to go to the Low Countries, and became a ringleader of nineteen others of his name, who fled into Scotland. Subscribed by the English Commissioners.

Certificate concerning ninety Grahams and their families dwelling upon Esk and Leven. Twenty-three are worth 20*l.* a year and upwards, and are declared fit to be transplanted. Among these are:—Walter Graham of Netherby, his wife and eight children, of whom the eldest is an outlaw, and the second a disorderly person; William Graham Rose-trees, his wife and six children; Hutchin Graham, alias Young Hutchin, his wife and three children; one Graham at Flushing and another at Brill. Eleven worth 20*l.* a year and upward are fugitives. Seven worth 10*l.* a year and upward are fugitives. Six worth 10*l.* a year and upward are declared fit to be transplanted. Eleven are not worth 10*l.* a year. Six are cottingers and outlaws. Twenty-six are cottingers answerable and poor people.

f. 127. July 5, 1606. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Scottish. Concerning a proposed meeting of the Commissioners at Carlisle, and the persons whose delivery is demanded. Sir William Cranston has written to us, but, instead of offenders we received only paper. He has neither gone to Esk with his horsemen, as commanded by us, nor made excuse. If these faults be not amended, we must give over the service, and make the cause known.

July 1, 1606. Notes on the letter from the Council of the 24th of June.

f. 128. July 5, 1606. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Council. We have called before us those of the Grahams who are confined to the city of Carlisle as pledges for their children and friends, and they, after some deliberation, yielded to the proposal for their transportation into Ireland. Peartree and Jocks Ritchie, prisoners in the Castle, immediately petitioned to be sent thither also, and we have accepted their request in consideration of the great number of that name who by their means might be drawn to be transported. They have promised to bring in their friends, fugitives, within eight days. Hutchin Graham, a man of the greatest mind and means among them, did not petition, relying on the King's remission. We called him to the bar publicly, and told him that he had obtained it upon a false suggestion, as he was not at the taking of Sandies Rynion, and that he had not fulfilled the conditions by good behaviour since. An hour later he also petitioned. The country is at peace. Sir Ralph Sidley has told us that each household to be transported should have at least 20*l.*, wherewith to maintain himself until the land in Ireland should yield profit. We find that no sufficient sum can be drawn from the benevolence of the country.

f. 129. Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Cumberland. On behalf of John Musgrave, who has taken several outlaws, among whom was Francis Urwen, outlawed for the murder of the Provost of Dumfries.

July 19, 1606. Greenwich. The King to the Commissioners. Warrant for the delivery to Sir Ralph Sidley of the Grahams chosen for transportation to Ireland. Those who wish to go thither from the cautionary towns must come to England at their own expense or at the expense of their friends. Those who refuse to go, and other notorious offenders, are to be prosecuted. A dozen horsemen may be obtained from Berwick. Lists of the gentlemen willing to contribute to the cost of transportation, and of those unwilling to contribute, are to be sent to the King.

f. 130. July 20, 1606. Greenwich. The Earl of Salisbury to the Commissioners. Concerning the murder of an ale-house keeper, and the punishment of the murderers.

July 17, 1606. Same place. The same to the same. The King and Council are busy on account of a fresh advertisement of the arrival of the King of Denmark in England.

July 20, 1606. Same place. The Council to the Commissioners. Instructions as to the preparations to be made for the transportation of the Grahams to Ireland.

f. 131. July 23, 1606. Carlisle. Articles agreed upon by the Commissioners for the government of the middle shires. All causes, civil and criminal, committed before the death of the late Queen, to be superseded until further directions be received from the King or the Council. Offences committed "in the ill weeke," that is to say between the death of the Queen and the 11th of April next ensuing, to be punished according to the letters of the Council. All complaints concerning spoils, etc. done "in the busie weeke" to be made to Sir H. Leigh and Sir W. Cranston, who shall procure satisfaction before the 23rd of October, or commit the delinquents to prison. Causes of felony to be examined by the Commissioners.

July 30, 1606. Carlisle. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Salisbury. Having taken very great bonds, and fathers and sons as pledges, we are persuaded that all the Grahams, seeing a resolute course taken, will no longer hazard their lives, but come in ready for transportation. At the last gaol delivery on the 28th, we executed none of them, and we hope to end the business without blood. We send a list of the gentlemen and freeholders of Cumberland who have offered to contribute to the transportation of the Grahams, but we still think that a competent sum cannot be raised in this manner. Workington and Ravenglass would afford the most ready passage into Ireland. The want of money for stock is now the chief obstacle.

f. 132. List of contributions promised by the gentlemen and freeholders of Cumberland towards the transplantation of the Grahams:— Christopher Pickeringe, Sheriff of Cumberland, 5*l.* ; Sir Edward Musgrave, 5*l.* ; Sir W. Hutton, 4*l.* ; Sir John Dalston refused on the bench in open court ; Thomas Salkeld, esq., 40*s.* ; Henry Dacres, esq., 50*s.* ; Christopher Curwen, esq., 40*s.* ; Richard Denton, esq., 40*s.* ; and twenty-eight others offer sums varying from 20*s.* down to 2*s.* 6*d.* Thomas Thompson, gent., John Lancaster, gent., and William Cowx, yeoman, refuse to contribute.

July 29, 1606. Warrant for the release from prison of John Noble of the Park head.

f. 133. Same day. Carlisle. Warrant for the release from prison of Hutchin Graham, and six other Grahams, on bail.

July 30, 1606. Memorandum concerning the release of Thomas Nixon of Croft.

July 24, 1606. Citation to John Selbie of Grindon to appear at Jedburgh on the 23rd of October.

August 17, 1606. Greenwich. The Council to the Commissioners. Censure the backwardness of the northern gentry in offering money, and especially the conduct of Sir John Dalston. Those persons named as having means to help themselves in the first plantation may be transported with all expedition.

August 14, 1606. Peebles. Sir W. Cranston to Sir W. Lawson. Sends list of nine prisoners convicted before the Earl of Dunbar and others at Peebles.

f. 134. August 16, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Cranston. Sends list of thirty-five Grahams who still stand out.

Same day and place. The Bishop of Carlisle, Sir Charles Hailes, and Sir W. Lawson to Mr. Lyons. Concerning the payment of the soldiers.

Same day and place. The same to John Musgrave. Warrant for the apprehension of Clement Hetherington of Tor Crossett, son-in-law of the great outlaw Antons Edward [Armstrong], so that he may be sent away to Ireland.

f. 135. August 15, 1606. List of the justices and gentlemen who agree that fifty families of the most notorious offenders of the Grahams be transported into Ireland, and that the country yield a contribution of 300*l*. Among the names is that of Sir John Dalston.

Order that the rate shall be levied, in Allerdale Ward with Millum, 120*l*., in Cumberland ward 50*l*., in Eskdale ward 40*l*., in Leith ward and Alston Moor, 90*l*.

August 18, 1606. Assessment of the different townships above and beneath Derwent.

f. 136. September 9, 1606. Naworth. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson. Both Scotland and England "Iye onelie upon me," for there is not a week, and scarce a night but they steal either from me or my tenants. It grieves me that so wicked a thief and murderer as Flaughtaile should be transported "without answeringe the law." Pardons have not heretofore been so easily obtained. I can prove that one Archibald Mackwittie, a Scotsman, dwelling with one Herbert Maxwell under Lord Maxwell, has stolen my cattle. I pray for his delivery, and that of one Archibald Armstrong, brother of Andrew Whithaugh, at whose house five of my cattle were found yesterday. If such open felonies escape unpunished, lamentable will be the state of these parts.

Same day. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Lord William Howard. Flaughtaile came in upon conditions, and therefore he must either be sent away or set at liberty. Will write to the Scottish Commissioners for Archibald Mavittie and Archibald Armstrong.

f. 137. September 10, 1606. Carlisle. The same to Sir John Charteris. Desires the apprehension of four cattle-stealers.

September 12, 1606. Carlisle. The Commissioners to the Lord Deputy of Ireland. Request him to moderate any differences that may arise between the Grahams to be transported and their landlord, Sir Ralph Sidley. The counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland, having sustained great losses from the Grahams, have contributed a great sum of money to redeem their peace.

Same day and place. Sir W. Lawson to Sir John Cranston at Denholme. Desires the apprehension of four cattle-stealers, as in his letter to Sir J. Charteris.

f. 138. September 12, 1606. Articles of agreement concerning the transportation of the Grahams, with list of those delivered to Sir Ralph Sidley. (See Calendar of Irish State Papers, 1603-1606. pp. 551-558.)

f. 142. September 13, 1606. Carlisle. The Commissioners to the Earl of Salisbury. We have sent the chief Grahams to the port of Workington, under the conduction of the Sheriff of Cumberland, with the assistance of the county, and of Mr. John Musgrave's horsemen. We have not been able to send away fifty families, because some of the poorer sort who had yielded themselves into transportation, at the instant thereof fled, out of weariness of their bondage to their masters, the chief Grahams. There are not now left between Leven and Sarke more than three Grahams of ability, of whom two are more than eighty years of age. All the notorious offenders whose manner terrified all peaceable men, are gone away. Some of their wives who cannot go now will follow in the spring. By their clamours and our entreaties they have been allowed to gain the corn, hay, and grass of this season without any allowance of rent to the Earl of Cumberland, so that he can have little or no profit of his "signiorie" this year. We find Sir R. Sidley well affected to use the Grahams well, if they shall so deserve. We have committed to him the 300*l.* levied for them from the country. There yet remains almost 200*l.* to be levied, which may be used either to transport others, or to increase the stock of those now transported. Although Esk, Sarke, and Leven are purged of evil men, there remain others fit to follow in Bewcastle and Gillesland. The Grahams carry with them many horses and much household stuff. There are yet remaining outlaws the sons of Walter Graham of Netherby, and divers others. Certificates concerning certain prisoners.

f. 143. September —, 1606. The Bishop of Carlisle and Sir W. Lawson to the Council. Enclose an account of the charges of removing the Grahams from Carlisle to Workington. Charges for men and ships pressed for the King's service from the 1st of August to the 13th of September, and for provisions. List of the ships employed—six in all, which carried 45 horses, 114 Grahams, Sir Ralph Sidley and four men. Charges for carts, boats, and wages. The total amounts to 135*l.* 8*s.* 5*d.*

Same day. The same to the Earl of Cumberland.

Same day. The same to John Taylor.

September 19, 1606. Naworth. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the trial of Christopher Armstrong of the Langholme, and the frequent stealing of cattle from Getsdale Forest.

f. 146. September 20, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to the Bishop of Carlisle. Concerning the same.

September 22, 1606. Same place. The same to Lord William Howard. Concerning the same.

September 21, 1606. Rose Castle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the gaol delivery.

Note concerning the trial of William Story.

f. 147. October 3, 1606. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, J. Pennington, and E. Grey to the Earl of Salisbury. At the gaol delivery on the 3rd, three Scotsmen and two Englishmen were convicted. Some Grahams have lately returned from the cautionary towns. We hope that they will undertake to follow their friends into Ireland in the spring. The Grahams had a prosperous voyage. They embarked at Workington on the Saturday at night, and arrived safely [at Dublin] on the next Tuesday in the morning. Two knights of their own name and kindred came to them there, and comforted them with kind entertainment and promises of help.

October 5, 1606. Same place. Sir W. Lawson, J. Pennington, and E. Grey to the Earl of Salisbury. Concerning the death of Christopher Armstrong, alias Barnegleese.

Narrative by John Musgrave and nineteen others of the search of the house of Christopher Armstrong, alias Barnegleese, in Scotland, and of his being killed, on the 22nd of September.

f. 148. October 4, 1606. Dumfries. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. Gives a different narrative of the death of Christopher Armstrong, and complains that the country is scandalised at the action of Sir W. Hutton and John Musgrave.

October 6, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Seaton. Sends a copy of the narrative of John Musgrave, who utterly denies the words imputed to him.

f. 149. October 5, 1606. Same place. The same, J. Pennington and E. Grey to [the same ?] Complain that restitution has not been made "for hurts done in the busie weeke."

N.D. The same to John Musgrave. Warrant to deliver Watt Urwen, alias Kirkpatrick, to the Scottish Commissioners.

N.D. The same to Mr. Lyons. Order to pay the wages of a horseman.

October 5, 1606. Note of a pardon granted to John Armstrong, late of Hexham, for robbery done in "the busie weeke."

October 7, 1606. Dumfries. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. I esteem Mr. Musgrave's narration one of the slightest purgations that ever I heard in such a case. Be so good as to deliver to us Christie Armstrong called Christie of Langholme. As to the restitution to the men of Gillesland, I have been told that Robert Ellnor is using all possible dilligence "to keepe his dyett and appointed tyme." Thomas Graham, alias Thomas Stupe, man to Thomas Story of Howend, must be sent to us at Dumfries.

October 8, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Seaton (Selby) in MS. Answer to the foregoing.

f. 150. Same day and place. The same to J. Musgrave. Warrant for the apprehension of Thomas Graham, alias Stupe.

October 10, 1606. Annan. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning a proposed meeting of the Commissioners and the delivery of certain offenders.

October 11, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to J. Musgrave. Warrant for the apprehension of David Little of Craighurne, and David Halliday dwelling upon Esk.

October 14, 1606. Cockermouth. The same to Sir W. Seaton. Concerning the proposed meeting of the Commissioners and the delivery of offenders.

f. 151. Same day and place. The same to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. Concerning the same.

October 14, 1606. Morpeth Castle. E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the proposed meeting.

October 19, 1606. Rose Castle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning a gaol delivery. John Musgrave will explain the danger that the soldiers were in from some Barneglesse's friends when they last went to Scotland with prisoners.

October 1, 1606. Skipton Castle. Andrew Oglethorpe to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning a petition from the Fosters.

October 18, 1606. Newby at Annan. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the admission of Christie of Langholme to bail. It does not agree with your honour to favour any "limber." If we light not on him, "let us have the extract (estreat) of his bond forfeited to be uplifted to his Majesty's beehooft." Mr. Musgrave's matter will not be slightly slipped over.

October 19, 1606. Cockermouth. Sir W. Lawson to J. Musgrave. Warrant for the delivery of prisoners to the Scottish Commissioners.

October 21, 1606. Isell. The same to Sir W. Seaton. Concerning the admission of Christie of Langholme to bail, and the death of Barnegleese, at great length.

f. 153 Same day and place. The same to the Bishop of Carlisle. Concerning the foregoing, and the course to be taken with outlaws.

f. 154. Same day and place. The same to E. Grey. Concerning John Musgrave.

October 9, 1606. Penrith. Sir W. Hutton to Sir W. Lawson. Defends himself from the slanderous imputations of Sir W. Seaton concerning the death of Barnegleese, and from the charge of having taken money from prisoners for their release.

October 25, 1606. Jedburgh. The Scottish Commissioners to Sir W. Lawson. Nctify his appointment as convener.

f. 155. November 5, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to the officers of the Earl of Cumberland upon Esk. Injunction not to molest the cattle of the Fosters.

November 2, 1606. Whitehall. The Council to the Commissioners. Commend their diligence in the service of sending away so many of the Grahams. Desire to be informed of the names of those who refuse to contribute towards the sum of 200*l.* which has yet to be levied. The King is willing that the Grahams who have returned from the cautionary towns, and some of the former outlaws, should be allowed to go to Ireland if they will give security for their abode there. He is very desirous that justice should be administered on the late borders. Complaints have been made of the partiality of the Captain of Bewcastle.

f. 156. November 6, 1606. Morpeth Castle. E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson. Lord William [Howard] says that Sir W. Selby is covertly seeking to overthrow the Commission.

November 11, 1606. Rose Castle. The Bishop of Carlisle and Sir W. Lawson to the Council. Two of the Grahams lately transported into Ireland have returned, of whom we have already apprehended one. We hear sundry rumours that many of the most offensive persons among them have landed in Scotland. The Graham now in prison says that they left because they could get none of the money entrusted to Sir R. Sidley for their relief. We beseech you to examine Sir Ralph as to this at his next being at court.

Same day and place. The same to Sir R. Delaval and E. Grey. Desire to see them at Carlisle on Monday next.

Same day and place. Sir W. Lawson to the Earl of Salisbury. Desires to be excused from attendance in Parliament on account of his duties as convener.

November 14, 1606. Seaton Delaval. Sir R. Delaval to the Bishop of Carlisle and Sir W. Lawson. Excuses himself from going to Carlisle on the score of bodily weakness.

f. 157. November 14, 1606. Morpeth Castle. E. Grey to the Bishop of Carlisle and Sir W. Lawson. Excuses himself from going to Carlisle on the score of his wife's illness.

November 11, 1606. Rose Castle. Sir W. Lawson to E. Grey.

November 20, 1606. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to the Justices of Westmoreland and Cumberland. Desire them to pay the money already collected for the transplantation of the Grahams, and to use all diligence to levy what is behind.

November 9, 1606. Skipton Castle. Andrew Oglethorpe to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the claims of the Fosters.

November 22, 1606. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to [the Council]. Sir W. Selby has been long absent. We have never had the aid of the horseman under his charge. Sir R. Delaval and Mr. Grey cannot at present discharge their service. After the 11th of December we will send you the names of those who refuse to contribute. The Captain of Bewcastle readily undertakes the apprehension of offenders within that charge, but he slenderly performs it. How he has stood affected to the good of his country may be gathered by his affinity, in that he matched one of his base daughters with "that bloodie and theevish clanne of the Armestrongs of Whithaugh in Liddesdale, by whom and their allies many horrible spoiles and cruell murthers have been committed." His house has been known as "an usuall receptacle" of those infamous sons of Sandies Rynion, the murderers of Sir John Carmichael. Three of the Grahams are now in prison. Since the beginning of this service, the principal let has been the want of apprehension of offenders. The number of outlaws is great, as appears by the schedule. Our garrison is only fifteen. We pray that the ten under Sir W. Selby may be sent hither, the winter season and the "nakedness" of the woods ministering the best opportunity of pursuit.

f. 158. List of outlaws—Ritchie Graham of Netherby, Arthur Graham of the same, Thomas Graham of the same, and fifty-one others bearing the names of Graham, Story, Urwen, Armstrong, and Foster.

f. 159. Same day and place. The same to Sir W. Cranston. Order for the delivery of George Cang.

Same day and place. Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Seaton. Suggests a conference between the English and the Scottish Commissioners on the 4th of January, for the compounding of feuds.

Same day. The Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to the Commissioners of Northumberland. Notice of a gaol delivery to be held on the 11th of December.

November 18, 1606. The Duchy House. The Earl of Cumberland to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning his appointment as High Sheriff.

f. 160. November 23, 1606. Haddington. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the proposed conference on the 24th of January.

"Giffe God grant abilitie, I sall do goodwill to keepe dyatt." George Cang is a fugitive.

December 6, 1606. Rose Castle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. On behalf of the gaoler, Marmaduke Maungie.

December 3, 1606. Morpeth Castle. E. Grey to the Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington. Excuses himself from attending the gaol delivery. Sir R. Delaval is not expected to live.

N.D. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to the Scottish Commissioners. Notification that Richard Graham of Netherby, Arthur Graham of the same, and three others named, have submitted themselves to the King's mercy.

December 13, 1606. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to [the Council]. Richard Graham of Netherby, principal of that clan, and an outlaw of the greatest note, has voluntarily submitted himself for transportation into Ireland. Others are and will be drawn to follow his example. Account of proceedings at the gaol delivery. Those Grahams who remain here complain that Sir Ralph Sidley does not perform his covenant with those in Ireland. If this be so, hunger and poverty will thrust them into these parts again.

f. 161. October 27, 1606. Athlone. William Graham of Medopp and Richard Graham to Mickle William Graham, brother of the second. We do not get the money that was set down by the Commissioners. We have spent all our money, and cannot get a penny to buy meat and drink withal. We have came a day's journey with him (Sir R. Sidley) "to be at a point with him," but could not.

N.D. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson. It was resolved by some that you should be discharged of all offices. You now stand charged with double offices. It was decreed at Carlisle that the Commission should be dissolved, and that a new Commission should be granted to one who should have authority both for England and Scotland. Under him Sir W. Selby was to have the sole government in Northumberland, and Mr. Thomas Salkeld in Cumberland. Mr. Thomas Salkeld spoke openly. He expected no cross but by my means, which were not wanting. Remarks about the offences imputed to Christopher Langholme and Humphrey Bell.

f. 162. December 13, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Lord William Howard. Concerning Christopher Langholme and Humphrey Bell. He will endeavour to discharge his duty.

November 30, 1606. The Duchy House. John Taylor to Sir W. Lawson. My Lord's friends continue constant to him. I have been very busy since I came to town. The Lords have been full of business by reason of the term and the Parliament.

December 22, 1606. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Encloses a letter from the King.

December 13, 1606. Westminster. The King to the Commissioners. We do not find so good success of your proceedings as we expected. You were ordered to attend directions from our Council from time to time. It seems necessary to ease you of the labour of sending so far. We have therefore appointed the Earl of Dunbar, who is a councillor in both our kingdoms, and likely to be often at Berwick, to resolve any difficulties that may arise in the execution of your service.

f. 163. Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Dunbar. Our meaning is not to give you any authority to proceed as a judge or commissioner, but to require you to assist the Commissioners with advice, and we authorize you to cause search to be made for loose persons, and to deliver them to the Commissioners.

December 23, 1606. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to the Bishop of Carlisle. Encloses letters from the King.

December 20, 1606. Edinburgh. The Scottish Commissioners to the English. We cannot "keepe diett with you" before the 2nd of March at Carlisle or Berwick. We desire to have an enrolment of the feuds between the two countries, so that all parties "interested in matters of blood" unreconciled may appear and give in their griefs.

f. 164. December 24, 1606. Naworth Castle. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson, High Sheriff of Cumberland. I have sent Christie of Langholme to Carlisle to be committed to gaol. If Sir W. Selby could have had his will, your commission would have been dissolved, and a new commission established, whereby he would have been sole Commissioner in Northumberland and Mr. Thomas Salkeld sole Commissioner in Cumberland.

December 27, 1606. Same place. The same to the same. I pray you to detain Christie of Langholme from delivery into Scotland until the opposite Commissioners deliver to you Archie Mackwittie. Advice about a writ.

January 2, 1606 [-7]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Lord William Howard. Concerning Archie Mavittie, Christie of Langholme, and Flaughtailes.

December 18, 1606. Whitehall. The Council to the Commissioners. Order to make examination concerning the proceedings of John Musgrave in killing Christopher Armstrong, and to determine the matter according to justice.

f. 165. December 24, 1606. Same place. The same to the same. Those Grahams who have returned from Ireland deserve the least favour. You are to proceed with them in justice, both for their own offences, and for example's sake. Those who returned from the cautionary towns, and those fugitives who now voluntarily enter themselves, may have the favour of transplantation into Ireland if they give good security for their speedy departure thither. Let justice proceed against those who do not give good caution for their departure, and those who are still fugitives. We have written to the Lord Deputy [of Ireland] desiring him to deal earnestly with Sir R. Sidley for such good usage as may encourage the Grahams to continue there. We have written to Sir W. Selby to send the ten horsemen under his charge to Carlisle, according to your desire. You may call the Captain of Bewcastle before you, and tell him that it is not the King's pleasure that he should by himself command all the inhabitants within that precinct as he has done heretofore in troublesome times, and that he must not interrupt the execution of your warrants.

December 30, 1606. Morpeth Castle. E. Grey to the other Commissioners. Concerning a proposed meeting.

f. 166. January 2, 1606 [-7]. Rose Castle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning letters from the Council and E. Grey. "If you would come and dwell at Carliel, you should have newes pipinge hote as soone as I."

January 9, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The same to the Earl of Salisbury. It is doubted whether Sir W. Lawson and Sir W. Selby, being appointed High Sheriffs of Cumberland and Northumberland, may lawfully sit in judgment in their several counties. At all gaol deliveries, except when Sir Charles Hales was here, Sir W. Lawson has given both the charge and the judgment. No other of the Commissioners is willing to undergo that burden.

Same day and place. The same and Sir W. Lawson to the same, informing him of the death of Sir R. Delaval on the 1st inst.

December 4, 1606. Edinburgh. Sir W. Cranston to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. Concerning Geordie Urwin, alias Kang.

December 29, 1606. Crellinge. The same to the same. Concerning the same.

January 10, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to the Scottish Commissioners. Concerning their proposed meeting on the 2nd of March, and concerning Archie Mavittie. They approve the proposal to divide the late marches into two parts.

f. 167. January 8, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Lord William Howard. Concerning an enquiry to be held.

January 11, 1606 [-7]. Same place. The same to the same. Concerning certain writs.

January 11, 1606 [-7]. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Salisbury. Lord William Howard, riding in person with his servants and followers, has apprehended three infamous offenders, Thomas Armstrong, alias Antons Edwards Tom, John Armstrong, alias Jock Stowlugs, and Christopher Urwin. He took great pains to pursue them, riding all the night from his own house upon the late borders to the confines of Yorkshire.

f. 168. November 21, 1606. Whitehall. The Council to the High Sheriff of Cumberland. Order to make a list of persons having 4l. a year of freehold in their own right, or in the right of their wives, competent to serve on juries, not excepting justices of the peace, so that proceedings in trials may not be so scandalous as heretofore by the return of mean and ignorant people upon juries.

January 11, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to the Council. Sends a list of freeholders as required.

January 12, 1606 [-7]. Same place. The same and J. Pennington to Sir John Charteris. Concerning a grey mare stolen from Esk.

January 9, 1606 [-7]. Naworth Castle. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson. I would have been very glad to have seen you in my poor house, but sorry that you should lose so much labour in this cold weather and in such foul ways. I was away "fishing," and I took as many as I could get. I was in hopes to have taken Antons Edward himself, but, for want of a better, was glad to take his son Thomas, Gifford [Chris. Urwin], and Jock Stowlugs, the last but not the least in villainy. I desire you to keep him for a jewel of high price. Pray cause the records to be searched. If you find matter sufficient to hang the other two, "hould up your finger" and they shall be delivered. I confess myself a southern novice.

f. 169. January 13, 1606 [-7]. Same place. The same to the same. Concerning the prosecution of the captured offenders.

January 25, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to Sir W. Hutton. Desire him to come to Carlisle.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

Same day and place. The same to Sir Richard Musgrave. Order to come to Carlisle.

January 26, 1606 [-7]. Same place. The same to the Lord President of the North and the Council [at York]. A robbery has been committed on the person of Richard Craven, deputy-receiver of his Majesty's revenues in Westmoreland and Cumberland, and above 200*l.* has been taken from him besides his books, bills, and bonds. Thomas Musgrave, son of Sir Richard Musgrave of Norton, co. York, John Musgrave late of Fairbank, co. Cumberland, and Christopher Pickering late of Crosby Ravensworth, co. Westmoreland, both household servants of Sir Richard Musgrave of Edenhall, co. Cumberland, are believed to have committed the robbery. All three are said to have fled into Yorkshire. They are very young men.

f. 170 Same day and place. The same to George Selby, Mayor of Newcastle. Concerning the same matter.

Same day and place. The same to — Bradell. Concerning the same matter.

January 29, 1606 [-7]. Same place. The English Commissioners to the Earl of Salisbury. John Armstrong, alias Stowlugs, Thomas Armstrong, alias Edward's Tom, Christopher Urwin, alias Gifford Carleton, Robert Graham, and William Graham, alias Flaughtaile, have been tried and executed. The third of these was a fugitive from Brill, returned from Ireland. The last was a most infamous murderer, returned from Ireland. He was taken in the Bishopric of Durham by Lord William Howard, whom we still find a great furtherer of justice. The peace of these parts, which was reasonably well settled, is much disturbed by the robbery of Mr. Craven on the 13th inst. on his travel between Penrith and Kendal. We have reason to believe that John Musgrave of Catterlen caused the robbery to be done. By his own confession he was with the suspected robbers the night before at Penrith, and he harboured two of them the night after in his own house. We have committed him to ward.

f. 171. Same day and place. The same to the Scottish Commissioners. Concerning the exchange and the punishment of divers offenders.

January 30, 1606 [-7]. Naworth Castle. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson. "You make on my behalfe a mountaine of a moule hill." Words are but compliments; deeds shall testify my affection to you.

January 31, 1606 [-7]. Hardington. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning their proposed meeting, and the powers committed to the Earl of Dunbar.

February 1, 1606. Amesfield. Sir John Charteris to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the same.

f. 172. February 4, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the fugitive Musgraves, and the proposed visit of the Earl of Dunbar.

February 4, 1606 [-7]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to the Bishop of Carlisle. Forwards certain letters.

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

February 10, 1606 [-7]. Twizel. Sir W. Selby to the Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington. There is more need of the ten horsemen in Northumberland than in Cumberland. The Earl of Dunbar desires that their departure should be stayed. Since 1605 the number of outlaws in Esk has become much less. There are now six in Northumberland for one in Cumberland, and only ten horsemen.

f. 173. Same day. The same to the other English Commissioners. Proposes that a gaol delivery shall be held at Newcastle on the 4th of March.

February 13, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Encloses a letter.

February 15, 1606 [-7]. Sir W. Lawson to J. Pennington. Concerning their proposed meeting.

February 16, 1606 [-7]. Isell. The same to the Bishop of Carlisle. Concerning the same.

February 18, 1606 [-7]. Morpeth Castle. E. Grey to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the same.

f. 174. February 21, 1606 [-7]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to E. Grey. Concerning the same.

February 23, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the affairs of the Earl of Cumberland's servants and Rosetrees.

Same day and place. John Taylor to the same. Concerning the same.

February 24, 1606 [-7]. Sir W. Lawson to the Bishop of Carlisle. Concerning their proposed meeting

f. 175. Same day. Isell. The same to John Taylor. Concerning the same.

February 6, 1606 [-7]. Serjeants Inn. George Snigge (Baron of the Exchequer) to the Bishop of Carlisle, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington. Order to examine the information laid against William Taylor and Plantagenett Ireland concerning misdemeanours against the Countess Dowager ("daughter") of Cumberland.

February 13, 1606 [-7]. Berwick. Sir W. Seaton to Sir W. Lawson. The Earl of Dunbar has put off their meeting until the 4th of March. He has done good service by executing five men at Foulden, who would have "cambered" both countries "if the had bene maisters of their heads."

February 23, 1606 [-7]. Newcastle. Sir W. Selby to the Bishop of Carlisle. Concerning the proposed gaol delivery.

f. 176. February 25, 1606 [-7]. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the same. Yesterday John Musgrave's company apprehended Geordie of the Gingler, alias Henharrow, a man of some note upon the borders.

Same day. Carlisle. John Taylor to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the illness of the Earl of Dunbar and the proposed gaol delivery.

February 23, 1606 [-7]. Berwick. The Earl of Dunbar to the Bishop of Carlisle and Sir W. Lawson. "Man purposeth, and God determineth." Hopes to be well enough to meet them on the 18th of March. Mangerton, Whithaugh, William Elliott, Andrew Armstrong, and Martin Elliott are executed for very odious and criminal causes, and fourteen others for stealths and other punishable causes.

February 25, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Sends a copy of the foregoing.

Same day. Newcastle. Sir W. Selby to the Bishop of Carlisle. Concerning the adjournment of the gaol delivery.

f. 177. January 18, 1606 [-7]. Whitehall. The Council to the Commissioners. The King has received a petition from William Graham of the Rosetrees and George Graham, his brother, that they may be permitted to remain. He is willing that they should not be constrained to go into Ireland as the rest, but they must remove to some place in England or Scotland not part of the late borders. The Earl of Cumberland will provide them with means to settle elsewhere, the measure whereof is to be ordered by the Commissioners.

October 26, 1606. The Court at Royston. Sir Roger Wilbraham to the Commissioners. The King desires to have their opinion on the case of Anne Graham.

Petition of Anne Graham, wife of George Graham, to the King, praying for permission to continue in the house and land which she and her husband rented of her brother, George Storie, keeper of the royal park at Wandles.

January 4, 1606 [-7]. Whitehall. John Murrey to Sir W. Lawson. On behalf of George Graham, alias Carlisle, a true man who has been outlawed.

f. 178. March 4, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle and Sir W. Lawson to Sir W. Selby. Concerning the proposed gaol delivery.

March 2, 1606 [-7]. Naworth Castle. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson. On Saturday night I sent my men and apprehended William Graham of the Black house, alias Old Will's Willy, who escaped when Flaughtaile was taken. Anton's Edward has written to me, desiring that he may be banished. I have no authority to examine the prisoner Blackhouse, but he voluntary confesses that since his return from Ireland he and Flaughtaile have been received by Mr. Fetherston of Stanhope (Stannox), a justice of the peace in the Bishopric of Durham, by Dr. Burton there, and by Sir George Hall, clerk, curate of Stanhope. This kind of dealing is intolerable among clergymen and justices of the peace.

March 4, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson to Lord William Howard. Concerning a prisoner [W. Graham].

Same day. Naworth Castle. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the examination of the same.

f. 179. March 5, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle and Sir W. Lawson to Lord William Howard. Concerning the same. As it would be difficult "to circumvent" that ancient murderer [Anton's] Edward, it will not prove amiss to rid the country of him by banishment.

Same day and place. Sir W. Lawson to the same. Concerning the same.

Same day. Naworth Castle. Lord William Howard to the Bishop of Carlisle and Sir W. Lawson. Concerning the same.

March 4, 1606 [-7]. Berwick. The Earl of Dunbar to the Bishop of Carlisle. The gaols at Berwick and Newcastle are full of felons and malefactors. John Musgrave, Simon Musgrave, Christopher Pickering, and Randell Bell, the four taken for the robbery of the King's money, will be sent to Carlisle for trial there. Cause John Musgrave and a sufficient number of his company to meet them at Hexham and convey them thence to the gaol.

f. 180. March 11, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. The garrison is gone to Hexham, and I expect the prisoners to-morrow. Your presence here will be absolutely necessary. The gaol is much "pestered" and will grow worse. A gaol delivery should be held on the last of this month. You will come sufficiently armed to answer all Scottish objections, and like a right Cumberland man. A precise account will be required of what justice has been done on both sides. Expect to bear the whole burden yourself as concerns the English part.

March 12, 1606 [-7]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to the Bishop of Carlisle. Concerning their proposed meeting.

March 11, 1606 [-7]. Newcastle. Sir W. Selby to the same. Concerning the proposed gaol delivery.

Same day and place. The same to Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington. The Earl of Dunbar cannot travel before the 9th of April. The King has sent one of his physicians to him.

f. 181. March 10, 1606 [-7]. Berwick. The Earl of Dunbar to the Bishop of Carlisle. To the same effect.

March 12, 1606 [-7]. Carlisle. The Bishop of Carlisle to Sir W. Lawson. Desires to see him concerning the gaol deliveries in Cumberland and Westmoreland, the sending away the Grahams, the building of Arthuret Church, and other like works.

March 15, 1606 [-7]. Same place. The same, Sir W. Lawson, and J. Pennington to Sir W. Selby. Notice of a gaol delivery.

March 16, 1606 [-7]. Same place. The same three to Sir George Snigg, one of the justices of assize at Lancaster. William Taylor had his pistol and his plate sleeves, but he usually wears these things, as he lives in some danger upon the late dissolved borders, where he is an officer for the Earl of Cumberland. Plantagenet Ireland is charged with no other offence than hindering the carrying away of timber in controversy between the said Earl and the old Countess. We find no cause to send them to Lancaster.

March 21, 1606 [-7]. Naworth. Lord William Howard to Sir W. Lawson. Concerning two men who have shot in his free warren in Gilsland.

March 23, 1606 [-7]. Isell. Sir W. Lawson to Lord William Howard. Concerning the same.

f. 182. Lists of the prisoners tried, and the sentences imposed, at different gaol deliveries at Carlisle, between May 2, 1605, and August 23, 1606.

f. 186. November 21, 1606. Carlisle. Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington to [Christopher] Pickering, Sheriff of Cumberland. Warrant for the apprehension of William Bell and others.

Note of the different sojourns of Sir W. Lawson and J. Pennington at Carlisle, while Sir Charles Hales was there.

List of the Commissioners for numbering the [Scottish] nobility, A.D. 1606. John, Earl of Montrose, and thirteen others.

List of the [Scottish] Nobility. A.D. 1606.

The following letters and papers have been transcribed in the unpagged part of the volume by different hands and at different times:—

July 17, 1635. Nomination of Deputy Lieutenants for the county of Cumberland.

December 6, 1634. Whitehall. The Board of Green Cloth to the Justices of the Peace for the county of Cumberland. Concerning provision for the King's house.

August 16, 1635. Skipton Castle. The Earl of Cumberland to the Deputy Lieutenants of the county of Cumberland. Forwards letters.

October 31, 1635 (?). Whitehall. The Council to the Lord Lieutenant of the northern counties [i.e. the Earl of Cumberland]. Order for muster-rolls.

July —, 1635. Arundel House. Four Lords Lieutenants to the Deputy Lieutenants of the county of Cumberland. Order for muster-rolls.

April 27, 1635. Whitehall. The Council to the Lord Lieutenant of the northern counties. Order for a muster.

May 31, 1635. Same place. The same to the same. Concerning the cost of the muster.

July —, 1635. Arundel House. Two Lords Lieutenants to the Deputy Lieutenants of the county of Cumberland. Concerning the march to be used by the English nation.

March 10, 1635 (?). Whitehall. The Council to the Lord Lieutenant of the northern counties. Concerning the measure to be taken by all English drummers.

March 24, 1636 [-7?] Same place. The same to the same. Order for a muster.

May 20, 1637. London. The Lord Lieutenant of the northern counties to the Deputy Lieutenants of the county of Cumberland. Order for a muster.

August 17, 1637. Whitehall. The Council to the Lord Lieutenant of the northern counties. Order for the replenishment of the magazines with gunpowder, and for the exercise of the trained bands where there is not the infection of the plague.

September 7, 1637. Kirkby Thore. Lord Clifford to the Deputy Lieutenants of the county of Cumberland. Order for a muster.

[September, 1637.] Sir Patricius Curwen and William Pennington to Lord William Howard. Concerning the proposed muster.

October 20, 1637. Cockermouth Castle. The Deputy Lieutenants of the county of Cumberland to the Lord Lieutenant of the northern counties. They cannot give an exact account, by reason of the many late taxations and the sickness at Newcastle, from whence they should have obtained necessities for the magazines.

January 8, 1637 [-8?] Muncaster. William Pennington to Lord William Howard. There has been of late much stealth of sheep in these parts, so that many have lost a fourth part of their flocks, others a third, and some one half. If some speedy course be not taken, we shall be in a worse case than the borders. The thieves seldom take above one or two sheep at a time. It is thought that they bestow the flesh underground or in some other secret place. The pelts, after pulling them, they throw away, and the bones they burn. If they chance to be taken, there is nothing to be found with them but suet, or wool. Though they have no sheep or goods of their own, they fare as well on this trade as those who have good farms. This country stands altogether upon the flocks of sheep. Abraham Singleton, a notorious thief, is now in prison.

August 31 [1639]. Canterbury. Nomination of the Earl of Arundel and Surrey, and Lord Maltravers, as Lieutenants of the county of Cumberland.

February 26, 1639 [-40]. Nomination of Deputy Lieutenants of the county of Cumberland.

N.D. Order by the Earl of Northumberland, Lord General, for the levy of forty footmen for the garrison of Berwick.

August 22, 1640. Carlisle. Thomas Alcocke, Serjeant Major, to Leonard Dykes. The Scots are marching into England, to prevent whose progress the King is at York. He intends to be at the head of the army himself, my Lord General being indisposed. The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland is declared Lord General. This I have from Sir Henry Vane, who has ordered me to write to him this night at York.

August 24, 1640. Same place. The same to the same. Since writing to you on Saturday, I have received another letter from Sir Henry Vane, to require to raise the trained bands and all other forces, to resist the progress of the enemy. I have written to Sir Patricius Curwen and Capt. Pennington.

A table of the men, muskets, and pikes, to be provided by the several townships in Allerdale Ward, according to the appointment of Sir Patricius Curwen, Sir Milliam Musgrave, and Leonard Dykes, Deputy Lieutenants. Total 236 men, 160 muskets, 76 pikes.

December 7, 1640. H. Elsynge, clerk of the House of Commons, to the Justices of the Peace in the county of Cumberland. Order to present the names of all recusants.

December 20, 1640. Carlisle. (Sir) Thomas Dacre, Peter Senhouse, and Leonard Dykes to the High Constables in Allerdale Ward. Order to present the names of all recusants.

Whitsuntide, 1710. Inventory of goods [at Muncaster Castle]. "One of the rooms is described as "King Harry Room," in allusion to the visit of Henry VI.

(17th century.) List of able bodied men at Muncaster, 51; at Cornay, 19; at Bootle, 7; at Wayberthwaite, 33; at Drigg and Carleton, 43.

November 9, 1637. Sir Thomas Dacre, Sheriff of Cumberland, to Joseph Patrickson, gent., collector of the ship-money in Allerdale Ward above Darwen. Order for the levy and distraint of the sums assessed.

November 6, 1637. Assessment of ship-money in Allerdale Ward above Darwin.

September 18 [1640]. Carlisle. Sir William Howard, Sir George Dalston, and Sir Thomas Dacre to the High Constable of Allerdale Ward beneath Darwen. We understand that the Scots are preparing to invade this county, and to deal with it as they have done with Northumberland and the Bishopric of Durham. The landlords of your division are to appear at Carlisle on the 22nd inst. with such men as are under their command, with arms offensive and defensive, and seven days' provision for every man. All such as were dragoons under Sir Charles Howard in Holm cultram are likewise commanded to appear with their arms on the day and at the place aforesaid.

September 28, 1640. Carlisle. Orders issued by the Deputy Lieutenants and Justices of the Peace. (1) That a general muster be forthwith taken by the landlords, that one able man out of every five be chosen to defend the country, and that the four who stay at home shall provide arms and allowance; (2) That all freeholders shall come themselves or send an able man with arms and allowance, excepting the trained bands of horse and foot, in regard of their more immediate service. That the rendezvous shall be at Carlisle on Wednesday next; (3) That the country in general shall contribute towards the charges of making such works as shall be thought necessary by the Lieutenant Governor for the defence of the city; (6) That upon the firing of the beacons all the men chosen shall repair to Carlisle, with seven days' provision, upon pain of death.

Supplementary orders by Leonard Dykes and Thomas Alcock, that every soldier shall bring with him, besides his arms, a spade, shovel, or pickaxe, to the rendezvous at Carlisle, from whence they shall be carried in carts to the places at which they will be used.

July 6, 1639. Workington. Sir Patricius Curwen and Peter Senhouse to the constables of Embleton, Wythop (Widhope), and Setmurthey (Sackmurder). Order for the billet of one hundred and sixty soldiers in Roseley, Westward, and other adjoining places.

July 5, 1639. Same place. The same to the constables of Isell, Sunderland, Old Park, and Bewaldeth. Order for the billet of the company of Serjeant Bray.

November 8, 1642. Note of William Pennington's subscription of 10*l.*, for the defence of the county of Cumberland.

The volume also contains some farm accounts of the eighteenth century.

A folio volume of the seventeenth century, lettered "Sir John Pennington's Journal." It contains the smooth log, or fair transcript of the journal kept on board the successive ships of the royal navy which were under his command in the years 1631, 1633, 1634, 1635, and 1636. Besides a daily record of the wind and weather, it gives an account of the events of each day, and many particulars illustrative of nautical life. The entries are so terse that I have seldom attempted to abbreviate them in the following extracts:—

"A jorall of my voyge as Admirall for the gard of the Narrow Seas begunn the 20th of March 1631 [-2], in his Majesties good shipp the Convertive."

April 6. "Wee came aboard his Majesties shipp the Convertive, rydinge in Tilberye Hope."

9. "My Lord Strange and his Lady, the Countess Levistone, the Count Delavoall, and all their traine came aboard."

12. "Wee sett sayle and fell downe soe lowe as Quinborow [Queenborough], where we anchored in 9 fathom water—my Lord Strange leavinge our shipp before wee came soe lowe as Lee."

LORD
MUNCASTER'S
MSS.

13. "Wee weyed and rann up againe unto Tilbery Hope, where my Lady Strange left our shipp and went to London."

14. "My Lord Strange and his Lady came aboard againe."

15. "Wee sett sayle the second time from Tilbery Hope and came to an anchor about 10 in the forenoone, by the boye of the Redd sand, where wee stayed for the tyde. My Lord Strange left our shipp when wee were before Lee. About one in the afternoone wee weyed and stood over for the coast of Holland."

16. "Wee came to an anchor about 4 or 5 leagues from the shore in 14 fathom water, within sight of Graysand steeple in' Holland."

19. "Wee weyed, having a fair gale at N.N.E., and stood in for the Brill Road, where we anchored about 8 in the afternoone some two leagues of the shore in 10 fathom water, wee landing my Lady Strange, my Lady Leavestone, the Count Delavoall, and all their traine there.

20. "Wee weyed and sett sayle for England."

22. "Wee made Scales neere Callice in France, and soe steeringe over for the Downes, where—God be prayسد—about 4 o clock in the after-noone wee came safly to an anchor, and found only the Assurance of the King's rydinge there."

25. "Captaine Digbye came from the northward in the Second Whelpe, havinge taken 4 trawles from these men, whose names are heere mentioned:—Samuell Halle of Harwich, Master of the Tode; Robert Hunter of Harwich, Master of the Prosperous; Richard Otewell of Barking, Master of the Bess; John Faske of Barking, Master of the Peter and John."

26. "Wee sett sayle with our whole fleete, being 4 sayle in all, viz. the Convertive, Admirall, the Assurance, Vize Admirall, the Tenth Whelpe, and the Second Whelpe, beinge all bound to the westwardes, to cleere the coast of Rovers and Pyrates, and as wee passed through Dover Roade, wee mett there with 11 sayle of Hollandes men of warr, whereof two were soe stoote that they would not soe much as settle their topp-sayles untill wee made a shott at each of them, soe—they doinge their duties—wee stood on our course."

29. "Wee came to an anchor in Dartmouth range, where ridd two shippes that came from Mallago. Wee sent our boate aboard of them and into the towne to press men, and see what newes wee could learne, where two of our owne men rann away while our boate was ashore."

30. "Wee stood to the westwardes . . . and about 4 in the after-noone wee came up before Falmouth and sent in the Second Whelpe to serch alongst the shore to see where there were any Pyrates or Rovers ryding in Hilford or in any creeke there aboutes, wee lyinge without—with the wind at S.E. and by E.—but by reason the Second Whelpe stayed soe longe, about 7 a clock our Leivetenant went to Hilford in the Pinnace to see what newes was there, who brought word—about 3 a clock the next morninge—that the Whelp was forced to put in to Hilford by reason shee could not ply it off without danger."

May 1. "Wee espyinge to [two] shippes somthing to leeward of us gave them chase, whoe, seeinge they could not goe from us, bore up beefore the wind and stood in for the shore, and about one a clock wee came up with them and found them to bee Hollanders, bound for the West Indies, so wee tackinge about held on our course."

2. "Our Vize-Admirall sprange her mainmast . . . The Assurance left us to goe into some harborough where she might fish her mast."

3. "Wee came safly to an anchore in Falmouth harbour, where wee found the Assurance."

9. "Wee havinge gott our anchors aboard by 4 a clock in the morninge, but by reason the wind was against us wee warpt out of the harbour, and about 6 wee sett sayle and stood to the eastward, with the Assurance and the 2 Whelpes in our company. This daye about 10 a clock wee tooke a generall muster of all the men belonging unto our shipp." The list mentions John Pennington, Esq., as Captain, and Robert Fox and Thomas Pennington as gentlemen, and gives the names of one hundred and fifty-five other persons with their respective ranks. Among them is "Dockter Ambrose, preacher."

21. "There came up 4 Dunkerke men of warr unto us, who in all submissive wise, with their topp sayles and topgallant sayles lowred upon the capp, saluted us accordinge to the custome of the sea."

23. "In the morninge wee were as high as Donowes [Dunnose], which is the southernmost poynt of the Ile of Wight."

24. Anchored in the Downs.

31. "The 10th Whelpe sett sayle and stood up for Gorend, havinge order to put men aboard of the Falcon of London—which came from Virginia laden with tobacco—and to carry her up the river of Thames to the Port of London."

June 2. "The 10th Whelp came back from Gorend."

11. "Wee received 18 tonne and a halfe of beere, being parte of the 3 moneths victualls which begineth the 9 daye of July 1632."

12. "The tenth Whelpe sett sayle and stooode up towards Gorend, to looke out for trawlers . . . About 7 a clock the Whelp came back againe with a very fresh gale at N.W., but could meete with no trawles."

22. "The tenth Whelpe sett sayle . . and stood over for Callice to see when the body of the Ambassador would bee brought thether, that the Assurance might goe and bringe it over."

23. "The 10th Whelpe returned from Callice, but could not learne when the corpes would be brought thether."

27. "The Assurance sett sayle and stood over for Callice to bringe over the body of Sir Isaack Wake."

July 6. "The 10th Whelpe sett sayle with a small gale at S. and by W., shee beinge to waft a hoye loden with victualls over for Callice Roade unto the Assurance, but came back againe before the next morninge, by reason the Assurance was gone for Bullaine [Boulogne] to take in the corpes there."

7. "The Assurance came in with the wind at W.S.W., havinge landed the body of the Ambassador at Dover about 10 a clock the night before . . . This day my Captain receved order to search aboard of all the shippes under his command for such goods as should bee conveyed out of the Palgrave of the East Indya Companys." Three bags of cloves, two bags of pepper, a bag of nutmegs, and thirteen other bags of pepper were brought on board the Convertive, and sealed up, to be sent to London.

9. The goods were shipped on board the Susan of London, hired by a servant of the East India Company.

28. "About 4 a clock in the afternoone wee were thwart of Donose (Dunnose) which is the southernmost poynt of the Ile of Wight." Heere wee sent in Captain Fogg in the 10th Whelpe to search in Studland and Swansey (Swanage) Bay, and the rest of the creekes alongst the shore—for Pirates, Pickeroones, or any such as disturbes the peaceable traffick of his Majesty's subjectes."

29. Anchored in Portland Road. "Wee careined our shipp the second tyme, and—God be prayesd—found her leake and stopt the same."

July 1. "Wee mett with the 10th Whelpe in Dartmouth Range."

2. Anchored in the Sound. "The 8th Whelpe ran in to Catt Water, there intendinge to hale ashore, and to mend somewhat that was a miss in her gripe. This afternoon our Leivetenant went to Plimouth to see what intelligence hee could gett there, where he hard of some small vessells that had bine pilferinge upon our coast."

3. "In the morning it blew very hard at S.W. by W. About noone we weyed—leavinge the 8th Whelpe in Catt Water—and stode of to sea with the rest of our Fleete, knowinge it to bee a very hard matter for any small vessells to keepe the sea in such fowle weather, and the likeliest place for them to shelter in with these winds was Torbaye, for which place wee stood, causinge the 10th Whelpe to goe a head of us and close aboard the shore, with her coullers and ordynance in, that shee might not bee suspected to bee one of our Fleete, the better to intrapp any Pyrates . . . There was noe body in Torbay."

11. "Wee sent the 8th Whelpe into Mountes baye, to see what vessells ridd there."

12. News "of a Pyrate or two that had bine very lately upon our coast."

13. "Wee spake with a Frenchman that tolde us that there were 3 of our East Indya Shippes upon the coast. The smallest of them—beinge caled the Jewell—came up with us in the forenoone, they wantinge both men and victualls, of all which we furnisht them."

Anchored off the Lizard. "Wee sawe 6 sayle of Hollanders, the Admirall and Vize Admirall wearinge their flagges aloft, but they haveinge the winde of us, kept themselves aloofe off, soe that wee could not reach them with our ordynance."

14. "Wee weyed and plyd it up all the forenoone as neere as wee could lye to gett if it were possible the winde of these Hollanders, which we recovered about 12 a clock, and then havinge the weather gadge of them, stood right with their Admirall, whoe seeinge hee could (then) gett noe way from us, tooke in his flagge—before wee came within shott of him—and saluted us with 5 pieces of ordynance which wee answered—accordinge to the accustomed manner of the sea—with 3, and presently after shott another at one of his fleete to cause him to strike, beinge in a readyness to give him a whole Broad syde if hee had refused to doe his duety.” Musters of the crew of the Vauntgard, John Pennington, esquire, being Admiral, in the months of July and August, 1633.

4. “The Lyon, the Freeman, and the 10th Whelpe, sett sayle and stood over for the coast of France.”

5. “This daye 2 Dunkerke sloopes clapt a Hollander of 10 peeces aboard, in Dover Roade, and, notwithstandinge the Castell and Towne that shott at them, they had carryed her, had not the Blessing (sic) of London rescued her, and came into the Downes in her company. Tho 8th Whelpe came alsoe from Dover, and likewise the Lyon, the Freeman, and the 10th Whelpe returned, and in their company a Dunkerkes prize, which they mett withall thwart of Blackness, and brought her in to make satisfaction for the Buss that they tooke from my Lord Chamberlaine. This afternoon my Lord Generall, our Vize and Reare Admirall, with my Lord Conaway sate in counsell, and concluded the next morninge to sett sayle, if winde and weather would permitt, and to stand to the westwardes, there to lye to and againe thwart of the Lyzard. They alsoe resolved that if they should come up in the night, or in thicke weather—before they were aware—with the French Kinges fleete, of what strength soever they weare, to fight it out to the last man, if they should refuse to doe their duety to his Majesties shippes; but if wee should make them by day and perfectly discover what force they were of, wee were to follow my Lord Generall, which was to give on with resolution upon them, if he thought there were any equalltie, but upon to much disadvantage to make a faire retreat before wee had to farr ingaged ourselves, and [not] wilfully to hazard his Majesties royall navie—which under God is the strength of our Kingdome—where there is noe possibilitie of victory.”

6. The whole fleet, except the Plyades which was in Holland, set sail. “The Swallow stooode awaye for Rye, where she was to take in my Lord Chamberlaines sonne, and to transporte him for Deepe (Dieppe).”

7. “This daye 2 of the Kinge of Denmarke’s shippes came up with us, one of them havinge bine 11 yeere in the Indies, and at her returne put in for Ireland, the other beinge a man of warr with 14 peeces, which was sent thether to waught her home, there beinge one of the Kinge of Denmarkes sonnes in her.”

Copy of orders issued by the Earl of Lindsey, Admiral and Generall of the Fleet:—1. All the officers and company are to offer their best devotions twice a day according to the usual prayers and liturgy of the Church of England. 2. Information is to be brought to the Admiral of any murders, tumults or quarrels. 3. Any common swearer, blasphemers, railer, drunkard, or pilferer, or any one sleeping at his watch, or making a noise after the watch is set, or any one discontented with his proportion of victuals, is to be punished according to the custom of the sea. 4. The Captain is to insist on strict accounts of the victuals and munitions. 5. By reason on the great waste of powder and shot, accounts of the same are to be taken weekly, and no piece of ordnance is to be fired without particular order. 6. The full complement of men is to be maintained. 7. No boat is to go ashore without leave, except to fetch water and the like. 8. The Captains of the different ships are to perform due respect to the Admiral, never taking the wind of him. They are to go on board his ship whenever they see the flag of council in the mizen shrouds. 9. The Captains are to observe and follow the two lights on board the Admiral’s ship at night. If in any way disabled, they are to fire two pieces of ordnance. 10. If they see any shipping, they are to give notice by firing a piece and by letting down their main topsails as many times as there be ships. If the ships appear to be Turks, pirates, or sea-rovers, two pieces are to be fired. 11. All ships in the Narrow Seas are to be forced to acknowledge the King’s sovereignty there, by performing their duty and homage in passing any of the ships of his fleet. 12. No ships are to be allowed to fight in the presence of the King’s ships or in any part of the Narrow Seas. Inasmuch as all men trading or sailing in the King’s seas do justly take themselves to be in the King’s peace, the King is in honour and justice bound to protect them from injury and violence. 13. Any foreign ships found riding at anchor in any of the King’s bays or harbours, with counterfeit colours, are to be apprehended. 14. If any pirate or other offender be taken, the hatches and holds are to be spiked down so that none of the goods be lost or taken. 15. Any British subjects found on board any foreign ships are to be brought before the Admiral to answer for their contempt of the King’s late proclamation. The Captains of foreign ships are to be admonished in a friendly way not to take British subjects on board. 16. British subjects are not to be allowed to buy, sell, or barter with pirates or sea-rovers. 17. Any violence done in any of the British harbours or coasts is to be redressed. 18. If they encounter any hostile fleet, the Admiral will attack the other Admiral, the Vice Admiral the Vice Admiral and the Rear Admiral. “The other shippes are to match themselves as they can, and to succour one another as cause shall require, not wasting their powder at small vessels or victuallers, nor shoote till they come syde to syde.” 19. Great care is to be taken to prevent fire in the time of fight. 20. The men are not to board an opposing ship till the smoke of their ordnance is cleared up, or till their men above the hatches are slain or beaten off. 21. Ships are to sail in their appointed order, the Vice-Admiral's squadron in advance. 22. The Admiral will carry two lights in his poop by night; the Vice-Admiral and the Rear-Admiral are to carry one apiece. 23-30. Instructions as to signals. The watchword is to be "Charles," and the answer "Mary." 31. No one is to wear a flag, but those to whom it properly belongs. 32. The Downs are to be the principal "rendevous" for the fleet on the East of the Isle of Wight; Falmouth on the West. 33. The men are to be kept in good order, peace, and unity. 34. When the British flag is spread upon the mizen shrouds of the Admiral's ship, the council of war is to come on board; if the red Ancient is spread, both Captains and Masters. 35. The Admiral will give further directions as occasion may require. Dated on board the Merhonour, riding in the Downs. May 30, 1635.

Copy of supplementary orders issued by Sir John Pennington, for the movements of the ships in the Rear-Admiral's squadron. Dated on board the Swiftsure, May 5 (June 5 ?) 1635.

Among a number of letters of the eighteenth century relating to the management of the Pennington estates, are the two following:—

Letter from Joseph Herbert to Sir John Pennington, Bart., M.P. "We had an account this morning that the Rebels are returning and were got back to Preston on Wednesday last, that they burn and destroy all forrage they can meet with, to prevent its falling into the hands of the Duke of Cumberland's army, who is in pursuit of them, and that the Rebels march in one body, and while they keep so together, I hope we are in no danger of their coming this road." Dated at Muncaster, December 13, 1745.

Letter from the same to the same. "Duke of Perth with 120 of his Hussars entered Lancaster last Friday morning, and after seting at libertye the Rebel prisoners then in Lancaster Castle, and plundering Doctor Braken's house, the Doctor being the cause of taking those prisoners, he that day marched to Burton, and the next morning about 9 o'clock he and his Hussars marched through Kendal without halting, when a mob rise upon them and took 5 of them and their horses. Amongst those taken was the Duke of Perth's cook, with a mail behind him upon a valueable horse, which Capt. Wilson of Dallen Towers lost at Carlisle. Upon this the Rebels fired at the mob, killed 2 and wounded 3. One of the wounded is since dead. The mob returned the fire and killed 2 of the Rebels. They turned about at Stramongate Bridge and threatened to burn the Town, but Duke of Perth prevented them, who was heard to say, "You have no powder, drive on." I've heard nothing of those Rebels since with any certainty. The Pretender with the rest of the Rebel Army and all their luggage came to Lancaster the same day that the Duke of Perth left that town, and immediately employed all the taylers and shoemakers in Town to make cloaks and shoes for his army, and on Sunday morning last they marched for Kendal. Dated at Muncaster, December 18, 1745.

Mr. W. J. Hardy has kindly called my attention to a volume written by Sir John Pennington, or at his dictation, in the time of Henry VII., which, amid notes concerning the Pennington estates, contains some curious entries.

A recipe for the cramp with a form of incantation.

List of the freeholders and townships that ought to make answer at Egremont Court.

Lists of Sir John Pennington's servants and of the wages payable to them quarterly:—Sir Edward Betham 26s. 6d., Sir John Baskelle 20s., Sir Richard Browne 40s., and others, the lowest wages being 3s. 4d.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE CORPORATION OF KENDAL.

THE charters granted to the Borough of Kendal by Elizabeth, Charles I., and Charles II., are preserved at the office of the Town Clerk, together with other legal documents of later date. There I also found a large bundle of miscellaneous papers of the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries, from which I have selected all such as appear to have any general historical interest. These selected papers are now arranged in three packets, lettered respectively A, B, and C. The first contains various documents illustrating the internal history of the town of Kendal. The second contains letters and proclamations, for the most part relating to the military organisation of the northern counties of England, in the time of Elizabeth and James I. The third contains several papers relating to the Civil War in the reign of Charles I. I append a calendar of the contents of these three packets, in consulting which it should be remembered that until the time of Charles I. the chief officer of the Corporation of Kendal was styled the Alderman.

(A. 1.) September 20, 1587.—Copy of a licence from William, Bishop of Chester, for the administration of the sacraments, etc., in Staveley Chapel.

A.D. 1588-1589.—Certificates of the inhabitants of Staveley as to the distance of their hamlet from the parish church of Kendal, giving particulars as to the frequent overflows of the waters. Draft of an answer thereto, and papers relating to a suit for "the unchurching" of Staveley Chapel.

(A. 2.) A.D. 1601.—List of collectors of benevolences for the House of Correction of Kendal.

A.D. 1601.—List of the churchwardens of Kendal.

List of gifts and bequests to the use of the poor of Kendal.

(A. 3.) A.D. 1606 and 1616.—Lists of the inhabitants of Kendal.

"Spent upon Sir Daniel in sack and ale, 1*s.* 6*d.*."

"For a treat to Sir Christopher Musgrave, 7*s.* 6*d.*."

Warrant to the Chamberlains to pay 20*s.* to the ringers for ringing on the proclamation of the peace, and on the 4th and 5th of November. A.D. 1697.

Acquittance to the Chamberlains for a bill for wine. February 3, 170 $\frac{1}{2}$. Among the items charged are the following:—

October 25, 1700. "Spent upon the King's retorne, 10*s.* Same time in the dining room, 5 bottles wine, 8*s.* 4*d.*."

November 5. For ale to the bonfire and 3 pints wine to the constables, 6*s.* 10*d.*."

June 30, 1701. "Spent upon a treat with Sir Christopher Musgrave, 1*l.* 2*s.*."

(A. 22.)—Note of a resolution passed at Mr. John Fletcher's house, on the 5th November, 1745, "that a person should be kept going for the best intelligence that could be got of the motion of the rebels," with an account of the money subscribed for the purpose, and of the payments made on the 5th and 19th of the same month for messengers to Carlisle, Penrith, Newcastle, and Lancaster.

(B. 1.) December 21, 1577.—Carlisle. Henry, Lord Scrope, to Mr. Alderman and his brethren of the Corporation of Kendal. Having received letters from the Lord President requiring him to certify the number of inns, taverns, and ale-houses, within his office, he desires them to assemble themselves together, and certify to him the number of all such as are kept within the franchises or liberties of their corporation.

(B. 2.) September 12, N.Y.—Carlisle. Henry, Lord Scrope, to the Alderman of Kendal, his deputies and brethren. Being in present need of the sum of forty pounds, he asks them for the loan of that amount until the tenth day of November. For further security he sends by the bearer of his letter a warrant to Mr. Braddell or his deputy to receive the forty pounds as part of the writer's "enterteignment," for the office of the West Wardenry due to him at Michaelmas. He offers to make any other assurance that they may desire, and he promises to acquit as occasion may be for the courtesy and friendship shown to him in the matter.

(B. 3.) January 31, 1580.—Carlisle. Henry, Lord Scrope, to Sir Thomas Bointon, knight, or his deputy, Steward of the Barony of Kendal, John Myddleton of Midleton Hall, esq., Miles Bracken, Alderman of the town of Kendal, Richard Duckat, Robert Byndlosse, George Gilpinge, esqrs., and Rowland Philipson, gentleman. Having received directions from the Earl of Huntingdon, the Queen's Lieutenant General in the North, for the ministering of the West Wardenry, and putting it in readiness, he charges them to call before them all gentlemen, stewards of lordships, bailiffs and officers, within Kendal and Lonsdale Wards, with all their servants, tenants, and others, and take particular musters of the footmen. They are to note particularly how many are "harquebuzers, archers, pickmen and bilmen, and how they be presently furnished with everie or anie of the said weapons, as harquebusse, calliver or hand-gunne, bowes and arrowes, pickes and billes." They are to certify the list to him before the 15th of February next. They are to charge the landlords, stewards, and officers, to give special order for the apparel (parelles) of any persons whose armour or weapons are defective, and to "be in readynes upon an houre's warnynge to set forward when they shal be therunto commaunded upon any occasione of hir Majesties service."

(B. 4.) February 4, 1580.—The same to the same. Whereas, by reason of her Majesty's special service, his clerks "were somewhat overseene" in omitting some part of the intent of his former commission, he explains and renews his order for the muster of footmen.

(B. 5.) May 10, 1582.—Levens. Thomas Preston to Mr. Edward Potter, Alderman of Kendal. He has issued precepts for the apprehension of divers persons who have committed offences against the law, meaning to examine them on the Queen's behalf, but the Alderman, as he is informed, will not allow his precepts to be executed in the town of Kendal. He knows no town that has such liberties as to take away the authority of a justice of the peace. He therefore commands the Alderman in the Queen's name to explain his reason for not suffering the precepts to be executed, or, in default thereof, to appear before the justices of assize, bringing with him the charters by which he pretends to have such liberties.

(B. 6.) May 11, 1582.—The same to the same. He has received the letter in which the Alderman states that he is sworn not only as an Alderman but also as a justice of the peace within the borough of Kendal. He does not wish to infringe the liberties of the borough, but he must not neglect his own duty in executing her Majesty's laws. When the liberties of the borough are clearly known, he will not interfere with them. In the mean time he commands the Alderman to have the body of Parcevell Marshall in safe custody, so that he appear before her Majesty's justices at the next general assizes to be held at Appleby.

(B. 7.) May 22, 1584.—Carlisle. Henry, Lord Scrope, and John, Bishop of Carlisle, to the Alderman and Corporation of the town of Kendal. The Alderman of Kendal and other gentlemen having lands within the barony, have been at sundry times moved on behalf of the Lords of her Majesty's Privy Council, to bestow a contribution towards the furtherance of the good purpose now in hand for the defence of her Majesty's subjects upon this border. They and divers of the said gentlemen have nevertheless obstinately refused the same, whereupon the writers have informed the Council of the untowardness of some of the said gentlemen, who have since been ordered either to show willingness on their own behalf and that of their tenants to make payment of the said contribution, or in default thereof to make answer for their contempt. The writers would be very loth to signify any disobedience against the Alderman &c., whereby the Council might conceive an evil opinion of them, especially as the gentlemen to whom letters had been sent by the Council, and a great number of others, have now yielded to pay the contribution. They therefore require them to send within fourteen days of the receipt of this letter, a contribution to be levied on their tenants at the rate of 12*d.* in the pound, truly and justly without any concealment. They themselves are to contribute in such a manner that "every esquier of the best living" shall pay 3*l.* "every esquier of the meaner habilytie" 40*s.*, and "the meanest" 20*s.* and other gentlemen 10*s.* Divers other gentlemen and their tenants have paid at this rate "very willingly and without any compulsion," inasmuch as the thing is "of so great benefit to them and their country." In default of this contribution the Alderman is to appear before the said day, to be dealt with according to the instructions received from the Council.

Endorsed:—"Copie of Lord Warden and Lord Busschopp letter for the dytche."

(B. 8.) N.D.—Petition from the Alderman and Burgesses of the town of Kirkby Kendal, to the Lords of the Privy Council. They perceive to their grief by letters written in September last that it has been suggested to the Council that they were backward in a necessary service for the strengthening of [the frontier]. They always have been and are ready to obey her Majesty and the Council. Mr. Dacres "the attempter of the pretended service of fortification in those parts" [wishes to levy] 20*s.* apiece from the thirteen burgesses of the town, which rate is equivalent with that imposed on justices of the peace and esquires of the country. "The said justices and esquiers of the country are men of greate worship, lyvinge, and habilities," but the petitioners and the rest of the town of Kendal are for the most part "poore men and suche as lyve onelie upon their handycraftes and severall occupacions and trades, having neither lands nor tenementes, but onely their bare trades and painefull travailes to mainetayne themselves and their families a poor lyvinge." They are credibly informed that the burgesses and townsmen of Carlisle and Penrith yielded only 40*s.* a town towards the work. Many freeholders and yeomen in the neighbourhood of Kendal, men of much greater wealth than the petitioners, have been taxed at only 4*d.* or 6*d.* a man. They are informed that divers lordships and gentlemen still refuse to contribute any thing. It is thought by many that the work will not be brought to perfection by Mr. Dacres. Those of the townsmen who hold any lands "by tenant-right in the countries thereabouts have willinglie yeilded and paid their contributions" with their neighbours. Since the receipt of their lordships' letters, the petitioners have conferred with Mr. Dacres, but they could not come to any conclusion with him. Some of them repaired to the Lord Warden and the Bishop of Carlisle, offering to pay their contributions according to a just assessment, but their lordships would not tax or charge them with any contribution at all towards the fortification, "the rather for that there is noe bond nor assurance given by Mr. Dacres for the accomplishment of the same." They therefore pray that they may be discharged or eased of this taxation. They were never charged with the like before, and "they are daylie subjecte to her Majesties service in the Weste Marches uppon the commaundement of the Lord Warden." (Copy.)

(B. 9.) July 30, 1584.—Edward Lancaster, Henry Crackenthorpe, George Salkeld, Laurence Pykeringe, and John Sowthaick to the Sheriff of Westmoreland, or his deputy, and the Alderman of Kendal. Whereas they have received commission from the Lords Presidents of the North parts, for taking musters in the county of Westmoreland, for the better furniture of her Majesty's service of her frontiers, they command the Sheriff, or his deputy, and the Alderman, to give warning to all esquires, gentlemen, and freeholders, and other fermers, tenants, and inhabitants within the barony of Kendal, to appear at Roderhead at the common place of muster, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, on "Mondaye come a sevyntyght beinge the tenth day of Auguste nowe nexte comynge," furnished with horses, geldings or nags, and other furniture required by law. "All bills exempte to be brought to the sayd musture, and all suche persons as are thought to be infectyd with the plague." The constables are to present bills of the names of all esquires, gentlemen, and others remayning in their several constablenesships, and also of those who have dwelling houses in the same, although now absent. (Copy.)

(B. 10.) August 22, 1585.—Warcop. Thomas Brathwat to Mr. Thomas Potter, Alderman of Kendal. The Mayor of Appleby and others of that town feel themselves aggrieved that certain persons who are free with them have of late been distressed by the collectors of the toll in Kendal, whereas they claimed to be discharged of all toll by their charter, which grants to them the like liberties and privileges as the city of York has. He thinks that the matter should be referred to learned counsel to be chosen by both parties, and that in the meanwhile some reasonable stay should be taken for the sake of quietness.

(B. 11.) October 20, 1587.—Proclamation of Henry Scrope, K.G., Lord Scrope, Warden of the West Marches of England foranempt Scotland. He has received intelligence of matters which tend to cause imminent danger on the borders. He therefore commands all knights, [gentlemen, and] freeholders, and all other true and loving subjects within the limits of the West Wardenry, to put themselves in a state of defence and warlike array, and to give good heed to the firing and burning of the beacons set up within the said Wardenry. Upon notice given to them, they are to repair without delay to the city of Carlisle under peril of death. He commands all stewards, bailiffs, constables, and officers who have the charge of the places at which beacons have been usually set, forthwith to direct watchers and keepers to attend upon the said beacons and to take notice of warning given to them by other beacons. Dated at Carlisle, and signed.

Endorsed:—"A proclamation for watchinge beacons."

(B. 12.) November 10, 1587.—Carlisle. Henry, Lord Scrope, and John, Bishop of Carlisle, to Mr. James Wilson, Alderman of Kendal. They have been credibly informed that one Israell Wattes, serjeant, belonging to the company of the mines royal of Keswick, being lately sent for from thence to Kendal about matters concerning his science, was there riotously assaulted, beaten, and unlawfully stayed in the open street by one Robert Sleddell and his associates, and afterwards arrested and forced to find surety. Inasmuch as the writers are, with others, commissioners for the said mines and have royal authority to hear and determine all matters in controversy between the officers, ministers, and workmen thereof and any of Her Majesty's subjects within the West

Wardenry, they require the Alderman to supersede the prosecution of Sleddell's actions in his court, and to command Sleddell and his associates to appear before them at Carlisle, where they will be heard according to equity.

(B. 13.) November 25, 1587.—Carlisle. Henry, Lord Scrope, to Mr. James Wilson, of Kendal. By virtue of letters received from the Earl of Huntingdon, Lord Lieutenant in the North parts, he commands him to have in readiness all the "naigmen" and footmen within the corporation in their most defensible array, to be mustered and viewed within two days' warning after the first day of December next. They must be as well provided with armour and furniture as they were at the last muster before his lordship.

(B. 14.) December 5, 1587.—The same to the same, "with speed." Having received letters from the Lords of the Privy Council, directing him to order all officers within his Wardenry to keep a straight watch for the apprehension of certain persons who are said to have intended some notorious crime in the south parts, and to have escaped therefrom, he orders him to cause good and substantial watch to be kept for all unknown and suspected persons, and encloses a note of the descriptions of these persons, as near as can be guessed.

Endorsed.—"Concerninge a streyt watch for travellers." Enclosure missing.

(B. 15.) November 16, 1588.—Carlisle. Henry, Lord Scrope, to the Alderman of Kendal, Roger Dawson, and others, the purchasers of the Lady Knevett's lands, and to Robert Jobson, gent. Having received letters from the Lord Lieutenant directing him to cause money to be sent to Newcastle for the receipt of the corsletts and pikes there ready, at the rate of 33s. 4d., he charges them to send a servant to Newcastle with ready money on Tuesday, December 3, to receive the said furniture of corsletts and pikes at the hands of William Harrington, gentleman, upon payment of the money. Heraldic seal impressed.

(B. 16.) December 26, 1589.—The Court at St. James's. Sir Francis Walsingham to Lord Scrope, Warden of the West Marches over against Scotland. The men of Kendal have made their appearance before the Lords of the Council, pleading the poverty of the town and their inability to bear so great an imposition as is laid upon them for the fortification of the borders. They will, however, submit themselves to such order as his lordship and the Bishop of Carlisle shall take therein. Heraldic seal impressed.

(B. 17.) August 18, 1590.—Sizergh. Thomas Stryckland to the Alderman of Kendal, or his deputy. Understanding that one George Bronne, a man within the writer's office, who has married the daughter of Ralph Turner, an inhabitant of Kendal, is in that town, he requests that the constables may apprehend him and bring him to Sizergh to answer to such matters as shall be objected against him.

(B. 18.) April 23, 1593.—Carlisle. John Dalston and George Salkeld to Sir Simon Musgrave, knight, Sheriff of Westmoreland, or his deputy. Having received letters from the Earl of Huntingdon, directing Lord Scrope, themselves, and Mr. Wilfred Lawson, to take a muster of all the able men, both horsemen and footmen, etc., in the wards of Kendal and Lonsdale, on the 1st of May next, they require him to cause public notice thereof to be given not only in all market towns and churches, but also by his bailiffs itinerant. The muster is to be held at nine o'clock in the morning on the said day, at the More Hill or Fell commonly called the Hay Fell. (Copy.)

(B. 19.) March 10, 1593.—Robert Carey to the Alderman and brethren of Kendal. Lord Scrope has been commanded by her Majesty to have his whole Wardenry ready upon an hour's warning. He therefore charges the Alderman and brethren to put themselves, their servants, and their tenants in readiness, to be employed as occasion shall serve.

(B. 20.) May 26, 1593.—Copy of a warrant from Thomas, Lord Scrope. He orders the compilation of a book to contain the names of all male inhabitants of the county of Westmoreland, between the ages of sixteen and sixty, sons and servants no less than householders. The book must also give the names of the persons of whom tenants and cottagers hold, stating how all persons have been charged for her Majesty's service in times past, and specifying the "signory" or manor under which they have hitherto served. The bailiffs and constables are to deliver this book upon oath, at Carlisle, in the month of June.

Endorsed:—"Border Service."

(B. 21.) May 10, 1594.—Carlisle. Proclamation [of Thomas, Lord Scrope], to be read at the market crosses of Carlisle, Penrith, and Appleby, on the next market days. He has received letters from her Majesty dated at Greenwich on the 24th of last month, expressing the great complaint of the King of Scots about "the receipte and comforte" which has been and is given by divers of her subjects on the borders to the Earl of Bothwell, whom the King considers a traitor. It is thought that the continuance of this will hazard the violation and breach of the amity so long remaining between the two realms, which her highness desires to maintain and preserve by all good means. She has therefore commanded the Lord Warden to make known her indignation towards all such persons as have given or shall give receipt to the said Earl. If therefore any of her Majesty's subjects in the West Wardenry henceforth offend in this manner, they shall be accounted guilty of a contempt towards her Majesty, and shall sustain punishment.

(B. 22.) June 30, 1595.—Carlisle. Thomas, Lord Scrope, to the Alderman and his brethren of the Corporation of Kendal. Order to make public proclamation that all inhabitants within the barony of Kendal, their servants and tenants, both horse and foot, are to be in readiness, upon an hour's warning, to repair to Carlisle, "upon adminitione of letter, fyer of beaçon, or other warninge whatsoever."

(B. 23.) A.D. 1595.—Draft of a proclamation to the above effect, with a memorandum that the Lord Warden's letter was received on the 2nd of July, and proclaimed openly on Saturday the 5th, having been on the Thursday before openly published in the street among the inhabitants.

(B. 24.) August 17, 1595.—The Court at Greenwich. J[ohn], Archbishop of Canterbury, William, Lord Burghley, and eight others, [Lords of the Privy Council], to the Earl of Huntingdon, her Majesty's Lieutenant in the counties of York, Northumberland, Cumberland and Westmoreland, and in the Bishopric of Durham. For some years past there have not been received from him any certificates of the state of the trained bands of horse and foot in the countries under his lieutenancy. They therefore doubt whether the bands are in readiness and complete, and whether sufficient and able men have been supplied in the places of such as have deceased, or gone out of the country, or set forth into other services. Her Majesty thinks fit that a view should be taken of all the bands throughout the realm. The Lord Lieutenant is therefore required to put her orders in execution, "both for the numbers of the men and for their armes, weapons and provision of powder and matche to be in staple and store." And forasmuch as her Majesty would have her forces to be trained in good discipline, and how to use their weapons, and how to march in good order as captains, leaders, and soldiers ought to do, while it is uncertain whether there be in these countries any persons of experience in the wars, her Majesty will, upon information of the lack of such persons, direct some skilful persons to give instructions to such as shall be appointed captains and leaders, as well as to the private soldiers. The Lord Lieutenant must therefore take order to persuade the able persons of the country to be contributors to the reasonable charges of such persons as shall therein employ their labours and time. (Copy.)

(B. 25.) February 9, 1595.—Carlisle. Thomas, Lord Scrope, to Sir Simon Musgrave, knight, Sheriff of the county of Westmoreland, or his deputy. By virtue of letters from the Lords of the Privy Council he has been appointed to certify the number of able men for service within his office of West Wardenry. He therefore orders a muster to be taken of all the inhabitants "as well horsemen, nagmen, as footemen." The muster is to be given to him in writing on or before the 9th day of the next month. (Copy.)

(B. 26.) August 28, 1595.—Highgate. H[enry], Earl of Huntingdon, to Lord Scrope, and the sheriffs and the justices of the peace in the county of Westmoreland. In consequence of letters received on the previous day from the Lords of the Privy Council, he desires a muster to be taken of the trained men in the several counties of his lieutenancy. He prays that the answers may be sent to him at York. (Copy.)

(B. 27.) May 14, 1596.—Carlisle. Thomas, Lord Scrope, to Richard Hutton, esquire, Marshal Steward of the Marquis fee [of Kendal] or to John Musgrave, his deputy. Notwithstanding his sundry letters on the subject, he understands that all or most of the persons under his correspondent are unprovided with horses, nags, armour, and furniture necessary for her Majesty's service. He has therefore once again made stay of their coming to Carlisle on Wednesday the 19th "of this instant," commanding them to take weekly musters, and to be in readiness to come at an hour's warning, "havinge speciall care and regard unto the diligent kepinge, watchinge, and attendinge of the beacons," upon pain of death. They are to be at Carlisle, with the number mentioned in his first letter, by Wednesday at night, the 2nd day of June. If at any time he finds them unfurnished (notwithstanding his frequent warnings) he will not only see the offence duly punished but will also signify their disobedience to the Council.

(B. 28.) "Mr. Alderman cause the beacons to be sett on fyer this night, and by all possible meanes warne all the country presentlie without stay to repayer to Carliell upon payne of deathe. xx. of Marche, 1600. Your frendes, Wilf. Lawson, Francis Lamplughes, William Hutton, Tho. Sandford."

Lawson, Francis Lamplughes, William Hutton. To the Steward of Penreth, and afterwards to be sent with all speed to the Alderman of Kendal, in hayst."

(B. 30.) September 11, 1600.—Kendal. Proclamation by the justices of the peace within the Barony of Kendal. They have received letters from Lord Scrope, Lord Warden of the West Marches of England over against Scotland, giving information from the Lords of the Privy Council that the soldiers who serve at Lowghfoile in the north part of Ireland attempt to pass through the traitors' country into Scotland, and thence into England, to the diminishing of her Majesty's forces. By virtue of the Lord Warden's letters aforesaid, the justices of the peace command all constables within the Barony to detain and attach all strangers "liklie or suspicious to be any of the said felonious persons departing her Majesties service," and bring them before the said justices.

(B. 31.) May 26, 1601.—Carlisle. Richard Lowther to Mr. John Thwaytes, Alderman of Kendal. The whole Wardenry has of late been charged with service, but the town of which he is Alderman has done no service for a long time past, and is rather "a smotherer of others." He is therefore to repair forthwith to Carlisle with two of his brethren. Heraldic seal affixed.

(B. 32.) May, 1601.—John Thywates to Mr. Richard Lowther, esq., Deputy Warden of the West Marches. He has received letters requiring him to repair to Carlisle with two of his brthren. He is stricken in great years, and he has lately been sick, so that he has not yet recovered the little strength that he had before. Many of his brethren are away, but two of them will repair to Carlisle at the beginning of the next week. (Draft.)

(B. 33.) June 14, 1601.—Draft of a memorial to the Lord Warden, setting forth the poverty of the townsmen of Kendal. They hold burgages at very great rents, most of them having only a small garden adjoining, some a little garden and a croft, and others neither.

(B. 34.) A.D. 1603.—Copy of a proclamation published at Kendal town in a great assembly on the 30th of March. By virtue of letters received from the Deputy Warden of the West Marches, commanding the beacons to be set on fire and warning to be given to all gentlemen and officers to repair to the border "for the better safegard and strengthe of the countrye, and the suppressinge of the insolent malefactors, who by their incursions so disobedyentllye perturbe and spoyle hir Majesties subjects," all gentlemen and officers are required to repair to the borders, "in their moste defensible arrayes," and not to fail thereof as they will answer upon their allegiance.

(B. 35.) September 29, 1653.—Lancaster. Thomas Rippon to —. He has received a letter from the steward of Captain Sadler, saying that he had appointed the court at Whitewell in Boland to be kept on Friday, October 7. Inasmuch as the writer had made a promise to Captain Sadler to be at his court and to be his bow-bearer there, he gives notice of this, as he had intended that Thorneton court should be held on that very day. He wishes it deferred until the 10th or 11th.

(B. 36.) February 16, 1655.—Warrant from Daniel Fleming to the Constables of Kendal town, to summon the trained band of foot to appear before him at Kendal, on March 3, and to furnish every man with three days' pay, at 12*d.* a day, providing every musqueteer with half a pound of powder, a pound of bullets, and three yards of match. The constables are also to be there, and to bring with them 18*d.* for each man in their several divisions who is in arrears for three years to the musters.

(C. 1.) A.D. 1599.—Probate copy of the will of Elizabeth Benson, relict of Alexander Benson.

(C. 2.) October 3, 1644.—Bond of Thomas Holme, of Kendal, chandler, that he will appear before the Mayor and Aldermen whensoever he shall be called, and that in the meanwhile he will behave himself both in words and actions as befits a loyal subject, and furthermore that he will not depart or travel forth of the liberties of the town without licence from the Mayor.

(C. 3.) November 11, 1644.—Bond of Robert Mackereth, of Stricklandkettle, in 20*l.*, and of his son Robert, in a like sum, that the said Robert, the son, will not depart out of the county of Westmoreland without licence from the commander in chief, nor give any intelligence to any of the adverse party, but at all times hereafter demean himself as an honest man ought to do.

Bonds of William Dodding, George Walker, and Hugh Forth, to the like effect, with the additional condition that they shall not depart out of the town of Kendal without licence from the Mayor.

(C. 4.) November 16, 1644.—Bond of Henry Wilson, of Grasmere, clerk, and two others severally in 20*l.* to Colonel James Bellingham, "that the said Henry Wilson shall appeare and render his body into the hands of the Provost Marshall at Kendall at the end of twenty dayes next after the date hereof, and in the meantyme shall not travell forth of the county of Westmoreland, nor hold any intelligence nor send any message by word or writing to any of that party now in armes against the parliament, but in all things demean himselfe well, and not indeavour in any wise to seduce or withdrawe the affections of any of his parishioners or others from the service of the King and Parliament." Attested by James Bellingham, Thomas Brathwaite, and Thomas Kilner.

(C. 5.) December 21, 1644.—Bond of John Layburne, of Witherslack, co. Westmoreland, esquire, and two sureties in 300*l.*, to James Bellingham, of Levens, esquire, that the said John Layburne shall not travel above five miles from his dwelling houses of Witherslacke and Skelsmergh without licence or a ticket from Colonel Bellingham, nor hold any intelligence with any of the party in arms against the Parliament, but be ready to render his body whensoever Colonel Bellingham shall send for him.

(C. 6.) June 17, 1645.—A similar bond of Charles Saule, of Sollett, himself in 100*l.*, and two sureties in 50*l.* apiece.

(C. 7.) July 3, 1645.—Bond of Henry Johnson, of Burton, in 100*l.*, to James Bellingham, of Levens, esquire, that his son, Daniel Johnson, shall not hold any intelligence with the party in arms against the Parliament nor depart out of the county of Westmoreland, but be ready to render his body before the Standing Committee or other Commander for the Barony of Kendal.

The most valuable manuscript in the possession of the Corporation is a thick folio volume written on paper and known as The Book of Record. Many of the entries were made soon after the issue of Queen Elizabeth's charter in 1575; others date from the seventeenth century, while some few were added in the early part of the eighteenth. The following calendar of the contents of the Book of Record afford many curious illustrations of municipal customs and social life at Kendal.

Fol. 2.—List of "Inhabitannts Fre, with their severall contributions," arranged according to the order of their dwellings.

f. 17.—List of "Unmarried and Yonge Folkes Free," with their several contributions.

f. 20.—Names of the twelve Aldermen. A.D. 1645-1659. Three are marked as "displaced by order of the Parliament," one as "displaced for contempt," one as displaced at his own wish, and three others simply as displaced.

f. 21.—List of the twenty Burgesses. A.D. 1645-1659.

f. 23.—"Forreyners Fremmen."

f. 25*b*.—List of the Aldermen of Kendal, from the incorporation of the borough, A.D. 1575, until the issue of the new charter, A.D. 1636.

f. 26.—List of the Mayors of Kendal. A.D. 1636-1710.

f. 27*b*.—"Aldermen and Burgesses." A.D. 1603-1614.

f. 28.—"Aldermen and Burgesses." A.D. 1575-1606.

f. 28*b*.—List of the Recorders of Kendal. A.D. 1575-1715.

List of the serjeants at mace. A.D. 1575-1679.

List of the clerkes of courts. A.D. 1575-1709.

List of the attorneys in Court. A.D. 1575-1676, 1730.

f. 30.—Forms of oath for the Aldermen, the Recorder, the Burgesses, the Assistants, the Justices of the Peace, the Serjeants, the Attorneys, the Chamberlains, and the Wardens.

f. 34.—Lists of freemen of the different companies. A.D. 1575-1678. The shearmen are by far the most numerous. The vicar, the curate, and the schoolmaster, were admitted as scriveners on the 5th of October 1674, and Sir Francis North, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and Vere Barte [Bertie], esq., Baron of the Exchequer, on the 16th of August, 1676.

f. 179.—List of apprentices enrolled. A.D. 1571-1630.

f. 215.—An order to make and have twenty-four Assistants. A.D. 1575, 1579, and 1630.

f. 215*b*.—List of apprentices enrolled. A.D. 1621-1624.

f. 216.—An order for nightly watches, January 12, 1575. It is ordered that there shall be throughout the year a sufficient watch from 9 p.m. till 4 a.m., to consist of six persons who shall be "tall manlyke men, havinge and bearinge with them in the same watche every one a halberd, ravynbill, axe, or some other good and sufficiente iron bound staffe or weapon, sallet or scull upon everie one his head, whereby the better made able to ly handes upon and apprehend the disordered nyght-walkers, malefactours, and suspicious persouns, and to prevent and stay other inconvenyences and daungers." Two of them shall go in company in each street.

f. 217.—An order for "clothe dighting." January 12, 1575.—It is ordered that any person who shall offer for sale any piece or pieces of cloth, "not sufficiently cottonyd, noppid, or fresed" throughout, shall, on the report of the four sworn men appointed for the purpose, forfeit 2s. 6d. for every piece so offered, one half to the chamber of the borough, and the other to the buyer.

f. 217b.—List of apprentices enrolled. A.D. 1628-1633.

f. 218.—An order concerning "bridalles, churchinges, dynners, feastes, and drynkyngs." February 2, 1575. On account of the great waste of wheat, malt, flesh, and other victuals, and of the money which poor persons have of custom been driven to expend at weddings, etc., it is ordered that no inhabitant of the borough shall invite to a wedding dinner more than fourscore persons in all, "whiche makes upp twentie measses of Folkes," or prepare for more than that number of persons any general or open drinking by reason of a new wedding, upon pain to forfeit 22s. to the chamber of the borough, provided always that there may be as many country folks as the parties like to have present. (Repealed.)

f. 219.—A further order restricting the number of persons to be invited to a wedding dinner. (Printed in Nicholson's "Annals of Kendal," p. 120.)

It is also ordered that no wife shall invite more than twelve wives to accompany her when she goes to be purified or "churched," as it is termed, or to take part in any dinner, or feasting, commonly called "a kyrkyng or an upsytyng dynner" for money, or any general or open drinking for money, commonly called "a drynkyng at a wyffe kyrkyng, or a drynkyng at or upon a wyffe upsytyng," upon pain to the husband to forfeit 20s. to the chamber of the borough. Wives may present one another with presents during the time of childbed, but not after purifying.

It is also ordered that no inhabitant shall invite more than twelve townsfolk, which makes up three messes, to any dinner, supper, or feast for money, save only such as have been commonly used at shootings with long bows, at the pageants of Corpus Christi plays, or at the election of the Alderman, and other town days, or make any open or general drinkings, "nutcasts," merry nights, "applecasts," or the like, for money, upon pain to forfeit 10s. to the chamber of the borough. Every one going to such dinner or drinking shall forfeit 12d.

It is also ordered that no inhabitant shall invite more than twelve persons to any dinner (other than bridal dinners) feast, or drinking, outside the liberties of the town, under pain to forfeit 6s. 8d. to the chamber, and every person so going to forfeit 12d.

f. 220.—It is also ordered that no inhabitant shall sell meat, drink, wine, ale, or beer, during the time of morning prayer, communion, or evening prayer, or after ten o'clock at night, to any person in health, except strangers and travellers upon some needful occasion, under pain to forfeit 2s. to the chamber of the borough.

f. 220b.—"A Rule for takinge off Apprintices." February 23, 1575.

f. 221.—“Orders concerninge Tailers.” February 23, 1575. It is ordered that the Company of Tailors may nominate four of the most honest members of their trade, to be called Searchers or Overseers, to correct abuses. (This order was repealed in March, 1575.) It is also ordered that no person who has not given or promised a benevolence or gift towards purchasing the incorporation of the borough, and so become a freeman, or been made free after, shall take upon him the occupation of a tailor within the borough under pain to forfeit 10s. to the chamber of the borough. It is also ordered that any tailor may at pleasure exercise the science of a woollen draper. (The last two orders having been repealed, were revived on the 14th of November, 1577.)

f. 223.—“Ordres for metings off the Burgesses at tymes especiallye to be sumonyd.” February 27, 1575; January 19, 1581; June 14, 1576; May 22, 1578; October, 1578, and May 9, 1617. Among them is an order that on the festivals of Christmas, Easter, and Pentecost, the Alderman and the Burgesses shall wear their best violet gowns, under penalty of 12*d*.

f. 225*b*.—An order “for takinge off tennantes.” August, 1577. It is ordered that no inhabitant shall allow any person who is not free of the borough to dwell in his or her house without special licence, under pain to forfeit 20s. for every month.

f. 226.—An order concerning “play at unlawfull games.” January 14, 1577. It is ordered that no inn-keeper, alehouse-keeper, or other inhabitant shall suffer any play at cards, dice, tables, bowls, or any other unlawful games, for money, ale, or beer, or any other things, in his or her house, garden, or yard, during the time of divine service, or after ten o'clock at night, under pain to forfeit 6*s.* 8*d.* for the first offence, and 13*s.* 4*d.* for the second, the player to forfeit 3*s.* 4*d.* for the first offence, and 6*s.* 8*d.* for the second. These penalties are reduced by one half in the case of unlawful games at other times, but the penalties are declared to be over and besides the punishment ordered by the laws of the realm.

f. 227.—An order for dividing the borough into thirteen wards.

f. 229.—“An order for buyldinge within this Boroughe.” December 5 and 8, 1577. It is ordered that no person shall build within the precinct of the market place without licence from the Alderman and the burgesses. (Printed in Nicholson's “Annals of Kendal,” p. 125.)

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF CAPT. JOSCELINE F. BAGOT.

The more interesting manuscripts at Levens Hall are preserved in five tin boxes, lettered A, B, C, D, E. They consist mainly of deeds of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of letters of the seventeenth and eighteenth. Among the former are some of the earliest records of the county of Westmoreland now extant.

Box A.

Grant by Torphin de Alvestain and Alan his son to the Hospital of St. Peter at York, of forty acres of land at Crosby near the mill, and nine acres at Blasker, where the buildings of the brethren are situate, and twenty-four acres adjoining, and common pasture, &c., for the soul of Sir Hugh de Moreville, and for the souls of others. They also grant to the brethren, for a yearly payment of 16s., six oxgangs of land from the forty acres given in free alms, by the brow of the hill which is called Brunebanca as far as the old ditch (fossatam), which descends from Brunebanca to the path of Asby (Askebi), and so thence to the road which leads from Appleby to Tebay, and so by the bound of Meaburn (Mebrunna) to the land of the church of Crosby, and so again to the said forty acres. They undertake that they will not receive any monks or any rich person in the territory of Crosby, to the detriment of the brethren. Witnesses:—Robert the Dean [of York], Simon the Canon, William Tillemir, Walter son of Fagenolf, Master Robert le Scot, Stephen the Canon, and thirteen others named. Fragments of equestrian seal and of another seal attached. (A.D. 1142-1186.)

Boxes B, C, D, E.

The correspondence of Colonel James Graham occupies four tin boxes, the number of writers being upwards of 500, and the number of letters very much larger. Among the correspondents of Colonel Graham were the Duke of Hamilton, Lords Godolphin, Bolingbroke, Middleton, and Lonsdale, Sir George Rooke, Sir Christopher Musgrave, Bishops Fell, Turner, Ken, and Atterbury, John Kettlewell, William Wycherley, and other men of eminence. Most of the letters, however, are of no general interest, being either petitions from persons in Westmoreland desirous of obtaining offices under the Government, or reports on legal and agricultural affairs. The future historian of Levens Hall will find among them a number of letters from successive stewards, describing in detail the alterations made by their employer in that very picturesque house, and the formation of its gardens, famed for their elaborate "topiary work" and their quiet glades. M. Beaumont, the gardener of James II., and the designer of the grounds at Hampton Court, was for many years in the service of Colonel Graham, and some of the letters contain applications for his professional advice. Such matters, however, scarcely come within the scope of the present enquiry.

Many of Colonel Graham's correspondents were Jacobites of a more or less pronounced character, some busy plotters, others merely Tories who hoped for a restoration of the House of Stuart during or after the reign of Anne. Although the epitaph on Colonel Graham describes him as "servant to King Charles and King James the Second" and "faithful to both," there is no evidence that he carried his loyalty to the Stuarts so far as to engage in any political conspiracies. His release after arrest on suspicion of treason in 1696 shows, in fact, that nothing could be proved against him. On the other hand, it is worthy of remark that he seems to have destroyed all the letters that he received from his brother, Lord Preston, and from his intimate friend, Lord Sunderland, both of whom were attached to the Jacobite cause. He kept only two letters from James II., the one being the last that the King wrote in England, before his flight from Rochester, and the other the first that he wrote after his arrival in France. A few letters from

CAPT.
J. F. BAGOT'S
MSS.

Lord Middleton at St. Germain's are partly in cipher, to which there is a key on a separate piece of paper. These, however, being for the most part undated and somewhat vague, have not much historical value, although the key itself may prove useful for the interpretation of similar letters elsewhere. Some of the Jacobite letters at Levens may be recognised by the direction of them to Colonel Graham under the pseudonym of "Mr. James Chapman." Many extraordinary names of persons and things that occur in other letters were not used for the purpose of disguise, being merely part of the vocabulary of a fashionable set in London.

The correspondence of Colonel Graham supplies many particulars concerning the parliamentary representation of the county of Westmoreland and the borough of Appleby, in both of which the contests were not so much between Whigs and Tories as between partisans of the rival houses of Lowther and Tufton. Other local affairs are also noticed at considerable length. Some of the letters from London allude to public events. The whole correspondence was arranged in alphabetical order a few years ago by the late Rev. F. E. Paget, who has given an interesting sketch of Colonel Graham's life in his privately-printed history of "Ashstead and its Howard Possessors." My work at Levens has thus been considerably lightened. Considering the great number and the character of the letters, I have not attempted to make a calendar of them, but the following abstracts of some of them give, I believe, all the information that is likely to be of general interest.

1674, August 3. Windsor. Orders to be observed by the three troops of foot-guards, the regiment of horse, the King's own regiment of foot-guards, the Coldstream regiment of foot-guards, and the governors of the respective garrisons. (Copy.)

Words of command to be observed in exercising a company.

"Monsieur de Turenne's order for a battalion in a day of bataille." (In English.)

1674, November 3. Camp at Detweiler. Passport for Mr. Grahame, Captain in Monmouth's regiment of infantry, to return to England on his own affairs. Signature and heraldic seal of Marshal Turenne.

1676, October 11. Copy by W. Jones of a warrant under the sign manual of Charles II. for the payment of an annuity of 8,600*l.* to Louise, Duchess of Portsmouth.

1678-9, March 6. Whitehall. Henry Coventry, Secretary of State, to all captains of his Majesty's ships, and others. Warrant to suffer Colonel James Grahme and his servant to embark for Holland, and to return thence without let or hindrance.

1679, April. Articles of impeachment against William, Earl of Powis; William, Viscount Stafford; Henry, Lord Arundell of Wardour; William, Lord Petre; and John, Lord Bellasis.

1685, November 18. Burley. The Duke of Buckingham to James Graham. Captain Coles tells me that he has been desired to inform you of the price I will take for my red deer at Whaddon. I cannot bring my mind down low enough to think of selling red deer, but if you believe that his Majesty would take it kindly of me, I will present him with ten brace of the best that I have.

1686, November 14. Crown Office. Certificate by Simon Harcourt that James Grahme, esquire, appeared in the Court of King's Bench, and there produced a certificate of his receiving the Lord's Supper according to the usage of the Church of England, and took the oaths of allegiance and supremacy. CAPT.

1688, December 18. Whitehall. Stephen Fox to Mrs. Graham at Bagshot Park. Your husband went with the King to Rochester this morning, and he told me that he had not time to write. About one o'clock this morning, the Marquess of Halifax, the Earl of Shrewsbury, and Lord Delamere, came to the King from the Prince of Orange, and told him that the Prince desired him to remove to Ham. The King chose Rochester rather, whereupon their Lordships returned about nine o'clock with leave that it might be Rochester. About eleven o'clock the King went in his barges for Gravesend, whither his coaches were sent before. He was attended by three Lords of the Bedchamber, and a physician, and several others, besides your husband, and a convenient number of household servants and—at his own desire—a hundred of the Prince's foot guards and sixty horse. He is not under any restraint. The Prince arrived at St. James's about three o'clock, resorted to by all who can get in. I was by command left here, extremely troubled for the circumstances of my master. I hope for a happy Parliament. I wish you and Lady Sylvius here, as the safest place, for the rabble is quiet in this city. It is said that they are terrible in many countries.

1688, "January" (December) 21. James II. to William Chiffinch. "Will. Chiffins. I suppose you have yet in your hands the service of plate of mine which you kept. Put it into James Graham's hands for my use, as also those things you were a putting up when I came away, and the antique watch that was in the same place, and what else was of value there, except pictures. Let him have also the three strong boxes which stood in the outward room, with what is of value in the cabinet which stood in the same room with them, with the books of devotion and prayer books [which] are in any of my closets, with the altar plate if any were left in the little chapel below stairs, and for so doing this shall be your discharge. James R. Send also the sailing and fighting instructions, the list of the sea commanders and the stablishment of my house." (Copy in the handwriting of Col. Graham, probably made in January, 1688-9, and so misdated. Spelling modernised.)

1688, "January" (December) 21. Rochester. James II. to Sir William Turner. "I have always found you to be so fair a dealer and so honest a man, that I dare trust you, and desire you to be assisting to Col. James Grahme, whom (sic) will give you this in securing my share book in the East India and Guinea Companies, which I shall take very kindly from you, and let you see I do it when in my power. James R." (Copy as before.)

1688, "January" (December) 21. Rochester. James II. to Sir Benjamin Bathurst. "I have ordered James Graham, that will give you this, to consult with you about securing my shares in the East India and Guinea Companies. I look on you to be so honest a man as well as a loyal subject, that I make no doubt of your serving me faithfully in it. James R." (Copy as before.)

[1688, December 22? Rochester.] The King's reasons for withdrawing himself. (The original draft in the handwriting of James II. with a few interlineations and alterations. Endorsed by Col. Graham "King's reasons from Rochester." The corrected version is printed in Echard's "History of England," vol. iii., pp. 940-941.)

[1688, December 25. James II. to J. G.] "Boulogne, January the 4, 1689. New stile. I arrived safe here this day and have but little to say to you at present but that I am going on to Paris, from whence you shall heare from me when I arrive there. In the meane tyme go to my corispondent that payd you some mony upon my account, and put him in mind of puting the rest of the mony I had him put into your hands, that you may returne that, and what you had of myne in your hands, to me as sone as you can, I having present occasion for it, and pray remember me to your freind with who I was to have been, if I had stayd. Lett me know a little newse." (Written in a feigned hand, and endorsed by Col. Graham—"Mr. Banks 1st letter after his going to Oxford," i.e. France.)

1688, December 31. "An account of the charge of feeding and removing of 108 red decre that came from Germany out of the ship named Dorothy, lying then at the ship Brewhouse Wharfe, and removed from thence into Windsor Forest by his Royal Highness order the Prince of Orange. By Thomas Howard, Yeoman of the Toyles." The total amount was 117*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*, which was paid to Thomas Howard by Col. Graham on the 16th of February, 1688-9.

1688-9, January 16. St. Germain. Transfer by James II., "King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland," &c., to James Grahme, Esq., of the parish of St. Martin in the Fields, Westminster, of 7,000*l.* stock of the East India Company. Witnesses:—F[ergus] Grahme and Row[land] Tempest. Sign manual "James R." and privy signet affixed. Acknowledgement of the same by James II. "King of Great Britain," in French, signed "Jacques R." (Paper.)

1688-9, January 19. St. James's. William Jephson to J. G. An order has been granted for the discharge of Thomas Hancock, a prisoner at Maidstone, if there was no other cause of his commitment but that he is a Roman Catholic. For what you write about my moving the Prince on behalf of Father Warner, a priest and Jesuit, I dare not do it.

1689, February 19. Paris. Notarial copies of transfers by James II. to James Grahme, Esq., of 3,000*l.* stock of the Royal African Company, and 3,000*l.* stock of the East India Company, dated at St. Germain, January 10, 1688-9, and of 7,000*l.* stock of the East India Company, dated at the same place, January 16, 1688-9. (The first part of this cypher was used by substituting letters in the lower line for those immediately over them and vice versa. Thus F was substituted for D, and D for F; Y for G, and G for Y, and so on. The two lines make up an alphabet of 24 letters.)

[1689] April 1. Hampton Court. W. Bentinck to [J. G.]. The King accepts with pleasure the dogs which you have sent. It is bad weather and he has not gone out, so that he has not seen them. He begs that you will send the horse called Pope. If it suits, he will pay for it what you ask. (French.)

1689. May 29. Whitehall. The Earl of Shrewsbury to — Stevens, one of the messengers. Order to allow Col. Grahme to see Lord Preston "as often as hee has occasion."

1693, June 1. [Levens.] Hugh James to James Graham. On Tuesday last Captain Levoston's regiment of dragoons came into Kendal. They have been hectoring at Sizergh.

1693, June 5. [Levens.] Hugh James to J. G. Major William commands the dragoons at Kendal. They are yet very civil. I hope they will not offer any ill thing in the park.

1694-5, February 14. [Levens.] Hugh James to J. G. To-day a Dutch troop has come to quarter in Kendal. I hope they may be civil, but they shall not have one pile of hay from me, unless they take it by force.

1695, March 26. [Levens.] Hugh James to J. G. To-day I sent two light horse and men to the Round Table at Penrith, with three years' muster and four days' pay for each man. I had much ado to get them, it being seed-time.

1695, September 26. Sir Christopher Musgrave to the Revd. — Jackson, vicar of Bethom. Great endeavours have been used to misrepresent me to my country, although I have given undeniable proofs of my zeal to preserve the Protestant religion, his present Majesty's Government, and the just liberties of the subject. I request your vote.

1695. October 14. Levens. Timothy Banks to J. G. On Thursday Sir John Lowther and Sir Richard Sandford came to Kendal. They were met by about sixty horsemen. Sir Christopher Musgrave came also, and was attended by the Mayor and others. On Friday they all went into sessions. After the charge, Sir Christopher made a learned speech to the grand jury. Then Sir John spoke, and acquitted Sir Christopher from being disaffected to the Government. He also spoke honourably of you. They made three speeches apiece, and seemed to take each other's parts. Great interest was made to unite them, but in vain. Sir John proposed that Sir Christopher should, in the presence of the Bishop of Carlisle, Sir George Fletcher, and Sir Daniel Fleming, declare that he will without disputing vote such a supply as shall be demanded for carrying on next year's war. Sir Christopher offered a general declaration in favour of the Established Church and his present Majesty, but he thinks that to confine himself in particulars is such an infringement of the liberty of a commoner as no man ought to agree to who undertakes the service of his country in Parliament.

1695, November 1. [Levens.] Timothy Banks to J. G. At the election at Appleby yesterday Sir Christopher Musgrave and one Sir William Twysden were chosen. Sir Christopher had 60 votes out of 75. Nevertheless I hear that he will stand for the county. It is reported that his friend Archdeacon Nicolson has been committed for treason.

1695, November 24. Longleat. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. I do not hasten to town, our House having no share in the government of this world, and what the Commons will do no man can guess before they have a little fermented.

1695 [-6], February 23. Council Chamber at Kensington. The Council to John Thornborough, one of the messengers of his Majesty's chamber. Warrant to apprehend James Grahme, Esq., for suspicion of high treason and treasonable practices. (Copy.)

1695-6, March 2. Council Chamber at Whitehall. The Council to the Warden of the Fleet or his deputy. Warrant to take into custody the body of James Grahame, Esq., for suspicion of high treason and treasonable practices. (Copy.)

1696, June 12. [Levens.] Timothy Banks to James Graham. On Wednesday last the mob rose at Kendal, and came with a drum to Sizergh, saying that they were starving. Mr. Shepherd gave them 10s., and a great deal of bread and drink. At Levens my wife gave them 5s., a cheese, and a great quantity of bread. At Dalham Tower Mr. Wilson gave them 15s. They took nothing from anybody. But on their return they abused the Mayor, and knocked the Recorder down. Many were put into prison. About 4 o'clock this morning a man came with a warrant from Lord Lonsdale and others for the militia and foot to appear at Round Table at 12 o'clock. The man told us that 70 went yesterday from Kendal to join the mob on the other side of the fell, and that Lord Lonsdale had gone to Rydal for security. They threaten him sore, and we are all in danger to have all taken from us. I am put to it sore for horses and money for our two men.

1696, June 15. [Levens.] Timothy Banks to J. G. Lord Lonsdale did not leave his own house until he had been to Kendal, and he had no disturbance. On Friday last the horse met him at Rownthwaite, and guarded him to Kendal, where Sir David Fleming met him with his company of foot. They examined the prisoners, who said that they had not 30s. among them. They laid the blame on some mercers who had among themselves proposed to take shillings in trade at 10d., 9d., or 8d., apiece, according to size. Some tradesmen are bound over to sessions for taking shillings at 10d. and paying the same at 12d. apiece. The mob owned they would have gone to Lowther and Rydal. Nine of the ringleaders were sent to Appleby under a strong guard. The Deputy Lieutenants recommended people to take and pay "narrow money" by weight at 5s. 2d. per oz. Now we are quiet.

1696, June 29. [Levens.] Timothy Banks to J. G. I dare not distract. Lord Lonsdale takes any silver, though never so much clipped, and at the usual value, which cannot procure him a good word.

1696, June 29. [Levens.] Timothy Banks to J. G. There is no money stirring here but a few little sixpences, which scarce serve for the country's provision. On Saturday twelve country tradesmen's shops were shut in Kendal.

1696, July 20. [Levens.] Timothy Banks to J. G. On Tuesday Mr. William Fleming gave the charge at Kendal Sessions, and afterwards offered his services as Knight of the Shire in the place of Lord Lonsdale. He said that he had Lord Lonsdale, Lord Carlisle, Sir George Fletcher, and others, on his side. Sir Daniel (his father) in some heat told the jury that this country had sent too many young gentlemen to Parliament. The Esquire was troubled that his father should charge him with extravagance, and said that he had had 10s. only from him since Christmas.

1696, September 3. [Levens.] Timothy Banks to J. G. Money is every day worse and worse. There is not a farthing to be had. About three weeks ago sixpences with the ring on, and shillings with some letters on, would have gone, but if ever shears have been on either they will not. Men cannot sell their beasts for ready money.

1697, July 22. Tunbridge. William Graham, [Dean of Carlisle] to J. G. "If the Bishop of Bath and Wells [Ken ?] be with you, pray my duty to him, and service to all of the Greek Church."

1697, August 23. London. Sir William Boothe to J. G. The French squadron at Newfoundland must inevitably destroy the fleet, and Gibson, who has only five men of war, and nearly a 100 merchants under his care. It is surprising to everyone to hear that Lord Middleton is at the congress at Ryswick, "and that King James should have that cheerfulness in his countenance as he never had more in his whole life." The Prince of Condé has certainly left France for Poland, having sent a vast treasure before him. Nobody doubts that he will become King of Poland. It is feared that he will encourage the rebellion in Hungary, which gathers like a snowball. Several good men of Kent have hanged themselves, which is a great pity.

1697, September 11. London. [Charles Brome] to J. G. At the last meeting between the two B's [Marechal Boufflers and the Earl of Portland], there was a great huff, insomuch that Bentinck said that if the King of France played tricks his master had it in his power to revenge the affront. The papers say that they parted in good humour.

1697, November 20. "Jasper Harris" (Francis Turner, late Bishop of Ely?) to J. G. In my last I told you that the honest Captain was so far gone in a consumption that I gave him the holy sacrament as a dying man. We now have better hopes of his recovery, to which going abroad would contribute. Our peace is firm, so the coast will be clear suddenly. We had lately for three nights a violent search in the City, especially all over the Inns of Court where the doors of the absent were broken open. Nobody was found worth snapping. Those in the proclamation were sought for. All was founded on a silly misinformation from a French Protestant that the Duke of Berwick bought a pair of stockings at his shop. I am now in the hurry of a remove to a small habitation near Red Lion Square.

1697 [-8], January 4. Sir William Boothe to J. G. Lord Clancarty was taken on Sunday morning in bed at Lord Sunderland's house. He is committed to Newgate, but it is thought that he will soon be set at liberty, as he made his peace before coming out of France on Saturday.

1698, May 19. N.S. Brussels. Fergus Graham to J. G. There are very few English here. Lord Ailesbury has taken a house for a twelvemonth, and sent for his family over. There are very few in Flanders or Holland who have come away in consequence of this Act, and, I am told, not many in France. MacAdam is with Slingsby about ten leagues from Paris (i.e. at St. Germain).

[1698, February-May.] Hugh James (junior) to Timothy Banks. Mr. Knighly, whose curate I am to be [at Byfield], offers me 30*l.* a year in ready money, besides my board and the keep of a horse, and all surplice fees, which in a large parish cannot be small.

1698, July 11. N.S. Malines. Fergus Graham to J. G. There are more English here now than before. Sir Thomas Stanley and Captain Braithwait, and others, have licences to return [to England]. The envoy here, Mr. Hill, had a letter from Mr. Vernon saying that my licence was stopped for the present.

1698, July 22. Drayton. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. The country is generally desirous of new members, but they are not to be found. All those who design no particular profit by the employment, decline the trouble of it, and the expense of long sessions.

1699, June 14. Sir William Boothe to J. G. I shall employ Mr. Robinson to draw the pictures of Mr. Pepys and Mr. Littleton, and to begin to-morrow with Mr. Pepys.

1699, November. [London.] Thomas Robinson to J. G. Concerning the sale of a collection of medals, Greek, Roman, and English.

1699-1700, March 12. London. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. The Old East India Company are in a fright lest their bill should not pass, being not in a condition to make the same compliment as the New, by submitting the terms of an union to the King's pleasure. Duke Hamilton's mother-in-law is dead, as well as my Lady Bishop Crewe. Lord Cutts is married this day to an old woman of eighty, Mrs. Pickering.

1700, May 29. Holyrood House. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. I have shown your letter of the 5th instant and this to His Majesty's High Commissioner, for upon very small grounds storms are made, as if the bearer came hither upon some mysterious intrigue. I will do what in me lies to serve the lady you recommend, if her business comes into Parliament. When I go into Lancashire, I will not fail to see Levens.

1700, July 15. Edenhall. Sir Christopher Musgrave to the gentlemen and freeholders in the Barony of Kendal. Mr. Fleming keeps his place as Commissioner in the Excise, and is thus disabled from serving you any longer in Parliament. Colonel Graham's son offers his service, and you cannot make a better choice.

1700, July 27. London. The Earl of Carlisle to J. G. I have received your letter telling me that you intend to recommend your son to serve the county of Westmoreland in the place of Mr. Fleming. I will endeavour all I can that no violent man of any opinion shall come within the walls of the House of Commons, but such shall have my assistance who will make it their equal concern to preserve the government and serve their country. I cannot judge you to be of this number.

1700, July 30. The Earl of Carlisle to ——. I condole with you on the death of Lord Lonsdale. I have written to Sir Daniel Fleming that I hope that a fit person will be chosen for the county of Westmoreland. In my opinion Mr. Lowther "will be much the fitter and properer man" than Colonel Graham's son. (Copy.)

1700, August 29. Hothfield. The Earl of Thanet to J. G. I conclude that Sir Christopher [Musgrave] will be Mayor [of Appleby]. I will tell Carleton to let the Corporation know that I desire they will choose him for this next year. It will be a credit to them to have so worthy a man in that place.

1700, August 31. Windsor. William Graham [Dean of Carlisle] to J. G. "The Prince now goes a hunting, shooting, and the like, and, I hope, in a little time the Princess will use those diversions she used to do, and that her sorrow will abate in time, which as yet she can not wholly overcome." I have written to Archdeacon Nicolson to use his interest in favour of your son. "The character of that person is very well known to me, he is a scandall not only to any gown, but to humane society; but if he can but serve a turne twill be meritt enough for him to procure any preferment in the church . . . Honour and honesty are discountenanced, and none but men of profligate lives and desperate fortunes are encouraged."

1700, September 9. Levens. J. Grahme to a freeholder of Westmoreland. I am forced to write to clear myself and my son from aspersions maliciously spread about the county. It is well known that my whole family have been constant professors of the Protestant religion. I appeal to Sir Daniel Fleming, a man of worth. My brother is Dean of Carlisle. The present Dean of Canterbury was tutor to myself and brother. It is said that the late Lord Lonsdale at his death recommended his uncle, in my opinion a very improper legacy to his country, for I never heard that Knights of the Shire were disposed of by will. A letter is handed about in the name of the Earl of Carlisle in favour of Major Lowther. It is a new thing for any man who has no lands in a county to concern himself in elections there. The Earl's grandfather and father enjoyed the posts he has in these northern parts, yet never meddled with elections in Westmoreland.

1700, September 11. John Hall (Under-Sheriff) to J. G. I have received a letter from Lord Thanet, in which he says—"I will never approve of men that have offices to be Knights of the Shire no more than men who have no estates."

1700, December 2. The Mayor and Corporation and freeholders in the town of Kendal to Sir Christopher Musgrave. Unanimous request that he will once more be pleased to represent the county of Westmoreland, whensoever her Majesty shall call a new Parliament. Sir Christopher's reply dated at Edenhall, December 18. (Copy.)

1700, December 10. William Nicolson [Archdeacon of Carlisle] to J. G. Sir Daniel Fleming was at Edenhall, when Sir Christopher [Musgrave] happened to be at Rose. He furnished my Lady with arguments to prevail with her husband to decline the thoughts of going any more to Parliament, saying that he was now old, &c.

1700, December 16. Levens. Henry Graham to a freeholder of Westmoreland. I do not intend to offer myself for any place but the county. I persist in my resolution, "tho' I was not born at Lowther, nor ever had the honour to be a major of Train-Bands."

1700, December 21, London. The Earl of Thanet to [Under-Sheriff] Hall. I hope all my friends will be zealous in appearing for Sir Christopher Musgrave and Colonel Graham's son.

1700 [-1], January 7. Rydal Hall. Sir Daniel Fleming to the freeholders in Hugil. I hope that you will be at Appleby on the 15th inst. and give your votes for Sir Richard Sandford, and such other person as you shall judge fittest for the service of our king, church, and country.

1700-1, February 15. London. Francis Gwyn (of Ford Abbey) to J. G. Lady Anglesey having brought witnesses to swear that her husband designed to murder her, the Lord Chief Justice sent his warrant and bound him to the peace. On Friday his Lordship came to the House of Lords to complain that the Lord Chief Justice had broken the privileges of that house. At that minute two men and four women in masks went to his house and brought away Lady Catherine [Sedley], so that she is out of his clutches. The Lords dismissed his complaint. Lord Anglesey is "very deep in a consumption," and likely to die soon.

[1700-1,] March 12. London. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. We are fitting out with all speed our third-rate ships, being apprehensive that the preparations at Brest are designed to intercept our fleet of stores and provisions for Cadiz. They never pressed men with such vigour. Housekeepers and shopkeepers are taken up and sent on board. There are scarce watermen left to bring up lighters to feed the City.

1701, September 14. Timothy Banks to J. G. On Thursday Sir Richard Sandford went through the market at Kirby Lonsdale with Lord Lonsdale and complimented every man he met. They spent 40*l*. At night they came to Kendal. The Mayor and the whole town went out to meet them about four miles. Mr. Chambre told my Lord who had been for his father's interest, and who against it.

[1701,] November 16. The Earl of Thanet to J. G. I am willing to recommend you, provided that you go down [to Appleby], but I must recommend my uncle Pierrepont for the first place, if he desires to have it. I hear that he will meet with great opposition in his county.

1701, November 17. Appleby. Timothy Banks to J. G. The absence of Sir Christopher Musgrave may do us harm. Please ask him to name one to personate him, and hasten your coming.

1701, November 20. John Brougham to J. G. Lord Carlisle recommended Sir Edward Hasell and Captain Fletcher as knights for Cumberland. I have been among the freeholders [of Westmoreland] on behalf of Mr. Graham. Sir Richard Sandford and Dr. Fleming have come to Kendal to make interest, but I trust they will do little good there.

1701, November 24. Kendal. Timothy Banks to J. G. Account of speeches, &c. at Orton. Sir Richard Sandford said that the King dissolved the last Parliament because he did not love them. This I denied, Dr. Fleming asked the freeholders to shout "A Sandford and Dalston," but almost all shouted "A Grahme and Musgrave."

1701, November 29. Appleby. Timothy Banks to J. G. A long account of proceedings against his servant Arthur Shipherd charged with treasonable words in owning the pretended Prince of Wales to be heir to the Crown. (There are other letters on this subject.)

1701, December 18. Appleby. Timothy Banks to J. G. The election ended to-day. Sir Richard Sandford had 652 votes, Mr. Graham 584, Mr. Dalston 544, Sir Christopher Musgrave 528. We should have lost it entirely but for Lord Thanet's interest.

1701 [-2], February 5. Kendal. Timothy Banks to J. G. The weavers desire that you will promote the petition to Parliament from the Corporation of Kendal. This company was very hearty for your son and Sir Christopher Musgrave at the election. Although there are laws against persons setting up any trade without having served seven years apprenticeship, when such persons come to be prosecuted they meet with such favour that very few have been punished of late. They therefore conceive a new law necessary.

1702, April 2. William Nicolson [Archdeacon of Carlisle] to J. G. The promotion of the Dean [of Carlisle] to the Bishoprick, and of myself to his Deanery and his prebend of Durham, will make way for the advancement of some more of your friends. The Bishop is not dead, 1702, April 13. Appleby. The High Sheriff, the Justices of the Peace, the Grand Jury, and other gentlemen of Westmoreland, to the Queen. A loyal address. (Copy.)

1702, April 23. Kendal. Richard Lowry to J. G. This being the day of her Majesty's coronation, the Mayor, Aldermen, Burgesses, and others went from the public hall to the cross, with drums and music before them, and drank the health of the Queen and Prince George of Denmark on their knees, with the prosperity of the Established Church. In the evening there were illuminations, bonfires, &c. with such joy as I have never seen in this town.

1702, August 11. Lord Godolphin to J. G. I congratulate you on your success in Westmoreland. I will take care to make your son's excuse to the Prince and the Queen, and to let her Majesty know how active you have been in her service.

1702, August 30. Longleat. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. The Queen came well to Bath on Friday, much satisfied with her entertainment at Oxford. It is thought impossible for her to come here in short days and by long bad ways.

1702, September 6. Longleat. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. The Prince finds benefit by the waters, which the Queen began to drink yesterday.

1703, June 30. Windsor. William Graham [Dean of Carlisle] to his brother J. G. I have had the honour to serve the Queen at my own expense for thirty years. Lord Nottingham lays his hands on all church preferment. His brother, his chaplains, and his favourites are all taken care of, and her Majesty's chaplains and clerks of the closet are put by.

1703, August 31. Whitehall. The Earl of Nottingham to J. G. I was unsuccessful in the case of your two justices who were lately added to the commission of the peace. I hear that great sums of money have been lately sent into that kingdom [Scotland], but I cannot trace by what hands it was conveyed. Perhaps you may guess at those secret ways.

1703-4, January 5. London. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. There will be great struggles in the House of Lords, where the parties will be pretty equal. The Queen is perfectly recovered and the better for having now a sharp fit of the gout in both hands.

1704, April. Red Lion Square. William Harvey to J. G. Having the honour of a recommendation from Lord Thanet to be chosen with you at Appleby, in the room of Lord Pierrepont who declines it, I venture to desire the favour of your joining with his Lordship in giving me your interest at this election.

1704, June 1. Robert Harley (Secretary of State) to J. G. You may well call me a new courtier. I shall scarce ever attain to be an old one unless I have the favour of some of your precepts. Orders have been given to the Lord Keeper to remove Fleming. The Duke of Marlborough's march is the only thing to save the empire. Whether Prince Lewis of Baden will fight, or have the gout, a few days will show.

1704, August 17. The Earl of Peterborough to J. "Grimes." My son, Lord Mordaunt, was wounded in the battle [of Blenheim]. Such a rout was never heard of. It happened by the impatience of our men. The soldiers in the second line would have their share of fighting, and their officers could not hinder them from running up into the intervals of the first line. This obliged the French to do the same, and made it such a confused fight that there could be no regular retreat. Thirty squadrons of the gens d'armes of the household and best horse of France were forced into the Danube, and hardly any were saved. Twenty-six battalions taken prisoners, and twelve squadrons of dragoons, fourteen general officers, and twelve hundred others. Sir Christopher Musgrave and I "were not always of opinion, but there was so much of a sturdy Englishman in him that I always wished him well."

[1704,] August 23. Metcalfe Graham to J. G. After a hot dispute we have obtained an entire victory. We have taken twenty-seven battalions of foot and twelve squadrons of dragoons, besides other prisoners. The French are weaker by this battle [of Blenheim] by 30,000 men. What makes the victory more glorious is our passing to attack them with two rivulets in their front and a strong village on each flank. Their army was twenty battalions stronger than ours and only thirty squadrons weaker. M. Tallard declared that if they durst confide upon their intelligence that Prince Lewis was left to besiege Ingoldstadt, they would have fallen upon us in our camp the day before. Lord Marlborough sent for me two days after this business, and told me that he had taken notice of me all day, took me by the hand, and promised to take care of me as long as he lived. I serve as aide-de-camp to General Lumley.

[1704,] August 29. [London.] Thomas Robinson to J. G. I have received your command to buy a silver cup at about 20*l*. Plain plate is dearer for the fashion than chased work. I have bespoke a cup of Mr. Seamer at the Flower de Luce in Fleet Street, a very considerable goldsmith, at 6*s*. 2*d*. per oz., of which 8½*d*. is for the fashion, Britannia silver being 5*s*. 5½*d*. per oz.

1704, September 1. Longleat. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. Besides the loss of interest by Sir C[hristopher] M[usgrave]'s death, I am in doubt your Bishop [Nicolson] will not be so steady. You know he promoted him, and had the most power with him.

1704, October 3. Inner Temple. J. Ward to J. G. Mr. Bromley and other members will observe the agreement made at the last general meeting at the Fountain, to meet there again a full week before the next sitting of Parliament. I hope that you and your son will comply with this, if you can be spared from your county election.

1704, December 4. Kirkby Lonsdale. Thomas Godsalve to J. G. The election [for Westmoreland] was carried for William Fleming without the least opposition. Mr. Robert Lowther made a learned speech in the best language. He will stand at the next election, besides Mr. Graham and Mr. Musgrave, so that there will be five with the two whom we have elected, and who cannot stand without crutches.

1704-5, January 12. Preston. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. A very wrong notion is taken of our affairs in both houses. I may well be allowed to regret anything that looks like an ill understanding between the two kingdoms. Amongst other idle stories, they have spread reports that I was buying great numbers of horses in this country. Nothing can be falser, for I have not bought one horse these two years. The news-letters from London say that Scotland is recruiting the French army with horses. I have business enough to do in this country without turning jockey.

1704 [-5], January 14. John Brougham to J. G. I hope that Kendal may prove true. When Mr. Fleming came there on his journey to London, many of the town and country waited on him, and, I am told, he gave them eleven or twelve gallons of brandy in punch, besides wine and ale. I have asked the freeholders to give one vote to Mr. Graham, and to reserve the other for the present. Mr. Lowther has been to Kendal to make interest.

1704-5, January 16. Preston. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. The votes of the 2nd contain such severe resolutions that I regret the methods adopted. Softer ways would be more inviting arguments to come into the measure desired, than carrying things with so high a hand. The Queen is Queen of Scotland, and if these resolutions should become laws, she gives sanction to make war against herself. If I had been believed, things would not have come to this. When the Queen came to the Crown nobody coveted more than I did the honour of serving her. In former reigns it was thought "noe ill polleticke" to have Scotland entirely at the devotion of the sovereign. Scotland has had its influence on certain occasions, even in the greatest events relating to Britain.

1704-5, February 25. Preston. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. I shall be as ready as any man in the island to contribute my small endeavours towards her Majesty's service in preserving a good understanding between the two kingdoms. I do not trouble the Lord Treasurer with letters, because I do not know the measures they are upon. Nobody wishes the preservation of the liberties of the people more than I do, but I think nothing can secure them better than support to the Crown. I hope the glorious success of her Majesty's arms, with the wise conduct of those whom she trusts, will order matters so as to keep her Queen of her people and not of a party.

1704-5, March 6. Preston. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. The proceedings with you about our affairs are above my comprehension. They put me in mind of what I have heard of the Peace of Ryswick, when it was said that it was like the Peace of God, "which passes all understanding." What is done now is above the comprehension of us poor vulgar people.

1705, March 27. Inner Temple. J. Ward to J. G. There are thorough changes at hand at court. The Duke of Buckingham was offered the Great Seal. He refused, and has resigned the Privy Seal. It is said that the Duke of Newcastle is to have it. The Earl of Peterborough to be Vice-Admiral of England and General of the forces on board the fleet.

1705, April 4. Preston. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. Mentions the birth of a son, and political rumours from London. The Earl of Anglesey has written in favour of his cousin, Mr. Francis Annesley, for Preston.

1705, April 8. Preston. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. Things grow daily more and more perplexed in our country. I hear from thence that a letter came from the Duke of Argyll to the Chancellor, requiring him to call a Council and to put a stop to the execution of Green and his crew until further order. If the Council had gone along with it, there would have been the most terrible rabble ever seen in the place, but the Council who sat all day, despatched a packet to acquaint her Majesty that they could not put a stop to the execution. Argyll's letter was in such a strain as if he had been writing to one of his chamberlains in Kintyre. If this young minister do not "imbark and ambarras matters," I am much mistaken. He has now had the better of the Duchess of Marlborough, for her friend Johnston is at last turned out, and they say that Phillippaugh, the Duke of Queenberry's creature, is brought in. These are strange steps.

1705, May 11. Lancaster. Robert Heysham to J. G. The county election is appointed for the 22nd. There will be "a strong poll" between Sir Rodger Bradshaw and Mr. Shuttleworth.

1705, September 11. Holyrood House. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. Our Parliament is now drawing to a close. I have done her Majesty signal service in it, but whatever I do of that nature is not represented. You know how I have been used.

1705, October 6. Keniell Castle. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. As deeds surpass words, so do my actions. You know best what you said to me, and what authority you had for it. If the consequence should be the re-establishing of my adversaries, you should think yourself and me not justly dealt with. I have done my part, and I hope that I have hurt neither my country nor my friends, though I have angered some of them. I have ever wished for a good understanding between the two kingdoms, and, if my advice had been listened to, the difficulties would not be what they are.

1705, November 5. Appleby. James Lamb and eight others to J. G. A letters of thanks for the "vessels of the sanctuary" presented by him to their church.

1705, November 13. Preston. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. It is unreasonable to be making reproaches or begging thanks. Services past are dreams.

1706, April 4. Council Chamber at Kensington. The Council to the Earl of Thanet. Order for an assembly of the justices of the peace of the county of Westmoreland to take a particular account of all Papists and reputed Papists with their respective qualities, estates, and places of abode. (Copy.)

1706, April 20. Kendal. William Fleming, James Grahme, Edward Wilson, Daniel Wilson, Richard Fleming, and Thomas Heblethwaite, to the High Constable of Kendal Ward. Order concerning the same. Seals affixed.

1706, April 25. S. Hawes to J. G. The Tower guns were fired today for an express which came last night from Lisbon, with the news that Lord Galloway has taken Alcantara and some Spanish regiments in it. It is reported that the Duke of Berwick was killed, but this seems to want confirmation. The Venetian Ambassador had his public audience this evening.

[1706,] June 7. Camp Arselle. Metcalfe Graham to J. G. Our successes are beyond imagination. A large country has fallen to us in consequence of one battle [Ramillies]. Never was victory more easily got, or better followed. They stayed not long enough to make the slaughter great, but the closeness of the pursuit has made amends. Yesterday the Duke [of Marlborough] had a letter from the King of Spain, saying that their fleet disappeared at the approach of ours. The Marshal retired with so much precipitation that he left all his sick and wounded, 120 cannon, 40 mortars, 4,000 barrels of powder, 15,000 sacks of corn, and other provisions for four months. According to several letters the Duke of Anjou is at Perpignan. My Lord is very civil, but it is hard to make one's fortune by so cowardly an enemy, for we have no vacancies made by the battle in the English horse. We have detached to take Antwerp.

1706, July 6. Longleat. William Burrow to J. G. Gives copy of a letter written on board the Surprise before Ostend, describing the siege and surrender of Nieuport.

1706, July 16. Bucklebury. Henry St. John to J. G. A peace may be made, and more leisure fall to my share, or I may happen to fall on the slippery ground of a court and roll down to this quiet place, In either case my horses and my dogs will help me to pass most of the time which I can spare from the offices of friendship.

1706, August 3. Whitehall. Henry St. John to J. G. My stable is my great diversion in the country, and in the midst of business Bucklebury runs in my head. We stand on slippery ground, and I will fall soft whenever it comes to my lot to tumble. I keep you before my eyes. You have been a courtier, and are a northern country gentleman.

1706, September 3. Windsor. William Graham [Dean of Wells], to J. G. The Dean of Sarum [Younger] is not permitted to do duty (as chaplain at Court), because he and the Chapter did not choose as Canon Dr. Kennet who had been recommended by the Bishop [Burnet]. The Bishop in his anger said that all who have had countenance from the Dean have been persons who have set themselves against the Bishop with the utmost indecency, because he studies to support the Queen and her government. This is an unjust accusation.

1706, October 28. Temple Sowerby. John Hall to J. G. The Flemings determine to set up young Wilson at the next election, to oppose your son. Mr. Dalston protests he will give his vote and assistance against them.

1706, —14. Warrington. Sir Edward Seymour to J. G. I am informed that there is no passage for a coach to Whitehaven by Levens. "A worser country and people for travellers I never met withall."

1707, October 30. Penrith. Dr. Hugh Todd to J. G. A long account of the controversy between the Bishop of Carlisle and the Dean [Atterbury] as to the right of the former to visit the Dean and Chapter.

1708, May 6. Lord Barnard to J. G. Yesterday the Duke of Hamilton was freed from his messenger on giving 10,000*l.* bail, and his four sureties 5,000*l.* each, viz.—the Duke of Montagu, the Marquess of Dorchester, and the Earls of Bradford and Orford. It is now believed that his Grace will be one of the sixteen peers. Mr. Caesar has lost his election at Hertford, and Sir Harry Dutton Colt is likely to lose his at Westminster.

1708, May 25. Hulme. Sir John Bland to J. G. On Saturday Lord Downe was 1,500 before Strickland, and Sir Arthur Kaye 450 before him, but Sir Arthur is likely to lose his election, because he declared so late. My election [at Pontefract] was the warmest we have had in these parts. The great Duke of Newcastle sent his myrmidons to manage the election, and Lord Orford his nephew Sir Rowland Winne on his part, but I not only "rid the foremost," but turned the scales for the other.

1708, May 25. Cleveland Court in St. James's Place. [W. Bromley] to J. G. We daily expect an account of a battle, and consequently a victory, in Flanders. The bringing over the Princess Sophia is now much talked of. It is said that the Electoral Prince, after serving this campaign as a volunteer under our Prince, will come with him hither.

1798, July 18. Henry St. John to J. G. The death of my grandfather has filled my head, which never could contain many propositions at a time. My being left out of Parliament is of very small moment to the public, and no great misfortune to me. After I had resolved not to appear at my own borough, I did all I could to get myself elected at some other place, but found it utterly impossible. Those whom it is my inclination and my principle to serve have left me out, and I conclude that they do not want me. I shall have three years time to live to myself, which is a blessing I never yet enjoyed. If I live to another Parliament, I will be elected without an obligation to anybody but the people who choose. This must be inter nos, for I have not opened my mind to any creature upon this head.

1709, September 16. Bucklebury. Henry St. John to J. G. The character you give of the age and court is so true that it serves as another consideration to take off the edge of my ambition. After all this, it is no part of my scheme, whenever the service of my country or of any particular friend calls me forth, to sit still. I hope and promise myself that on any such occasion I should exert some vigour and make no despicable figure.

1710, April 22. John Brougham to J. G. Your vote for the Doctor [Sacheverell] has made even your enemies your friends, and your health is the first drunk in all companies in Cumberland as well as in Westmoreland.

1710, June 1. Levens. Allan Wilson to J. G. Most of the people in this country long to have an opportunity to thank you for the service done them in preserving the church from false brethren.

1710, July 7. Penrith. Dr. Hugh Todd to J. G. We are pleased to hear that you are like to be happy in the affections of the Dowager Lady Portland, one of a million. Mr. Lawson is promoting an address for this county. He will be opposed by our ecclesiastical justices.

1710, August 13. [W. Bromley to J. G.] The laying aside "Sir William" (i.e., the Earl of Godolphin) was a coup-de-maitre, and the manner of doing it seems very dexterous. The [Queen] writes him a letter, and orders him to break his staff. He desired leave to see her, and deliver up his staff in person, but this was refused.

1710, August 19. Longleat. George Harb'n to J. G. The Lord Chief Justice in his charge at Salisbury told the gentlemen that he was commanded to let them know that the breaking off of the conferences at Gertrudenburg was occasioned by the divisions in this kingdom. Lord Peterborough is sent for up to town from Bath, and we are told that he will be First Commissioner of the Admiralty.

1710, August 22. Raby. Lord Barnard to J. G. I long to hear how the Duke of Marlborough and the army received the news of the fall of the Treasurer [Godolphin]. Letters speak of great animosity between the General and the Duke of Argyle, and that the latter was confined to his tent for striking Mr. Cardenall.

1711, July 11. York. Dr. Hugh Todd to J. G. Yesterday I took leave of the Archbishop. The news was that the Bishop of London was dead, that the Bishop of Bristol was likely to succeed him, and that the Dean of Carlisle [Atterbury], would be removed to Bristol and Windsor. The Archbishop wished me good success as to Carlisle. I perceived notwithstanding that he had some inclinations for Dr. Higdon.

1711, November 10. Penrith. Dr. Hugh Todd to J. G. Our new Dean [Smalridge] is to be installed by proxy. He does not intend to come down before spring, if then, or if at all.

1711, December 20. Penrith. Dr. Hugh Todd to J. G. I hear from Lowther that the Bishop of Worcester is dying, that the Dean of Christ Church [Atterbury] is to be advanced thither, and that our Dean is to remove to Christ Church.

1712, August 26. London. The Duke of Hamilton to J. G. Her Majesty has made me Master of the Ordnance, and has appointed me to go into France to negotiate some affairs, and to be her Ambassador Extraordinary at the peace. This last is a great honour, but attended with many difficulties, which without the Colonel's effectual assistance I shall never be able to get through.

1713, July 8. Lady Barnard to J. G. The Queen, it seems, was not at St. Paul's. Last night we had a vast number of bonfires in every village. The mob likes the peace, although the great dons do not. J. F. BAGOT'S MSS.

1713, August 28. Crooklands. Timothy Banks to J. G. The election at Appleby came on yesterday, and "after a long lugg" Mr. Lutwyche had 69 votes, Sir Richard Sandford 39, and Mr. Harvey 38.

1713, December 24. London. Viscount Weymouth to J. G. Affairs in Ireland are the whole subject of discourse, where the Commons run great lengths, not at all to the satisfaction of this court. Lord Thanet is much aggrieved at the declaration you made at the county election against peers meddling in that matter. I thank you for the pot of char, too high a meat for a gouty man.

1713 [-4 ?] January 21. Whitehall. Viscount Bolingbroke to J. G. Observe from whence this epistle is dated, and let old images rise in your thoughts. I will not presume to say you will find here a court or ministry like those you have known, but I am much mistaken if you do not like us better than when you saw us last. I have said a little to Lord Berkshire about the present state of affairs, as much as a letter will bear. The Queen is well, though the Whigs give out that she is, what they wish her, "a pèrcher." Come up and make her well in all respects. It is two o'clock in the morning, and I am ready to drop off my chair with fatigue.

1714, July 27. St. James's Place. Dr. Hugh Todd to J. G. A commission is being prepared for the Treasury. Some say that the Bishop of London is to be the First Commissioner. An order is to be sent to all Lord Lieutenants to disarm Popish recusants and to seize their horses. We hear of an extraordinary charge the Bishop of Carlisle gave to the jury at quarter sessions, and of letters written into the country by Mr. James Lowther about the imminent dangers from the Pretender.

1714, July 30. Council Chamber at Kensington. The Council to the Earl of Carlisle. Order for the seizure of all arms belonging to Papists and Non-jurors dangerous to the peace of the kingdom, within his Lieutenancy. (Copy.)

1714, August 5. London. Metcalfe Graham to J. G. The Duke of Marlborough came in yesterday with all pomp imaginable. The City gave him guards. He wants to see you mightily. The Duchess bids me tell you that while she breathes she will be your friend, for your kindness to them and to Lord Godolphin.

1714, August 6. Skipton. Timothy Banks to J. G. The King was proclaimed at York on Tuesday afternoon with great pomp, the Archbishop being there, and a great number of gentry that were not gone from the races. As soon as the express came to the Lord Mayor, the gates were shut, and none were allowed to pass without a permit. They threaten to take up all Papists, but especially their horses.

1714, September 16. Appleby. Richard Baynes to J. G. We are to have a contest in this borough at the next election. Lord Thanet has recommended Mr. Lutwyche and Mr. Harvey. Sir Richard Sandford opposes them, but the Vicar and some neighbouring clergy are against him.

1714, October 23. London. Dr. Hugh Todd to J. G. It is said that Lord Bolingbroke was introduced to kiss the King's hand by the Duke of Marlborough. The Duke of Ormond is invited to the City feast, but it is said he intends to excuse himself.

1714, November 16. London. Lord Carteret to J. G. The Pretender has sent over a printed paper to all the great officers of state, to the two Archbishops, and the Lord Mayor, in which he asserts his pretended right, and says that the late Princess his dear sister, meaning the Queen, had of late favourable intentions to him, and that he had been disappointed by her deplorable death. That clause occasions many speculations.

1714, December 18. [London.] Christopher Musgrave to J. G. The town is nothing but noise, and everybody is making court to the great favourites, by reviling the late Queen, who was too bountiful to many of them.

1714 [-5], January 6. Appleby. Richard Baynes to J. G. There is likely to be a great contest at Cockermouth. The Dean of Carlisle [Gibbon] has been making interest for his brother, who was one of the late Commissioners of Customs in London, but the contest will probably lie between the two Lords.

1717, September 23. Appleby. Richard Baynes to J. G. The Castle and Mr. Hall made a violent interest against your election as Mayor, but you have been elected by a great majority.

1721, September 15. Appleby. Richard Baynes to J. G. At an entertainment which the Duke of Wharton made to all the burghers of this place on Tuesday last, he heartily recommended you and Mr. Anthony Lowther to be representatives for this county at the next election, and this was seconded by Sir Christopher Musgrave.

1721, October 23. Warcop. Richard Braithwaite to J. G. Injustice of accusations. Lord Lonsdale's father would not have made so great a figure in life if I had not largely contributed to it. At the time of the Revolution, Sir John Lowther wrote a tragical letter to me late one night, saying that the disbanded Irish were coming upon us, and desiring me to meet him at Orton the next morning. I marched to that place with above five hundred horse and foot, and so to Kendal, while Sir John was at Kirkby Lonsdale. So again at the regulation of the coin [in 1696], the mob at Kendal threatened to burn Lowther, which put him in a great fright. I then joined him at Rowthwait with above two hundred horse to suppress the mob, he having not above forty.

1722, April 6. W. Bromley to J. G. The election at Coventry began on Tuesday, when there were polled about one hundred for Sir [Adolphus] Oughton and [John] Neale, and six for Craven and Skipwith. There were about a thousand voters in the street, when, upon pretence of adjourning for an hour, the former with the magistrates carried away the Sheriffs. They would not suffer any but their own creatures to come near them—not even their wives—kept them up all night, and would not let them go until they had forced them to make a return, which was not signified to the freemen till all was over. The Sheriffs were two poor scoundrels, but they durst not trust them. Oughton had brought all the freemen serving in the troops in Great Britain and Ireland, and living in Chelsea Hospital, to the election, and they appeared in their regimental clothes and swords.

1722, April 14. J. Johnston to J. G. The contest in the City is Jacobite Tories against other Tories. The Duke of Wharton has restricted himself to 2,000*l.* a year, and has taken a house at Twickenham for retirement for seven years.

1722, April 22. [W. Bromley] to J. G. My letters yesterday put me into a very great quandary, upon hearing of your friend's perch (i.e. the death of the Earl of Sunderland). I could not reconcile his actions with his professions.

1722, May 6. [W. Bromley] to J. G. I do not believe that any of my friends rejoice at the late "perch," though I am told that others have shown very indecent joy. I am surprised at the treatment of him (the Earl of Sunderland) by those in power. It is said that the Duchess of M[arlborough] sealed up his ecritoire, that some of the ministers came soon after, broke it open, and carried away all his papers. Had he been charged with the most heinous capital crimes, they could not have done more.

CAPT.
J. F. BAGOT'S

1722, May 9. St. James's. The Council to the Earl of Carlisle. Warrant for the seizure of the arms of all Papists and non-jurors within his Lieutenancy, in consequence of a conspiracy for raising a rebellion in favour of a Popish Pretender. (Copy.)

1722, May 12. London. [J. Johnston] to J. G. I find our late friend [the Earl of Sunderland] defamed all over the town, first for having got so much by the South Sea, and next for having (as they say his papers show) had a correspondence with the Pretender. His will was made when he thought himself rich, whereas there will remain between 30,000*l.* and 40,000*l.* for the legatees, and 900*l.* jointure, with 15,000*l.* for Lady Morpeth's debt on the land, so that the heir will have barely 2,000*l.* a year to live on. As to the other point, there is nothing in it, and the falsehood of what is pretended will be made clear. Without hanging, nobody will believe in the plot, but assassinations were proposed. It was also proposed to burn the books of the three companies, for destroying paper credit, which would have been construed to have been done by the Government. Next a rising was resolved on, and the Duke of Ormond had agreed to come over. The chief instruments are known, but the evidence is not sufficient to hang them. Without this, all will pass for a sham.

[1722,] May 26. London. [J. Johnston] to J. G. Lord Sunderland's person and manner please everybody. Some mark of favour—perhaps the Bedchamber—will be put on him. The plot is now believed to be nothing, but the Duke of Ormond was certainly to have come. Credit revives. The Bank and the South Sea Directors are agreed, Mr. Walpole does his best to recover the credit.

1723, May 2. Ashby. Henry Fleming to J. G. The candidates for Appleby were Lord Hillsborough, supported by the Earl of Thanet's interest, and Mr. James Lowther by Lord Lonsdale's, represented by Mr. Joseph Pennington. The poll began on the 24th of last month and continued until this day, when it was declared in favour of Mr. Lowther. The Mayor, Mr. Nevinson, promised well at first that he would act impartially, but soon showed himself a party man in the highest degree. Lord Hillsborough was very free with him, but no words would prevail with him to be honest. It is generally believed that he is well rewarded for his favours.

1723-4, March 10. Algiers. Thomas Shaw to J. G. A very long account of the character and government of Mohammed Pasha late Dey of Tunis, who was shot in the public street in the midst of his guards and officers.

1725, May 1. London. The Duke of Montrose to J. G. I have obeyed your commands in making your compliments to the King, which were very well received. He was pleased to inquire particularly after you, and to regret that you could not come to St. James's.

1726, December 23. Kendal. Gabriel Shaw to J. G. My son has written to me from Algiers that he has made two or three hogsheads of wine to present to his friends in England, and that he desires to send one to you.

CAPT.
J. F. BAGOT'S
MSS.

A sheet of paper—"The orders of the Lord of this rule [? Misrule] kept by Brother Bellingham's of Leavens in Westmoreland." 1682-3. Thirty-nine verses, and a list of seven performers.

Copies of poll-books at Parliamentary elections for the county of Westmoreland:—

January, 1700-1. Henry Graham, 585 votes; Sir Christopher Musgrave, 523; Sir Richard Sandford, 519; Richard Lowther; Sir Daniel Fleming.

December, 1701. Sir Richard Sandford, 652; Henry Graham, 584; John Dalston, 544; Sir Christopher Musgrave, 528.

May 1708. Daniel Wilson, 986; James Graham, 754; Robert Lowther, 663.

A sheet of paper—"Charles Prince of Wales, &c., Regent of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, and dominions thereunto belonging, to all his Majesty's officers, civil and military. These are requiring you to protect and defend the estates, houses and effects of . . . Earl of Suffolk from all insults, injuries, or violence, to be offered or done against them by any person or persons whatsoever, we having taken him under our Royal protection. Given at Kendal, the 24th November 1745. By his Highness' command. T. Murray." Seal affixed bearing the royal arms with a label.

"This copy of the manuscript discourses contained in the great Picture-frames, that are fixed in the Halls at Appleby and Skipton Castles, concerning my Ladie the Countesse of Pembroke, &c. and her noble relations, was taken in July and August 1672, by her Honor's order, out of the original papers that had been written by Edmund Langley in August, Anno Domini 1646." It contains genealogical and biographical notes concerning the subjects of the following portraits (1) Margaret, Countess of Cumberland, (2) Francis, Lord Clifford, and his brother Robert Clifford, (3) Margaret, Countess of Derby, (4) Frances, Lady Wharton, (5) Anne, Countess of Warwick, (6) Elizabeth, Countess of Bath.

A folio volume bound in white, containing an account of the various payments made by Lord Duras from the Privy Purse of the Duke of York, from January 1, 1674-5 to March 26, 1676. All the entries are in French, and the Duke's signature occurs at the end of the account for each quarter. At the end of the book are many acquittances for the payments recorded. Many of the payments relate to the stopping of foxes' holes and other expenses connected with the chase. There are also payments to the King's musicians, trumpeters, and drummers, to the gardener of the Queen-Mother, to the coachman of the Duke and Duchess of Monmouth, and to Lord Craven's drummers. There are many payments to boatmen for the carriage of the Duke of York from Whitehall to the Houses of Parliament, to Putney, and other places. Presents are recorded to the nurses of Lord Sunderland, Lord Roscommon, and others, to whose children the Duke was godfather. M. de la Grandcour received 20*l.* for a book dedicated to his Highness on the subject of his marriage.

A quarto Book of Hours written on vellum and bound in old brown leather impressed with a beautiful design. The ancient clasps are missing. Many of the pages have richly illuminated borders, and the volume contains twenty-nine large illuminations, besides smaller ones of scenes and emblems of the Passion. The first of the larger series represents St. Walter the Confessor, a very uncommon Saint in mediæval art, wearing a suit of mail under his monastic robes. Another represents the martyrdom of St. Thomas of Canterbury, and another St. Jerome. The Hours are those according to the use of the church of Sarum. Some unusual Saints occur in the Calendar. From the character of the illuminations it appears that the book was prepared in France or Flanders in the middle of the fifteenth century, for some English person whose name is not given. A Book of Hours in the British Museum (Sloane MS. 2471) very inferior to this as to execution and condition alike, has illuminations closely resembling those in this volume in subject and treatment. Somewhat later in date than the pictorial illuminations is a coat of arms, which may be that of Lovel:—Or a lion rampant azure, crowned, langued, and armed gules, between twelve cross crosslets of the second. Crest, a demi-griffin argent. Opposite to this are some doggerel couplets by members of the Bown-tyen family, written in the early part of the sixteenth century. A page of prayers making mention of St. Thomas of Canterbury seems to have been cut out in the reign of Henry VIII. and the notices of him in the Calendar have been erased. At the end of the volume there are notes concerning the issue of Anthony Bustard of Adderbury, co. Oxford, and Jane his wife, who were married January 18, 1540. The first entry runs thus:—"Memorandum that Elizabeth Bustard was borne the 10th day of December, being Saint Damas Eve, anno domini 1540, and in the yere of the reigne of Kyng Henry the eight the 32, Elizabeth Horne and Margaret Bustarde godmothers and Christofer Lyght beyng godfather, and my mother Horne at the confirming." Other children born were William 1542, Anthony 1543, Mary 1545, Ursula 1547, John 1548, Thomas 1550, Anne, George 1555, and Martha 1557. Nothing is recorded about the subsequent possessors of this beautiful volume.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF GEORGE BROWNE, ESQ.

Mr. Browne, whose ancestors have resided at Troutbeck for upwards of three hundred years, has inherited various papers relating to that place and its immediate neighbourhood, and has recently arranged them in sixteen volumes. Very few of them, however, come within the scope of this Commission, and in the following brief report I have noticed all those which seemed to merit attention. Among them may be found much statistical information about the county of Westmoreland in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and some scattered notices of the Rebellions of 1715 and 1745. By far the most interesting of Mr. Browne's manuscripts is the book of private devotions of Thomas Percy, seventh Earl of Northumberland, a volume which throws some light on the religious views and practices of a distinguished nobleman in the middle of the sixteenth century.

MR. BROWNE'S
MSS.

MR. BROWNE'S
MSS.

Among the papers in the bound volumes are the following:—

VOLUME I.

2. Order for the summons of the trained bands of the county of Westmoreland, signed and sealed by Sir Philip Musgrave, Sir George Fletcher, Sir John Lowther, Sir John Dalston, Daniel Fleming, and Alan Bellingham. June 17, 1667.

4. List of prisoners taken by the Scottish rebels in 1745. (Printed in "Local Chronology," Kendal, 1865, p. xxviii.)

5. Copies of the petition of the prisoners in the Castle of Carlisle, of the Governor's answer thereto, of their petition to the Duke of Cumberland, and of his answer thereto. December 1745. (Printed in "Local Chronology," pp. xxviii, xxix.)

6. The number of soldiers in every Constablewick in Kendall Wards." A.D. 1667.

8. List of Papists and Nonjurors summoned to appear at the Moot Hall at Kendal to take the Oaths of allegiance and supremacy, and the abjuration oath, on the 25th of May 1722, with notes as to the value of their respective properties.

9. List of the "founders" of the Light Horse. A.D. 1715.

15. List of men of each township in Captain Fleming's company. A.D. 1715.

24. Warrant from John Harrison and John Archer, justices of the peace, for search to be made for any arms, weapons, or gunpowder, in the custody of George Hilton, Esq. of Bethom, a Papist. August 28, 1714. Two heraldic seals affixed.

25. Warrant from Sir William Fleming, J. Grahme, and Daniel Wilson, justices of the peace, for the seizure of all Papists and suspected persons that shall be found travelling, or in any suspected houses. August 4, 1714. Two heraldic seals, and one other, affixed.

30. Account of the "Trophy Money" payable at 5*d.* in the pound. November 3, 1715.

33. Receipt of Thomas Rowlandson of Kendal for 21*l.* 18*s.* 4½*d.* for "Trophy Money." February 25, 1715.

35. Warrant from Daniel Wilson, John Archer, John Fisher, and Anthony Askew, for search to be made for George Hilton, esquire, of Bethom, who was concerned in the late rebellion, and who has made his escape, since the defeat of the rebels at Preston. November 26, 1715. Two heraldic seals, and two others, affixed.

40. Summons from three justices of the peace to Thomas Shipherd, George Hilton, John Hale, John Burrow, and William Clawson, all of Bethom, to appear at Kendal, to take the oaths prescribed by the Act of Parliament for the further security of his Majesty's person. December 15, 1715.

43. Copy of a letter from Lord Lonsdale to Mr. T. Rowlandson about the rebels in Scotland and Northumberland. October 16, 1715. (Printed in "Local Chronology," p. xx.)

42, 44. Copies of warrants from Captain James Fleming and Captain Daniel Wilson for the summoning of their trained bands to meet at the Round Table near Eamont Bridge on November 12. Dated November 10, 1715.

45. Summons from Daniel Wilson, John Archer, and Anthony Askew, to Mrs. Askew, widow, in the island in Applethwaite, Mr. Miles Atkinson, Mr. Benjamin Harrison, all in Applethwaite, and James Longmire de Linefitt, James Longmire de Orrest, John Longmire de Callgarth, all in Applethwaite, and George Elleray de Houe of the same, to appear at Kendal, to take the oaths prescribed by the Act for the further security of the King's person, etc. December 15, 1715.

48. Similar summons to Robert Stephenson, of Newhouse, and George Dennison, of Mirehead, both in Grayrigg. December 15, 1715.

49. Similar summons to Samuel Newby, of Tenterden, in Docker, and Thomas Dawson, of Crosthwaite. December 15, 1715.

101. Draft of a letter from Mrs. Browne, of Troutbeck, to her son George. His father, being High Constable, is mightily involved in troubles and scarcely at home for one day in a fortnight. When he is at home, he and his boys write day and night. He has been all the week and is still abroad "upon the hunt for taking of some rebels." May he take no harm. "God knows hee is upon a desperate undertaking." All his troubles, however, are not comparable to the concern he is in about the undutifulness of his son, especially in his slowness in writing to him. [A.D. 1715 or 1716.]

105. Letter from Thomas Shepherd to Benjamin Brown, High Constable [of Kendal] at Troutbeck. He has information of several lewd, disorderly, sturdy vagrants, travelling to Ambleside Fair, who have behaved themselves in a very insolent manner upon their travel. The number of them is said to be two men and four women, and they are suspected to be Egyptians, or that sort of people. Privy search is to be made for the immediate apprehending of them. May 27, 1729.

126. Order of the Court of Quarter Sessions that the High Constable of Kendal cause the surveyors of high ways "to erect and sett up posts of wood or stone at every cross high way and every cross laine in the said wayes with an inscription thereon in their divison directing the rodes from markt to markt." January 16, 1712-3.

213. Summons against John Brathwait, Elizabeth Dixon, widow, and nine others, inhabitants of Windermere, and for the most part Quakers, for refusing to pay great or small tithes. November 7, 1724.

215. Account of the expenses for making distress on the goods of the Quakers in the parish of Warton. November 20, 1711.

217. Complaint of William Crosby, Rector of Windermere, against John Brathwait and others for non-payment of tithes. February 18, 1720.

218, 219. Warrants concerning the same.

220. Survey of the high ways in Kendal Ward. A.D. 1730.

221. Survey of the bridges in Kendal Ward. A.D. 1712.

MR. BROWNE'S
MSS.

399. Account of expenses for conveying vagrants through the county of Westmoreland. A.D. 1712. Among the entries is the following:—
“Received of the Constable of Warrington one Charley Hogg, a vagrant, and by order of John Harrison, Esqre. convoid him to Pennerith with two horses, being not fitt to be carried behind one by reason of his filthyness and distemper. Charged tenn shillings for goeing to gett the order, one shilling for keeping him two nights and one day, two shillings for supporting him on the road, being two days and one night, he being soe feeble, sune of two shillings and constable’s attendance five shillings in all is 1l.”

VOLUME II.

4. List of the persons, three hundred and ninety-one in number, who took the oaths at Ambleside and Rydal, on the 14th, 15th, and 16th of October, 1723.

177-181, 186. Notes of the names, weights, and owners of different fighting cocks at Troutbeck. A.D. 1766 and 1771.

199. Agreement between John Walton, of Oston (Alston) Moore, co. Cumberland, gentleman, and Rowland Cookson, of Troutbeck Bridge, co. Westmoreland, yeoman, as to a race to be run by their respective mares, in the demesne of Calgarth, for the sum of twenty pounds. Dated May 30, 1692.

384. Account of expenses of conveying vagrants through the county of Westmoreland. A.D. 1714.

389. A similar account. A.D. 1721.

VOLUME III.

1. A plan of Troutbeck Chapel. A.D. 1707.

2. Another plan of the same, explaining the arrangement of the seats, undated. The communion table is set altarwise, but not adjoining the eastern wall, and there are seats against all the four sides of the chancel. “When any man that has a seat in this chancell dyes, the 3 sidemen or psallary men has power to putt up another into this chancell, for the payment of 2s., but noe man knows his own seat, every one takes places as they come, and it is a seat but for life.” There are three seats or forms on each side of the aisle between the chancel screen and another division running across the nave. “These forms on both sides are common till the womans forms.” Westward of the division are twelve seats or forms on each side. “All below till the next back form on both sides this ile are fixt to every mans estates, five estates to a form, and every one pays soe much psallary as is sett down in a schedule by one Doctor Mannering, 5 wives to a seat.” Westward of a gangway from door to door across the nave are three more seats or forms. “These below are common to any.” “The Psallary men has noe power to dispose of seats but in the Chancell when any person dyes that is seated there, and to collect the psallarys and the interest of the stock we have, and to pay the minister his wages.”

3. Copy of a licence from William, Bishop of Chester, for the celebration of the sacraments, etc. in the Chapel of Jesus at Troutbeck, July 18, 1562.

174-213. Lists of the freeholders in the Barony of Kendal. A.D. 1709-1730.

VOLUME V.

82. Letter from Benjamin Browne to his father George Browne of Troutbeck, on domestic affairs. He adds:—"There is great pressing here for the Fleet, they take 1,000 in one day." Dated at the Temple, May 12, 1719.

83. Letter from the same to the same. He gives an account of his journey to London, which occupied six days. "There has been very great mobbing by the weavers of this town, as they pretend because they are starved for want of trade, and they pull the callico cloaths off womans backs where ever they see them. The Trainbands have been up since last Fryday and they were forced to fire at the mobb in Moor Fields before they would disperse, and 4 or 5 wer shott and as many wounded." London, June 23, 1719.

85. Letter from the same to the same. He asks his father to send him a wig "not too dark hair in it, nor too much hair," for it can be got better at Kendal for under 20s. than in London for two guineas or more. London, June 23, 1719.

VOLUME VI.

1-82. Papers relating to the claim of Benjamin Browne to a private pew in the chancel of Troutbeck church. A.D. 1709-1711.

VOLUME VII.

45. Letter from Elizabeth, Lady Otway, to Benjamin Browne, of Troutbeck. "I am very sorry to hear of Roland Brathwait sicknes.

Mr. Browne's
MSS.

If it be a jandice, let him get a lemon and cut the top of it and put in tow penyworth off saffron into it and cover it with the top, and sett it to rost, and when rosted quez it into a pint of white wine and let the lemon infuse 24 hours, and take the fine powder of turmerick as much as will lye upon a crown peice and a nutmeg grated and a good sponnefull of aneseed bruised, and mix this in treacle and take the quantety of a nuttmeg or more morning and afternoone and drink a litle glas off the wine aforesaid after it. This is a very good medicine iff he can get this done for him, if the would give him 20 head-lice mixed with nut-meg and sugar and powder of turmerick and drink a litle warm ale after it sweetened with treacle and nutmeg and a litle powder of turmerick in it and aneseede, [it] would perhaps doe him good." August 12, 1708.

70. Letter from the same to the same. Barton will take home to Troutbeck the thunderbolt. She would take it as a favour if cousin Brooks would give her the two old pictures of the Penruddocks, rolled up, without the frames. She would get them dressed up from the smoke and dulness which is upon them. August 12, 1714.

77. Letter from the same to the same. "Ther is at Preston, Wigon, and Manchester above 22 or more off the rebells hanged. The judges gone up to London. 6 or 8 witnesses sent up to London. So much sicknes now in our [Chester] castle that the dye in droves like rotten sheep and be 4 or 5 in a night throne into the Castle ditch for ther graves. The feavour and sicknes increaseth dayly, is begun to spread much into the citty, and many off the gaurd solidyers is sick, it is thought by infection. The Lord preserve us ffrom plague and pestillence." February 16, 1715 [-6].

80. Letter from the same to the same. There is among the prisoners in the castle a Mr. Sandys, of Graythwaite, and his wife. He has had great charity, but it will in time fail. He says that his brother, who was once High Sheriff of Lancashire, is lately dead, and that he is heir to an estate worth eight or nine hundred pounds a year. He makes application to her by letter, but she does not know that he deserves her charity. His brother is said to have married one Swainson. She desires information as to the truth of his story. He got out of the Castle, but was not fortunate enough to escape. When caught he was put into irons in the Castle. Sweetum has begged his irons off, and gives relief to him and his wife. March 8, 1715 [-6].

90. Letter from the same to the same. She hopes that the hurry of his business as High Constable is over. They have reason to be thankful that the repulse of the rebels was not at Chester, which was so well fortified that there must have been more blood spilt there than at Preston. Many of the prisoners are gone to London. Four hundred and fifty odd were brought to Chester Castle on Sunday night, and strict guard is kept upon them day and night. It is said that there are several hundred still undisposed of in Preston, until further orders. December 1, 1715.

91. Letter from the same to the same. There are four hundred and fifty prisoners in the Castle. They all lie upon the straw, the better and the worse alike. The King's allowance is a groat a day for each man for meat, but they are almost starved for want of some covering, though many persons in Chester are charitable to the sick. Chester ought to be very thankful that it did not have the lot of Preston. She had sent "to provide a conveniency" eight miles out of the town, for the cannon was to have been planted at every gate, and her house would not have been secure, standing as it did in the mouth of the Northgate cannon. December 15, 1715.

100. Letter from the same to the same. There are still some hundreds of prisoners in the Castle, and two regiments of soldiers in the town [of Chester]. All provisions are therefore dear. July 5, 1716.

113. Copy of a letter from Elizabeth, Lady Otway, to her cousin Mrs. Birkett, at Ambleside. Bishop Sandys was born at Graythwaite, and, she has heard, gave sixty pounds a year to Hawkshead Church, and the like sum to the school. His picture ought to be kept, to remind his relations of his good works. The two pictures of the Penruddocks will accompany that of the Bishop. The Penruddocks were a very good family in Wiltshire, but she does not know the Christian names of their great-grandfather and great-grandmother. She has heard that her great-grandmother, of whom Mrs. Birkett has the picture, had two children at once, and that King James I., who stayed in the house on his progress, was god-father. She cannot find out what brothers or sisters her grandmother had, except Lady Musgrave, of Heaton Castle in Cumberland, and Anthony Penruddock, to whom the writer's uncle Braithwaite bequeathed 10*l*. She advises Mrs. Birkett to read a book called "England's Black Tribunal," which mentions the execution of Colonel John Penruddock at Exeter, for his loyalty to King Charles II. She fancies that he was her grandmother's eldest brother. He had two brothers slain in the rising in the west in Cromwell's days. She only wanted the pictures in order to show them to a gentleman of five hundred a year, who "mightily enquires after Sir Edward Penruddock and his Lady's name before marriage." July 5, 1716.

115. Notes about two portraits [of the Penruddocks]. That of the gentleman was painted in 1580, when he was 40, and that of the lady in 1611, when she was 60. The lady has a crucifix in her right hand with ten diamonds, and a book lying by her left hand. The gentleman has a book in his right hand. Both are clothed in black. Note of the arms and the motto:—"Ad lucem et laborem."

172. Copy of a letter from Benjamin Browne to Lady Otway. Mrs. Birkett will not give up the pictures of the Penruddocks, saying that they belong to the Sandys family of Esthwaite. December 24, 1714.

189. Copy of a letter from the same to the same. Miles Sandys, Esquire, of Graithwaite in Furnessfell, was buried at Hawkshead Church in February last. He was High Sheriff of Lancashire five or six years ago. He has left two daughters, the one married to Thomas Sandys, of Esthwaite, her ladyship's relation, and the other unmarried. Miles Sandys has given his whole estate to his grandson, Miles Sandys, eldest son of his eldest daughter. His wife was a Knipe, of Fairbank, and his mother a Swainson. Mr. William Sandys, who is a prisoner in Chester Castle, is younger brother to the late Miles Sandys. His wife's maiden name was Hobbs. She came from Newcastle, and had a fortune of 500*l*.

194. Copy of a letter from the same to the same. Until now he has not dared to ask anyone for money, because he was in fear daily that his house would be swept. He was therefore forced to bury her money and other things under ground. He hopes that these troublesome times will be over, if fortune favour them at Stirling. December 9, 1715.

MR. BROWNE'S
MSS.

210. Draft of an agreement by which Dame Elizabeth Otway, of Ambleside, lets to George Braithwaite, of High Wrey, her privilege of fishing upon Windermere water, with the privilege of carrying a boat with any goods whatsoever from the head to the foot of the said water, for one year, in consideration of the sum of five shillings. The said Dame Elizabeth reserves only to herself the twenty chars which the fishermen are to give her every year. July 2, 1701.

104. Will of Thomas Braithwaite, of Ambleside, Esquire, A.D. 1674. He desires that all his ancient medals and Roman antiquities of gold, silver, brass, and copper, be presented by his friend Dr. Barlow, Provost of Queen's College, to whom he has given them by a deed of trust, to the University of Oxford. The will gives many genealogical details.

A long roll of parchment containing the decree of the Court of Chancery between Sir John Walter, Attorney-General of Prince Charles, complainant, and Gawen Brathwaite and others, tenants of the Barony and Lordship of Kendal, defendants. November 4, 1619.

A common-place book of Christopher Birkett, written in or about A.D. 1701. It contains arithmetical tables, recipes for dyeing skins, and poetical extracts. Among them are "Verses upon a horse race at Grassemire," and "A speech spoken before Sir Daniel Fleming at Ridall Hall at a bounteous feast in Christmas—the speaker Hospitality." Couplets containing all the letters of the alphabet. "Naturall remedies for witchcraft." A method for discovering thieves, and various charms and cabalistic signs.

MR. BROWNE'S
MSS.

A quarto volume of the sixteenth century, written on 113 leaves of vellum, now measuring nearly 8 in. by 6 in., but formerly somewhat wider. On the first three leaves are emblazoned five large coats of arms within a border which has on each side a label bearing the Percy motto:—"Esperance en Dieu." In the corners of the borders are four different badges:—A crescent argent, a crescent enclosing a locket argent, a falchion sable hilted and tipped or, and an unstrung bugle or. All these are depicted on a ground per pale gules and sable. The arms are as follows:—

f. 1 b. Quarterly 1 & 4, Percy; 2 & 3 Percy (ancient). Crest, a lion statant azure, langued gules.

f. 2. Quarterly, 1 & 4, Poynings; 2, Fitzpayne; 3, Bryan. Crest, a unicorn statant argent, horned, collared, and chained, or.

f. 2 b. Quarterly of five. 1, Quarterly 1 & 4 Percy, 2 & 3, Lucy; 2, Percy (ancient); 3, Poynings; 4, Fitzpayne; 5, Bryan. Crest, on a chapeau gules, lined ermine, a lion statant azure, langued gules.

f. 3. Quarterly, 1, 1 & 4, Percy, 2 & 3, Lucy; 2, Percy (ancient), 3, paleways, Poynings, Fitzpayne, and Bryan; 4, Quarterly, 1, Harbottle; 2 & 3, blank; 4, Monboucher. Crest, as on f. 1 b.

f. 3 b. Quarterly, 1, Harbottle; 2 & 3, blank; 4, Monboucher. Crest, a boar argent. It may be observed that in both instances the Monboucher arms are given without a bordure.

The arms show that the manuscript must have been written by, or for, a descendant of Sir Thomas Percy, who married Eleanor Harbottle, and the name of the owner is given as "Thomas Percy" in prayers which occur on ff. 9 b, 25, and 26. The name "Northumberland" is written in the margin of f. 91 b, and "Elizabeth" on f. 99 b. The date "1555" written in the margin of f. 15, agrees very well with the character of the manuscript, which must have belonged to Thomas Percy, seventh Earl of Northumberland, who was executed for treason in 1572, and died a Roman Catholic.

ff. 4-89 are written uniformly in one neat hand, the headings and chief words being in red ink. They contain a variety of private prayers and thanksgivings. On f. 5b. mention is made of "the Quenes Majestie, who doth not onely studie and care daily and hourelly for our prosperitie and welthe, but also spareth not to spende her substance and treasure, yea ready at all tymes to endangier herselfe for the tender love and fatherly zeale that she beareth toward this her realme, and the subjects of the same." In this part of the volume the expressions of doctrine are not very distinctive. On f. 32 occurs the "Ave Maria" and a petition:—"Sancta Maria Mater Dei, ora pro nobis peccatoribus," while on f. 36 b occurs the General Confession taken from the Book of Common Prayer of 1549.

ff. 89-113 are written less neatly in a later hand without rubrication. The expressions of doctrine are strongly marked. Fourteen lines on f. 89 begin:—

"Christ's picture humblye worshipec thou, which by the same doste passe."

On f. 94. is a versicle:—"Praise for us O blessed George the knight."

On f. 104 occur the four well-known lines "Christe by his worde spake it," etc., with the name "Jo. Al." beneath.

MR. BROWNE'S
MSS.

On f. 104 b, the name of the Blessed Virgin is introduced several times into the "Gloria in Excelsis."

On f. 107, in a "forme of confession before a preist" occur the words "I have not saide the houres canonicall." The seven sacraments are mentioned on f. 113 b. In the same hand are a few marginal corrections of the earlier part of the volume. Thus on f. 39 b, the ordinances of the Church are specially excluded from "such workes as have bene devised by mennes fantasies besides the scripture," and on f. 40 b. after the mention of the Queen as "our sovieragne ladie and supreme hed" are added the qualifying words "in temporal matters."

I have to thank Mr. Browne for his assistance during my brief examination of his papers.

In other deeds mention is made of Isabel de Wottinhull, daughter of Robert, late lord of Wottinhull, widow; Robert son of Robert de Wotenhul; Hugh Pantulf and William, Ivo, and Hugh, his sons; Agatha daughter of Waleran le Bret; and Robert Mainwaring, rector of the church of Ightfield (18 Henry VIII.).

Ancient deeds relating to property at Bromhall, co. Chester. Among them is—

Grant by Yvo Pandulf to the monks of Combermere, of Bromhale. Witnesses:—the Bishop of Bangor, monk and abbot, W. Brit, Pantulf, Alexander Pantulf, and four others named. Fragment of equestrian seal attached. (A.D. 1215-1236.)

In other deeds mention is made of Matthew son of William de Chetildon, and Joan wife of the said Matthew, daughter of Sir William de Clifton (A.D. 1325); John son of Sir William de Chetildon (22 Edw. III.); and William de Bromlegh and Annabel his wife (32 Edw. III.).

Ancient deeds relating to property at Badington, co. Chester. Among them is—

Grant by Robert de Farnham and Matilda his wife to William de Needham and Isabel their daughter, in free marriage, of lands in Countasthorp, Blaby, and Glenmedowe. 22 Edward III.

In other deeds mention is made of Thomas, lord of Alstanton and William his son (13th century); Annabel relict of John de Lacy, James de Audley lord of Heleye (32 Edward III.); William de Chetilton, knight (9, 13, and 17, Edward III.); Robert de Praers and William de Praers his brother, sheriff of Chester; William de Holford, 20 Henry VI. There are heraldic seals of several of the above.

Ancient deeds relating to property at Alstanton, or Austerson, co. Chester. Among them are the following:—

Grant by Adam de Burton to William de Alstanston, and Annora daughter of the said Adam, in free marriage, of a moiety of the vill of Alstanston. (Early 13th century.)

Release by Nicholas, Abbot of Combermere, and the Convent of that place, to Robert de Bulkeley, of all their right in the vill of Alstanston. A.D. 1338. Fragment of conventual seal attached.

In other deeds mention is made of Robert son of Robert de Bulkeley by Letitia his wife (A.D. 1323); Thomas son of Robert de Bulkeley (23 Edward III.); Robert de Bulkeley (34 Edward III.); William, lord of Chetilton, knight (11 Edward III.); William le Venables, Constable of the Castle of Chester (6 Henry VI.); Thomas le Grosvenor, knight, and Ranulf Mainwaring, Esq. (7 Henry VI.). There are heraldic seals of several of the above.

Ancient deeds relating to property at Hallam (in Newton by Daresbury in the parish of Runcorn), co. Chester. Among the persons mentioned in them are—Adam son of William de Hallion, and Adam his son and Alice wife of the last (13th century); Thomas de Hallam and Simon his son (A.D. 1338); John de Hallam and John his son (A.D. 1338); William son of John de Hallam (30 Edward III.); Simon de Langham, clerk (30 Edward III.); John son of William de Hallam (3 Richard II.); John de Hallam and Joan his wife (11 Richard II.); Elizabeth relict of William de Hallam (3 Henry V.); and Geoffrey de Warburton (Werburton), knight (22 Edward III.). There are heraldic seals of most of the above.

Ancient deeds relating to property at Titley.

Ancient deeds relating to property at Drayton Magna and Drayton Parva, co. Salop.

Grant by Alina de Dorlaveston to Or. Huniet of two "waræ" of land in Dorlaveston, which he held in the life-time of her lord, Engenulvus, and for which he has done homage in her court at Buccenhale, co. Stafford. Witnesses:—Robert de Swinnerton, Thomas de Bidulf, Eustace Griffin, John de Nortun, Richard de Nortun, Richard le Large, Joyce de Grottun. and many others, Juliana wife of Ralph de Stanhedis, Edith wife of Siward de Longetro, Aldus lady of Cherdingham, and Letice wife of John. (12th century.) Endorsed, "Carta Hormi de Dorlaveston."

A bundle of old letters, among which are the following:—

1505. Christopher, Abbot of Combermere, to Mr. Needham of Shavington (Shayntone), demanding payment of rent for ground adjoining the mill of Titley.

1597, April 6. Westminster. Letter of privy seal to Robert Needham of Shavington, esq., requiring a loan of 30*l.* for one year; and receipt to the same for that amount from Francis Newport, dated August 1.

1611, April 24. Roger Owen [to Sir Robert Needham]. Concerning a suit in the Court of the Marches, and other matters. There is to be a new Parliament at Michaelmas. Monsieur Vitrex, a great soldier of France and a great huntsman, is with the King, and hunts every day. He says he will teach the King how his dogs shall hunt, and take the hart in the night.

1610, November 1. Sir Robert Needham to Sir John Townshend of Ludlow. Bond to pay 6*l.* within twenty-eight days after certificate from the Lord Mayor of London of the return of Sidney Townshend, gentleman, from Naples.

1611 [-2], March 16. Roger Owen to Sir Robert Needham. Concerning the title to certain lands. The Duke of Bouillon comes not over until after Easter, to procure a match between the Palsgrave of the Rhine and the Lady Elizabeth. The solemnities held in France open on Lady Day in Paris about the match between Lewis XIII. and a daughter of Spain. The bishops have a writ to burn the Arian heretics who were condemned. The Scot who struck the Earl of Montgomery is committed.

1612, April 24. Lincoln's Inn. The same to the same. Lady Duckett writes many letters. The Duke of Bouillon (Bulleon) is expected within two days. Count Anhalt has had audience, and it is thought that the Lady Elizabeth will marry the Count Palatine. The Lord Treasurer [the Earl of Salisbury] is going to the Bath within three days, where he will be towards Whitsuntide. In the meantime the Treasurer's place will be supplied by commission. Viscount Rochester has been sworn of the Privy Council this week. Yesterday, being St. George's Day, Ramsay, who struck the Earl of Montgomery, made a submission on his knee in the Chapel to all the Knights of the Order in general, and especially to the Earl.

1624, September 24. Salop. Gervase Harisone to Sir Robert Needham. He has sent him a hogshead of canary wine. He "cannot afford it under 9l., for canarey wines are dearer this year then the last, because sherie sakes are not soe good, and a hogshead is more then halfe a pipe."

KILMOREY'S

1629, April 15. Dutton. Robert, Viscount Kilmorey to Lord—. Concerning his precedence. The title was unsought by him, and he did not know of it until the patent was brought to his house in the country. He believes that it was given in regard of the service which he did in Ireland in the times of Sir William Russell and the Earl of Essex, and the great charges he was at in maintaining men and horses. He had relinquished all claim for money for entertaining a troop of horse and a company of foot. (Draft.)

1632, May 16. John Philipott, Somerset Herald, to Robert [2nd] Viscount Kilmorey. Acquittance for 10l. due to the Heralds and Pursuivants for their fees and for recording the certificate of the death, marriages, issue, and arms, of his father.

1634, May 29. Edward Hodgson, clerk of Robert Bateman, Chamberlain of the City of London, to Robert, Viscount Kilmorey. Acquittance for 10l. as his second payment towards the repairs of St. Paul's Cathedral.

1635, May. W. Raylton to Viscount Kilmorey. Acquittance for various fees due to the King of Arms and Officers of the Parliament in Ireland.

1635, June 13. The same to the same. Acquittance for 6l. 12s. for fees due to his Majesty's principal Secretary and the Clerks of the Signet, for a dispensation to be absent from the late Parliament in Ireland.

1648 [-9], February 27. London. — Carpenter (?) to Viscount Kilmorey. He sends some printed papers. The Scottish Commissioners intending to return by sea this day, were stopped at Gravesend, but whether by order of the House or the army he knows not.

1659, December 24. [London.] — to [Charles] Viscount Kilmorey. Concerning a deed of trust. It is probable that the Rump will keep their Christmas in the Parliament House and take their old seats before the delivery of this letter. Fleetwood refused to join with the City who would have made good their declaration. He sent the keys of the Parliament door, which is now open. The House is being made clean. Some say that he will meet Sir Arthur [Haslerig] and the triumphant Parliamentary forces with all due submission. The soldiers here follow the mode of those at Portsmouth. There is great lamentation at Wallinford House by the Committee of Safety now disbanded, and no less at Whitehall by Lady Lambert and her dependents and relations. What effect this turning of the weathercock will have in the North is very doubtful. The City will be obliged to comply, and perhaps to suffer for showing their teeth. The Tower is forsaken by Desborough, and, they say, re-delivered to the Parliamentary officer. Mr. Smith is still at Lambeth, a prisoner. Your brother E. was this morning ordered to come nearer to Sir James to lodge. Many officers, they say, are gone to Lambert, whose interest, it is thought, is to fight Monk speedily, lest his common soldiers should forsake him. — Later. 5 o'clock. It is said in the City that Fleetwood has submitted to the Speaker, and confessed that Vane and Salwey brought him to countenance Lambert in the disturbance of the Parliament. In the Exchange it was said that the Rump would sit this day, and that it was now sitting, but now there are contrary reports. Most men are confident that the Rump will be very merciful and obliging.

EARL OF KILMOREY'S
MSS.

1683, July 5. Warrants from Peter Wilbraham, Viscount Kilmory, Sir Richard Brooke, Sir Robert Leicester, and Sir John Arden, to Sir Philip Egerton, Captain of one of the troops of horse of the militia of the county of Chester, to make diligent search for arms in the houses of Col. Whittley of Peel, Sir Thomas Billett of Morton, John Mainwaring of Baddiley, esq., Tilston Bruen of Stapleford, esq., John Hurleston of Picton, esq., Roger Mainwaring of Keringham, esq., Thomas Mainwaring of Calveley, esq., Richard Wright, of Nantwich, esq., William Lawton of Lawton, esq., Mr. Warburton of the Grange, and Arthur Cartwright of Chepnall Green in Newhall, gent. (Copy.)

Same day. The same and Sir Philip Egerton to Thomas Needham, esq., Captain of a troop of horse, etc. Warrant to make diligent search for arms in the houses of Sir Rowland Stanley, Sir James Poole, William Massey of Podington, esq., Mr. Glegg of Grange, Mr. Litherland of Poulton, Mr. Robert Wilson of Bidston Hall, Mr. Thomas Swinton, parson of Wallazey, Henry Booth of Mere, esq., Peter Leigh of Booths, esq., Sir Thomas Mainwaring of Peever, Baronet, Col. Thomas Leigh, junior, of Adlington, Sir Robert Duckenfield of Duckenfield, and Col. Venables of Wincham. (Copy.)

Same day. [The same] to Captain Sparkes, Captain of the militia in the county of the city of Chester. Warrant to make diligent search for arms in the houses of Alderman Street, Alderman Mainwaring, Col. Whitley, Thomas Whitley, esq., Mr. Gilds von Brugh, Henry Birkenhead, and any other whom he shall justly suspect within the liberties of the said city. (Draft.)

[1683,] July 10. Nantwich. The Sheriff, the justices, and the jury to the King. Congratulatory address on "the miraculous deliverance" of the King and his brother "from the damned and treasonable conspiracies of bloud-thirsty miscreants, who at one blow designed to rob us of the joy of our hearts, in extinguishing the light of this our Israel." (Copy.)

1683, July 10. Whitehall. Sir Leoline Jenkins, by command of the King, to Sir Robert Leicester, and the other Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Chester. Warrant to make diligent search for arms in the houses of Charles, Earl of Macclesfield. (Copy.)

Same day and place. The same to the Earl of Derby, Lord Lieutenant of the counties palatine of Chester and Lancaster. I am desired by his Majesty to tell you that he has proof that a general insurrection was intended, not only in this kingdom but in that of Scotland. He would have you take notice of this as from himself, not that you should be hereby obliged to put your country to extraordinary expense and trouble in bringing together the militia, but that you take care that the officers be in the readiness that is suitable for times of imminent danger. His Majesty persists in his direction that all dangerous persons be disarmed, but in this he would have decency and discretion observed, so that fowling-pieces, and wearing swords, and other trifling things, be not seized. He desires that an inventory of all arms seized be sent to one of his principal Secretaries of State. (Copy.)

1683, July 19. Northwich. The Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Chester to Sir Leoline Jenkins. We have received a particular order from his Majesty for disarming the Earl of Macclesfield, dated the 10th instant, and this was done on the 14th, the day after it came to our hands. We have likewise disarmed all suspected persons in our country. We had seized some fowling-pieces, and swords, and other trifling things, before the receipt of orders to the contrary. List of arms taken by Captain Needham, from the Earl of Maccliesfield (49 muskets, 2 brass blunderbusses, Scotch partisans, etc.), from Henry Booth, from Sir Thomas Mainwaring, from Mr. Richard Legh of High-Legh, from Mr. Legh of Adlington (14 muskets, etc.), from Mr. Bradshaw, of Marple, from Mr. Legh of Booths (9 muskets, etc.), from Col. Venables, from Swinton, parson of Wallazey, and from Glegg of the Grange, mostly fowling pieces and pistols, 122 articles in all.

1684, June 24. Knutsford. The number of the foot-soldiers mustered, 1,085, and horse 105.

1684-5, February 2. Whitehall. Lord Middleton to the Earl of Derby. The King was seized by a fit about 8 o'clock this morning, but he is "much come out of it," and continues so well that the physicians have great hopes that all danger is past. You will take care, by giving all necessary orders to your Deputy-Lieutenants and justices of the peace, to prevent all disorders that may happen upon any false reports, or by any seditious practices upon this occasion of his Majesty's indisposition.

1684 [-5], February 3. Whitehall. The physicians have declared to the Privy Council that they think the King in a condition of safety.

1685, April 6. Chester Castle. The Grand Jury of the county of Chester to the King. A congratulatory address on his succession to the throne "after having stemmed the torrent of a proud and long pampered faction, and baffled the secrett and deep conspericyes" of his enemies, "in despite of all popular tumults, Bills of Exclusion, Associations, Comprehension and black boxes." They thank him especially for his unasked declaration in Council that he would protect the established religion. (Copy.)

1685, May 19. Whitehall. The Earl of Sunderland to the Deputy-Lieutenants of Cheshire. His Majesty, having received an account that three ships laden with arms, ammunition, etc. are lately gone out of Holland to Scotland, and that the Earl of Argyle was on board, intending to land in that kingdom for some rebellious design, and having also received an account of some design upon the northern parts of England, commands me to direct you to be watchful. He thinks fit that you should immediately disarm all dangerous and suspected persons, and that two of your number should be constantly together at some convenient place, to receive advices and to give directions thereupon, and also that you should send me frequent accounts of your transactions. His Majesty would also have you take particular care to secure the arms of the militia, so that they may not be surprised. (In the margin are notes by five Deputy-Lieutenants about the transmission of this letter from one to another without delay.)

1685, May 23. Northwich. The Deputy-Lieutenants of Cheshire to the Earl of Sunderland. We have obeyed your instructions, and have also appointed a muster for securing the arms of the militia which are to be delivered to the Captains of the several hundreds. (Draft or copy.)

1685, June 1. Nantwich. Muster-roll.

1685, June 13. Whitehall. The Earl of Sunderland to the Deputy-Lieutenants of Cheshire. The King has this morning received advice that on Thursday last the Duke of Monmouth with three ships, one a frigate of about thirty guns, the others small vessels, appeared in sight of Lime in Dorsetshire, and at night landed with about 150 men, and seized the town. He has caused the enclosed proclamation to be issued. Both houses of Parliament have made very dutiful addresses. "The Militia of those parts are very affectionate, and his Majesty having sent the Lords-Lieutenants and some troops down, I doubt not but in a few days I shall be able to send you a very good account of this matter."

EARL OF KILMOREY'S
MSS.

1685, July 2. Whitehall. The same to Sir Peter Warburton and others. I have received your letter of the 29th of June, in which you desire that Sir John Bowyer may be released. I have by the last post ordered the Governor of Chester to dismiss him upon his word.

1685, July 4. John Offley of Crewe to the Earl of Derby. Bond in 5,000*l.* to behave peaceably towards the King and the present Government. (Draft.)

1685, July 23. Ightfield. Viscount Kilmorey and Thomas Cholmondeley, to Thomas Legh. The rebels having been defeated, it is the King's pleasure that those secured by his former orders should be released. We therefore discharge you from your bond.

A folio volume written on paper, containing copies of letters and other documents relating to the affairs of the county of Salop, in the reigns of James I. and Charles I., as follows:—

1617, June 23. Ludlow Castle. Lord Gerard to Sir Robert Needham and Sir Robert Vernon. I desire you to cause the trained men to furnish themselves with arms, according to my former directions, before the 1st of October. The furniture for every hundred footmen to be:—40 corslets with pikes, 28 muskets complete with wooden bandoleers, 28 bastard muskets with the like bandoleers, 4 swords and targets.

1617, July 26. A table of the men and arms to be provided by the different hundreds in the county of Salop, six hundred men in all.

1617, July 13. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to Lord Gerard. Orders for a general view of the forces within his Lieutenancy, the provision of good arms, the completion of the number of horses, the exercise of the trained bands, and the provision of powder, bullets, &c.

1617, August 6. Ashton. Lord Gerard to Sir R. Needham and Sir R. Vernon. None but choice and selected men of worth and quality are to serve in the trained band.

1617, August 26. Shavington. Sir R. Needham and Sir R. Vernon to the High Constable of several hundreds. Precept for the attendance of the trained soldiers "with their finders and maintainers" on the 10th of September.

1617, September 1. Gerards Bromley. Lord Gerard to Sir R. Needham, Sir R. Vernon, Sir Francis Newport, Sir Thomas Cornewall, and Sir Vincent Corbet, his Deputy-Lieutenants. Precept for an enrolment of all able men between the ages of eighteen and fifty years, and for a muster of the trained bands. He mentions the King's express command given to him in person at his house at Gerards Bromley.

N.D.—Sir R. Needham and Sir R. Vernon to the High Constables of the county of Salop. Precept to deliver to the maintainers of corslets, etc. particulars of the arms to be provided by them, specifying the different articles included under the headings of "corslets furnished," "musket furnished," "bastard musket furnished," and "sword and target furnished."

EARL OF

N.D.—The same to the same. Precept for the appearance of the "finders and maintainers" of trained soldiers.

N.D. The same to divers gentlemen. Order to send horses with their riders, etc. to Shrewsbury on the 7th of October.

N.D. The same to the High Constables of the county of Salop. Precept for the enrolment of all able men by the petty constables and the churchwardens of every parish.

1617, September 23. Gerards Bromley. Lord Gerard to his Deputy-Lieutenants, as before. The view of the trained bands must be held on the 7th of next month. I would be loth to prove so ill a husband for the country as to put upon them any of the arms made by Mr. Grosvenor, which have been "disproved," and held insufficient for the last thirty years. Before next spring I will procure arms from London, which will serve for the good of the country and the credit of him who provides them. The trained men "set forth" by the clergy are to be viewed with the others.

1618, June 24. Ludlow. Lord Compton to his Deputy-Lieutenants in the county of Salop. Order for a muster of the trained men.

1618, April 25. Whitehall.—The Lords of the Council to Lord Compton. Orders for a general view of the forces within his Lieutenancy, the provision of good arms, the completion of the number of horses, and the provision of powder, etc. Although calivers are in some counties enrolled "among the shot," modern use altogether excludes them as unserviceable. They are therefore to be exchanged for muskets.

1618, September 26. Tickenhill Bower.—The Earl of Northampton to the Deputy-Lieutenants and justices of the peace for the county of Salop. Having of late bent my studies for the achievement of some work that will tend to the particular profit of the gentlemen of these counties, I cannot "advise with myself" of anything more excellent than the erecting of an Academy for the instruction of young gentlemen in horsemanship, which is a necessary part of every gentleman's breeding. Once attained unto, it will, no doubt, minister such delight to gentlemen that they will be stirred up to the breeding and training of horses fit for their own practice and the service of their country. Our example may happily be an inducement to other parts of this realm to imitate us. The gentlemen of France much excel us in that faculty. I have already given order for the building of a house for riding, within the castle of Ludlow, and have drawn thither a gentleman, whom I "tie" to be there continually resident, for the instruction of such young gentlemen as shall repair to him. In the art of riding he is inferior to very few or none in this kingdom, and he is very sober, discreet, and well conditioned. Although he has a competent estate of his own in Warwickshire, he is content to transplant himself to satisfy my desire. He will always maintain six or eight great horses of his own, and he will ever have the use of a dozen or more ready horses of mine. This will be a greater charge to him than he can well support, and his pains and expense of time deserve to be valued. Many gentlemen of your rank have offered larger sums towards a yearly "entertainment" for him than I would accept. I propose that every Deputy-Lieutenant shall contribute 40s. yearly, for which he shall have his sons or servants instructed, and his young horses ridden and made ready for use, without further charge. I propose also that every one assessed to the furnishing of a horse in the trained bands shall contribute 10s. yearly, for which he shall have his horse made ready for service, and his soldier taught horsemanship, without further payment. I have written letters of the same tenor to the other counties within my Lieutenancy, asking for answers, with a roll of those who will contribute.

1618 [-9], February 19. Tickenhill House. The same to the same.

1618 [-9], February 11. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to the Lord President of Wales. Orders for a general view of the forces in the county of Warwick, and the city of Coventry, and in the several counties of Wales under his Lieutenancy, the enrolment of the forces trained and untrained, the provision of good arms, the completion of the number of horses, the provision of powder, etc., and the repair of beacons, "which are altogether neglected and decayed."

1618 [-9], March 3. Richard, Bishop of St. Asaph, to the Commissioners for musters in the county of Salop. According to instructions from the Archbishop of Canterbury, I send the names of those clergymen, eight in all, who are already rated, or fit to be charged with finding arms, etc., within the county of Salop and the diocese of St. Asaph.

1619, September 8. Ludlow Castle. The Earl of Northampton (Lord President of the Marches), to the Deputy-Lieutenants and justices of the peace for the county of Salop. Mr. Charles Price was appointed muster-master of the county of Salop, during the Lieutenancy of Lord Gerard, on the surrender of that place by Mr. Mainwaring. His pension of 50*l.* has been unpaid for three years. Speedy course must be taken for an assessment for the payment of the arrears and of the pension.

1620, July 3. Ticknell House. The same to the High Sheriff. Deputy-Lieutenants, justices of the peace, and others, of the county of Salop. Encloses letters unopened as received.

1620, June 4. Westminster. Achatius (Acsatius) Bourgrave et Baron le Dohna, to the Lord Lieutenant, the Sheriff, and others, of the county of Salop. The King of Bohemia, my master, has charged me to desire the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London to furnish him with the loan of a good sum of money. They are very well disposed that way, yet they desired to leave a place open for you and others to concur with them. The clergy and many of the nobility have embarked themselves in this. I promise you a grateful acknowledgement hereafter, under the hands of the King and Queen of Bohemia.

1620, July 4. Tickenhill House. The Earl of Northampton to the Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Salop. Encloses a copy of letters from the Lords of the Council.

1620, May 31. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to the Lord President of Wales. Orders for a muster, etc.

EARL OF KILMOREY'S
MSS.

1620, July 13. Shawbury. Sir R. Needham and Sir R. Vernon to the High Constables of the north part of the hundred of Bradford. Precept for the appearance of the trained soldiers on the 23rd inst.

N.D. Richard, Bishop of St. Asaph, to the Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Salop, as before.

March 31. Whitehall. The Duke of Lennox and five others to the Deputy-Lieutenants and justices of the peace for the county of Salop. We have received complaint from several counties of the increase of prices of cattle, so that you can hardly get "undertakers," and you have "happened" upon men who have grown bankrupt. We recommend the bearer, Custillian Mason, gentleman, to be your "undertaker," and will look no further than to the security which he will give to us.

1621, March 21. Richard, Bishop of St. Asaph, to the Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Salop, as before.

1621, April 4. Ludlow Castle. The Earl of Northampton to the same. Encloses a copy of letters from the Lords of the Council.

1620 [-1], February 28. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to [the Lord President of Wales]. Orders for a muster, etc.

1621, November 22. The Savoy. The Earl of Northampton to the Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Salop. Encloses a copy of letters from the Lords of the Council.

1621, November 16. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to the Earl of Northampton. Order for the levy of able men not of the trained bands, to be ready for service in Ireland in the following counties:—Worcester 130 footmen, Salop 130, Hereford 100, Carmarthen 200, Cardigan 30, Brecon 100, Radnor 30, Denbigh 100, Carnarvon 100, Flint 30, Montgomery 100, Merioneth 30.

1621, June 22. Salop. Sir R. Needham and Sir Francis Newport, to the Earl of Northampton. Return concerning the late muster.

1620. Table of the soldiers, corslets, muskets, and calivers, in the different hundreds of the county of Salop.

1614. Account of the charges for coats, arms, etc., for the soldiers sent out of the county of Salop into Ireland, amounting to 400*l.* 12*s* 6*d.*, which was to be defrayed by a levy of 4*l.* 1*s.* in every allotment.

1616, August. Account of the charges for coats, arms, etc., for twenty-five soldiers levied for the realm of Ireland.

1613 and 1614. Account of the money levied in the county of Salop for the King's service.

1614. Account of the money levied for a hundred and fifty soldiers for Ireland, and of the cost of their arms, etc.

1616, December 2. List of the arms in the custody of Mr. Jenks.

[1621.] July 10. Bewdley. The King, by the Lord President and Council in the Marches of Wales, to Sir George Mainwaring, Sir R. Needham, Sir R. Vernon, Sir Rowland Cotton, Sir Richard Egerton, knights, Arthur Sandford, Thomas Kynaston, Ralph Egerton, esquires, William Hussall and Arthur Warde, gentlemen. Order for the attachment of persons not having 40*s.* year in freehold lands, who are suspected of killing pheasants, partridges, heath-cocks, grouse, and heath-hens, of keeping greyhounds and hounds, and of shooting wild fowl.

1621, January 10. List of twenty-five soldiers impressed for Ireland in the north part of Bradford hundred and in Oswestry hundred.

1621, January 15. Ludlow Castle. The Earl of Northampton to the Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Salop. Order for the levying of money for the payment of the muster-master, Mr. Ralphe Goodwyne.

1621, February 11. Salop. Sir R. N[eedham], Sir R. V[ernon], and Sir R. C[otton], to the High Constables of the north part of the hundred of Bradford. Precept concerning the subsidy.

1622, March 31. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to the Lord President of Wales. We have written to the Sheriffs and Justices of the peace in the several counties of Wales, recommending a voluntary contribution in a cause nearly concerning the interest of the King and his children. Those knights and gentlemen who have been before us at the table, have all willingly yielded to contribute to the value of the amount at which they stand in the subsidy books, most of them double, and many treble so much and more.

1622, April 19. Ludlow Castle. The Earl of Northampton to the Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Salop. Concerning the contributions, as above.

1622, March 31. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to the High Sheriff and the justices of the peace of the county of Salop. Appeal for a voluntary contribution.

1622, May 18. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to the Lord President of Wales. Order for a muster of the trained bands.

1622, July. Prees. Sir R. Needham and Sir V[incent] Corbet to the same. Return concerning the late muster.

1622, October 8. Westminster College. John, Bishop of Lincoln, Lord Keeper, to the Earl of Bridgewater and the justices of the peace of the county of Salop. Orders for the execution of the laws against beggars, rogues, vagabonds, gipsies (Egyptians), and other lazy and unprofitable members of the commonwealth, and the restraint of exorbitant charges for corn, hay, etc.

[1622,] November 25. Drayton. Sir R. Needham, Sir R. Vernon, and Sir R. Cotton, to the High Constables of the north part of the hundred of Bradford. Order for a search at night for rogues, vagabonds, and others.

1623, June 11. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to the Lord President of Wales. Order for annual musters, etc.

1623, August 2. Bewdley. The Earl of Northampton to [the Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Salop]. Concerning the muster.

1623, November 17. Shavington. Sir R. Needham and Richard Newport [to the Lord President of Wales]. Return concerning the late muster.

[1626-7,] February 9. Westminster. The King to the Earl of Northampton, Lieutenant of the counties of Salop and Warwick. Our uncle the King of Denmark is in great need of men to make up the defects and losses which accidents of war have caused in his array during the past summer. We have thought fit to send presently to him the four regiments now in our pay in the Low Countries. To make up defects in these, we require you to cause to be levied one hundred men in the county of Salop, and the same number in the county of Warwick.

1626 [-7], February 28. Whitehall. The Lords of the Council to the same. Instructions concerning the levy. The men are to be able-bodied, and not taken out of the trained bands. They are to be at the port of London by the 25th of March. They are to march not less than fifteen miles a day, and to receive 8*d.* a day, which will be repaid out of the Exchequer.

1626 [-7], March 2. Whitehall. The Earl of Marlborough (Lord Treasurer) and Richard Weston (Chancellor of the Exchequer) to the same. The Lords of the Council have ordered that the money due to the several counties for coat and conduct money shall be paid out of the loans collected in each particular county; 4*s.* for every coat, and 8*d.* a day for the conduct of every soldier from the place where he was pressed to the rendezvous at Plymouth, may be allowed for the two hundred and fifty men pressed in the county of Salop for the expedition to Calais.

N.D. The Earl of Northampton to the Deputy-Lieutenants of the county of Salop. Concerning the levy.

1626 [-7], March 18. Ludlow Castle. The same to the same. Concerning the same.

Estimate of the charges for a hundred soldiers.

Inventory of arms in the custody of Mr. Rowland Jenks.

1619, March 13. The judges at assizes to the justices of the peace of the county of Salop. Directions concerning attendance at church, ale-houses, and apprentices.

1620. List of overseers for the poor in the "lymitt" of Sir Robert Needham.

1619, April 16. Serjeants' Inn. Sir P. Warburton and Sir John Crooke, justices of assize, to Sir R. Vernon, Sir R. Needham, Sir Francis Newport, and Sir Edward Kynaston. We have observed a great default in your country concerning the House of Correction.

N.Y. March 12. Bridgnorth. Order by the justices of assize, with the assistance of certain justices of the peace, that no inn-keeper of the county of Salop shall take above 6*d.* day and night for a horse at livery, nor above 2*s.* for a bushel of oats, Winchester measure, nor above 3*s.* for a bushel of pease of the said measure.

Directions concerning attendance at church, &c., as before.

1619, March 29. Forms of nomination of overseers of the poor.

Allotment of the several hundreds and corporate towns in the county of Salop for the trained bands.

A somewhat similar book relating to the affairs of the county of Chester, during part of the seventeenth century. It contains:—

Fol. 1. Notes concerning justices of the peace.

Fol. 2. "The forme of a lycense for eatinge flesh in Lent, according to the Statute, 3^o Eliz. cap. 5" in Latin, as issued by the rector of a church to one of his parishioners. February 1, 1660 [-1].

Fol. 3. The oath of a justice of the peace, as used in 1660; the oath of supremacy.

Fol. 4. The oath of allegiance.

Fol. 5. The oath of a constable, as used in 1664. List of Quakers in the parish of Wilmslow, in 1663.

Fol. 6. List of the ministers in the hundreds of Macclesfield, Bucklow, and Northwich, who took the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, December 11, 1660, thirty in all, of whom two are marked as Presbyterians, one as a sectary, and one as Presbyterian sectary.

Fol. 7. List of the gentry charged with the expense of the trained horse in Cheshire, in 1625.

Fol. 10. A similar list for the year 1660.

Fol. 14. The sum of the mize throughout Cheshire.

Fol. 15. List of the townships in Cheshire, with the mize thereof.

Fol. 29. List of the freehold band.

Fol. 30. List of the persons charged to find horses, men, and arms, in the hundreds of Broxton, Nantwich, Northwich, and Eddisbury, in 1680.

Fol. 32. List of pensioners in the hundreds of Bucklow and Northwich, viewed in 1667.

Fol. 33. List of townships in the hundred of Bucklow.

Fol. 34. Orders and proceedings by the Deputy-Lieutenants of Cheshire, in 1660 and 1661.

Fol. 38. Recognizances taken for certain prisoners seized by the troopers of the county, and released on taking the oath of allegiance. January and February 1660 [-1].

Fol. 40. List of the prisoners seized by Capt. Needham and Sir Philip Egerton, and sent to Chester Castle "by way of prevention in the late insurrection of the Anabaptists at London," by order of the Lord Lieutenant. January 1660 [-1]. The list gives the names of twenty-four persons, among whom are Col. Duckenfield, Col. Bradshaw, Capt. Grantham, John Smith formerly minister of Bartomley, and "two men of Waterham, who vowed not to wash their faces untill Lambert was released." Three of the prisoners are marked as released. "The rest that were not released by us (exceptinge the Quakers) were all released by my Lord of Derby, Feb. 1, 1660 [-1], givinge security, and takinge the oath of allegiance."

Fol. 41. List of one hundred and forty-seven Quakers who were imprisoned in Cheshire "for their seditious meetinges and refusinge the oath of allegiance accordinge to the Kinge's Proclamation, and the Statue 7 Jacobi," confined in the Palace at Chester. February 21, 1660 [-1]. List of six Anabaptists committed at Nether Tabley, for being at a private meeting and refusing to find sureties for their good behaviour. March 18, 1660 [-1]. List of sixteen Quakers committed at Budworth, for refusing the oath of allegiance. March 19, 1660 [-1]. List of eight others committed, April 2, 1661. These were all released by the King's Proclamation upon his coronation, which was May 29th, 1661.

EARL OF KILMOREY'S
MSS.

Fol. 43. Warrant for apprehending persons who assemble at conventicle, February 11, 1660 [-1]. Orders by the Deputy-Lieutenants of Cheshire, February 1660 [-1] to November 1662.

Fol. 47. "The paper which I [Sir Peter Leycester of Tabley] received from Sir Evan Lloyd, Baronet, now Governor of the Castle of Chester. September 4, 1663." It sets forth the importance of Chester as "the key of North Wales," and "the great passage from England to Dublin," and its influence on Lancashire and Staffordshire, which have no garrisons. "The dangers threatenings Chester doe all proceede at this tyme from one party or faction, vizt., Presbiterians, who are so numerous in Chester, Lancashire, Shropshire, Staffordshire, and parte of Flintshire, that they may make a body of 7,000 or 8,000 foote, and 500 horse, in three dayes tyme, and such foote for resolution, bodyes, and discipline, as are not to be paraleld in any land." The reasons are (1) because so many of their ministers are ousted from their livings and become necessitous, (2) because the Presbyterian gentry are in great discontent from their exclusion from Commissions of the Peace and Lieutenancy, and other employments in the State, "their religion and nature agreeing well with ruleinge and obeyinge," (3) because their laity and clergy are irreconcilable to episcopacy and the ceremonies of the Church, (4) because ministers and members of corporations will not by swearing condemn the Covenant and those who took it, (5) because they are very rich, and probably possessed of arms, inasmuch as they have never been disarmed. The late disagreements between the two Lord Lieutenants in Cheshire and the great number of Deputy-Lieutenants are defects in the government.

Fol. 49. Forms of various warrants concerning the militia, as used in 1662 and 1664.

Fol. 57. Orders by the Deputy-Lieutenants of Cheshire. December 1662 to October 1664.

Fol. 58. List of the gentry charged with the expense of the trained horse in Cheshire, in 1663.

Fol. 61. List of the foot soldiers enlisted in 1663.

Fol. 66. Valuation of the yearly rents, etc., of peers in Cheshire, in 1663:—The Earl of Bridgewater 529*l.*, charged with one horse; Earl Rivers, 519*l.*, one horse; Lord Delamere, 1,212*l.*, two horses; the Earl of Shrewsbury, 326*l.*, half a horse.

Fol. 68. The mize of the hundred of Bucklow, in 1663.

Fol. 71. Orders at Quarter Sessions concerning the relief of the poor. A.D. 1663.

Fol. 73. List of pensioners received. March 16, 1667 [-8].

Fol. 74. Salaries of officers of the militia of Cheshire, in 1668.

Fol. 75. Orders by the Deputy-Lieutenants of Cheshire. February 1662 [-3], to July 1680.

Fol. 81. List of freeholders having 10*l.* a year in freehold lands of inheritance in Chester, in 1671.

Fol. 86. Copies of several documents relating to the Duke of Monmouth's rebellion (already noticed).

A book of accounts beginning on the 25th of March, 1639. Among the entries are the following:—

"For one pounce of tobacco, 11s."

"Payde to Randle Holme of Chester, deputie for the office of armes for furnishing the hearse of the Lady St. John with 23 pensells (small flags) uppon buckrome fringed, 1*l*. 3s.; for 16 escutcheons uppon buckrome in mettle, most of them impaled with her 3 husbands, at 3s. 4*d*. a peece, 2*l*. 13s. 4*d*; for 4 names uppon buckrome in mettle, 8s.: for a pennone of armes, 3*l*. 10s."; and other charges for the funeral.

"To Mr. Balle, the dauncer . . . in part for teachinge the children to daunce, after the rate of 10s. the weeke, 1*l*.; For turning 4 French bed-poasts, 2s."

"To the musicke of Whitchurch when the Earle of Bridgewater was at Shenton [Shavington], 10s."

Other entries in the book give the minutest particulars of Viscount Kilmorey's expenses for taxes, repairs, farming, servants' wages, food, clothes, etc.

1644. Commission from Prince Rupert to Robert, Viscount Kilmorey, Robert, Viscount Cholmondeley, the High Sheriffs of the counties of Chester and Flint, the Governor or Lieutenant Governor of the City of Chester, the Mayor of the City of Chester, the Governor of the Town and Castle of Denbigh, Sir Francis Gamull, colonel of a regiment of foot in the City of Chester, Sir Richard Lloyd, knight, Attorney General of Wales and the Marches, John Marrow, esq., colonel of a regiment of Horse, and Kendrick Paton, esq., Clerk of the Crown in the county of Denbigh, to order and manage his Majesty's affairs concerning the raising of horse and foot, etc. in the counties of Chester, Denbigh and Flint. May 23, 20 Charles I. Signature and seal affixed.

A bundle of papers relating to the sequestration of the estates of Viscount Kilmorey in the middle of the seventeenth century.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF STANLEY LEIGHTON ESQ., M.P.

MR.
STANLEY
LEIGHTON'S
MSS.

The following books are in the library at Sweeny Hall, near Oswestry:—

A folio volume, newly bound and lettered—"Mytton MSS. 1597--1690." It contains 64 letters and papers, 36 of which, relating to Thomas Mytton of Halston, Major-General in the Parliamentary army, have been printed in "Collections relating to Montgomeryshire" (vol.

vii. p. 353, vol. viii. pp. 151, 293), with notes by their present owner. Among those which have not been printed are the following:—

f. 1. Writ of Privy Seal, dated March 6, 39 Elizabeth, to William Leighton of Plash, esquire, demanding a loan of 25*l.*, with a receipt for that sum signed by Francis Newport.

f. 29. Letter from Anthony Hungerford, dated at Stoke Castle, December 2, 1645. There are these forces gathering for the relief of Chester, 1,500 horse from Newark, 200 from Hereford, 150 from Ludlow and B[ridge] N[orth]. There is also expectation of force from Goring, and from other parts, as Lichfield and Dudley, besides the horse which came with the King to Oxford. They hope to be ready to march on Thursday or Friday, but they are not likely to come this way, because Ludlow and B[ridge] N[orth] are drawn to them already.

f. 45. Copy of the examination of certain prisoners, taken before Thomas Madrin, High Sheriff of the county of Carnarvon, Col. John Carter and Capt. Edmund Glynn. February 27, 1648. The six prisoners depose alike that they belonged to a vessel called the Michael of Wexford (Waishford), and make statements about the imprisonment of Mr. Griffith Jones, and the plunder of his house at Castelmarch. They also give information about the impressment of seamen at Wexford to transport soldiers to England.

f. 81. Newsletter to Richard Mitton, dated London, April 24, 1690. It gives news from Vienna, Frankfort, Turin, Heidelberg, Paris, Madrid, and Edinburgh. "The Duke of Gordon is arrived at Brest with about twelve English and Scotch disbanded officers. The late Lord Jefferyes' house is taken for the Admiralty Office."

A small 4^{to} volume written on paper of the time of James I. It contains:—

f. 1. Copy of the confirmation by Henry VI. of the agreement between the Bailiffs and the Commonalty of Shrewsbury, with the oaths of the different officers of the corporation.

f. 21. "The names of the villages within the franchises of Shrewesburie."

f. 23. "A noate of those that have been Bailifes of the towne of Shrewsbury, beginninge in the 46th yere of Kinge Edward the third," with historical notes in the margin. Among the notes are the following, the years being computed from March 25:—

1434. "Poles steple was sett on fier with lightninge, and also from St. Katarns Day till St. Valentyns day there was a frost that men might with cartes passe over Temes from place to place."

1459. "Pame Sondaie Feelde."

1472. "The Duke of Yorke was borne at the Gray Fryers in Salop." (In other chronicles it is stated that he was born at the Black Friars.)

1488. "King Henry the 7th came to Salope."

1494. "King Henry 7th with the Queene and Prince Arthur came to Salop, and the same yere the exchequier was built."

1496. "Prince A[rthur] died at Ludlowe."

1516. "This yere was ill may daie in London."

1535. "The Duke of Somersett and the Duke of Norfolk was in Salop."

1561. "4 June. Paules steeple was burned (was set on fier by lightninge) which began in the top of the steple and burnt downwardes and so consumed the steple, and 4 great ruffles in lesse the[n] 4 howers."

1563. "Mr. Astons second play."

1568. "This yere was a yerthquake in Salop, and this yere was Mr. Aston's third play."

1580. "Sir Henry Sydney, Lord President, kept St. George's feast in this towne, because he was a knight of the garter."

1604. "The plague was in Shrewsbury."

1630. "The plague was in Shrosbury."

1649. "This yeaere the plague begunn, and ended in June 1651."

1663. "The Castle was given to the King, who never requested itt of the Towne."

1672. "This year was such a vast flood in Shrewsbury that it threw down the Welsh gate, and did other great Spoyles besides."

1686. "King James came his progress in Holywell in September, and on the Wildecop, Mr. Mayor presented him with the keyes of the gates and a purse of gold. Hee received them and did give the keyes to Serjant William Bowers who was one of the Mayors serjants unen, and hee kept them tell the coming in [of] the Prince of Orange, and then delivered them in the Chequer. When King James was at super in the great chamber in the Counsell house, he caused the chamber to bee propt up for feare of falling, and he had 3 dishes of flesh, 3 of fowle, and 3 of sweet meats, 9 in all, to super, and no more. Mr. Patrick Lamb his head cooke brought them all 9 to the table, and did present them on his knee. Hee brought all his household goods with him and his owne beere and wine and bed, etc. On the morow being Friday all the fish that could be had was bought up and presented in order for his diner, and the Major and Aldermen being 12 and assistantts 24 came to attend him; but he stayd not to dine nor to see them, butt gott downe a private back staires, and for hast gott upon the wrong side the horse, and to Whitchurch that nighte. This I had from one that saw him take horse.

In the morning the Prisyterian preachers, John Brian, Francis Tallants, preachers at Oliver's Chappell in the High Streete, and Mr. Rowland Hunt, Doctor Jackson, Doctor of Physick, Daniel Jenks, ironmonger, Joseph Pearson, cutler, presented him with a purse of gold supposed to be 100*l.* and were freely accepted, butt still lying the obligation on them to chuse such members for next Parliament as should be for takeing off] the penall laws and test, and to that end he left behinde him William Pen, chiefe and head of the quakers, who began to speake att Mardoll head; butt the rabble supposing what hee would be att, the mobb gave a shoutt and over bawled him; so hee desisted and got his way, the mobb knocking the bulks as he passed." Oliver's Chapel was so called after Thomas Oliver, a turner, who lived in the house. "When King James came into towne, a man climed up, and gott to stand on the top stone of St. Maryes Steeple, and held by the cross bar with a flagg in his hand all the while the King was touching for the King's Evil in the Church under him, and when the King came out of the Church, the man on the Steeple shot off] a pistol, which made King James ask what meant that, and it was answered him that it was for joy of his person. The King said it was a presumtious thing to doo itt. Butt I never could learne the man ever gott a farthing for his paines."

1687. "Mass was in a house of Mr. Jevons, which is betwixt the high cross and the high conduitt, sang openly, and one Judge Alibond, who satt then as judge of nisi prius, went off] the Bench to Mass in that house."

1696. "A rejoyceing day was held for the discovery of the plott, and a great bonifire with aluminations, great store of wine, beere, tobacco att the Towne hall; and an effigie of the French King made in sumptuous maner, and caried along the streets, and burnt at the high crosse in most splendid maner."

1696, October 3. Curious account of an execution.

A folio volume, written on paper in the 18th century. It contains a list of the Sheriffs of Shropshire from A.D. 1154, and of the Bailiffs of Shrewsbury from A.D. 1372, with historical notes in the margin, derived from various sources. The compiler copied many notes from the chronicle known as "Dr. Taylor's MS.," of which an account is given in the transactions of the Shropshire Archæological Society," vol. iii., pp. 239-352. The notes in this volume, however, extend down to the year 1789 and contain much information about the town of Shrewsbury which is not to be found elsewhere. Under the year 1610, there is a curious account of a riot, in which a mob kept possession of the Schoolhouse for four days and three nights, encouraged by one of the masters, named Ralph Gittins. Under the year 1642, there is a copy of an acknowledgement by Charles I. to Richard Gibbons, late Mayor of Shrewsbury, and Thomas Chaloner, late Master of the free school, for a loan of 600*l.* from the stock belonging to the School, to be repaid on demand. It bears date October 11, 1642. Some of the later entries relate to parliamentary elections, and to the affairs of Shrewsbury School. On f. 72, there is a list of the head Schoolmasters, and of the second, third, and fourth Schoolmasters, from A.D. 1562 to A.D. 1783. At the end of the volume there is an elaborate index.

A folio volume of letters and papers of Edward Lloyd of Llanvorda near Oswestry. Among a number of documents of no general interest there are the following:—

A narrative of Capt. Edward Lloyd's services on behalf of the King during the Civil War, and of his subsequent sufferings, with an account of his losses amounting in all to 8,080*l.* 14*s.*

"The names of the malignant enymies to the Kinge's Majestie in and about Oswestree," with notes of treasonable words uttered by them. (A.D. 1660 or 1661.)

"Articles against the phanaticall corporation of Oswestry."

A long and elaborate account of the state of the fisheries near Aberystwith, Dovey, and Barmouth.

Several news letters of the years 1680 and 1681 from Sir R. Owen, and Dr. John Gadsbury, to Edward Lloyd.

Mr. Leighton has also many documents relating to the Charlton family of Ludford. Among them are several mediæval deeds concerning property at Hebland, near Bishop's Castle.

The following passage occurs in a letter from E. S. to Job Charlton, Esq., dated Ma. 24, 1659 [-60]:—

"The Lord Admiral Montague is gone to the navy to command it, by order from the Councill of State, and, as they say, carryeth good affections with him. The Nazeby frigott is rigging up very trimm, and diverse of the English shippes flowrish with the King's colours. Nor is preparation at sea onely. At Whitehall all the froggs that crawled in King's chambers are commanded out, and the house is furnishing with rich hangings."

In another bundle of deeds relating to property in Middlesex in the reign of Charles II., mention is made of two bowling greens fronting the Haymarket and a portion of land lying north of the Tennis Court. Thomas Panton of St. Martin's in the Fields, and Sir Henry Oxenden, of Deane in Wingham, are among the persons mentioned.

I have to thank Mr. Stanley Leighton, not only for his hospitality at Sweeny Hall, but also for his active exertions in obtaining for me access to several other collections of manuscripts in the county of Salop. Separate reports on most of these will be found under the names of their respective owners. I have not, however, made any reports on the manuscripts of Mr. Heber Percy of Hodnet, Mr. Kynaston of Hardwicke, and Mr. Wolryche Whitmore of Dudmaston Hall, inasmuch as they consist of title deeds and papers of no historical interest. The muniments of the Corporation of Oswestry may here be mentioned as being in very good order, Mr. Stanley Leighton having caused several volumes containing mediæval charters and other records to be handsomely bound in white vellum. Any longer report on them would be superfluous, as Mr. Leighton has himself published a full account of them with numerous extracts, in a series of papers contributed to the "Transactions of the Shropshire Archæological and Natural History Society." Notices of some documents relating to Oswestry are also to be found in "Bye-gones," an antiquarian periodical conducted by the late Mr. Askew Roberts of that place.

EARL OF POWIS'S
MSS.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE EARL OF POWIS.

The spacious muniment room at Powis Castle contains but few manuscripts earlier than the reign of Elizabeth, the presses and drawers being almost entirely devoted to rentals, leases, and other legal documents of modern date. In some bundles of miscellaneous papers, however, I have been so fortunate as to find a number of letters, etc. relating to political affairs, chiefly in the seventeenth century. These I have arranged according to their dates and subjects, and they now form two separate volumes. The first, labelled "Letters and Papers of Sir Edward Herbert, 1615-1639," contains part of the diplomatic correspondence of the eminent author who is best known under the name of Lord Herbert of Cherbury. Most of the copies of his own letters are in the hand of his secretary, William Boswell, to whom is also due a volume in the British Museum containing transcripts of a few of his state papers (Add. MS. 7082).

The other volume, labelled "Herbert Papers — Miscellaneous, 1586-1735," contains an original account of the proceedings against Mary, Queen of Scots, at Fotheringay, differing somewhat from that given by Camden in his "Annals," a few papers relating to the Civil War, and some other letters of historical interest. I subjoin a calendar of the contents of these two volumes.

"Letters and Papers of Sir Edward Herbert, 1615-1639."

1614 [-5], March 2. London. Sir John Danvers to Sir William Herbert. I have received a letter from you with direction for securing your bills for Turin. I had already engaged my credit to Signor Burlimacha. On Saturday last Sir Arthur Ingram was sworn Cofferer, ^{EARL OF POWIS' MSS.} having paid 2,500*l.* for Sir Robert Vernon's release. This "wrought soe much in the stomacks" of some who had been living in assured hope of the place, that they went to the King, and told him that many would leave his service if he thus permitted a stranger to purchase the honour and profit for which so many of his servants had spent their time and estates in hope of being advanced in their turns. They offered to repay the money, in order that there might be no such precedent to the disadvantage of the servants of the King's household. The King was much displeased, but he said that he would consider the matter.

1615, April 8. London. The same to [the same]. I have procured Signor Burlimacchi's directions for your credit at Lyons and Paris.

1615, May 12. Lady Danvers to her son, Sir Edward Herbert. It is strange to me to hear you complain of want of care in your absence. Your abode is so short in any place that our letters come not to your hands. Sir John Danvers is so careful to keep you from lack of money while you are abroad that, when your bailiffs fail payment, he goes to your merchant and offers himself. There never was "a tenderer heart or a lovingr minde" in any man than is in him towards you. Your bailiffs have not yet paid your brothers all their annuities due at Midsummer last, and only half of those due at Christmas. It is very ill that you have such officers. I hope it will bring you home. Your sister Jones has brought a boy. Lady Vachell lies dying. The bell has twice gone for her. Your wife and children are well. I send you the letter of little Florence. Let your dear children draw you home. I desire more to see you have anything else in the world. I have received the patent for your brother William. Sir John has been with the Ambassador, who stays for the coming of Sir James Sandilands (Sandaline). Seal.

1615, June 12. Thomas Lucy to the same at Lady Danvers's house at Charing Cross. When I heard that you were "under hold" at Lyons, the knowledge I had how ill you can digest the least indignity made me prophecy that you would come off honourably. I cannot but "congratulate with you." You will on your return find the face of the Court much changed. It is expected that the King will shortly make a "scambling"—as the boys call it—of the many places which he has hitherto "whoorded" in Lord Somerset, and so the poor bird will prove as naked of feathers as he is already of friends.

1615, June 16. Eyton. Francis Newport to the same at the Hague. I have received a letter from you dated at Nimeguen the 12th (i.e. the 2nd) of this month. I am glad that you have come out of Italy, and that you are so near home. There are many and great reasons for your return. Your brother [John] Vaughan is dead. Your children are well. Dick is here, Ned and Betty at Haughmond with my daughter [Mary] Harley, whose husband is to be delivered of his debts by selling 400*l.* a year of his inheritance in reversion. My wife presents her respects, as does my daughter Newport, "the new borne ladye," who brought her husband a girl on the 3rd of March, your birthday. Her husband, the young knight, is at London. Heraldic seal.

EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.

1619, May 22. Greenwich. The Duke of Lenox to Sir Edward Herbert, Ambassador in France. A letter of recommendation for a gentleman who is doubly his cousin. Seal.

1619, June 6. N.S. Paris. [Sir E. Herbert] to the Elector Palatine at Heidelberg. Reminds him of the promise made to him by the King. (Draft in French.)

1619, June 30. Paris. The same to the same. Recommends a wealthy gentleman named d'Augincourt, Maitre d'hotel of the Queen of France, who desires to serve him with a thousand horses, or five hundred, or whatever number may be required. He is a Picard, and related to the Duke of Lenox. (Draft in French.)

A duplicate of the same.

1619, July 10. The Duke de Montmorenci to Sir Edward Herbert. A complimentary letter. (French.) Heraldic seals.

1619, July 11. Heidelberg. The Elector Palatine to [Sir E. Herbert]. I have received your letters of the 3rd and 30th of June. Give my thanks to M. du Hallier and M. d'Augincourt for their offers and kind wishes. The Princes and States united with me have given orders for the levy of a certain number of soldiers for our defence in case of need. Matters have not been carried to such an extremity that there is no longer any hope of peace. We have not yet taken any decision for the levy of foreign troops, and we shall not do so until we see what course matters will take. There is no occasion that the two gentlemen should put themselves to trouble or expense. (Copy in French.)

1619, August 5. Paris. [Sir E. Herbert] to the Elector Palatine. I offer the services of M. de Jay, a very brave and distinguished soldier. He will take with him a certain number of cavalry or of infantry, or he will merely take his ordinary suite of twelve or fifteen gentlemen. An early answer will be a favour, for he eagerly awaits your orders. (Draft in French.)

1619, August 8. Proceedings in the Parliament of Paris concerning the suit of Maurice Abbot and another against Theodore du Mantin. (French.)

Memorandum that the greater part of the Court of Parliament held that the King might treat as contraband goods any lead, tin, or iron, carried by the English to the Turks.

1619, August 28. Newbottle. The Duke of Lenox to Sir E. Herbert. I have sent some merlins (esmerillons) to the King [of France] which will come later than I expected, because I stayed in the north of Scotland longer than I intended. If these please him, I will provide him every year earlier.

1619, September 1, O.S. Merlou Castle. Sir E. Herbert to Sir R. Naunton. Concerning some expressions in his letter to Dr. Mayerne, which have been misunderstood, and concerning — Gaultier. (Draft.)

Same day and place. The same to Mr. Packer. Concerning — Gaultier. (Draft.)

1619, September 3. Whitehall. Sir R. Naunton to Sir E. Herbert. EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.
Inasmuch as the plague is at Paris, his Majesty will have you wait upon the King at Fontainebleau for the taking of the oath, unless he is desirous to put it off until his return. Heraldic seal.

1619, September 9, O.S.. Merlou. [Sir E. Herbert] to Sir R. Naunton. Account of an interview with M. de Maretz, concerning the conveyance of certain coffers, etc. The Duke de Luines observes the Queen more than any, and she shows the best countenance to him. No man understands what this means, especially as we hear nothing of her return to Angers, which was purposed within two days. (Draft.)

1619, September 14. Merlou. [Sir E. Herbert] to M. de Maretz. Concerning the rings and the furniture of the late Queen. (Draft or copy, in French.)

1619, September 24. Heidelberg. The Elector Palatine to Sir E. Herbert. Lord Doncaster has informed me that the Archbishop of Treves has been induced to go to the King of France to represent to him in the name of the Emperor and the whole Popish league that I and the other Princes and united States have made great preparations for war, in order to extirminate the Roman Catholics and their religion in Germany. You know the falsehood of this sinister charge. At the late Diet at Ratisbon the Evangelical States complained of the partiality shown towards the Roman Catholics, and the Emperor Matthias promised to call another Diet, in order to bring about an agreement. The other party, however, prevailed at the Imperial Court. Bohemia has become the scene of the most bloody and horrible tragedies that have ever been heard of among Christians. The Roman Catholic Princes and Electors have collected a great number of soldiers. Foreigners, moreover, mostly in the pay of Spain, have been allowed to pass through the Empire into Bohemia, contrary to the Imperial Constitutions. The Princes and States united with me have armed in self-defence considering the trouble that might arise after the disbandment of the troops in Bohemia. I hope that you will explain this at the French Court, and remind the King and his Ministers of the services rendered to his crown by this Electoral house. You will thus, I am sure, be doing what is agreeable to the King of Great Britain. I have instructed my agent, M. Guerin, to confer with you. You will have heard that the States of Bohemia have unanimously elected me, although I had not in any way aspired to that crown. The circumstances make one believe that it is the will of God.

[1619,] September 15. Havering. John Packer to Sir E. Herbert. Concerning M. Gaultier.

1619, September 29. O.S. Merlou. [Sir E. Herbert] to Sir R. Naunton. Concerning Dr. Mayerne, Gaultier, and the coffers. I understand that the King here has written to the King my master and to the Elector Palatine to dissuade the acceptance of the crown of Bohemia. They have however a great party here, and, if the King be indifferent, it will certainly be the stronger. I cannot believe that a state so unsettled and tottering is ready yet to declare itself on either side. It is extremely needy at present, the King having stayed his journey from Amboise to Chartres a great while, for want of money. We expect the Court shortly at Compiègne in Picardy. News about different persons at Court. The Queen complained that M. de Montbazon, who was sent to attend her, was only a spy, and the King has commanded him to return. (Draft or copy.)

EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.

1619, October 10. Merlou. The same to the Count de Tillieres. I have received your letter from Canterbury. I will endeavour, like you, to maintain friendship between the two crowns. (Draft or copy in French.)

1619, December 24, O.S. The Hague. Viscount Doncaster to [Sir E. Herbert]. On my arrival at Heidelberg, which was my first stage in Germany, I found the state of affairs not so much inclined to peace as I expected and hoped. The princes of the Union, whom I found assembled at Heilbronn, had resolved for their security to raise the army of 10,000 or 12,000 foot, and 3,000 horse, which they still hold in pay. If I had gone, as ordered, to the Duke of Saxony, Ferdinand would have been at Frankfort before I could have met him. I therefore went on directly to Ferdinand, whom I met at Salzburg. The answer he had prepared for me was an acknowledgement of our master's favour in the office of mediator, and a refusal of it because the matter had been referred to four Princes of the Empire. The Councillor who was appointed to confer with me at last "adjourned me back" to his master. Ferdinand would give me no answer because the Spanish Ambassador, Count d'Ogniate, was not there. I wished to obtain a cessation of arms, and to go to Prague. On my return to Hanau near Frankfort (into which no strangers are admitted during the Electoral Diet), I repaired to the Count d'Ogniate. We could not agree upon the time for a cessation of arms, he desiring the election before a truce. Ferdinand's answer was in substance the same as his former answer. In this time the Ambassadors sent by the States of Bohemia presented a protest against the admission of Ferdinand as the Elector of that kingdom. Finding no disposition to peace in either part, I pretended the necessity of making a journey to the Spa for my health. Here I received the news that the Prince Palatine was chosen King of Bohemia. I was afterwards told to return to Frankfort to congratulate the Emperor on his election, and to protest that our King had neither hand nor knowledge of this action of the Bohemians, and to decline for him the office of mediator. This cost me a long and wearisome journey to Gratz. I have been commanded to thank these States for their readiness to send horsemen and musketeers when it was apprehended that the Archduke intended to invade the lower Palatinate, and to excuse his Majesty for not declaring himself in the main cause, until he has satisfied all the parties that he was no contriver of the proceedings of the Bohemians. This is a compendium of my whole "Ambassage." (2 sheets.)

EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.

1619 [-20], March 23. St. James's. Thomas Murray to Sir E. Herbert. The Ambassador for the Princes of the Union will impart to you all that has been concluded here. The Spanish Ambassador is a very active minister for his master, and labours by all possible means to do the service which is committed to his charge. I believe that many other things must be now treated besides the match. His Majesty will not declare himself in the business of Bohemia, but his council, clergy, and nobility, the Londoners, and gentry, with many others are to contribute to the Bohemian cause, not without his connivance. His Majesty's mind in negotiating a pacification in Bohemia and Germany, and in joining with the French King in that treaty, is known to you. Heraldic seal.

1619 [-20], March 24. Whitehall. The Duke of Lenox to the same. The French Ambassador has taken some discontent about his place on the tilting-day. He was too precise. The Ambassador of Savoy did what he could to persuade him to accept the place that was offered him. I hope that this will not work any "sinistrous" effect. Seal.

[1620,] March 28. Whitehall. The Earl of Pembroke to the same. If the French Ambassador had come, he would have had a great and visible advantage of the Spanish. We long to have particulars of the new discontentments in France, which, we hope, will keep you from assisting the Emperor. Heraldic seal.

1620, March 30. Same place. The Duke of Lenox to the same. I have written to the Cardinal de Retz and others, concerning my mother's pension, and concerning the Abbey for my sister.

1620, April 6. Whitehall. Order by the Lords of the Council concerning some linen cloth sent over to England by John Cromelin, merchant of St. Quentin, and report concerning the same by Sir E. Coke,

EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.

1620, April 11. Whitehall. The Duke of Lenox to Sir E. Herbert. The occasion which the French Ambassador took to absent himself from the running at tilt will, I trust breed no harm. He is a well-disposed gentleman. Seal.

1620, May 6. Greenwich. The same to the same. The match with Spain is well advanced, but not fully concluded. I think the Pope's approbation will hardly be obtained, and that makes me still doubt of the success. Lord Digby is to go to Spain shortly. The King is to send one over to negotiate a peace for Bohemia, but we know not yet who shall go. Seal.

1620, June 2. Paris. [Sir E. Herbert] to M. Tregia, Councillor of Savoy, at Turin. Reminds him of his promise. (Draft or copy, in French.)

1620, June 8. Greenwich. The Duke of Lenox to Sir E. Herbert. Will write by the next messenger. Seal.

1620, June 13. Lambeth. The Archbishop of Canterbury to Sir E. Herbert. The bearer, Mr. John Orenshaw, has long followed a suit in law in France against M. Mantine, for a depredation upon a ship called the Tiger, belonging to him and to my brother, Mr. Maurice Abbot. I hold their cause to be just and honest.

1620, June 24. Paris. Sir E. Herbert to the Duc de Disquieres. Concerning a negotiation with the Duke of Savoy. (Draft in French.)

1620, June 27, O.S. Paris. The same to the Lords of the Council. Concerning the suit of Abbot and Orenshaw against Mantin.

1620, July 8. Paris. The same to the Prince of Anhalt. A complimentary letter. (Draft or copy in French.)

1620, July 29, O.S. Paris. The same to Sir R. Naunton. I see not how the new treaty of marriage between France and Spain should proceed at present. It is too true that the Spaniard has power with some ministers of this state, but the whole body of the people have a particular antipathy against that nation, which is fomented "on occasion of a panique terror" that Spinola's army may be directed against them. The King is now at la Fleche, which is very near his mother's town of Angers. I hear that the Archbishop of Sens and Père Berulle mediate an accord between them. Some think that necessity will make her accept the King's conditions; others say that she will fly. Some of the Prestraille have counselled the King, after making peace with his mother, to march with all his forces to Bearne, to reduce that country to obedience. M. le Prince [de Condé] has opposed this, because it would provoke those of the Religion to join the Queen Mother, and also because it would give the Spaniard such an alarm for Navarre that perchance Spinola's army might come indeed. The King has spent all his own treasure, and 500,000 crowns of M. de Luines, so that he may shortly be too poor to be envied, and the war may come to an end in that manner. The King has made an order in the business of M. Abbot and Orenshaw. It is certain that the Spanish Ambassador told the King that these preparation of Spinola were for the invasion of the Palatinate. (Draft or copy.)

[1620, July.] A list of the land companies that goeth to the Palatinate. Sir Horatio Vere, knight, generall, 200 foote; Earle of Oxford 250; Earle of Essex, 250; Sir John Burlace, Liuetanbant Collonell, 150; John Burghe, Serjeant major, 150; Sir Charles Rich, 150; Sir John Wentworth, 200; Sir Gerrard Herbert, 150; Capitaine Stafford Wilmott, 150; Capitaine John Bonnyghton, 150; Capitaine William Fairefax, 150; Capitaine Thomas Thornehurst, 150, (in all) 2,250.

EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.

"Captaines that goeth for Algiers.—Sir Robert Mansell, generall, Sir Richard Hawkins, Sir Thomas Button, Sir Henry Palmer, Sir John Ferne, Sir Frauncis Tanfeild, Sir John Hampden, Capitaine Manwaring, Capitaine Love, Capitaine Pennington, Capitaine Argole, Capitaine Tourson, Capitaine Harris, Capitaine Giles, Capitaine Porter, Capitaine Raymond, Capitaine Judley, Capitaine Houghton, Capitaine Herbert, Capitaine Pett."

1620, August 11-21. Heidelberg. — to —. Lintz was betrayed by the Prestraille. Here we have better hope to make head (de faire teste) against the enemy. A general fast has been proclaimed for the 16-26 of this month, the birthday of the King of Bohemia.

[1620, August 18-28. Heidelberg (?)] — to —. The advanced guard of Spinola, consisting of 4,000 infantry, and 2,600 cavalry, has reached Konigstein, two leagues from Frankfort, and Spinola with the main army is within two leagues of Konigstein. The army of the Union is awaiting him at Frankfort, and that of the Palatinate at Oppenheim. The former is commanded by the Marquis of Anspach, and the latter by Count John of Nassau the elder. We celebrated our fast the day before yesterday, the 16-26 of this month. It is said that Spinola intends to join the Duke of Saxony, and to proceed to Bohemia, but I firmly believe this to be a stratagem to delude our commanders. The crown of Hungary has been accepted by Bethlem Gabor, who was to be proclaimed King on the 6-16 of this month. His coronation is deferred, so that he may join the Prince of Anhalt with 14,000 men besides the 2,000 already sent.

1620, August 31. Solothurn. Gueffier Amb[assadeur?] to the Abbot of Trient. Concerning the intentions of the Catholic and the Protestant cantons of Switzerland, with regard to the Valtelline, &c. (Italian.)

N.D. Royal warrant for the payment to Sir E. Herbert of 6*l.* by the day "for his entertainment and dietes," besides his disbursements for journeys, &c. (Parchment. Printed in "Montgomeryshire Collections," vol. xi., p. 362.)

1620, September 27. An account of the sums received from the Exchequer for Sir Edward Herbert, Ambassador in France, since the 19th of November 1619, and of the money due to him at the date of the account.

1620, October 4-14. Extract from a letter from the Chancellor of Heidelberg, giving details about military events in Germany. (French.)

1620, October 12. Heidelberg. Extract from a letter, giving details about military events. (French.)

1620. Extracts from letters from Breslau, Prague, Rohoniz, and other places, giving details about military events. (French.)

1620, November 4-14. Heidelberg. Extract from a letter giving details about military events. (French.)

1620, November 7. Whitehall. The Duke of Lenox to Sir E. Herbert. Thanks for favours.

EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.

1620, November 29. London. Richard Jones, servant to Mr Benjamin Henshawe. Requests payment to his master of 18*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* for 46 yards of gold and silver lace, and 96 buttons and loops, for "a night gowne of silver stufe" supplied on the 29th of March, 1619.

1620, December 28. Whitehall. The Earl of Arundel to Sir E. Herbert. Thanks for his readiness to serve Francesco Vercellini, "for his late despatche at Paris." Seal.

1620 [-1], January 13. Account of the proceedings of the Council at Whitehall, followed by an estimate of the forces required for the war in the Palatinate. (See Calendar of State Papers, Domestic. January 13 and February 13, 1621.)

1621, February 6, N.S. Hague. Nicole to Sir E. Herbert. The Ambassador has received a letter from Sir Francis Nethersole, dated at Custrin in Brandenburg 6-16 January, announcing the birth of a son to the Queen of Bohemia. He does not know where the King and Queen purpose to reside.

1621, April 11. Paris. Sir E. Herbert to Mr. Burgh. I desire money or letters of credit, for without the one or the other it is not possible to subsist here any longer. If you can get my money paid with speed, I would not have you press the Marquess of Hamilton for his. I wish to know whether it is the King's pleasure that I should mourn. If I am to mourn, pray do your best with Secretary Calvert to procure me an allowance for the same. (Draft.)

1621, May 3. London. James Colvill of Culros to Sir E. Herbert. Thanks him for favours and assistance. Heraldic seal.

1621, May 20, N.S. Paris. Account of money received and disbursed by William Boswell, on behalf of Sir E. Herbert.

1621, July 9. St. Martin's Lane. Sir George Calvert to [Sir E. Herbert]. I have put his Majesty in mind of your desire to come to England for a month or two. He gives you leave to come, provided that you leave an able Secretary. Lord Darcy of the South is made Viscount Darcy of Colchester, and Lord Hunsdon is made Viscount Hunsdon of Rochford. Sir Lionel Cranfield is this day made a Baron. The truce in the Lower Palatinate is prorogued until the last of this month, new style. His Majesty has reiterated his request to the Marquess Spinola to continue the truce until he receive express order from the Emperor to the contrary.

1621, July 19. Whitehall. The Duke of Lenox to the same. Asks for advice concerning the business of his mother and his sister. Seal.

[1621.] A long account of an attack on M. de Villiers Hotman, a Huguenot, at Villiers near Verneuil, on Monday the 27th (17th O.S.) of September. (French.)

[1621, November ?] Terms proposed by the Emperor for the government of the Palatinate, &c. (French.)

1621 [-2], February 8, O.S. Paris. Sir E. Herbert to Sir R. Naunton. A long account of an interview between the French King and certain members of the Parliament of Paris, at which he proposed to offer the places of procureurs for sale, in order to raise money for the maintenance of an army to be employed against those of the [reformed] Religion. The advocates will have on one side bad procureurs, and on the other false judges. Statement of the true reasons of the resolution taken by "those of the Religion" not to separate their assembly at Rochelle, different from those which they publicly profess. Statement of the dangers of their position. The King hopes to win M. de Chastillon from their party, having sent him some money and offered him an increase of dignity. The Duke of Savoy has forbidden his subjects to sell corn to those of Geneva. The Ambassadors from the Low Countries have arrived. "Having observed a rare paradoxe of state in this country," [I think] that they will have neither friends nor enemies. (Draft.)

EARL OF POW
MSS.

1621 [-2 ?] March 19, O.S. Paris. The same to the Lord High Treasurer of England. I have taken up here more than 3,000*l.* sterling, and I owe 1,500*l.* or 1,600*l.* more, all of which has been employed for his Majesty's service since I came here. I beseech you to cause the arrears due to me to be paid, so that I may subsist. Besides the above sums, I have spent my own yearly revenues, and yet I have enough to do to keep myself in the rank and train of foreign ambassadors residing here. (Draft or copy.)

1622, June 16. Chelsea. Lady Middlesex to Sir E. Herbert. Thanks him for the noble favours he has shown to her brother.

1622, November 30. An account of the sums received from the Exchequer by Sir E. Herbert, for his entertainment at 4*l.* per diem, and for intelligences and other secret services.

1622 [-3], January 3. Whitehall. The Duke of Lenox to Sir E. Herbert. I determined that this letter should have come into your hands before you went from hence. Mr. Porter came home yesterday. It is thought we may have the [Spanish] match if we will, but there are some conditions which I have not yet seen. Seal.

1622 [-3], January 22. Whitehall. The same to the same. Some other noblemen and myself have desired M. de Vezines to cause fifty tuns of Burgundy wine to be sent over for our own provision. Pray assist him that it be charged with as little imposition as may be. The King and the Prince are of opinion to have the Infanta here next spring, but I have not changed my former opinions. Seal.

1622 [-3], February 12. Whitehall. The same to the same. I am glad that you have come safe to Paris. We hope to see the Infanta here this spring, or never. Seal.

1622-3, February 18-23 (?) Sir E. Herbert to the Marquess of Buckingham. The Duke of Guise has told me that when he commanded the French Armada going from Marseilles to Rochelle, he was required by the Spanish Admiral, whom he passed in the straits of Gibraltar, to take down his pavillon or to amainer, as they term it here. Although threatened to be shot, he refused. The Spaniard told him that the ships of the King of Great Britain yielded that respect in close seas. The Duke desired me to ask you whether this be true. Be well advised what answer you return, for I believe that he intends that the French King should exact the same acknowledgements on the coast of this country, which you will never permit, as to the prejudice of the sovereignty that the Kings of England have always kept in the narrow seas.

RL OF POWIS'
MSS.

1622 [-3], March 2. Newmarket. The Duke of Lenox to Sir E. Herbert. We have been amazed at the adventures of Amadis de Gaul concerning the knights errant, the Prince and my Lord of Buckingham. Seal.

1623, March 12. Newmarket. E. Marotre (?) to the same. In favour of M. de Boislorée. (French.) Seal.

1623, April 2. Whitehall. The Duke of Lenox to the same. I am sorry to hear of the death of President Jannin, and we grieve yet more at the death of M. de Bouillon. I hope you have heard of the arrival of his Highness [the Prince of Wales] in Spain, and of his "magnifique" entertainment. - I think it will now be a match. Seal.

[1623.] The Earl of Carlisle to the same. I have heard from Master Grisly [Gresley] of the passage of his Highness into Spain. I am sorry of it from my soul.

1623, April 24. Windsor. The Duke of Lenox to the same. I am glad to hear that the French King is diverted to the Valtelline from Rochelle. You have heard of the good success of our business in Spain. I will speak to the Lord Treasurer about your affair. Seal.

1623, May 13. Whitehall. The same to the same. I should be glad to hear that Rochellois were freed of their fears. The ships are ready to go away to bring home the Prince and the Infanta. We hope they will be here in July. Seal.

1623, May 30.—June 9. Brussels. W. Trumbull to [the same]. For want of Wallons, the Colonels and Captains are fain to supply their regiments and companies with such Frenchmen as they can collect on the frontiers. Our soldiers, being slowly paid, are not well contented. We do not approve the secret correspondence said to be held between you (i.e. the French) and Bavaria. News from Spain and from Cologne. I send you herewith [the Archbishop of] Spalato's recantation, printed at Antwerp.

[1623,] June 9. [Madrid?] Viscount Kensington to the same. Thanks him for his noble courtesy at Paris. Seal.

1623, September 29, O.S. Hague. Sir Dudley Carleton to the same. The Queen [of Bohemia] comes this day abroad, well in health after her lying in, but not so well in heart and "in couragement." Nothing is to be expected as long as the [Spanish] match is "in speech." Meanwhile the Imperialists and Spaniards settle themselves in both Palatinates as in perpetual possession. Tilly has retired over the Weser with the greater part of his army about Minden. There is a project for turning a great part of the Rhine into the Yssel. A letter has come from your court for 30,000 crowns as the French quota for this month, for the Valtelline League. The rest is expected from Venice and Turin. Meanwhile the States are desired by the French and Venetian Ambassadors to supply Mansfeld's wants with money and victuals. It is a hard matter to content him.

1623, November 9. Theobalds. The Duke of Richmond and Lenox to the same. Whatever the world conceive, we expect that the Infanta will be here in the spring. The King has not yet seen the Spanish Ambassador who came with the Prince, or the Ambassador from the Archduchess. He intends to go to London at the end of this week, and there he will receive them. Seal.

1623, November 10-20. Theobalds. Sir Robert Carr (Karr) to the same. Concerning a book in Spanish. Our journey [to Madrid] was all adventure from first to last. Of what we did there everyone has already told a piece, and doubtless your French Ambassador among others. They did generously that let us come away when we would. For saying some such thing, and "because I will not rail for company," I am already taken for one of the most Spanish of those who went with the Prince. Yet I was in danger to be corrupted by the courtesy of the King of France, which lasted two hours, rather than by that of the King of Spain, which I had leisure to take for almost six months. I met with no "uncourtesy" from any person of high or low degree, and made many such friends as man finds abroad. On one of those days when the east wind kept us at sea, five Hollanders were "stalking" four Dunkirkers, to have an eye on them, but I saw no great will to fight, for the Dunkirkers were the stronger. They both came aboard the Prince, and "looked calmly" before him, as he was so well able to control them both. When they were let go, they followed their former purposes. We were almost a week on ship-board within the haven of Santander. The first night the Prince's barge, used to the calm Thames, met with so rough weather that it could not row a foot. He was driven to one of the ships, where he and Cardinal Zupata and the Conde de Montrey were forced to stay all night, to avoid the danger of the rocks and the cables. After that, we were more than a week before we could reach any land, avoiding the coasts of France and Ireland. The Prince left the navy, and put into the Isles of Scilly, whither the ships came the next day. There we stayed four days, and found good meat and drink and fresh water. A good gale landed us at Portsmouth in thirty hours. After we landed it rained for a fortnight day and night, but we "swymd" to Royston. With much ado the King is got up to Theobalds, to receive this junta of Spanish Ambassadors, and some hope that he will stay here until after Christmas. I am sending my son to France with Lord Strange and his brother, where they shall begin to live that thereby they may be taught to die, as I shall do.

EARL OF POW
MSS.

1623, December 8. Paris. [Sir E. Herbert] to Sir G. Calvert. The King has suddenly departed out of town to his ordinary pleasures of hawking and hunting. Mansfeld is "frustrated" of the 100,000 crowns that were remitted to the Low Countries for the payment of his army, by the crafty and false dealing, as he conceives it, of Montereau. He is also jealous lest some other, particularly Count Henry, brother of the Prince of Orange, be chosen General of the League in his place. We hear from Vienna that the Emperor much fears the success of Bethlem Gabor. To gain time he treats of a peace. It is thought that next spring he will have such an army as will be able to oppress Gabor, unless the Turk assist him, the resolution of which is, we hear, referred to the Pasha of Buda. We hear that the regiments sent by Tilly to the Emperor have mutinied for want of payment. The turbulent counsels of M. le Prince de Condé may "breed some alteration" at Court. The King was invited to the christening at the Hague. (Copy.)

1623, December 15-25. [The same] to the same. The Marquis de Rambouillet, who was a good while since appointed Ambassador Extraordinary to congratulate on the Queen of Spain's delivery, is awaiting instructions about the Valtelline, and other things which may relate to the marriage of his Highness [the Prince of Wales]. Bethlem Gabor has made a truce or a peace with the Emperor, manifestly to the advan-

OF POWIS MSS. tage of the latter. Order has been given here for the speedy conveyance of the present of hawks to his Majesty. (Copy.)

1623, December 23, O.S. Paris. [The same] to the same. Concerning the passport of M. du Moulin, intending to come from Sedan to France and England. His love to a new married wife, or his fear to cross the sea at this time of year, may partly account for the delay. Bethlem Gabor has concluded a cessation of arms until the 1st of March. Here they design nothing but to heap up treasure. The Chancellor was lately in danger of losing the seals. The coming of the Prince de Condé to Court, and of the voyage of the Marquis de Rambouillet are remitted to further consideration. (Draft.)

1623, December 27, O.S. Paris. [The same] to the same. The Chancellor, having answered the objections of his adversaries, has voluntarily resigned the seals. There are many competitors for this charge. Although one offers 400,000 crowns for it, the King "protests" to gratify some person of merit therewith, without other consideration, for it has not hitherto been "venerable." In this country the charge of Gardescaux is distinct from that of Chancellor, and usually held by a different person. The King has long deferred to perform the conditions which were promised to those of the Religion before Montpellier. It is said that the Emperor will not stand to the truce which the Palatine of Hungary has made between him and Bethlem Gabor, his intention being merely to temporize. Lord Gordon, who has lived here in a very noble fashion, is on his way home. (Copy.)

1623, December 29, O.S. Paris. The same to the same. M. de Alligre is made Gardescaux. He is said to be an able and well-intentioned man, desirous of peace at home. He will be acceptable to those of the Religion, who begin to apprehend that some cannon lately cast at Sanctes near Rochelle may be employed against them. The Rochellers have victualled themselves for a three years' siege, and have made a platform for ordnance, whence they will shoot direct into the fort of Pompes Targone. I hope yet that there is no meaning in this state to make war against those of the Religion. (Draft.)

[1623-4,] January 26. [The same] to the same. The King and Council have resolved to send an agent called Grenelle to reside with the Duke of Bavaria, in correspondence to another sent hither by him. They use all means to the States of the Low Countries to persuade the Elector Palatine to accept the hard and unequal conditions offered by Spain. Their principal intentions are partly to gratify the Duke of Bavaria at the cost of the Elector Palatine, and partly to pick a "querelle d'Allemand" against the States. The Ambassador Mendoza, as he passed this way towards Spain, told me that there would be hope of a good peace, if the Duke were reimbursed the excessive sums which have been laid out by him in the late wars. I answered that if that course had been taken in previous wars there never could have been peace. He said that all might be accommodated if the Elector Palatine would put his children into the hands of his Majesty [of Spain]. I answered that he already withheld their patrimony from them, and that his desire to have their persons appeared a design to assure himself of all. The return of the Prince de Condé to Court is doubtful. The King has discharged the Chancellor and M. de Puissieux from their places. (Draft.)

1623 [-4], February 12. Whitehall. The Duke of Richmond and Lenox to Sir E. Herbert. Lord Kensington will be with you before this comes to your hands. Seal.

[1624,] April 14. Theobalds. The King to the same. Letters of recall. He is to present the Earl of Carlisle and Lord Kensington to the French King at the next audience, and so to take his leave and return with convenient speed. Sign manual and seal. (By a clerical error the regnal year of King James is given as the 21st of England and the 57th of Scotland. It was the 22nd of England.)

EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.

1624, April 15. Theobalds. The same to the King of France. Notification of the recall of Sir E. Herbert, Ambassador in Ordinary. (Copy in French.)

[1619-1623,] September 30. Hampton Court. The same to the same. Recommends a servant of Sir Edward Horwood's brother. Seal.

[1619-1623,] November 9. Enfield. The same to the same. Recommends Mr. St. Ravy. Desires a picture exceedingly "if it may be had for any reason."

1626 [-7], February 4. Carnarvon. William Gryffith to Edward [Herbert] Lord Baron of Castle Island. We have not been able to send an earlier answer to your letter enquiring what was done in Sir William Morris's limit, for Sir John Wynne was infirm, I live in Anglesea, and Sir Thomas Williams was in London. You have also demanded a sight of a letter written by Edward IV. to Sir Richard Herbert, then lying before the Castle of Harlech, besieged by the King's forces under his command. It was with the father of Sir William Thomas, and since his death, when Sir Richard Gwynne, who married his mother, ransacked Sir William's house, it perished with many other good things of great antiquity. I can give you testimony of this siege by him out of our Welsh bards, sufficient to prove it to a Welshman, however the Englishmen may slight it. Their chronicles are full of his noble acts. Heraldic seal.

1637, August 9. Chiswick. Sir John Finet to [Lord Herbert of Cherbury]. Breda is besieged by the Prince of Orange, who has brought rivers about to secure his own men. The Spanish Ambassador here sticks not to pronounce it past all hope of preserving. On the 24th of last month the Cardinal Infante marched towards it with 12,000 foot and 5,000 horse, but he found his reception prepared for. Piccolomini has come down towards the French with 10,000 men, who are weak and faint after a long and hungry march. If they do not rest and feed well before they fight, they may be "cheaply beaten." The Prince Elector is said to be gone into Germany, and with him Lord Grandison and Lord Craven. At the leave-taking of the Spanish Resident three weeks ago, I proposed to the Lord Chamberlain an increase of the value of the present to be bestowed on him, considering his employment here for six years, his title of Resident generally given, his badge of the Order of St. Iago, his charge as Secretary of State with the Cardinal Infante, and the merit of his carriage. His Lordship approved, but the King would not acknowledge any difference between a Resident and an Agent, or allow more than a chain and medal of 210*l.* value. When I "glanced" at this to Señor Nicolaldi, he started up in a passion, and said that he had come with letters of credence as the King of Spain's Resident and not as his Agent, that his Majesty could not take away honours conferred on him by his master, and that if the present were brought to him under the title and of the value as to an Agent, he must refuse it. I gave an account of this to Secretary Windebank, and received from him a letter saying that his Majesty would not depart from his rule, or acknowledge any capacity other than those of Ambassador or Agent. When I imparted the substance of this to Señor Nicolaldi, he mentioned the example of Mr. Gerbier and Mr. Hopton, his Majesty's ministers in Flanders and Spain, who had, he said, too truly, the title of Resident. The latter, he said, was presented at his parting with the value of 500*l.* sterling. After this I made two journeys to court, but they did not prove "effectant." The present will be exposed to-morrow to offer and refusal.

1639, August 7. Paris. F. M. Mayenne to Lord Herbert of Cherbury (Kebbury) in London. When I wrote last, more than two months ago, you were occupied with the works of Bellona and Mars. Now peace gives you leisure to accomplish your design for banishing error. I have given copies of your book to many of my friends. Those that remain I will return as soon as you want them. If I go to Italy this year, I should like to take some with me to give to certain Cardinals and other worthy persons. Instruct me if you wish me to bring you any books or other things from Rome or elsewhere. (French.)

"Herbert Papers—Miscellaneous. 1586-1735."

1586, October. "The examination and confession of the Queene of Scotts taken at Foderingham Castle." It begins—"Soe soone as the lordes heave arrived three howers after the comission was read to her Majestie was read to the Lordes Commissioners for the greate cause." It ends—"the lordes brake upp their sittinge upon Satterday at one of the clocke, and adjoined the commission to the Starr Chamber."

1626 [-7], March 22. Vicount Kilmorey and five others [Deputy Lieutenants for the county of Salop] to the Earl of Northampton, Lord President of the Marches. The Lords of the Council have required the well clothing of a hundred men to be sent out the country. The Lord Treasurer and the Chancellor of the Exchequer allowed 4*s.* for every coat, and 8*d.* a day for each of the 250 soldiers sent to Calais. The gentlemen of the county have of late lent freely to the King for the defence of the Kingdom. They therefore desire that 125*l.* may be lent to them out of the loan money in the hands of the Lord President. [Cf. letters on p. 370, above.]

1635, August 15. London. Lord Craven to his sister [Lady Powis]. On private matters. He desires to bring one with him who will make it appear that she ought not to have altered her religion.

1639 [-40], January 29. Edinburgh. Lord Rothes to Lord ——. When at the camp you found that we had reason for our lawful desires, and that we had loyal hearts to our prince. We have been disappointed in you since Lord Traquaire made his relation that moved hard conclusions against us. If we do not keep better correspondence, we may by mistake be brought to begin a mischief that will not end in our days. It lies with you and other great persons to prevent this evil. Your nation has lived in great ease and plenty, and you are not well advised if you interrupt your own happiness for the pleasure of a few prelates who will have little part in the hardships and dangers that will have to be endured. The Earl of Dunfermline and Lord Loudon are sent with full information. They will wait upon you. They decline war, unless you will needs have it. (Copy, dated English style.)

EARL OF POWIS' MSS.

Answer to the above, dated at Whitehall, March 8, 1639 [-40]. I never allowed that your defence was lawfully undertaken by other arms than petition and prayers to your master. I never found loyalty in your Covenant. Your religion has divested itself of all moral duty. Your arguments are food for common people and "the men of broken fancies." The return of my friendship to you is to be expected when I shall hear of your renovation. Be simply Lord Rothes, and not a Covenanter. (Copies on one sheet of paper.)

1640, September 3. London. ——— to Lord ———. On Thursday last the Scottish rebels advanced as far as the river, six miles above Newcastle, and planted eleven pieces of ordnance on the bank. On Friday afternoon they began to pass the ford, where his Majesty had ordered that they should be opposed. 1,000 cuirassiers and 2,500 foot were accordingly drawn thither on the Wednesday, with only two pieces of artillery. Secretary Vane's son, who led my Lord General's troop, gave the first charge. His horse being wounded in two places fell down, but presently got up again. Charging a second time he was encountered by the Sheriff of Teviotdale (Tividale) whom he killed with his sword, and then he came off with the loss of all his troop except six horses. Mr. Nevill of the Privy Chamber lighted upon the Earl of Montrose, and killed him with his pistols. It is said that they lost their Lieutenant-General, the Lord of Almont (Amount). On our side were slain that brave gentleman O'Neale, and Charles Porter, son [brother] of Endimion. The Commissary General, Colonel Wilmot, and Sir John Digby, who were said to be slain, were taken prisoners. Sir John Suckling was not near the place of the fight. Lord Conway, they say, was upon some other service, and the commands were given to the Commissary General, who behaved with great valour and judgment. Yet Mr. Vane complained in his letter that if he had been well seconded, it would have been easy to have driven the Scots back across the river. Our foot "did us noe great steed." On Tuesday (?) Sir Jacob Ashley rose with the army that lay entrenched about three miles from the town, and marched away towards the King. The Scots, availing themselves of that occasion and of the consternation of the inhabitants, took the town of Newcastle without a blow. It is said that they have left 2,000 in the town, disarmed the inhabitants, and offered to leave the town as it was if they will lend 50,000*l.* for the support of their army. Our ordnance and ammunition have happily escaped their fingers, having been brought to the camp a day or two before. Sir Jacob Ashley is to join the trained bands midway between York and Northallerton. The army will then consist of 25,000 foot and 35,000 horse. The King speaks confidently. At first it was reported that we had lost 500 men, but the letters brought by Walter the herald speak of much less. Yesterday the Lords assembled in Council charged the Lord Mayor and Aldermen to look well to the City. We talk of a camp to be formed near the town, and of another in Kent to look towards the French, who have an army of 50,000 in Artois and Picardy, and a fleet not far off. The Queen comes to Hampton Court this day. My Lord of Northumberland is recovered. The Ambassador from Denmark arrived here on Monday. He is lodged with Sir Abraham Williams, being followed with a train of 50 persons.

the rate of 2s. 6d. a day. (There is a duplicate of this document among the Domestic State Papers, in which however the name of Lord Chandos, who undertook to maintain thirty horses, is omitted.)

[1643, July.] T. Littleton to Francis Herbert at Bromfield. Mr. Robert Charlton is ill, and the wife of Mr Chancellor of Worcester is very sick. The rest of the gentlemen could not have notice, because the time was so short. There is therefore nobody but myself to go to Salop. Please signify our good affections, and whatever you undertake we shall be ready to perform to the full of our estates. "Hull is come in," and Sir John Hotham and his son are taken prisoners. The North is cleared. The Queen is at Lichfield, on her march to Oxford. Heraldic seal.

1644, July 29. Certificate by William Barbour that his journey to Oswestry was to obtain a pass to go to Dr Lloyd in Denbighshire, and that he carried no message from Edward, Lord Herbert of Cherbury.

1644, November 7. Declaration made at a meeting of the gentry, clergy, freeholders, and others, of the county of Salop, approving the proceedings of the county of Somerset for settling a general peace in the kingdom. They are abundantly satisfied concerning his Majesty's real inclination to peace according to his messages, and they will engage themselves for his just performance thereof, as well for the settling of the Protestant religion, the privileges of Parliament, and the liberty of the subject, as of his Majesty's proper rights and prerogatives. They therefore desire that the Lords and Commons now assembled at Westminster will enter into a speedy treaty with him.

Petition of the same to the King that they may have leave to become petitioners to the Lords and Commons assembled at Westminster for the acceptance of his gracious offers of peace. (Copy, on the same sheet and in the same hand as the foregoing.)

1646, July 3. Order made at the Committee of Lords and Commons "that it be reported to the House of Commons that it is the opinion of this Committee that the outworkes (of earth) of the Castle of Montgomery should be slighted, and that, without any further slighting of the Castle, it, with all the goods, ammunition, and armes, should be delivered into the hands of the Lord Herbert of Cherbury."

1646, August 18. Ruthin. Order by Col. Thomas Myton, William Middleton, and five others, members of the Committee for North Wales, that the petition of the inhabitants of the town of Montgomery be referred for examination to Lloyd Pierce, esquire, and the rest of the Committee for the county of Montgomery. The petition states that the inhabitants are behind, for quartering of soldiers in the said town, by account taken on the 4th of November last, to the sum of 254*l.* 10*s.* which the Committee at Red Castle promised divers times to satisfy, and that cattle and other provisions to the value of 60*l.* were taken for the provision of the Castle of Montgomery during the siege, from other inhabitants, who have not yet been satisfied. In regard of the great plunderings and sufferings that they had by the King's side, for their true affections to the Parliament, they pray for payment out of the contributions of two hundreds in the county.

1647, May 20. Same place. Order by the same Committee that the persons of all residents in the county of Montgomery who have been in arms against the Parliament, or are adjudged delinquents and are not actually prosecuting their compositions, be immediately secured in the garrison of Red Castle or in the Marshall's house thereto belonging, and that the troops of horse and feet assist the sequestrators in the execution of this order. (Copy.)

EARL OF POWIS,
MSS.

1648, August 22. Montgomery. Lloyd Pierce to Dr George Gryffithes at Llanymynych. I expected you to-day at the Committee. I suppose the weather, with the danger we are all in of the enemy, may well stay you at home. Your best way is to let the Governor or myself determine any differences that may arise between you and Mr. Tompson. Heraldic seal.

1649, June 11. Order [in Parliament] that Montgomery Castle be totally demolished, and that Lord Herbert of Cherbury shall have reparation in respect thereof, out of his second payment of the fine for his delinquency.

1650, September. An account of charges for dinners, suppers, beer etc. for the Sheriff and others at the assizes at Montgomery.

1651, December 29. Montgomery. Lord Herbert [of Cherbury] to Robert Griffiths. On private affairs.

1655, July 24. An assessment of 45*l.* 2*s.* 10*d.* imposed upon the inhabitants and occupants of lands within the town and parish of Montgomery towards the repair of the parish church, steeple, and bells.

1660, April 28. Whitehall. Order by the Council of State, that whereas Red Castle does not belong to the State and whereas the owners have given security that it shall not be employed to the disturbance of the peace, the former order for the demolishing of the said Castle be made null and void, otherwise than the demolishing of the out-works and the making of some breaches in the walls, so that it be thereby made indefensible in case of any insurrection, and that it be left at the disposal of such person or persons as have right thereto. Signed by Arthur Annesley, President. Seal of the Commonwealth affixed.

1660, May 1. Acquittance for an account for boots, shoes, and slippers for Lord Herbert.

1660, November 23. Llyssyn. W. Browne to Lord Herbert. Concerning the purchase of clothes, pewter dishes, etc. for "my Lady," Lady Alice, and Lady Ann. Heraldic seal.

1660, November 23. Llyssyn. Anne, Lady Herbert, to Lord Herbert [of Cherbury] in London. On private affairs. I have sent you 50*l.* by the Shrewsbury carrier, who warranted it for 2*s.* 6*d.*, which must be allowed out of it.

1660 [-1], January 24. Lord Herbert [of Cherbury] to Lord Carbery. I have delivered the commissions for different counties, but I must repeat my desire that you should send down the rest. There is some discontent among our countrymen that their neighbours should have more dominion than themselves, who derive from Adam by as direct a line as any of those who have commissions. Let me know what numbers of trained bands or volunteers are to be raised in South Wales, that I may argue the case with my countrymen, who are very loth to raise more than their old proportions. Many who were very active in the late governments have absented themselves. I send a book of Vavasor Powell, which, with many more of the same nature and letters in his hand, though not in his own name, were intercepted in Salop. A letter of dangerous consequence is kept in Salop, to see what may be got out by confession from a tanner there, to whom it was directed. Lord Valentia will, I hope, see that Vavasor was not sent up without reason, since he cannot in prison forbear his endeavours to sow disunion in the Church. The honourable person who was forward to bail him, will, on seeing this book, withdraw some of his esteem. There are letters from others torn down that declare hopes about the time of the rising in London. I have almost found the way to entrap all letters from any of that party, although they are so cunning that they seldom direct to the same person twice. (Draft.)

1663, September. [Welshpool.] John Bowen to Lord Powis at Buttington, or to William Herbert, Esq^r, at Red Castle. Two very long letters complaining of the injustice, cruelty, and avarice of his gaolers.

1684, July 18. Durham Yard. E., Dowager Lady Herbert [of Cherbury] to Lord Herbert of Cherbury at Lymore Lodge. She threatens legal proceedings.

1684, August 6. Oxford. F[rancis] Herbert to his uncle, Lord Herbert of Cherbury at Lymore Lodge. He thanks him for allowing him to keep a horse, on the recommendation of his tutor.

1684-5, March 19. London. Andrew Newport to Lord Herbert of Cherbury at Lymore. I will endeavour to get your formalities ready by the day of solemnity [of the coronation], and to provide a lodging for you. Sir Uvedale Corbett's servant has attended the Bishop at Oxford, to provide a tutor and lodgings for his master. The Bishop complains that your sister Herbert sends so often for her son to Oakley Park, keeping him sometimes half a year from his study. My service to "poor woman." Seal.

1685, June 23. Southampton Square. E. Dowager Lady Herbert [of Cherbury] to Lord Herbert of Cherbury at Lymore Lodge. It is true that Lord Argyle has been taken and his standard brought to the King two days ago. This good news was publicly expressed by ringing the bells. So many of the noblemen and gentlemen are in the regiments that I know few people who have not a husband or a brother to pray for. These affairs thin the Mall, Play-house, and Hyde Park. Seal.

1685, December 29. London. Andrew Newport to the same. Concerning a patent. He has received a pot of venison from "poor woman." Lord Nottingham was this day married to Lord Hatton's daughter. The Bishop of Durham is made Dean of the Chapel, in the place of the Bishop of London. The Bishop of Rochester is made Clerk of the closet. Lady Strafford is dead. There is a Protestant league in hand. Tekeli has been put to death at Constantinople. His body has been flayed, and his skin stuffed and sent to the Grand Signior at Adrianople. (This news was false.) It is generally said that H. Herbert is married to Lady Gerard, Lord Macclesfield's daughter, but he will not own it.

1685-6, February 13. London. The same to the same. On private affairs. Saxon, who swore against Lord Delamere, is convicted of perjury, and sentenced to the pillory and whipping. Lord Northampton, having gained Lady Conway's consent, and perfected the agreement with counsel by consent of Mr. Seymour, went again to the lady in the country, with expectation of marrying her in a day or two, the wedding clothes being made. He had an absolute denial from her, and, finding Lord Mulgrave upon the same pursuit, sent a challenge to Mr. Seymour. Lord Mulgrave by express gave notice to the Court, and orders were sent to secure both parties. Mr. Seymour did not accept the challenge, and Lord Northampton returned hither, before the order could be obeyed. Heraldic seal. EARL OF POWIS' MSS.

1685-6, March 17. William Herbert to the Hon. Florentia Herbert at Oakley Park, near Ludlow. Concerning the project of a marriage between her son, Francis Herbert, and the daughter and heiress of Sir Herbert Evans.

1686, April 14. Cardigan. Richard Owen to Lord Herbert of Cherbury. The Papists "are already grown to such a height" in Ireland that the Protestants of that nation convey what money they can to the new plantations, intending to follow with their families as occasion shall serve.

1686, June 1. London. Andrew Newport to [the same]. On private affairs. The States of Holland have declared the Prince of Brandenburg successor to the Prince of Orange, after his death, in his commands of Statholder, Admiral, and General, the former consenting.

1686, June 12. London. The same to the same. On private affairs. Heraldic seal.

1687, March 1. Father Petre to Père la Chaise. (Copy, imperfect. Another version, dated February 9, is printed in Somers' "Tracts," vol. ix., p. 68.)

1688, October 23. London. Newsletter. An account of the proceedings at an extraordinary Council held on the 22nd of October, concerning the birth of the Prince of Wales. (A more formal account of these proceedings is given in Howell's "State Trials.")

1688, November 3. [London.] Newsletter. Yesterday one Blaake, a broker on the Exchange, was taken by some constables for speaking very unseasonable words against the Protestants upon the subject of the disorder committed at Bucklersbury. On Wednesday an Irishman of Lord Craven's regiment of guards ran the gauntlet through divers companies in Covent Garden, for speaking threatening words against the Protestants. The Duke of Grafton has gone on board the fleet as a volunteer. His Majesty has received an account from Lord Dartmouth that he is impatient to meet the Dutch, his fleet being increased to above forty sail. Divers people have been with the King to desire letters of marque against the Dutch, but the King refuses to give them until the Dutch commit some act of hostility. On Wednesday Captain Lenham was committed to Newgate, on account of papers found in his custody. The Pope will not believe about the intended invasion of England. The Consistory would not recognise the Marquis Lavardine as Ambassador from the French King, and ordered his arrest, but he escaped from Rome. On Thursday the Lords of the Council presented the Princess of Denmark with an authentic copy of the depositions concerning the birth of the Prince of Wales. Yesterday the King sent for all the Bishops in London. Six came and protested their allegiance. Many pardons are now passed. The King has been told that the Prince of Orange weighed anchor on Wednesday afternoon. We hear from Hull that the sluices are ready for laying the country under water for some miles round that garrison.

1690, September 9. Richard Bustan to Thomas Griffith. At the King's landing the rain fell so violently that the water filled the trenches up to the soldiers' middles. The army is divided into three bodies.

EARL OF POWIS'
MSS.

Prince George came to town this evening. His Majesty is expected to dine at Kensington to-morrow. To-night he is at Sir William Kirke's near Reading, or at Lord Lovelace's. Parliament met yesterday and adjourned. Sir William Hussey is sent Ambassador to Constantinople, with a discharge to Sir William Trumbal. The Highlanders are being closely pursued. The Popish party here said that our army was beaten.

1690, September 15. — to Lord Herbert of Cherbury. We hear that the King intends to go to Holland next week, in order to put new life into the Amsterdamers, who talk warmly of a peace with France.

1717, December 4. — to Mrs. Horresse. (Partly in cipher, to which a clue is given on two small pieces of paper enclosed.)

1717, December 4. (Another letter in the same hand, partly in cipher.)

1719, December 1. Paris. The Duke d'Albret to [the Duke of Powis]. Concerning his engagement to the Lady Mary [Herbert].

1735, July 11. Wardour. R. Holland to the Duke of Powis at Powis Castle. If you cannot soon settle Lord Montgomery, you ought to marry yourself. There are several young Catholic ladies who would be glad to contribute to keeping up so noble a family. The daughter of Lord Molyneux has sufficient attractions for either, and everything except a fortune. Heraldic seal.

Of the other manuscripts which I saw at Powis Castle, the following only need be mentioned here:—

A folio volume of poems by Du Bartas, translated into English verse by Robert Barrett.

A small volume entitled—"Croftus, sive de Hibernia liber," by Sir William Herbert.

A small volume entitled "Negotiations of Sir George Carey, Knt, during his residence in France in the reign of James I." (See Birch's "Historical View of the Negotiations between the Courts of England, France, and Brussels," 1749.)

A volume entitled "Diurnal Occurrences," giving an account of the proceedings in Parliament from November 7, 1640 to May 22, 1641. (Some quotations from the printed leaflets bearing this title are given, not very accurately, in the "Parliamentary History." The series in the British Museum extends only from November 28 to December 5, and from December 13, 1640, to January 3, 1641.)

A small narrow volume, newly bound, containing contemporary notes of the proceedings against the Earl of Strafford.

A bundle of papers concerning the sequestration of property in the county of Montgomery, A.D. 1644-1652.

A bundle of curious affidavits, etc., concerning the organ-loft and the manner of performing divine service, in the church of Welshpool (Pool), A.D. 1738-1739.

Several parchment rolls and loose papers, containing genealogies of the families of Herbert, Howard, Wynne, and Fox.

A large box containing numerous commissions to different members of the Herbert family, bearing the signatures of different Kings and officers of state in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Among them are the four following:—

EARL OF POWIS
MSS.

Commission from the King to Richard Herbert, Esq., to raise a regiment of twelve hundred foot. Dated at Nottingham, September 3, 18 Charles I. (1642). Sign manual affixed.

Commission from the King to Col. Richard Herbert, Governor of the Town of Bridgenorth, to be captain of a troop of four score horse, to be levied voluntarily in the county of Salop, or elsewhere, "for the defence of our person, the two houses of Parliament, the Protestant religion, the laws of the land, the liberty and propriety of the subject, and privileges of Parliament," and for the better defence of the town of Bridgnorth and the inhabitants thereof "against any attempts that may be made by "the traiterous proceedings of the Earle of Essex and his adherents." Dated at Wolverhampton, October 17, 1642. Sign manual affixed.

Commission from the King to Col. Richard Herbert to be Governor of the Town and Castle of Ludlow. Dated at Oxford, September 28, 19 Charles I. (1643).

Commission from Prince Rupert to Col. Richard Herbert to execute the office of chief commander of Aberystwith Castle. Dated April 19, 20 Charles I. (1644.)

A bundle of deeds and papers relating to the town and castle of Montgomery. Among them is an assessment for six months, beginning on the 5th of March, 1646, for the levy of 8*l.* 2*s.*, for the maintenance of the forces under the command of Sir Thomas Fairfax.

Grant by Geoffrey, Prior of Cherbury, and the Convent of that place, to Nicholas Brusbon, of lands, etc., in Wickemoresfield at Montgomery. Fragment of conventual seal attached. (14th century.)

Demise by John Piers, Prior of Cherbury, and the Convent of that place to David ap Owen ap David ap Mered, of the manor of Court Caldemore, within the franchise of the vill of Montgomery. February 18, 8 Henry VIII. Conventual seal attached.

The Earl of Powis kindly gave me permission to examine the muniments at Walcot Park, as well as those at Powis Castle, but I have been informed by his agent, Mr. R. H. Newill, that they consist exclusively of legal documents and papers devoid of historical interest.

f. 197b. Undertaking on the part of Sir Robert Howard, K.B., and Richard More, esq., elected Burgesses for the Parliament to begin on the 13th of April next, that they will discharge the Bailiff and burgesses of Bishop's Castle from all charges, fees, and allowances, for their attendance in the said Parliament. A.D. 1639-40.

f. 199b. A similar undertaking on the part of the same, with regard to the Parliament to begin on the 3rd of November next. A.D. 1640.

f. 202b. Orders, made in consideration of the imminent dangers wherein the town and the adjacent parts stand by reason of the soldiers remaining in the county, that all householders, or other able men of their own providing, shall upon due notice keep the King's watch during the whole night; that upon the town's charge, all persons who keep horses or mares, shall be ready upon due notice to ride to such places as the Bailiff shall appoint; and that all householders shall at their own cost provide a good and sufficient weapon for the safeguard of their own persons. December 6, 1642.

f. 203. Order that, whereas an association has been formed throughout the county of Salop for the preservation of every particular person from plundering, of late too much exercised, and whereas it has been concluded by the several justices of the peace for the allotments of Clun and Purslow and most of the inhabitants, gentry, and freeholders of the same, that eight horses with able riders, completely furnished, shall be instantly provided within every allotment, William Blunden, esquire, shall have power to nominate four able and sufficient inhabitants of the town of Bishop's Castle to provide four horses with riders, etc., at the general charge of the town. December 24. 18 Car. I.

f. 205b. Order that all inhabitants of the town, upon hearing of a musket or other public notice, shall repair to the aid of any particular house or village, with their best arms, for defence of the same from plundering or any other violent or wilfull breach of his Majesty's peace. March 7, 1643.

f. 207b. Another order concerning the watch. April 4, 21 Car. I.

f. 208b. Undertaking on the part of John Corbett of Auson, and Esay Thomas of Bishop's Castle, elected Burgesses for the present Parliament, that they will discharge the Bailiff and burgesses of Bishop's Castle from all charges, fees, and allowances, for their attendance in the said Parliament. [February 20, 1645-6.]

f. 209. Copy of a mandate from Thomas Mytton, esq., Sheriff of the county of Salop, to the Bailiff of the town of Bishop's Castle, for the election of two Burgesses of Parliament, in the places of Richard More, esquire, deceased, and Sir Robert Howard, expelled. February 16, 1645-6.

Copy of a letter from Samuel More to the Bailiff, Aldermen, and burgesses of Bishop's Castle:—

"Mr. Baylif. I have received a mandat from the Shieriff to you for thelecting of two Burgesses for Parliament in the place of Sir Robert Howard and my deare father that is with God, who dyed in your service. I take the bouldnes to crave the favour of yourself, the Aldermen, and the rest of the Burgesses, to put you in mind of what needfull concernment it is to make choice of such to serve you in that place as may promote the good of the Comonwealth in generall and of your Town in particular, whose losses and afflictions have beene many, which soe oft as I passe by, I looke upon with sorrow, and in a true sense and feeling thereof, together with an oppinion that I think you concernes, I love you and wish from my heart the good of your corporation. I humbly desire you will favour mee soe much as geeve mee leave to offer to your considerations such as I dare pawn my reputation will serve you faythfully, carefully, and freely, and such as if you have to doe with the Parliament or the Committee of your county wilbee able to promote your bussienes. It is my cosin John Corbett of Awson who married Alderman Peningtons daughter, and also welbeloved of the Committee, whom I much desire for the reasons before. For the other (if you have noe fitter) is my brother Mr. Thomas More whom you know, but for him I say noe more, for where ever hee is hee will serve you the best hee canne. I doe not presume heerein any way to hinder the freedome of your ellection, but as a faythfull servant of yours to advice you, upon whose proceedings I shall pray Almighty God to bestow a blessing, Ever resting your humble and faythfull servant, Samuel More. Montgomery Castle, 19th of February, 1645."

Copy of a letter from Thomas Kettelby and Myles Ashton, to the Bailiff and inhabitants of Bishop's Castle:—"Gentlemen. Wee thought good to intimate unto you that wee have receaved orders from the Honorable Comittee of Parliament for this county, which doe appoint us with our forces to doe our uttermost to protect and secure your Towne and neighbourhood from the violences and wronges of the comon enemye, for performance wherof assure yourselves wee shalbee alwayes ready with our streingth as occasion is to secure you. Our desire therfore is that you would bee pleased to geeve us at all times what intelligence you canne of the motion and approaches of the enemye towards you, and that you would keepe your watches constantly as the whole countrey is required for that purpose, and to bee pleased to joyne us as it is needfull for preventing the fury of those whose actions tend only for rapyne and desolation. There shalbee nothing wanting on our partes that may conduce to your good and saffety, and wee dought not but you will likewise accomplish what is desired." Dated at Stoke Castle, February 23, 1645.

f. 209b. Assessment for the repair of the Town Hall, etc. March 21, 1645 [-6].

f. 216. Order that 40s. be laid out for the entertainment of Sir Robert Howard, knight, lord of the manor, and his lady. October 4, 1649.

f. 226. Undertaking on the part of Samuel More of Linley, and William Oakeley of Oakeley, elected Burgesses for the intended next Parliament, that they will discharge the Bailiff and burgesses of Bishop's Castle from all charges, fees, and allowances, for their attendance in the said Parliament. January 8, 1658. (There are similar undertakings on the part of the Burgesses elected in April 1660, February 1679, September 1679, and April 1685.)

f. 226b. Copy of a mandate from Edmund Waring, esq., Sheriff of the county of Salop, for the election of two Burgesses of Parliament. December 27, 1658.

ff. 228, 231, 232, have been cut out.

f. 129. Copy of a mandate from William Oakeley, esq., Sheriff of the county of Salop, for the election of two Burgesses of Parliament. March 30, 1660.

f. 234. Order for the election of eight burgesses, who are "to be persons of good quality, and such as will give very considerable sommes of money for there Burdegeships." September 13, 1661.

ff. 240-251 are blank, and are followed by a number of blank leaves. There are other entries in the later part of the volume, which is paged from the other end.

f. 30. Note of a voluntary collection made at Bishop's Castle for relief of the poor people of Shrewsbury, visited by God's judgment of the plague, with the names of the givers. September 3, 1631. The number of givers was 80, and the sum raised 16*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.*, of which 16*l.* was sent to Shrewsbury, and 5*s.* 6*d.* disposed to pious uses.

Copy of a letter from George Hunt and Simon Weston, [Bailiffs of Shrewsbury,] to the Bailiff and burgesses and inhabitants of Bishop's Castle, thanking them for their compassionate mercy. It states that the town is not so near as to fall under the statute which commands contributions to be made for the relief of infected places. Dated at Salop, September 6, 1631.

f. 29. Orders concerning apprentices. March 10, 1619.

f. 27b. List of the inhabitants of Bishop's Castle. March 11, 1619.

f. 19. List of subsidy men and their bearers.

f. 7. Copy of a letter from the Bailiff of Bishop's Castle to the Bailiffs of Ludlow, concerning the liberties of the town. November 30, 1612.

f. 6. Copy of a letter from the Bailiff and burgesses of Bishop's Castle, to Henry, Earl of Northampton, lord of the manor. When they first heard that he had become their lord, duty required that they should testify their joyful acknowledgement. "But as in Mephibosheth an externall kind of lameness, yet not corporall, staid the signification" of their duty. They now commend his wisdom and goodness in "depelling" an approaching great evil "by stayinge a determined and almost optayned erection of a superfluous market" in their neighbourhood at Stretton. They offer him a poor fruit of their rich love. Dated A.D. 1609. Appended are "Reasones shewing how prejudiciall yt is to the towne of Bushops Castell for the erectinge of a markett in Strettone." It is alleged that "no Welch markett doth sufficiently secure the buyer in alteringe the propertie"; that Bishop's Castle is situated near the greatest waste of Wales, where cattle are bred, and convenient for the delivery of corn into Wales from Shropshire, Corvedale, and Herefordshire; that the erecting of many little markets tends to destroy them all; that the Earl receives 10*l.* a year from the toll, which may be increased, etc.

f. 5. Copy of a letter from the Earl of Northampton to the Bailiff and burgesses of Bishop's Castle. He acknowledges the receipt of their letter of thanks. "I hould not any favour that accompanyes the keepinge of the Privie Seale greater then that by this meane, accordinge to the care and meaninge of my royall master, I may sometime meete with matters that for want of trew and perfect knowledge of the subject which they concerne myght sometymes find too quicke a passage for an unseene inconvenience." Dated at the Court. January 6, [1609].

Copy of a receipt from Simon Pickayes on behalf of his master, William Ward, of 10*l.*, for a gilt cup and cover weighing 30 oz. 12 dwts. January 5, 1609.

f. 4b. Copy of a letter from the Earl of Northampton to the Bailiff and burgesses of Bishop's Castle. Whereas a writ has been directed to them out of the Court of Chancery, ordering them to elect a new Burgess to serve in Parliament, in the place of Mr. William Twyneho lately deceased, he presumes so much of their good affections that they will make choice of such a person as he shall nominate, for although the election is theirs by right, the inheritance of the borough is his, and therefore it cannot be feared that he will not be more careful than any to provide for the public weal of the town. He accordingly recommends a very worthy gentleman, the son and heir of a nobleman, Sir William Cavendish, who is desirous to serve them. Dated at Northampton House, October 21, 1610.

f. 4. Copy of a letter from the same to the same. He understands from Mr. Richard More that they have elected him to be a Burgess "in regarde of his neere neighbowrhode to that place," but that they have "foreborne" his admittance until they understood the Earl's pleasure, and he commends them for their respect to his expressed desires. It is true that the admittance of many burgesses is a disadvantage to him, but as this gentleman "is of worth and abilitie to geve so good assistance in the government of that corporation," he is well pleased to give his allowance to that election, and to express the good opinion that he holds of him both for his honesty and his sufficiency. He believes that they will be careful not to transgress the orders which he has given with regard to the admission of burgesses. Dated at Northampton House, December 22, 1610.

f. 3b. Lists of the fifteen Head Burgesses, A.D. 1615, 1621, and 1629.

f. 2. "A lewne (rate) ceased (assessed) upon the persons subscribed for the payment of 4*l*. to Owen Morris for the fynishing of a pownd and stockes for the Town." April 25, 1616.

The other entries in this volume relate to the admission of burgesses, the election of officers, the punishment of various offenders, and recognizances to keep the peace, etc. None of the other records of the Corporation are earlier than the eighteenth century. Mr. E. Griffiths, the Town Clerk of Bishop's Castle, has kindly allowed me to search through the chest in which they are contained.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF R. JASPER MORE, ESQ.

The following manuscripts have been long preserved at Shipton Hall in Corvedale, co. Salop, formerly the residence of a branch of the Mytton family, but now the property of Mr. Jasper More of Linley.

MR. MORE'S
MSS.

A small folio volume containing fragments of three different works, written on vellum and adorned with ornamental capitals, etc. The first gives some of the Sibylline prophecies, and the prophecies of Merlin. The second forms part of a bestiary, or treatise on natural history, illustrated by forty curious illuminations, the siren forming the subject of one paragraph and picture. The third forms part of a treatise on precious stones.

A roll of three membranes, closely written on both sides, containing an account of the fines paid to the Priory of Wenlock in the time of Prior Guichard, in the 15th year of Edward II. Some extracts from it are printed in Eyton's "Antiquities of Shropshire," vol. iii. p. 262.

A sheet of vellum richly illuminated in gold and silver, bearing the following letter:—"James by the Grace of Almighty God, the Creator of Heaven and Earth, King of Great Britaine, France and Ireland, Defendor of the Christian Faith, etc. To the High and Mightie Monarch, the Great Emperor of China, etc., Greeting. The report of the greatness of your power and dominion in those Easterne parts of the World, has stirred up a great desire in our Subjects to undertake a Voyage into your Countrey, to sollicite your friendshippe towards the settling of a Trade and Commerce with your people as they have already done with dyvers other Nations, as farr dissident from you; Wherein as Wee have willinglie offered them our Royall approbation, as a matter which tendeth to the Honour of Almighty God, and advancement of the Weale Publique, So Wee hold it our part not to deny them any thing that may add eyther respect and countenance, or protection and safetie, in such their laudable endeavours: Upon which inducements, Wee have bene pleased to offer these desires of our Subjects to your favourable construction, perswading our selves, that as a Prince of Honour, and sence of your Subjects good, you will embrace this offer, and for their better encouragement, afford them libertie and safetie within your Dominions, for the settling of Trade and Commerce with your Subjects, with such Conditions of securitie and safetie as may be most convenient and necessarie for the Advancement and Mutuall profit and utilitie of each others Countries and People; In which respect Wee have given them power and autoritie to contract with you or your Officers, and Wee do not doubt but that their proceedings will prove as acceptable to you as they have bene to other your Neighbour Kings and Countries, with whom they have traded, to their good contentment; And that in Conformitie thereof you shall Charge and Commaund your Officers and Governors friendlie to receyve, ayde, and assist our People, and protect them against the Envy and Malice of others, that would goe about to wrong or interrupt them; And so Wee Committ you to the mercifull Direction of Almighty God; From our Pallace of Westminster the seaventh of Februarie, 1613, and in the eleaventh Yeare of our Raigne of Great Britaine, France, and Ireland. (Sign Manual) James R." There are marks of sewing, but not of any seal. The outside, which is also adorned with golden scroll-work, bears the direction "To the High and Mightie Monarche, the Great Emperor of China, etc." (It is believed that this document must have been brought to Shipton by a member of the Mytton family, who went to India and China in the early part of the reign of George III.)

A printed letter of Privy Seal, bearing the signatures of Charles I. and Edward Littleton, to Mr. Mitton of Shipton, requesting a loan of 30*l*. Dated at Oxford, February 14, 1643-4.

Letter from William Lenthall, Speaker of the House of Commons, to Colonel Copley in Yorkshire. In the name of the House, he thanks him and the officers and soldiers who were with him in the gallant action at Sherborne, where despite great disadvantage of numbers he had recovered a victory gained by the enemy. Dated at London, October 21, 1645.

Register of baptisms, marriages, and funerals, in the church of Shipton, from A.D. 1538 to A.D. 1792, in two books.

Transcript of a book formerly in the possession of Francis, Lord Newport, at Eyton, co. Salop, containing the Visitation of the county of Salop made by Robert Treswell, Somerset Herald, and Augustine Vincent, Rougecroix, A.D. 1623, that made by Richard Lee, Portcullis, A.D. 1584, and certain other genealogies.

At Linley Hall Mr. More has several hundred old deeds relating to property at Linley, More, Shelve, and Larden, co. Salop, some of which date from the reign of Henry III. The Abbot and Convent of Haughmond are mentioned in several of them, and others may be of considerable value to the future historian of Shropshire. It does not appear, however, that they contain any information of general interest.

I have to thank Mr. More for his kind hospitality both at Linley and at Shipton.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF W. F. PLOWDEN, ESQ.

MR.
PLOWDEN'S
MSS.

Although the family of Plowden has been seated at Plowden, in the county of Salop, for more than six centuries, its records are very scanty. Part of the library of Serjeant Plowden, the famous lawyer, remains in the possession of his descendant, but his correspondence has entirely disappeared. In a rapid search through the chest of muniments, undertaken by kind permission of Mr. Plowden, I did not come across any documents worthy of notice, except the three following:—

Agreement between Edward Sutton, knight, Lord Dudley, and Sir John Sutton, otherwise called Sir John Dudley, of the one part, and John Butler, gentleman, of the other, concerning the reversion of the manors of Aston in the Walles and Appletree (Appyltre), co. Northampton, after the decease of John Dudley, esquire, brother of the said Lord Dudley. Mention is made of the chapel of St. Alban in the Priory of Dudley. Dated August 29th, 21 Henry VIII. Signed by "Edward Lord Dudley," and by John Dudley. Seal attached.

Grant by John, Abbot of Westminster, and the convent of that place, to Edmund Plowden of the Middle Temple, esquire, for his life, of a yearly sum of 4*l.* issuing out of the manor of Northampstead, in consideration of his counsel to be given to the Abbot and his successors (pro consilio suo michi et successoribus meis imposterum impendendo). October 14, 5 and 6 Philip and Mary.

Grant by Robert, Earl of Leicester, K.G., to the same, of a yearly sum of 5*l.* issuing out of the castle and manor of Kenilworth, for the like consideration. December 7, 8 Elizabeth. Seal, and signature—"R. Leicester."

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF ALFRED SALWEY, ESQ.

MR.
SALWEY'S
MSS.

The following documents, formerly at Moor Park, are now at Overton, co. Salop:—

Copy of letters patent reciting and confirming divers charters to the Abbot and canons of Wigmore. May 14, 1 Henry VIII.

Letters patent granting to John Sikelmore, citizen and fishmonger of London, and Walter Williams, citizen and draper of the same, a tenement called "the Boreshed," with shops, etc. in Thames Street, in the parish of St. Botolph by Billingsgate, and divers other tenements in the city of London. July 3, 2 Edward VI. Great seal attached.

Letters patent granting to Philip Cockeram and Joyce his wife the site, etc. of the Abbey of Wigmore. January 7, 3 & 4 Philip and Mary. (See "Archæologia Cambrensis," 4th Series, vol. ii., pp. 230-234.)

A bundle of documents relating to the Cockeram family.

A roll of accounts, depositions, and other papers of the sixteenth century, relating to the tithes known as "the Prior's Tithes," and "the

Mr.
SALWEY'S MSS.

Almoner's Tithes," of Great Malvern, in the parishes, villages, townships, and hamlets of Powyke, Much Malvern, Baldenhall, Newland, and Woodfield.

Copy of a decree in the Court of Star Chamber against Sir Thomas Palmer of Angmering co. Sussex, and others, convicted of forgery. May 31, 9 James I.

Probate of the will of Rowland Bradshaw of Richard's Castle, co. Hereford, esq., dated November 11, 1625.

Presentation of Garnons Daunser, M.A., to the rectory of Burghfield, co. Berks. January 4, 1649. Fragment of Great Seal attached.

"Survey of the lands formerly parte of the chase of Bringwood (nowe inclosed) with the rights, members, and appurtenances thereof, scituate, lying, and being in the countie of Hereford, late parcell of the possessions or late belonging to William, Lord Craven." A.D. 1652.

A small notebook, bearing on the title-page the following inscription:—"This manuscript contains a sort of Diary of the Parliament which restored King Charles 2nd, which I communicated to the author of the Parliamentary History, who in his 23rd volume has made great use of it. I found it among a heap of useless papers and tracts in the old study of Hagley Hall, but know not who compiled it. 'Tis a very curious MS.—Charles Lyttelton."

CORRESPONDENCE OF MAJOR RICHARD SALWEY.

One bundle relates to the affairs of Lady Rochester, and another to those of Lady Knightley. Most of the remainder are ordinary family letters about money matters and sport, and contain very few allusions to politics, general or local. The following are the only letters which appear to have any historical interest:—

August 11, 1653. Oliver Cromwell to R. Salwey (holograph).—"Sir. I send not thus suddenly to begg thanks for my late present, but to provoake your anger by beinge the messinger of the Councell-desier of your paynes in an Embassie with Mr. Strickland for Swethes land, a thinge too longe neglected by us alreadye, and may bee of greater importance than any designe wee have of that kinde any wheare else. Your freinds heere will not be wantinge to you, or yours, in your absence (if God dispose your heart to accept the service). All accommodations wilbee suddenly readye, and indeed wee thinke your staye there neede not bee longe. I committ you to the Lord and rest Your affectionate servant—O. Cromwell. Van Trumpe was killed with a muskett shott on his brest, the day of the fight."

August 13, 1653. R. Salwey to Oliver Cromwell. Excuses himself from undertaking the embassy offered to him, on account of his unfitness through want of freedom of spirit and bodily health. Rejoices in the signal success which the Lord has vouchsafed at sea. Pious aspirations. (Draft on the back of the foregoing.)

August 14, 1654. Whitehall. The Protector to the Company of Merchants trading in the Levant seas. The late Parliament wrote to Sir Thomas Bendish, to recall him from his residence as Ambassador at Constantinople, sending their letters by Mr. Laurence, who was authorized to remain there as Agent, or Caya, until some fit person could be sent in the quality of Ambassador. Mr. Laurence is not yet received,

We have therefore appointed Richard Salwey, Esq. to succeed and remain our Ambassador in the port of Constantinople. — Signed, "Oliver P."

MR.
SALWEY'S MSS.

June 24, 1657. London. Robert Tichborne, Mayor of London, and ten Assistants, to Richard Salwey (Sallaway), esq. The Protector has, in pursuance of the votes of Parliament, A.D. 1641, restored to the Companies of London, Londonderry, Coleraine, and other lands in the province of Ulster. We request you to accompany some others as Commissioners into Ireland for the settling of such things as shall be necessary. We doubt not but the work may be finished so that you may return before the first of October next. Heraldic seal of the Mayor.

June 1657. Richard Salwey to the Lord Mayor of London. He has been in retirement for some years, and is incapable of performing the service expressed. His nearest relations are visited with sickness and weakness nigh unto death, and his own health will not suffer him to adventure upon such a service and trust. (Draft.)

October 27, 1659. Whitehall. The generall Council of officers of the Army to Richard Salwey. Invitation to serve on the Committee of Safety. Endorsed by R. Salwey:—"I utterly refuse to act as a member of that Committee." Heraldic seal. (A similar letter addressed to Bulstrode Whitelocke is printed in his "Memorials," p. 685, but with the omission of the Christian names of the officers who signed it, and some errors.)

November 22, 1659. Wallingford House. Lieut. Gen. Fleetwood to Major Richard Salwey.—"You being made choice of by the Generall Counsell of Officers of the Army as one of the Commissioners to agree upon the qualifications of the members for the next Parliament or supreme deligated authority, and being requested by the said counsell to give you notice thereof, I doe in their names desire you to meete on Thursday next in the horse Chamber at Whitehall by three of the clock in the afternoone." Signature and heraldic seal.

January 21, 1659 [-60]. "The Parliament being informed that Major Salwey is indisposed in his health, Resolved, etc.—That the Parliament doth dispense with Major Salwey's going to the Tower, and that the order of the 17th instant for his going to the Tower bee and hereby is remitted, And that he have liberty to goe into the country where hee shall thinke fitt. Signed by Thomas St. Nicholas, clerk of the Parliament.

March 1, 1659-60. Westmoreland. Thomas Gabetis, Under-Sheriff, to the Hon. Richard Salwey, Esq., a member of Parliament for the county of Westmoreland, at the Parliament door. "In pursuance of a letter from the Right Honourable the Speaker of the Parliament of the 25th of February last, I doe hereby summon your honour (as a member for this county sitting in Parliament in the year 1648) to repaire unto the speedy exercise of your trust in the house." Heraldic seal. Endorsed:—"On Saturday the 17th day of March 1659, this letter was delivered by Mr. Cooper the outward dore keeper unto me, Thomas Webster," and in the hand of R. Salwey, "Received this the 24 March at Whichwood Forrest and not before."

June 6, 1664. John Dryden (Driden) to Richard Salwey. Concerning the illness and affairs of his cousin Salwey.

September 28, 1676. London. Thomas Salwey to his father, Richard Salwey. On business. It is feared that we shall have a war with

Mr.
SALWEY'S MSS.

France. The Prince of Orange is daily expected at Court, insomuch that his Majesty put off his intended journey to Newmarket. The French have this week carried in an English vessell bound hither from Rotterdam. She has abundance of gold and silver aboard, designed for the East India Company, though, I believe, they were to have it delivered in London by the goldsmiths. Yesterday night it was reported that the Dutch had taken and sunk nearly a hundred sail of French fishermen at Newfoundland. If it proves true, it will be several thousands of pounds in the ways of the English merchants who trade in pilchards. Heraldic seal.

February 12, 1676-7. Smyrna. The same to the same. I arrived here safe on the 17th of January. Smyrna has all things very plentiful, and good honest society. Take the factory in general, London surpasses it by far for bad company and so for bad vices. Here a man may keep such company as he pleases. The consul has been very civil to me. I have already made great progress in the lingua. The Company, by sending so much cloth the shipping before this, had overstocked the market, there being at our arrival nearly 4,000 cloths in town.

January 30, 1677. Smyrna. The same to his brother, E. Salwey. Business is the life of this place. I am making what ready money I can to procure silk, which is not to be done without two-thirds money. We have sold for money, and bartered for cotton, about 40 cloths at above 36 per cent. profit. For drinking and other such vices London exceeds this place by far. Everybody is welcome here without any invitation, and no man is "imposed upon to drink," but every one as he pleases. For our diet we have what heart can wish, and recreation far exceeding any in England. (Copy.)

March 31, 1677. London. E. Salwey to his father, R. Salwey. The taking of Cambray seems doubtful, notwithstanding all the former reports. The King, I hear, has returned to Paris. A great part of the House of Commons are gone into the country, and it is supposed that the rest will adjourn themselves at Easter for five or six months, having given order that no more bills be brought in.—Postscript. April 1. Cambray is taken, but the citadel stands out. St. Omer is besieged in earnest. It is reported that our King has desired Parliament to dispatch what business they could between this and Easter, at which time they should be dismissed.

November 6, 1677. London. Thomas Salwey to his father. Cousin Posthumus has arrived at Marseilles (Marsellia), having narrowly escaped being made a slave, for he was at Algiers when the news came of our making war with them. The Consul, being great with the King, got him to be the person to carry to Marseilles letters from their King to ours, the King of Algiers paying his charges. The contents of these letters are unknown. The Prince of Orange was married on Sabbath day last. Dr. Manton is dead and buried. Seal.

October 5, 1678. London. Edward Salwey to his father. All the discourse here is about the late plot. The Council sits daily. It has proceeded to disarm all Papists, and committed the Duke of York's Secretary, one Coleman. The King has gone to Newmarket, and has doubled his guard. The letters from Flanders say that our King died at such a time, being about the time of the first discovery. Letters from Leghorn say that Sir John Newborough has re-taken a prize, and has burned two or three corn-ships in port at a fort 30 leagues to the eastward of Algier Mould, and has landed his men and taken a caravan of thirty camels laden with oil. Of this we must expect further confirmation.

MR.
SALWEY'S MSS.

October 14, 1678. London. The same to the same. My brother and I have made our wills, leaving each other to the value of about 1,000*l*. They proceed to disarm all Papists, keeping a double guard of watchmen in the respective parishes of our city. We are bound for Dover this morning.

October 17, 1678. Calais. Thomas Salwey to his father. We arrived here on Wednesday night. We were "wanting" from Dover some fourteen hours, which made our consorts "turn up their reckonings." We came ashore about nine at night, and, the gates being shut, were forced to "randevouse" in a small house, where I was "fainte to lye rough for want of a bedd." I hope our sisters may not be over desirous to see France. Seal.

Oct. 22-Nov. 2 (sic). 1678. Paris. Edward Salwey to his father. On Wednesday the wind blew hard so that "I cast up my reconings briskley, and brother Thomas partook of the same physick." The next day we had an opportunity of a messenger who conducted us to Boulogne, a very strong place. Normandy is a "champain" country, all arable land, but it exceeds Oxfordshire for sport. The next day we baited at Montreuil, a pleasant village, and lay at a small village called Berne (sic). The next day we baited at Abbeville, a fine city famous for pistols, and lay at Poix, a small village. The next day we baited at Beamont, and lay at Paris, having passed by St. Denis, a fine church, where the Kings of France are buried, and where this King's treasure lies. The buildings in this city are very fair, being high and plastered over in likeness of free stone, but not like our new buildings. Picardy is all arable. The partridges feed before us like chickens, and within half a mile of this place is a warren of hares. We saw near the road above a hundred brace feeding on the corn. We have not opportunity of the coach for Lyons, which goes 60 miles a day, and now we must stay till Tuesday to go by the messenger, a journey of nine days.

November 13, 1678. Montpellier. The same to the same. We came to Lyons in nine days. There is nothing remarkable but a clock which has a cock at the top that crows twice before it strikes, and the imitation of an angel bringing a cup to the Virgin Mary. We also saw the cabinet of Mr. Serviers who has spent his whole life in collecting curiosities. From Lyons we came down the river to St. Esprit, where there is a bridge of nearly forty arches. Sir James Rushout is here.

November 17-27, 1678. Marseilles. Thomas Salwey to his father. We have had a very pleasant summer's passage ever since our arrival in France. We arrived at Paris in six days from London, and were forced to spend nine days there. In that time we "made an address" to Versailles, where we had the fortune to have a view of the King at mass, and afterwards to meet him hunting a stag with some thirty couples of hounds. Our "mounteroes" made us to appear as Englishmen, insomuch that his Majesty took notice of us, and, seeing us ride more desperate than the French durst, gave me the word of command coming up with him—"Couragie Monsieur Angleterra." Upon this I made the French horse find that he had an Englishman upon him until the stag was pulled down, being the third person at his death, and giving such a "who howpe" as made King and Dauphin and Duke of Orleans laugh. This attempt was as much discoursed of at Paris as the taking a town in Flanders. The King is a very familiar, pleasant person, generally smiling. The Dauphin is a young, brisk man, much like an Englishman. We have been here three days, and must yet tarry eight or ten for a French merchantman bound for Leghorn. It is but two days' sail, and there is no danger of the Algerines, for they never search French ships.

Mr.
SALWEY'S MSS.

January 30, 1678-9. On board the Hannibal through the "neare" of Messina. Thomas Salwey to his brother Richard. We have arrived here "wanting" from Leghorn eight days. Capt. James in the Portland frigate made the Hannibal frigate his Vice-Admiral. Our frigate so named, being a cutter, has our pennant flying at fore-topmast head, our guns run out fore and aft, waste clothes, top arms, so at present we want nothing but a good prize ahead. Our fleet is now reduced to four sail, the Portland, K[ing's] ship, Hannibal, William and James, and Thomas and Francis, a ship of 400 tons freighted by Jews. Account of commercial transactions. Mr. Hoblyne in Smyrna has shipped for me some fruit in the London merchant, for return of fine watches, Seal.

April 20, 1679. Smyrna. Thomas and Edward Salwey to their father. We find troubles here, much to the dissatisfaction of the whole factory. Two of our merchants have been put in prison upon account of Mr. Pentlow, deceased, who married a Greek. The Grand Signior comes upon them, as his assignees, for 100,000 dollars, which will utterly ruin them. There is no relief to be had from our Ambassador, who says that they must pay the money or lie in prison. For want of a man of courage, we may all be eaten up by "avenees." Our Consul produces the Company's orders for him not to meddle with personal "avenees." We therefore find little protection from the Company, for which we pay all our "consolage" and other impositions. We have an excellent pack of dogs, having killed nearly thirty brace of hares this season. We hope to have as good sport at hawking. Heraldic seal.

July 10, 1679. Smyrna. Edward Salwey to his father. I have just "entered" my hawk, killing a brace of partridges very well, but this country is only fit for short-winged hawks, being so hilly and full of bushes that brother Thomas has given away his tassell Gentil, and proposes to procure a goshawk or tassell.

July 15, 1679. Smyrna. The same to the same. This is a very sickly time with us, one young man having died of the Smyrna fever, which is no less than the spotted fever. If a good conveyance for Marseilles presents itself, I shall return with one or two merchants. 'Tis true there is some danger of the Tripolines, but we have peace. The charge is less than by the general ships, and one avoids the occasions of drinking, which in a general ship is to great excess and not easily to be shunned. In winter there is hazard of losing company with the other ships, in which case there is far greater danger of the Algerines, who are our enemies. We have had a great earthquake here. At a city called Rovon on the borders of Persia near Ispahan (Spohoun), they had one which continued six days, till the earth sunk under it, and immediately it was covered with water, as were twenty-four adjoining villages. 1,500 souls were lost. The Grand Signior is going to war with the Muscovites.

February 10, 1679-80. Smyrna. Thomas and Edward Salwey to their father. We have an Ambassador who makes it his whole business to enrich himself, and permits the Turks to raise "evenees" on us contrary to our capitulations. The last letters brought us the good news of the Lord Chancellor being turned out, and we question not that a new Ambassador will speedily follow. Sir Leoline Jenkins is talked of, who, we think, is a friend of yours. It may be a great advantage to us to have a friend at court. We have sent cousin Postumous to Athens, to lade oils for this port. We have endeavoured to procure short-winged hawks, and have bought a cast of wild ones taken in nets as in England. One of them, a tassell of goshawk, being an "intermewer," brother Edward perfectly "manned" in fifteen days, but when he took her to the field to "enter," she dropped off his fist dead of the cramp and vertigo, "a shrewd discouragement" to a young falconer. The other, a very fair goshawk, we have kept in close hood, and we send her home to you by the general ships. The hawks of this country must needs be very good, for the partridges fly much harder than ours, and the Turks never begin to fly before Christmas. Our hunting succeeds well. We never want convoy any three months in the year for Zante, Leghorn, Cadiz, or England. In the month past we had above forty earthquakes, many of which were very terrible. Three villages within ten miles of us have been thrown down. Heraldic seal.

MR.
SALWEY'S MSS.

March 25, 1680. Smyrna. The same to the same. We have hopes of our new Ambassador, who may be expected in August. We have as good a pack of harriers as any in England, having already killed twenty-six brace. We have sent "a considerable estate" by the general ships. As they go under good convoy, there is no danger of Algerines, our only enemies. Heraldic seal.

April 26, 1681. The case of Joseph Baugh, son of Francis Baugh, a fisherman of Pershore, a captive in Algiers, for whose ransom 100*l*. was raised at Bristol.

June 15, 1685. Hereford. Herbert Croft and eight other justices of the peace to Richard Salwey. Order to appear at the Swan and Falcon in Hereford on the 18th inst. Endorsed:—"Dismist 14 July 1685, with promise to return on summons."

A bundle of letters from Sir Ashton Lever to Edward Salwey, about natural history, etc. A.D. 1772-1781.

Mr. Salwey has kindly given me every facility for examining the documents in his possession.

batch, and other places, co. Salop, Ludford and Upton, co. Hereford, and Church Stoke and Mellington, co. Montgomery. The following are, perhaps, the most important to the topographer and genealogist:—

Grant by William de Whitton to Joan his daughter for her marriage (ad se maritandam), of half a virgate of land at Whitton. Witnesses:—Sir R. Abbot, of Wigmore, Willam Carbonel, and twelve others named. Fragment of large seal attached. (Early 13th century.)

Grant by Walter de Lacy (Lasey) to Robert the clerk, son of Robert de Stanton, of a virgate of land at Nash (Akes) which Reginald son of Osbern formerly held. Witnesses:—Gerard of Anjou (Andegavensi), and ten others named. Heraldic seal attached, and counter-seal. (13th century.)

Grant by William Falconer, son of William Falconer of Ludlow, to the Hospital of St. Mary of Ludlow by the bridge of Teme (Thamed) and the brethren thereof, of twelve acres of land and eleven ridges (scillones) at Ludford, in consideration of thirteen pounds paid to him by brother Peter Undergod, founder and warden of the same. Witnesses:—Hugh Carburnell, and seventeen others named. Large seal attached. (13th century.)

Grant by Richard de Muchegros to Walter de Clifford, son of William de Clifford, in free marriage with Rose his daughter, of the land which he bought of Osbert Donvill in the vill of Nash (Eshse). Witnesses:—Walter de Clifford, Roger de Clifford, and eight others named.

Grant by William de Clifford, lord of Nash (Esses), to John son of Walter de Weston, of a piece of land in the fee of Nash (Esses). Witnesses:—Sir Adam de Aumeruge, knight, William de Wetemore, and six others named. Seal attached. (13th century.)

Grant by Walter de Clifford, son of William de Clifford, to Cecilia de Goeckinmeina, of half a virgate of land in the vill of Nash (Esshe). Witnesses:—Roger de Longeb', then steward, Roger de Bitterley (Buterleg), John Sturmi, and ten others named. Heraldic seal attached. (13th century.)

Charter of William Devereux (de Ebroycis), reciting and confirming several long charters of his father, Stephen Devereux, to the church of St. Leonard of Wormeleye (de Pyonia), and the canons thereof. Witnesses:—Sir Antolin, Dean of Hereford, Sir William le Rus, Sir Richard de Montegarnier, Sir Henry de Ponebrugge, Sir Walter Devereux, Sir Walter de Eylesford, Sir William de Bracy, Sir Roger de Clifford, knights, Sir John, Sheriff of Hereford, Sir Hugh de Clifford, Walter Marscall, and others. Dated Good Friday, A.D. 1256. Heraldic seal attached.

Release by Henry le Moneour of Ludlow to his son John le Moneour, of all his right in the manor of Whytton. Witnesses:—Roger, lord of Bitterley (Buterleye), Walter de Clifford, and five others named. Dated Wednesday after the feast of St. Peter in cathedra, 29 Edw. I. Seal attached, with legend—"Sigillum Henrici Monetarii."

Confirmation by Walter, Archbishop of Canterbury of several charters of William de Bleys, Bishop of Worcester, appropriating the churches of Priors Cleeve, Sodbury (Sobbery), Bromsgrove (Brenmesgrave), Grinley (Grynneleye), and the chapel of Hallow, to the Prior and Convent of Worcester. Confirmation dated at Leicester, 5 Ides April, 1318.

The following persons are mentioned in deeds of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries:—Hugh Carbonel, lord of Overton and Ashford, and Juliana his wife, 16 Edw. II.; Howel Vachan, lord of Ludford, and Joan his wife, 4 Edw. III.; Sir Hugh le Cheine and Margaret his wife, 48 Edw. III.; Alice, relict of William Wasteneys, knight (with

It mentions thirteen rooms covered with lead, a tower on the outer wall on the eastern side containing a stable and two rooms covered with tiles, two other rooms called "le new buyldinge" situate on the outer wall between the building over the gate and the tower called "le Prison Tower."

Part of a historical and descriptive account of the county of Worcester, written on twelve pages of folio paper, in or about the time of Elizabeth.

A bundle of articles, depositions, etc. against John Tyler, clerk, minister of Greet, co. Salop, with orders concerning him by the Committee for Plundered Ministers, and the Bishop of Hereford. A.D. 1649-1664.

"A bill of fees due to the King's servants [from] persons that receive the honour of Knighthood," with an acquittance of Sir Nicholas Lechmere, knight, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, for 86*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* paid by him on the occasion of his being knighted, A.D. 1689.

Besides the above, Mr. Parkinson has several hundred letters written to different members of the families of Charlton and Foley, during the reigns of William III., Anne, and George I. Some few of them relate to business matters, but the greater number are gossiping letters from ladies, describing the proceedings of the fashionable world in London and at Bath. Many of them are very whimsical and amusing. The following passage occurs in a letter from M. Hill, dated London, Saturday October the 9th [1714]. "I know nothing of the King's person tho I saw the entry, which was not in anything finner then what we have before had, tho the gentlemen were well dressd, but for want of ladys there was a great lose in the shew, as will be at the coronation, which certainly cant be near so fine as twas at the poor Queen's. When the Princess will come in is uncertain, tho she was expected at the Hague yesterday, but the wind is now against her coming over. The Prince promises the ladys a very gay court. They say hes much inclined to that sort of life, plays a pritty deal but very low. The King has supd with several of the noblemen. He hates much granduer, he goes in a Hackny chair and pays em himself. He thinks our court has to much state. His 2 favourite Turks and Mademosel Killmansect I guese you have heard of, tho perhapes not of the mistake that one of them lead his Majesty into some nights agoe, when about 9 or 10 at night he was going to this Mademosels, who has a house in St. James Street next door to Lady Renelows, where this confidant knockd. The chair carried in and opened, but the King soon saw his mistake, set himself down, and ordered to the next house. Whether it proved a jest to him I dont hear, but a very good one it has bin to the Town, and this Lady withall is very ugly."

The main interest of this correspondence is social rather than political. I have to thank Mr. Parkinson for his hospitality at Ludford House.

CORPORATION
OF WENLOCK
MSS.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE CORPORATION OF WENLOCK.

The following manuscripts are in the custody of Mr. Cooper, the Town Clerk of the borough of Wenlock:—

Charter of Edward IV. for the incorporation of the borough of Wenlock, granted at the request of Sir John Wenlock, knight, lord of Wenlock, and in consideration of the laudable services which the men of that town performed in assisting the King to gain possession of the crown of England. November 29, 7 Edw. IV.

Charter of Charles I. to the Corporation of Wenlock. December 19, anno regni 7. [A.D. 1631.]

Charter of George I. for two fairs at Wenlock. August 5, anno regni 6.

A minute-book written on paper and paged (ff. 1-802). It contains records of the admission of burgesses, and the election of officers, copies of Bailiffs' accounts, and other miscellaneous entries. Among them are the following:—

f. 14. Ordinances, statutes, and constitutions of the borough of Wenlock. (15th century.)

f. 91. List of the burgesses elected on Tuesday after the feast of St. Gregory the Bishop ("Pope" erased), 8 Edward IV. John Lawley, Bailiff; Roger, Prior of Wenlock; William Clerke, esq.; Richard Owen, vicar; Thomas Lawley the elder; Edmund Benthale; John More of Larden, and others named.

f. 123. Ordinance concerning the Bailiff's accounts. October 2, 24 Henry VIII.

f. 149. Account of expenses for food provided at the time of the sessions. 24 Henry VIII.

f. 169. Ordinances concerning the officers of the borough. October 2, Henry VIII.

f. 174. Account of expenses concerning a confirmation of the charter, 37 Henry VIII.:—"to the Barrons of the Escheker, 6s. 8d."; "to the Kynges Attorney for his paynes with Kyng, 40s."; "leyd owt in the expences of the Kynges comyssyoneres and the Lorde Powys, 3s. 4d."

f. 183. Account of a payment "for the costes of Edward Dycke and Larans Bondull for gowing to Madley to take an inventory of Ive Fystons goodes howe was proclemed a rebell for withdrawing hy frome the Kynges mustures, 8d." 3 Edw. VI.

f. 216. "The proclamacion made and dyvised by the Kynges hyghnes our soveraygne Lord and his most honorable counsayle nat only for usyng and exerceysyng of long bowes and mayntayning of archery within his realme, but also for puttyng downe and dystroying of crossebowes and hand gones, and other unlawfull games used within his said realme, contrary to his lawes and laudable statutes in that behalf made, ordered, and provyded." It is stated that, notwithstanding divers statutes, "archerye and shotyng in longe bowes is sore and marvelously decayed, and in manner utterly extyncte, and speccially by the newefanglenesse and wanton pleasure that som men now have in usyng of crossebowes and hand gones, whereby also great nombre of people be gevyng to ydylnes, and to the unlawfull destruction of dere and other bestes and fowles within warrens, forestes, chaces and parkes." The King therefore forbids the use of cross-bows and hand-guns, which are to be taken from those who use them, and broken in the nearest town in the presence of the governor. Search is also to be made for cross-bows and hand-guns in private houses by any persons having knowledge of them. No cross-bows are to be made in the realm "except it be to and for suche person or persons as may lawfully therin shote." It is also ordered "that noo manner of person or persons use, exercise, or haunt any playing at the tenyes, dyce, bowles, cardes, tables, or any other unlawfull games," and that persons keeping hostelries, inns, or alehouses, shall suffer persons authorised by the King to take and burn "the said tables, dyce, cardes, bowles, closshes, pynnes, balles, and all other thynges pertayning unto the said unlawfull games." It is also ordered that persons shall inform the justices of the peace of the

f. 668. Constitutions and ordinances. September 22, 12 Charles I.

f. 710. Order for the displacement of Francis Smith, gent., from the offices of Common Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, of the borough of Wenlock, in consequence of his being adjudged a delinquent by ordinance of Parliament. September 19, 1646.

f. 720. Ordinance concerning burgesses, fees of officers, etc. June 27, 1646.

f. 722. Ordinances and constitutions. July 27, 1646.

Three volumes of notes of proceedings in the local Court of Record for the recovery of small debts.

A great bundle of constable's presentments, etc., of the 17th and 18th centuries, which require examination and arrangement. Some documents among them contain curious notices of actors, morris-dancers, Sabbath-breakers, and other offenders, in the time of the Commonwealth. It is moreover possible that careful search among some unsorted papers in the presses in the Guildhall might bring to light interesting facts connected with the history of the borough.

A few ancient deeds, not belonging to the Corporation, are preserved in the Much Wenlock Agricultural Reading-Room. Among them are the two following:—

Deed of John de Cusancia, Prior of Bermondsey, resigning his office into the hands of Henry, Prior of Wenlock. Dated at Wenlock, October 8, 1360.

Grant by William Shepherde of Dartford, co. Kent, to Sir Thomas Secheford, perpetual vicar of that parish, and three other persons, of a yearly rent of seven gallons of oil, for the maintenance of a lamp hanging in the nave (in gremio) of the parochial church, before the high cross. Dated Sunday after the feast of St. Augustine, 41 Edw. III.

My attention has been called to the following entries in the parochial registers of the church of the Holy Trinity, Much Wenlock:—

"Note that upon the 26 daye of June was service celebrated first in the English tonge, anno primo Elizabethe, 1559."

"Upon the 23 and 24 days of this monethe of September 1577, was reared the house over the prison house."

"Upon the 16 day of June 1594, after it had lightened and thundered all night, at four of the clocke in the morninge, the barn next the summer halle in the abbey was found to have ben set on fire by a lighteninge, whiche fire by God's help and rediness and diligence of the people of the town was soon quenched."

"Walter Hancox, free mason, was buryed the 16 day of September [1599]. This man was a very skilfull man in the art of masonry, in settinge of plottes for buildinges and performinge of the same, ingravinge in alebaster and other stone or playster, and in divers other giftes that belonge to that art, as dothe appeare by his workes whiche may be seene in divers partes of England and Walles, moste sompteouse buildings, most stately tombes, most curyous pictures. And to conclude in all workes he tooke in hand he hathe lefte behinde him longe lastinge monuments of skilfull workmanship, and besides theese qualiteyes, he had others whiche passed these, he was a most honest man, devout and zelouse in religion, pittifull to the poore, and had the love and good will of all his honeste neighbours."

"These are humbly to certifie that Judith Horriman of the parish of Much Wenlock yn County of Salop, who is commonly reported to have that disease called the King's Evil, hath not at any time before been touched by his Majestie, to the intent to be healed of that disease. August 23, 1687." There are several similar certificates, signed by the vicar and the churchwardens.

The Town-Clerk, Mr. Cooper, Dr. Brooks, and the Rev. F. S. Ellis have respectively done their utmost to facilitate my work at Much Wenlock, and I regret that the result proves so small.

Old Burgess Book, giving the names of the burgesses from the reign of Charles II. to that of William IV. inclusive, in alphabetical order.

Book of Surveys, A.D. 1693.

A volume containing records of the appointment of officers and the admission of burgesses, in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

The Chamberlains' Accounts, written on rolls of parchment year by year, are preserved in a beautiful old chest bound with iron. In looking through nearly a hundred of these rolls, I have noted many entries illustrative of political events, ancient customs, and social life, but besides these there are many others which would throw light on the topography of the town. The accounts run from the beginning of January in each year. All the following extracts relate to payments, and the dates are here given according to the modern style:—

1550. "20*d.* to the players."

"5*s.* to the Kynges mynstrelles."

"8*d.* to Roger Dyxon for mending the chymes."

"20*d.* for bryngyng up and downe of the gummell-stalle (the cucking stool)."

Regulations for the management of ale-houses.

f. 196. A short speech in Latin made by Queen Elizabeth to members of the University of Oxford, in which she acknowledges her own want of learning.

f. 199b. A Latin epitaph on Sir George Blount, on a monument erected by his nephew and heir Roland Lacon. A.D. 1581.

A Latin epitaph on Sir John Blount, son and heir of Sir Thomas Blount, son and heir of Sir Humphrey Blount, and Dame Catherine, wife of the said Sir John, daughter and heiress of Sir Hugh Persall, by Dame Isabel his wife, daughter of Sir John Stanley. (Temp. Hen. VIII.)

A Latin epitaph on Sir Humphrey Blount, son and heir of John Blount, esquire, son and heir of Sir John Blount. October, 1477.

An English inscription in honour of Sir Thomas Blount and Dame Anne his wife, (A.D. 1513), from a window on the north side of Stockton church.

An English epitaph on Margaret daughter of Sir J. Atherston, who had four husbands.

f. 201. "A pleasant swete song" to the tune of Callivo. A.D. 1594. Ninety-two lines. It begins:—

"In sommer tyme when Phebus rays."

Ten pages of paper, folio, stitched within two leaves of an old service-book. They contain a draft or copy of the orders made by Sir Henry Sidney, Lord President of the Marches of Wales, Sir Andrew Corbet, Sir John Throgmorton, William Gerard, William Leighton, William Fowler, Walter Leveson, Thomas Powell, Robert Needham, Rowland Lacon, William Gratwood, Simon Kemsye, and Richard Lea, esquires, on behalf of themselves and others appointed by the Queen, to survey and amend the sewers, etc., of the river Severn within the county of Salop. A jury returned at Shrewsbury, March 24, 17 Elizabeth, present the names of the weirs and stakings which stop the course of the river Severn and are noisome and dangerous to all passengers on the same "with floates of wood, cobles, barges, or owes," and the names of the owners of the said weirs and stakings:—1, Hay Weir at Molverley, Edward Leighton, esqr.; 2, Shrawardine Parva Weir, Henry Deyes and Roger Deyes; 3, Montford Weir, Thomas Bromley, esqr., Solicitor General; 4, Mitton Weir, Thomas Bromley, as before; 5, Fitz Weir, Sir Andrew Corbet; 6, Halywell Weir, Joyce Maunsell, widow; 7, Pimley Weir, John Yonge, esqr.; 8, Preston Weir, Rowland Barker, esqr.; 9, a weir at Tyernes-mouth, Rowland Barker, as before; 10, Wroxeter Weir, Thomas Poynes, esqr.; 11, Eyton Weir, Dame Margaret Newport, widow; 12, Eaton Constantine Weir, Sir Andrew Corbet; 13, Cressage Weir, Dame Margaret Newport, as before; 14, the weir with two mouths, John Cunye, gentleman; 15, Buildwas Weir, Edward Gray, esqr.; 16, Buildwas Weir below the bridge, Edward Gray, as before; 17, Benthall Weir, Richard Benthall, gent.; 18, Bower Weir, John Brooke, esqr.; 19, Robin's Weir, James Clifford, esqr.; 20, Lyed's Weir, James Clifford, as before; 21, Hay Weir, John Brooke, as before; 22, Swiney Weir, George, Earl of Shrewsbury; 23, Apley Weir, Sir Thomas Lucy; 24, Quatford Weir, John Muckeleye, gent.; 25, Dudmaston Weir, Francis Woolryche, esqr.; 26, Arley Weir, Sir John Littleton; 27, Eymer Weir, Sir John Littleton, as before; 28, Dowles Weir, Sir George Blount, and William Hill, gent. Item a "boylet" called Crouchill boylet adjoining the land of the manor of Atcham.

GATACRE'S MSS.

Orders made by the Commissioners:—

(1.) That the owners of the different weirs between the place called "The Boat of Camerar" and Bewdley shall, before the last day of March next, leave 50 ft. in width of clean water in the deepest part of the river for the "ballengers" vessels and boats to pass up and down, and remove the willows and other trees, stakes, etc., on the sides of the boylets of the said weirs.

(2.) That John Beest, gent., shall turn the river into its former course at Crouchill Boylet.

(3.) That the hedges of the weirs or boylets, and the hedges at the mouths of each, shall not be more than 3 ft. in height above the ground.

(4.) That all stakings, stakes, piles, hooks, engines, fences, "fisher-garthes," locks, and other annoyances and "letts," upon the water side, shall be pulled up by the owners.

(5.) That all trees, underwood, and bushes, upon the banks of the river, where mariners, bargemen, and fishermen ought to use their ropes to hale and draw their ballengers, barges, and boats, up and down, shall be cut down by the owners to a distance of 40 ft. from the bank.

(6.) That the mariners, bargemen, boatmen, fishermen, and "haylers" of the ballengers, etc., shall have and enjoy the footways and line-ways on both sides of the river, and the necessary bridges over the ditches, and stiles over the hedges.

(7.) That all persons claiming any trees or wood now lying in the stream shall remove them and any things which stop the water-course or gather the gravel.

(8.) That all weirs erected within the last fifty years shall be removed by the owners at their own cost.

(9.) That certain alterations, minutely specified, shall be made at the weir above Buildwas Bridge, right against the mansion house of the dissolved monastery.

(10.) That the mouths of the five weirs below Buildwas Bridge, viz., Benthall Weir, etc., shall be widened by the owners at their own cost.

(11.) That whereas James Clifford, esquire, has made a "coal-delf," or coal-pit, in his lordship of Brosley at a place called Tuckeyes, and cast all the rubbish, stones, and earth into the deepest part of the river Severn, he shall remove the same at his own cost.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF S. ZACHARY LLOYD, ESQ.

Mr. Lloyd of Areley Hall, near Stourport, has inherited a number of ancient deeds relating to property at Areley, Martley, Suckley, Alfrick, and Kempsey, co. Worcester, and Ledbury, co. Hereford, some of which illustrate the history of the families of Cole, Hanley, and Nash. He has also a great number of letters and papers of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries, mostly relating to the affairs of the families of Mucklow and Zachary. The following appear to be the most important:—

Confirmation by John, Prior of Worcester, and the Convent of that place of a charter of William, formerly Bishop of Worcester, granting to his chamberlain, Adam de Houdene, for his good service, two messuages and a virgate of land, etc., at Bromhale within the manor of Kempsey (Kemeseye). Confirmation dated Kalends of April, 1313. Conventual seal attached.

MR. ZACHARY
LLOYD'S MSS.

Letters patent confirming the above, in consideration of a fine of one mark. Westminster, November 15, 14 Edw. II. Fragment of Great Seal attached.

Grant by Hugh son of John de Aldenham to Roger son of Thomas de Hanleye and Joan wife of the said Roger, of all his lands, etc., in the manor of Suckley (Sukkeleye), co. Worcester, save the reversion of Lollesheye when it shall happen by the death of Margaret, wife of John de Berkeleye. Witnesses:—Sirs Robert de Bracy and John de Sapy, knights, Richard de Hopton, Richard Andrew of Leyghe, Robert of the Grove (Othe Grove) of Hanley, and others. July 18, 15 Edw. III. Heraldic seal attached.

Release by Baldwyn de Fryvill, knight, to Henry Hillary, knight, and John Quyli, and to the heirs of the said Henry, of all his right in the lands which the said John holds in Middelton. 21 Edw. III. Heraldic seal attached.

Letters of attorney of William de Gunthorp to receive monies issuing from the manors of Crown East (Crownest) and Rudghill (Ruggehall), co. Worcester. September 11, 14 Ric. II. Heraldic seal attached.

Letters of attorney of Adam Moleyns, Doctor of Laws, Dean of Salisbury, and Prothonotary of the Apostolic See, to give seisin of a teneement called Howdens, etc., in the vill of Kempsey and Broomhall. January 29, 22 Henry VI. Heraldic seal attached.

Release by Henry Skidder of Kempsey, son and heir of William Skidder deceased by Alice his wife, which William Skidder was son and heir of Thomas Skidder likewise deceased, to John Moore of Evesham, Doctor of Canon Law, and William Alexander of Lygh of all his right in lands, etc., in the vill of Kempsey, formerly belonging to his said father and mother. January 20, 7 Hen. VII. Seal attached.

Grant by Alice, relict of William Skudder, to John More, clerk, and William Alexander, of lands, etc., in the manor of Kempsey. January 9, 7 Hen. VII. Heraldic seal attached.

Demise by Sir Thomas West, knight, lord of the manor of Martley, to Sir William Seward, clerk, of a messuage called Coleys House, near the parish church of Martley, for a term of forty years, at a rent of 2s. over and above 12d. which the said Sir William binds himself and his assigns to bestow yearly in keeping an obit for the said Sir Thomas, in the said church. August 2, 14 Henry VIII. Large heraldic seal, with quarterings, affixed.

Bond of John Lyttylton of Frankley, co. Worcester, esq., to Stephen Colyar in 600*l*. April 1, 20 Henry VIII. Signature and seal of John Lyttylton, and seal of the Bailiffs of Worcester, the seal of the former being unknown to many persons.

Account-book of William Mucklow, merchant, in the Passe Mart at Barro, in the Synxon Mart at Antwerp, in the Cold Mart and in Bamys Mart. A.D. 1511. It records sales of white drapery, and purchases of various goods—a ball battery, fustian, buckram, knives, sugar, brushes, satin, damask, sarsenet, velvet, pepper, Yssyngham cloth, spectacles, swans' feathers, girdles, "socket," treacle, green ginger, ribands, brown paper, Brabant cloth, pouches, leather buckets, "antony belles," "sacke belles," sheets, etc., and the names of the vessels in which the goods were shipped.

Letter from William Mucklow at London to his son Richard at Antwerp, desiring him to purchase various articles, among which he specifies a cross-bow with a rack to it, the smallest little rack that can bend the bow. Tuesday, July 19, 1519.

Account of John Father and Richard Mukelow, wardens of the church of St. Helen [at Worcester]. 10-11 Henry VIII. (or perhaps A.D. 1510-1511). The receipts amount to 6*l.* 8*s.* 9½*d.* under the following heads:—"Arearges (arrears), Lux fulgebit, Pascall money, Whitsone-tide, Owre Lady light, S. Katherine light, Standinges afore the churche, Clarkes wages, Peterferthinges, Pewe money, Forene recept." Among the payments are the following:—"For holly and eyvy agenst Crestemas 2*d.* . . . for collis (coals) at Ester unto the halowinge of the fyre, 2*d.* . . . for the taking downe of the olde organs and the loft of them, and for the mending of the rode loft, 3*s.* 4*d.* . . . for the Peter ferthinges, 3*s.*"

Account of Richard Mukelow and Thomas Bullenham, wardens of the same church, 11-12 Henry VIII. (or perhaps A.D. 1511-1512). Among the payments are the following:—"For wachinge of the light abowte the Sepulture, 2*d.* . . . for the halowinge a chalis, 8*d.*"

LETTERS, ETC.

[July, 1513.] Humphrey Rudyng to William Mucklow. When my wife brings your money, deliver to her such stuff as I left with you in gage at my departing. "Soche newis as I knowe of truthe that I was at and say [? saw] my self I send to you, whiche newis I pray you to show to my lorde Prior of the Monastery of Worcettur (Worcester), for he is my goode lorde. I am suré he wilbe glad to here tydynges out of this quartar." On Sunday, the 10th of July, Frenchmen in Terouenne (Turwyne) made a great "skrye" about midnight, and rung the bells in alarm, for Englishmen shot guns so fierce and so thick against the walls and the gates, and into the town, that they thought to have lost the town and to have been slain, man and child. That same night, the fairest young women within the town, many dozen in number, were slain by the falling of a house, whose death is greatly moaned amongst the best within the town. The walls of Terouenne are sore beaten with guns, and many houses are broken and destroyed. Great trenches have been made on our part, from the Lord Chamberlain's field, in the south-east part of the town, to the south-west part, near hands compassing three parts of the town. Our guns lie "withyn a birbolt shote to the wallis," and our miners are near the walls. I trust that by St. James's day the lord captain and the army shall drink wine in Terouenne of the best. The Frenchmen daily make "skryes" without the walls, and make trains to have Englishmen out of the trenches among their gunshot. Men have been slain on both parts, the more part Frenchmen. On Saturday, St. Kenelm's eve, six thousand Frenchmen showed themselves upon a hill-side, a mile from the lord captain's field, upon the north-west side. Sir Rice ap Thomas with spearmen, set a wing upon them, and so put them to fight, slew three, drowned two, and took four live prisoners. On Sunday, St. Kenelm's day, Frenchmen shewed themselves on the south part of Terouenne in the afternoon, to have our men among their gunshot if they might, but our men drove them in at the gates, and galled them with arrows. No man on our part was hurt. This is of truth, for Mr. Talbot and I were out. Our standards played at all the premises. On Monday after St. Kenelm's day, Frenchmen counter-mined upon our miners, and with gunpowder and wildfire burned two of our miners to death. Three others of them lie burned, more likely to die than to live. Between Terouenne and Montreuil (Muttrell) there are sixteen thousand Frenchmen, who say that they will give no battle, but we think rather that they intend to strengthen Terouenne. The lord captain of the vanguard with his men, and the lord Chamberlain, lord captain of the second ward with his company, so prepare for them that they shall fail of their purpose.

August 12 [1517]. The Fleet. Thomas Leeke to his brother, Sir John Leeke, knight. I have escaped this sweating sickness, howbeit I have been sore vexed with it, and in danger of my life. If you or any others my friends fortune to have it in your parts, I pray you to keep well and close about your breasts and your heart for twenty-four hours, and then, with God's grace, there is no danger in it.

There has been a marvellous great death for so short a time. In my Lord Cardinal's house, Master Cowper the steward, and one Talboys (Taylebus), Lord of Kyme, and young Wastness and one Grenell, with divers others, to the number of fifteen, are dead of it. Doctor Port and Doctor Fysche with divers others in my Lord [Bishop] of Durham's house are dead of it. My Lord Clinton, one Master Morgan, steward to the Queen and one Matthew Jones of the King's wardrobe were buried at Richmond on Friday last, and divers more of the Court are dead.

The King is at Hanworth, three miles from Richmond, and the Queen with him, and not more than twenty persons with them. Yesterday the King sent writings to my Lord Cardinal [Wolsey], and my Lord Cardinal to him, as hastily as could be, but for what cause we know not. My Lord Cardinal intends to ride to Walsingham shortly, and he said that we should be rid out of the Fleet, upon sureties to appear the next term, all that were here by his commandment. I have lost a great loss of my cousin Montgomery (Mungumere), for he was very faithful and good to me. The bearer is his servant. Thank my lord for me, and pray him to write to my Lord Cardinal for me, or to my Lord [Bishop] of Durham, for my counsel thinks that I have great wrong on account of my long imprisonment.

October 25 [N. Y.]. The Fleet. The same to the same. On legal business. Sir Henry Clifford recommends him unto you. He has been prisoner here this fortnight, and he is waxen a sad gentleman. Sir George Darcy (Darse) was prisoner with him. On Friday last they were both with my Lord Cardinal [Wolsey] at Hanworth, and for doubt of the plague he has delivered them, but he has no more pity on me than he had on the first day. As he went from Westminster, there died one of his chapel, and now the King comes one day to him, and he goes another day to the King. As far as I can hear, there is no parish in London free. Sir Robert Watton's creditors marvel of him that he comes not with 269*l*. He works sore against my brother Foljambe and me, both here and there secretly.

LLOYD'S MSS.

March 24 [1518]. The Fleet. The same to the same. On business matters. On Saturday last the King and my Lord Cardinal [Wolsey] with others of the Council dined with my Lord [Bishop] of Durham, where answer was made to the heralds of France, Scotland, and Spain, and all is peace, as we hear. On the same day Dr. Clerk, who is now of the King's Council, was commanded to come to the Fleet, and he had all the prisoners' names, and the orders that were taken for them written over their names. He delivered twenty-three prisoners, whereof I am none. I am commanded to remain to the next term, and Sir William Brereton, and Peter Dutton also. Yet Dr. Clerk spake as well to my Lord Cardinal for me as if I had been his own brother, for he was of my counsel before he became chaplain to my Lord Cardinal. He thought that Master Watton might be moved by indifferent friends to suffer such process to pass with me as my counsel should devise, or else to make no suit against me save in my Lord [Archbishop] of Canterbury's court. The King is gone to Abingdon (Habbyngton), and there will keep his Easter. At Midsummer he and my Lord Cardinal will ride northward as far as York and further.

July 2 [1518]. The Fleet. The same to the same, at Sutton. On legal business. There will be shortly a Legate from Rome. He (Campeggio) is coming to England on Monday next, and we think that he will be in London about the end of the term. My Lord Cardinal [Wolsey] is made Legate a latere, whereby he has the Pope's authority in England. It is thought that the Cardinal who is coming will be received as nobly as if the Pope's Holiness were here himself. The Bishop of Bath's place is reserved for him. "There is 12 beddes costes 4 hundreth pound of my Lord Cardinal's costes here, and a peyre of the greytyst organes that ever was see in England, and many other instrumentes within the same organes." The King is coming this night to Greenwich, and it is thought that he will not go far from London this summer.

Sunday after St. Andrew's Day [December, 1548?]. London. Antony Harecourt to Thomas Arden at the Lodge [co. Warwick]. The bishops sit still at Lambeth, and are not agreed as yet. I hear say they have desired to have the Bishop of Worcester in amongst them. As for mass, it is in London as it is in the country, some of the old-fashioned and some of the new. They have done nothing in the Parliament house as yet, and they have been "lettyd," for the roof was ready to have fallen down, and this while they made it again. For the parson of Pedmore you can get his non-resident of no man but of my Lord Protector, and they say that there are not four in England that have non-residents. A Doctor told me that the fees of the same will cost 5*l.* or 6*l.*, besides the suit to my lord Protector, which he would not take upon him to get for 20*l.* The statute is that the parson must be there one day in the month, and must not be away two months in all the year, if every time were set together. If he should be the Bishop of Exeter's chaplain, he must be commonly there, to be known to be his chaplain. It is said that men die much in many places in London, but they bury them so privily that I can see none. If anyone goes before Christmas to Master Mucklow, you may send word that it is a mortal shame that he pays not his money to his son-in-law, for he has sent Master Mucklow in pleasures worth 20 marks, and he never sent him again the value of a cheese. Master Brutnell is High-Sheriff of Warwickshire and Leicestershire. He is a Northamptonshire man, but he has a house and lands in Leicestershire.

February [1554]. Ludlow Castle. The Queen, by her Council of the Marches, to the Sheriff and the Justices of the Peace of the county of Salop. By the assistance of Almighty God, and the help of our good and loving subjects, we have discomfited Wyat, and the other rebels of the county of Kent, who, having passed the river at Kingston, came back again towards London, and encamped above Charing Cross, where they were overthrown, and most of them slain. Wyat, three of the Cobhams, Brett (Bre), Knevett, Rudstone (Radeston), Isley, and other the chief captains have been taken prisoners. We give you knowledge of this, that you and the rest of our loving subjects may rejoice and give thanks. Whereas the said rebels did always pretend the matter of our marriage to be the cause of their unlawful "scurrye," it now appears by the examination of divers of them, that their "smale menyng" was to have destroyed our person, and consequently to have deprived us from our estate and dignity royal. We do "acerten" you of our honour that this is matter of truth, and pray you to cause it to be published in the country. We cannot but thank you for your readiness to serve us with the force of the said county, if need had been. Nevertheless our pleasure is that you take such order that the force of the said county may be still in readiness to be employed for our service under good and substantial captains, to be chosen of the gentlemen inheritors of the said shire. (Copy.)

May 12, 1575. London. John Gower to John Mucklow, esquire, at Kempsey. I caused my father to buy for you "a tassell (tiercel) of a goshawke," a very fair hawk, full of life, costing 3*l.*, but he died suddenly within a week. As he came lately from over the sea, he required tender looking unto.

May 1, 1596. London. Richard Mucklowe to his brother, Simon Mucklowe. "We shall have open wares (war) but not yet proclaymed for it is but now a pryntyng this present day, by the prynter it was reported—every man for himselfe and God for us all."

June 7, 1666. Westminster. J. H. to Thomas Le Gros, esquire, at Norwich. To write to day into Norfolk is like sending coals to New-castle. I presume that the noise of the guns told you the beginning, continuance, and end of the fight, which held the greatest part of four days. The first two days the Duke [of Albemarle] fought and beat the Dutch, thought the odds against him were 3 to 2; the third day they were more than 2 to 1; and the last day, when the Prince [Rupert] came in with his twenty that he carried out of the three squadrons, there was not above 3 to their 5. Yesterday at noon orders were sent to Paul's and many other churches to give public thanks for the victory, before the congregations were dismissed from the fast sermons and prayers, which was echoed all the afternoon by the bells, and the most innumerable company of bonfires at night. But the relation brought by Sir Daniel Harvey at afternoon so mitigated that which came in prayer time between 10 and 11, that it made it "a very sad victory." The stories of every day's action is given at large in the Diurnalls, of which there are now two—the "Gazette," written by order of Mr. Williamson, Lord Arlington's secretary, and the "Current Intelligencer," by Muddiman, written by order of Mr. Cooke, Sir William Morice's secretary. They make it bad enough, but we are to believe that most of the Dutch flag-ships and the greater half of the rest are destroyed. It is to be feared that some of them will rise again a fortnight hence. We have not taken one of their ships, but they have our Essex frigate, and one of our Admirals, Sir George Ascough, their prisoner. He, engaging too far after them, lost his ship, which, it is believed, has not its fellow in the world. We can give no account yet of the Swiftsure, a brave ship, or of Capt. Sir William Berkeley. Others will carry their marks of honour about them, if ever they be able to float upon the sea again. A splinter only shook the Duke by the hand, which did him not so much hurt as a shot did his breeches, that carried away almost half with it. Sir William Clarke, his Grace's secretary, lost a leg, and since his life. Capt. Bacon was killed in the fight. Sir Christopher Mings is hurt in several places with small shot. Wheresoever Sir William Lubbock and his companions were, they saw sport enough. The King has highly vindicated Sir Thomas Tiddiman, whom, only yesterday morning, the common people were altogether for hanging. When the Lord Mayor and others of the City came yesterday afternoon to congratulate his Majesty for this success, after the King had ended his discourse and they had taken their leaves, the King stepped again to the Lord Mayor, and told him particularly that he understood that Sir Thomas Tiddiman was reputed not to have behaved well, but he assured him that he had always a good opinion of him, and that he had carried himself like a stout and honest man in the several actions of the last year. At first it was said that many stood off until the Duke was forced to send some bullets among them to make them engage. I add the list of ships that came with Prince Rupert—the Revenge, the Victory, etc.

February 19, 1699. London. Selby Mucklow to his father, William Mucklow, at Wandsworth Hill, near the fish-ponds. Gives a long account of the arguments before the House of Lords for and against the bill for continuing the corporation of the East India Company.

May 23, 1699. London. The same to his brother, John Mucklow, at Exeter. Gives an account of the garden of the Duke of Leeds at Wimbledon, and of Brompton Park, near Chelsea, which "might be more properly called a Garden, since it is a nursery of most sort of fine trees and flowers, and has little of a Park in it."

October 2, 1700. London. The same to his father, William Mucklow, at Wandsworth Hill. Yesterday the poll ended for Lord Mayor at 6 in the evening, when Duncomb was found to have 2,752 votes, Abney 1,919, Hedges 1,912, Sir S. Dashwood 1,110; but the Court of Aldermen gave it for Sir Thomas Abney, thus reviving the drooping Whigs, who had quite given their cause for lost. I hear that Abney had 14 of the Aldermen's votes, and Duncomb 12. The members of the old and new East India Companies made all the interest they could, the new for Abney, and the old for Duncomb, who, if his charity doth not grow cold upon his disappointment, will stand fair for Parliament man at the next election.

Among the letters of the 18th century there are several from Thomas Owen, Sarah Middleton, and others, in South Carolina.

My thanks are due to Mr. Lloyd for his hospitality at Arcley Hall, and for his own assistance.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE REV. T. S. HILL.

REV. T. S.
HILL'S MSS.

The Rev. T. S. Hill, Rector of Thorington, has submitted for examination five books in his possession relating to the Augustinian Priory of Blythburgh, in the county of Suffolk.

I. A Cartulary of the time of Richard II. or Henry IV. written on 62 leaves of parchment, and preserved in its plain old binding. It contains copies of numerous grants and demises of property at the following places in the diocese of Norwich:—Blythburgh, Acton, Grundisburgh, Puddingynges, Bulchamp, Claxton, Stubbyng, Blythford, Bramfield, Brampton, Benacre, Beccles, Barnby, Bradwell, Burham, Burgh, Blundeston, Brisingham, Cove, Cookley, Chediston, Carleton, Cransford, Clippesby, Charsfield, Darsham, Dunwich, Dunston, Easton [Bavent], Ashby (Esseby), Frostenden, Gillingham, Hinton, Henham, Holton, Westhall, Heveningham, Great Yarmouth, Linstead, Mells, Merlisford, North Hales, Owchale, Peasenhall, Redisham, Reydon, Rushmere, Ringsfield, Rendham, Sotherton, Stoven, Spexhall (Spetishall), Shadingfield, Hopton, Thorington, Tyrstone, and Wälb erswick, and at Canterbury and Reigate. Most of the deeds are undated, but many of them may be assigned to the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. The following appear to be the more important:—

f. 2. Release by David, Abbot of St. Osith's and the Convent of that place, to the Prior and Convent of Blythburgh, of a yearly payment of 10s. A.D. 1246.

Demise by Adam, Prior of St. Mary's of Blythburgh, and the Convent of that place, to Robert de Batisford of a piece of land at Blythburgh. 22 Edward I.

f. 2b. Grant by John de Hodobovilla to the church of Blythburgh in free alms, of Walter Elton, with the tenement which he held of the grantor in the vill of Acton, and which Eadric Elton his father held near the heath (juxta brueram).

f. 3. Grant by Henry I. to the canons of St. Osith's, of the churches of Stowe and Blythburgh.

Precept by Henry I. to H. Bishop of Norwich and Robert the Sheriff to cause Richard, Bishop of London, to have the churches of Blythburg and Stowe.

f. 4. Grant by Peter Marshal (Marscallus) of Blythburgh and Maze-lina his wife, to Alexander de Bendham, the doorkeeper in the Priory of Blythburgh, of a messuage, &c., at that place.

f. 6b. Grant by John de Clavering, knight, lord of Blythburgh, to the church of St. Mary of Blythburgh and the canons thereof, of a fishery extending from the bridge of Bulchamp (Bulcampe) to the bridge of Kampisbregge, so that they may fish there with their nets thrice a week.

Confirmation by Stephen de Cressi, son of Roger de Cressi, of the gifts of his ancestors to the church of Blythburgh. He further exempts the canons thereof from paying anything to any of his men for the carriage of their hay and corn.

f. 7. Grant by William de Cheney, son of Robert, son of Walter, to the church of Blythburgh, and the canons thereof, of land called Chingescroft, &c.

Confirmation by Margaret de Cheney, widow, of the gifts of her father William de Cheney, to the church of Blythburgh, and of certain gifts made by her men since his death. Among the witnesses are Turgidius de Chenei and Richard de Cressi.

REV. T. S.
HILL'S MSS.

f. 7b. Charter of King Stephen confirming to the church of Blythburgh and the canons thereof, two acres of land adjoining the cemetery, for the benefit of the soul of King Henry, his uncle. Dated at Framlingham. Witnesses:—Adam de Belnac and Henry de Glanvill.

f. 9b. Grant by the same to John son of Robert, of the manor of Blythburgh.

Charter of the same, confirming the same grant.

Charter of Henry I. to the Bishop of Norwich, to Richard the Arch-deacon, to Robert the Sheriff, and to all his men in Suffolk, granting to the canons of St. Osith's the church of Blythburgh, for the benefit of the souls of his father and his mother.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE REVEREND C. R. MANNING, M.A., RECTOR OF DISS, NORFOLK.

Together with numerous writings of inferior value and purely local interest, the Reverend C. R. Manning, of Diss, in the county of Norfolk, preserves at the rectory of that parish, the following books and miscellaneous evidences:—

12th century. Charter of a grant by Hugh Bigot, earl of Norfolk, of all the lands held of the said earl in Metingham and Boiscêtes, to John the son of Augustin of Framingham, for ever, at a yearly rental of eight shillings and four pence. No date.

18 Edward II. to 46 Edward III. Book of Extents and Accounts of Sibeton Abbey in the county of Suffolk.—Comprising one hundred and thirty-four leaves (in good condition), this volume opens with an "Extenta terrarum et tenementorum Abbatis de Sibeton in villa de Wenhaweston facta per Henricum Chach, Galfridum Burghard, Henricum Coleman, Johannem Dod et Johannem Derolf de Bukes custodes ibidem, in presencia fratris Rogeri Ole celerarii et fratris Johannis de Cotton monachorum, anno regni regis Edwardi filii regis Edwardi decimo nono," (a record followed by other extents, some of them made in Edward the Second's 18th year, of the possessions of the abbey in other and adjacent places), and closes with a series of yearly accounts, from 36-7 to 45-6 Edward III., "fratris Johannis de Merton, bursarii de Sibeton";—the membranes of the body of the book, between the Extentæ and the Computi, being occupied with memoranda and other evidences, touching the history and revenues of the Abbey. The last membrane exhibits some particulars of another Sibton Abbey book, together with particulars of the recent history of the present volume.

12 April, 11 Edward III. Grant, under the Great Seal, of Licence to John of Norwich and Remigeus of Hederscote, parson of the church of Hengham, to give and grant to the Master and chaplains of the House of the Blessed Mary of Metyngham, to hold a certain denarate of rent in Norton Soupecors, together with the advowson of the church of the same place, to them and their successors for ever. Dated at Westminster.

28 June, 19 Edward III. Grant, under the Great Seal, of Licence to the Master and chaplains of the house of the Blessed Mary of Ravenyngham, founded anew by John of Norwich, to hold lands &c. to the yearly value of twenty pounds. Dated at Sandwich.

12 July, 45 Edward III. Charter of Inspeximus and Confirmation of previous charters of Licence, under the Great Seal, to the Master and chaplains of the houses of the blessed Mary of Ravenyngham, with further concessions to the same house. Dated at Westminster.

5 July, 6 Richard II. Licence, under the Great Seal, for the removal of Raveningham Chantrey to Metyngham, with other matters pertaining to the same chantrey. Dated at Westminster.

6 August, 11 Richard II. Charter of Licence, under the Great Seal, for the Master and chaplains of the Chantrey of Ravenyngham to move their chantrey from Ravenyngham, where it was founded, to the parish church of Norton Soupecors &c. &c. Dated at Westminster.

6 November, 11 Richard II. Indenture between William de Clopton, chivaler, and Francisca his wife of the one part, and John Plays, Robert Howard and Roger Boys, chivalers, and the Master of the chantry of Ravenyngham of the other part. After reciting that Edward, late king of England, grandfather of the present king, granted licence to the Master and chaplains of the Chantry of Ravenyngham (lately founded by John of Norwich) to move their said chantry from Ravenyngham to the parish church of Norton Soupecors, and to inhabit the rectory of the said church; and That after this removal the chantry should be called the Chantry of Norton Soupecors, and the Master and chaplains thereof should have and retain all the lands, &c., pertaining to the Chantry of Ravenyngham; and That the same king afterwards gave licence that the same chantry should be moved to the Castle of Metyngham and be augmented from a chantry for eight to a chantry for thirteen chaplains, and have power to hold lands, &c., by the name of the Chantry of Metyngham; and further That the aforesaid king Richard, amongst other things set forth in the writing, granted at the supplication of the aforementioned John, (neither the first nor the second removal having been accomplished) that the translation of the same Chantry should be from its present place of Ravenyngham to the newly built church within the rectory of Norton Soupecors, and that the Master and twelve chaplains should hold their possessions by the name of the Chantry of Norton Soupecors, With licence to hold the manor of Ilketeshall and other possessions in Shipmedewe, Bekles, Barsham, Ilketesale and Meytingham co. Suffolk, which manor and other possessions &c. &c. are held of the aforementioned William and Francisca as of the manor of Wanborne:—This Indenture bears evidence that William and Francisca of the one part have granted and given licence to said John, Robert, and Roger that they may grant and assign the said premises to the same Master and chaplains of the said chantry, to hold to them for ever. Dated at Norwich.

Much injured by water, this register of a ruined church has been provided with a new initial fly leaf (parchment), which exhibits a copy of the following memorandum by the hand of Thomas Leman, esq. of Wenhaston:—"March 11, 1698. Memorandum, Mr. Thomas Rosse vicar of Westleton, gave me this Register-book belonging to the Church of St. Peters, Dunwich, a spacious fine old Church, now devoured by the sea, the Chancell's end falling, upon the 11 of December anno 1688, & in the winter 1697 halfe of the steeple fell down the Cliffe, so that the sea in 9 yeares space gott that Church which was near as long as Blyburgh. I have often [seen] itt, but never before the Roofe & windows were down, and all the Grave stones gone. Mr. Brown 20 yeares Vicar of Wenhaston was the last that preached, in or about the [year] 1654 or 55, as Mr. Driver an ancient Inhabitant there (living to above 80 years of age) has very often told me, & that the Church was curiously glazed with painted Glass quite thro' & many Grave stones with inscriptions upon brass, with 4 Bells which he said he help to remove to All Saints Church the only Church now in use;" together with the following certificate touching the author of the memorandum, "This was written by Thos. Leman Esq. of Wenhaston—J. Leman."

REV. C. R.
MANNING'S
MSS.

The book is noteworthy for the number and preciseness of the registrations of contracts of civil marriages made during the Commonwealth, with publications thereof in markets on market days, in accordance with the Marriage Enactment of the Barebones Parliament.

1554. Book of Letters (small folio containing 106 pp.); consisting of copies of the letters and documents published by the present owner of the book, the Rev. C. R. Manning, M.A., Rector of Diss, in the Fourth Volume of Norfolk Archæology, in a contribution entitled "State Papers, Relating To The Custody Of The Princess Elizabeth At Woodstock In 1554; Being Letters Between Queen Mary And Her Privy Council And Sir Henry Bedingfield Knt. Of Oxburgh, Norfolk;" one of the documents of the collection being Mary's letter ordering her sister's removal from the Tower to Woodstock.

1595 to 1599. Letters by Lord Howard of Effingham, Lord Hunsdon and Lords of the Council, to the Vice-Admirals of Suffolk and the Bailiffs of Ipswich, on matters touching the naval defence of the country: Copies (with the exception of the letters dated 3 December 1595, 12 January 1595, and 8 February 1595, and signed C. Howard); together with copies of answers to the same letters. In all some forty epistles stitched together into a paper cover.

24 October 1600. Letter from Sir Julius Cesar to Sir Nicholas Bacon and Sir Bassingbourne Gaudy knts. and Mr. Edward Bartlye. Touching the case of an aggrieved Minister, in which Her Highness is so far moved by concern as to wish his case to be inquired into. Dated from the Court at Richmond.

1617 to 1622. Court Book of the Manors of Raveningham with its members and Raveningham Holmehall, and of the Manor of Horningtofte with its members, Whissingset, Brisley and Bylney; A book of paper leaves (with headings showing that the volume had been prepared for another purpose) in a vellum cover lettered thus, "Anno Domini 1617 usque Annum Domini [1622]:—Maneria de Raveningham cum membris et Raveningham Holmehall: Manerium de Horningtofte cum membris Whissingset, Brisley & Bylney. Tempore Rogeri Castell armigeri domini Maneriorum predictorum. Nicholus Lockyngton, senescallus curiarum Maneriorum ipsorum." The later leaves of the book being occupied with copies of indentures, wills, &c., &c., touching the same manors and their members; and also with copies of evidences touching the possessions of the town of Saxlingham co. Norfolk, including copy of "The Terrier of the gleabe lands & parsnage houses indented of Saxlingham Nethergat and Saxlingham Thorpe made the 20th day of May 1614."

20 May, 7 Charles I. Indenture (between Nicholas Bacon of Dinnington and Henry North of Laxfield, esqs., commissioners for levying subsidies on the one part and Thomas Bryan of Stradbrook co. Suffolk, gentleman, of the other part) of the appointment of the said Thomas Bryan to be High Collector of moneys to be levied in the Hundred of Hoxon.

29 July 1718. Volume of papers touching the Rectory of Diss, co. Norfolk, with a table of the following contents, viz. (a) Copy of the Customs belonging to the rectory. (b) Depositions relating to the same customs. (c) Admissions at rectorial courts. (d) Fines upon such admissions. (e) Particulars of Mr. Bosworth's case with John Walker. (f) Terrier of glebes. (g) Particulars of dilapidations, buildings and repairs, as they were in 1714, 1715, 1716. (h) Account of Tithes and compositions from 1714. (i) Account of surplice-fees and offerings. (j) Receipts of first-fruits and tenths, poor-rates and taxes. (k) Bonds, rates-schedules and similar papers touching the parish of Diss. This entertaining volume closes with the collection of letters (to be found in the Ninth Volume of Norfolk Archæology) written by Henry Ratcliffe, 2nd Earl of Sussex, in 1546, on the occasion of the purchase of the old Church-Plate of Diss.

CUSTOS
AND JUSTICES OF THE PEACE
OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX'S MSS.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE CUSTOS ROTULORUM AND JUSTICES OF THE PEACE OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX, AT THE SHIRE-HALL, CHELMSFORD, CO. ESSEX.

A little too much was made of a simple matter some three years since, when the newspapers announced the discovery of a large accumulation of ancient writings touching the history of Essex, that had been long hidden in a locked chamber of the Chelmsford Shire Hall. There are of course discoveries and discoveries, and the interest assigned to them varies with the experience of the discoverer. What is a startling revelation to one person may be a mere matter of course to another. To the clerk who turned the key of the garret, where they had reposed for several years in equal safety and disorder, the Essex records were naturally more fruitful of excitement, than they proved to the Inspector who was despatched by Her Majesty's Commissioners on Historical MSS. to examine the writings and report on their contents.

Consisting of (a) a few Bridge and Order Books from 1557 to 1736 A.D.; (b) an imperfect series of Session Rolls (or Bundles) from the time of Philip and Mary; (c) a file of Enrolments of Deeds, dated in or between 23 Henry VIII. and 21 James I.; (d) some Commissions of the Peace, dated in the times of Charles I. and Charles II.; (e) Hearth-Money Records, 23-4 Charles II.; and a few miscellaneous matters,—the archives proved to be a rather meagre collection of precisely such writings as anyone conversant with sessional business and muniments would expect to find in the keeping of the Clerk of the Peace for an English county. How long they had rested in their fortunately dry place of concealment immediately under the water-tight roof of the Chelmsford Shire Hall does not appear. How long they had been so completely forgotten that they were regarded with wonder by their “discoverers,” is also uncertain. It is however improbable that the records, of which Mr. Bullock, a former Clerk of the Peace for the county, gave a brief account so recently as 3 May 1800 (for the information of “The Select Committee of the House of Commons, appointed to enquire into the state of the Public Records of the Kingdom”), passed clear out of view and cognizance, either in that gentleman’s life, or in the earlier time of his immediate official successor. Most likely the writings were carried upstairs for temporary lodgment at the comparatively recent time when the builders were enlarging the Shire Hall and wished them to be taken from their old quarters and put safely out of the way. Anyhow it is an affair for congratulation that the manuscripts sustained no injury during the term of concealment and neglect, and that they are in the keeping of gentlemen who, fully alive to their value, have taken proper measures to reduce them to order.

Though the collection is greatly inferior in volume and diversity of materials to most of the assemblages of Sessional records that have come under the notice of Her Majesty’s Commissioners on Historical Manuscripts, it comprises two or three groups of writings of more than ordinary interest. The books are few and of secondary moment. But the Sessions Rolls from the beginning of Elizabeth’s reign to the Commonwealth are rich in noteworthy evidences, all the more so, because it was the practice of successive Clerks of the Peace to file Examinations, Letters, Petitions and miscellaneous Memoranda with the Indictments. While some of the letters are of considerable historic value, a larger proportion of the correspondence would prove in no slight degree entertaining and serviceable to annalists and illustrators of the principal Essex families. Affording a comprehensive view of the Essex worthies, who busied themselves in the affairs of the county throughout the revolutionary period of the seventeenth century, the Commissions of the Peace, from Charles the First’s later time to his son’s restoration, comprise several commissions that are the more deserving of attention, because they were dated during the period of the great gap in the Patent Roll. It is, however, in the Sessional bundles of Elizabeth’s time and James the First’s reign that the labour of searching the Essex muniments is most liberally repaid. The indictments of church-brawlers and other sectarian rioters yield numerous facts that, on being brought together, would prove no trivial addition to our knowledge of the religious movements and agitations of England under the last of our Tudor and the first of our Stuart sovereigns. This introductory survey of the writings should also call attention to the Elizabethan presentments of persons for neglecting to attend divine service in compliance with the requirements of the law; records belonging to a class of evidences of especial value to the ecclesiastical historian.

AND JUSTICES OF THE PEACE
OF COUNTY OF
ESSEX'S MSS.

In these last-named documents the careful reader will also come upon entertaining evidence respecting an obsolete use of the familiar word "spinster," that has hitherto escaped the curiosity and vigilant inquisitiveness of our antiquaries. There is no need to remind the educated reader of the etymology of the designation, that has long been regarded as applicable only to unmarried women of the lower social grades. Everyone is aware that so long as the spindle ranked with the spear, "spinster" was the appropriate designation of gentlewomen, whose knightly brothers were no less generally described by a title pointing to their dexterity with the lance or the sword. Everyone knows how Sir Henry Spelman in the "Glossarium Archæologicum" accounts for women of the nobler sort being described as "spinsters" in legal documents; and how the famous antiquary commemorates the knight, who caused his eleven sons and eleven daughters to be painted upon his tomb, the men girt with their swords and the women represented with their spindles. No less generally is it known that, when the familiar designation of a gentlewoman, the old equivalent of the Latin "generosa," was falling out of fashion in James the First's time, Chief Justice Coke robbed the time-honoured term of its ancient dignity, and quickened its downward course from the gentry to the populace, by declaring authoritatively, "Generosus and Generosa are good additions; and, if a gentlewoman be named spinster in any original writ, etc., appeale or indictment, she may abate and quash the same; for she hath as good a right to that addition as Baroness, Viscountesse, Marchionesse, or Duchesse have to theirs." But what few people know, what most readers, probably every reader, of this page will learn from it for the first time, is that Elizabethan gentlewomen in some parts of England were too proud of the homely designation to relinquish it on marriage, and that it was the practice of legal draughtsmen to apply the term to married no less than to unmarried gentlewomen. In the presentments (23 Elizabeth) of persons, of the age of sixteen or upwards, for neglecting to attend church or chapel, the searcher of the Essex muniments comes upon the names of the following ladies, as spinsters and wives.

- (1.) Margaret Turrell, spinster, otherwise styled Margaret Turrell, wife of Thomas Turrell, esquire: (the words of the Latin record being, "Margaretta Turrell, spinster, alias dicta Margaretta Turrell uxore Thome Turrell armigeri.")
- (2.) Mary Gascoigne, spinster, otherwise styled Mary Gascoigne, wife of George Gascoigne.
- (3.) Anne Newman, spinster, otherwise styled Anne Newman, wife of Thomas Newman, gentleman.
- (4.) Anne Chaplen, spinster, otherwise styled Anne Chaplen, wife of Thomas Chaplen.
- (5.) Katherine Mompson, spinster, otherwise styled Katherine Mompson, wife of . . . Mompson, gentleman.
- (6.) Alice Worsley, spinster, otherwise styled Alice Worsley, wife of Hugh Worsley, of Great Parndon, co. Essex, gentleman.
- (7.) Jane Brewer, spinster, otherwise styled Jane Brewer, wife of Richard Brewer, of Halsted, co. Essex, gentleman.
- (8.) Maria, Lady Petre, spinster, otherwise styled Maria, Lady Petre, wife of Sir John Petre, of Westhorndon, knt. (the words of the Latin record being, alias dicta Maria domina Petre uxor Johannis Petre de Westhorndon predicta militis).
- (9.) Edmund Danyell, esquire, and his wife, Margaret Danyell, spinster.

- (10.) Margaret Gorge, spinster, otherwise styled Margaret Gorge, wife of Frank Gorge, of Writtel, co. Essex, gentleman.

ROTULORUM
AND JUSTICES OF THE PEACE
OF COUNTY OF
ESSEX'S MSS.

Sometimes in these presentments, women, described as spinsters, are described also as wives of men, respecting whose calling and quality there is a significant silence. In other cases, the spinsters are described as the wives of men who are described in terms leaving no room for doubt they were not of rank to impart gentility to their wives. The presentments also abound with cases of women, married to yeomen, mechanics, tradesmen, labourers, and other persons of ungente quality, who are described as wives without being at the same time styled spinsters. It follows that gentle wives of ungente men held to their right to be styled spinsters, as an indication of their gentility by birth: that so late as the twenty-third year of Elizabeth, "spinster" was the English equivalent of the Latin "generosa." But already the worshipful designation had lost much of its ancient force, and though not fallen was falling into disrepute. In the following reign and generation, Coke's dictum so effectually degraded the name from the dignity accorded to it by the usage of successive centuries, from the days of Alfred to the days of Elizabeth, that Thomas Blount (author of the "Glossographia or Dictionary of Hard Words," 1656, and the "Law Dictionary," 1671) knew nothing more of the word, apart from its etymological force, than that it was "the addition usually given to "all unmarried women, from the Viscount's daughter downward." On ceasing to be a sign of gentility, the designation was dropt by gentlewomen on marriage even if they had borne it in their maidenly estate. On becoming merely the equivalent of "single woman," it was held full cheap by women of all grades, whether matrons or maids. I am at the more pains to call attention to this recovery of a long-lost signification of the word "spinster," because it is something more important than a mere antiquarian curiosity. It has for so long a time been the practice of genealogists and other serious historians, to regard spinsters as necessarily without husbands and lawful issue, that it is well to assure them spinsters could also be matrons and mothers in the sixteenth and earlier centuries.

(a.) Books.

(I.) Folio in Leather Covers: styled on the same cover "Bridge Book." Containing on seventy-five of its pages (the remaining pages of the volume being blank) a collection of memoranda taken from the Sessions Rolls, under the descriptive heading, "Certain Observations extracted out of the ancient Records of the Peace for this county of Essex;" most of the memoranda having reference to the Bridges of the county, and the orders for their maintenance, but no inconsiderable proportion of the notes relating to memorable indictments and other sessional matters apart from bridges. Made in or towards the middle of the seventeenth century, and made chiefly for the information of the Justices of the Peace respecting the responsibility of the county for the maintenance of bridges, this compilation opens with memoranda of the Sessions of the Peace held at Rochford on 17 July, 3 & 4 Philip and Mary, and closes with memoranda of the Epiphany Sessions of the Peace held at Chelmsford in 12 James I. . . . The frequent references made by the compiler to a lost "Liber Ordinum," afford noteworthy evidence that the imperfect series of Order Books, soon to be brought under the reader's notice, began at least as early as the time of Queen Elizabeth. Mention is made of this volume in the return made in the first year of the present century (3 May 1800) by Mr. Bullock, Clerk of the Peace for the county of Essex, to the enquiries addressed to him respecting the Essex records by "The Select Committee of the House of Commons appointed to inquire into the state of the Public Records of the Kingdom."

(II.) Series (Imperfect) of Seven Order Books: Consisting of Orders or Memoranda of Orders made by Justices of the Peace for the county of Essex, at General Sessions, together with other memoranda of sessional proceedings: The oldest remaining volume of the series of Order Books, which was begun at least as early as the time of Queen Elizabeth, being the volume of records for the period 13 Jan. 1651 to 8 October 1661, a book that contains (pp. 128, 129, 130) a curious order, made at Chelmsford on 15 July 1656, for the better observance of the Sabbath, and the correction of Quakers (described as persons who "doe travaille and passe from county to county and from place to place, propagating and spreading certain desperate and damnable opinion and delusions derogatory to the honor of God, and destructive to men's soules.") The next of these books is for the period 11 July 1671 to 15 July 1686, the volume for the period from 8 October 1661 to 11 July 1671 having been lost. After another hiatus (from 15 July 1686 to 3 May 1698) appears the Book of Orders, made between 3 May 1698 and 9 January 1710; which is followed by the Order Book from 10 April 1711 to 8 October 1717 (a volume in a ruinous and strangely dilapidated state), the Order Book from 14 January 1717 to 14 January 1723, and the Order Book from 14 April 1724 to 11 June 1736. — These books, as well as the gaps left by the already missing volumes, are noticed (3 May 1800) by Mr. W. Bullock in his already mentioned report to the Select Committee of House of Commons.

2 & 3 and 3 & 4 Philip and Mary.—The documents, which are filed with insufficient care for chronological arrangement, comprise—

(a.) The recognizance of Thomas Rawlyn, of Little Wakering, co. Essex, gentleman, and Edward Bery, of Estwood, in the same county, who on 1 July, 2 & 3 Phil. & Mary appeared "coram nobis Ricardo Riche milite domino Riche et Edmundo Tirrell armigero, duo Justiciariis domini Regis domineque Regine ad pacem in comitatu predicto tenendam assignatis," and were bound in the sum of 20*l.* to appear at the next sessions, and in the meantime to keep the peace to all the King's and Queen's lieges, and especially to keep it towards John Dewe, of Moche Wakering, co. Essex, husbandman. The recognizance is signed by R. Ryche (Lord Riche), and Edmond Tyrel.

(b.) The recognizance, of the same date, of Robert Rawlyn, of Little Wakering, co. Essex, and Robert Edmondes, of Southchurch, in the same county, yeoman, who appeared before the same Justices of the Peace (Lord Ryche and Edmund Tirrell) and were bound in the sum of 20*l.* to appear at the next sessions, and in the meantime to keep the peace to all their Majesties' lieges, and more especially to John Dewe, of Moche Wakering, co. Essex, yeoman. The recognizances bear the signatures of R. Ryche and Edmund Tyrell.

(c. 5 January), 1556. Warrant (signed by Justices of the Peace William Berners, Thomas Mildmay, and William Bosestre) to the Constables of the town of Masshebury, co. Essex. To arrest William "Luckyn, of Masshebury aforesaid, Luckyn of Arander Nooke, and John Sonde, of the same town," and bring them before the Justices of the Peace at the next sessions, to answer respecting certain disorders committed by them.

(d.) 27 December, 3 & 4 Philip & Mary. The indictment of William Lukyn, of Massebury, co. Essex, for brawling in the church of the said parish on the said 27th of December, during the celebration of divine service, and then and there calling the rector "nebulonem."

(e) 22 February, 2 & 3 Philip & Mary. The indictment of Thomas Nenoman for an assault, alleged to have been committed by him on the said 22nd of February in the parish church of Takeley co. Essex, on the person of Jane Wolberd, wife of Nicholas Wolberd; it being further charged against the said Thomas, that he "in eadem ecclesia parochiali adtunc et ibidem quemdam pugionem suum quem ipse adtunc et ibidem secum circumferebat extra vaginam exhaustit et eduxit cum intencione ad percutiendam predictam Janam Wolberd cum eodem pugione." The record is endorsed, "Billa partim vera, videlicet in hoc quod dictus Thomas exhaustit et eduxit pugionem suum infrascriptum set non ea intencione ut dictam Janam nec aliquem alium percuteret, set tantum in suam ipsius defensionem, et quoad omnia alia infracontenta penitus ignoramus."

(f.) 25 July, 3 & 4 Philip & Mary. Presentment that John Geffrys, senior, of Westmerseye, co. Essex, husbandman, and Thomas Taes of Dedman, in the same county, clothier, on the said 25th of July, drew to themselves and assembled as many as twenty persons, and on that day and on divers other days, and at that place and divers other places, brought together unlawful conventicles, and more particularly aided, abetted, encouraged, and consorted with one George Egle, of Moose, of the same county, tailor, otherwise called Trudy, an heretical and seditious person, for the purpose of hearing and imitating heretical and schismatical sermons and preachings.

3 July, 2 & 3 Philip and Mary. Presentment that Thomas Shaa, of Terlynge, co. Essex gentleman, and Thomas Grinlett, alias Thomas Barbar, gentleman, of the same place, and Clement Grinlett, of the same place, yeoman, and Alice Crayford, of Raylye, co. 9 January, 1581 [-2]. Letter from James Altham and William Throk-morton to the Justices of the Peace for the county of Essex. After our hartly commendacions remembered, Whereas the Churchwardens and Sydmen of Hatfilde Brodoke in the county of Essex not consyderinge the unabilitie of the Lady Hastings late wief of Sir Thomas Barington knight deceased to travayle to her Paryshe Church, have lately presented her unto the Archdeacons Court for not cumynge to the same to heare divine service, which presentment of lyke will be certyfyed unto this Quarter Sessions from my Lorde of London to the end her Ladyshipp may be endedd upon the same, Wherefore we have thought good thus much to certyfie unto you upon speche had with her Ladyshipp, That she doth not obstinatly refuse to goe to the Church, nor doth upon any obstinat will absent her selfe from thence as the Vicar of the Towne can give enformacion, who ys now to attend upon you to certyfie the same, But by reason of sycknes and weaknes of bodye she ys not able to travayle thether beinge one myle from her howse and more without great hurt unto her selfe, for the which cause she kepeth her howse, Where usually upon Sundayes & other dayes she hath divine service, which ys established by the lawes of this realme, and requireth the Vicar of the Parishe to her howse to saye the same, at the hereinge wherof she is commonly herselfe and sendeth most of her famylie upon Sundayes and other feastifall dayes to the Parishe Church. Wherefore may it please you in consideracion of this lawfull excuse for her owne absence to make staye of any enditement to be preferred against her ladyshipp this Quarter Sessions. And thus wishinge you well to fare we take our leaves the ixth of Januarie anno 1581.—Yor Lovinge Frendes, JAMES ALTHAM,—WILLIAM THROKMORTON.

2 March, 1582 [-3]. Letter from Lord Chancellor Bromley to Mr. Browne, Clerk of the Peace for the county of Essex. Ordering process to be stayed in an indictment procured against one Mr. Thomas Wysman of Wymbishe in Essex for absence from church, the said absence from divine service having been altogether due to the feeble health, and in no degree whatever to contumaciousness and non-conformity in the said Master Wysman who has given sufficient proofs of his compliance and submissiveness in matters of religion. "I am," says the writer, "also informed that in his house there is usuall prayers, according to Her Majestie's lawes, and that it hath been so certified of late by the Bysshopp. I am further geven to understand that he hath bene before my Lords of Her Majesties Privie Counsell, and showed himselfe conformable and obedient to theire satisfactions."—Dated from "my house nere Charing Crosse," and signed—T. BROMLEY, Canc.

14 April, 1582. Certificate of Thomas Roberts, parson of Ramsdon Crays, that, at the request of his lawfull ordinary, Mr. Doctor Walker, he has "mynistered the Communion according to the Booke of Common Prayer, unto the Ryght Worshippfull Sir Henry Tirell in the oratorie place at his Mansion Howse called Fremingnalles in the parishe of Downham, upon Easter Even last past," in the presence of seven under-named "communicants with the said Sir Henry."

19 April, 1582. The Examination of James Hapton, touching words spoken at Writtle on the 8th instant by John Gaye of Blackmore, as to his knowledge of an accomplice of "Payne the Traytour."—Also the examination (24 April 1582) of the said John Gaye, who admits having said at Writtle that "Payne the Traitor that was executed" was reported to have "belonged to one Master Shelley."

26 September, 1583. The Examynacion of Honor Flowerdew of Windham co. Norfolk before Thomas Darcy & Anthonye Maxey esqrs. :—1. Saythe that she was borne at Windham, & that she was the daughter & heire of William Flowerdewe, late of the same towne, gentleman, who died seased of landes to the value of five hundred merke a yeare.—2. That she was of thage of x yeares at her father's discease, & hath ben with Sir Roger Woodhouse ever sithence as his warde.—3. And also saythe, that the saide Sir Roger Woodhouse tendered to her mariage to William Bruse son & heire to Sir John Bruse, to her greate mislikinge which was the cause of her departure.—4. Also saythe, that she was brought from the saide Sir Rogers, by one Mr. Hall of Thaxteade, & by him brought to the towne of Halsteade.—5. At whiche towne she mette with John Gillam & one Swetinge, & by them was brought to the house of Robert Bindes of Styssede, who gave to her instructions what she should saye & howe she should behave herselfe, but what instruccions then were by them to her geven she sayth she will note tell what punishements soever she hath.—Signed THOMAS D'ARCY, ANTHONYE MAXEYE.—Also, in the same roll, the presentment of Jurors that Thomas Meadowe, late of Chelmsford, Sirack Allynson, William Whydney and his wife Ursurla, John Holmes, John Cowper & Honor Flowerdew, are found to be common vagrants, having neither lands, money, nor lawful calling.

— 26 Elizabeth (Midsummer Sessions Roll). — 28 Elizabeth. Roll of documents consisting of the following matters:—(a) The certificate of Walter Mildmay esq., Justice of Peace for the county of Essex that he has executed the mandates of a certain writ from the Court of Chancery to the Keepers of the Queen's Peace and the Sheriff of the said county, and in the execution thereof has arrested and put into Colchester gaol John Chickin and Jonas Leonard, who had with other malefactors unlawfully taken possession of a certain messuage in Parrington co. Essex, being the property of Edmund Turner esq., and had dispossessed the same Edmund Turner thereof.—(b) The Writ mentioned in the aforesaid certificate.—(c) A panel of Jurors, containing twenty-one names.—(d) The Presentment of Jurors that on the 29th day of October in the 27th year of Queen Elizabeth, Peter Phillippes of Ardeley co. Essex, husbandman, and Thomas Podd of the same place, labourer, unlawfully and by violence took possession of a messuage, containing ten acres of land and one of wood, called Chapmans, and lying in Ardeley co. Essex, being the tenement of one Robert Cowey, and dispossessed the same Robert Cowey thereof.—(e) Similar presentment of sworn men that, on the 6th day of February in the 28th year of Queen Elizabeth, "quedam Agnes Hewer de Grinsted in com. predicto Spinster uxor Thome Hewer de Grinsted predicta, husbandman, et Margareta Hewer de eisdem villa et com. Spinster," unlawfully and by violence entered upon a certain messuage of thirty acres of land, called Parsons and lying in Grinsted aforesaid, and dispossessed John Starlinge and his tenant for a term of years, Anthony Darcey, of the same messuage.—(f) Similar finding by a Jury that, on 15 January 28 Elizabeth, William Crowch of Great Bentley, co. Essex, yeoman, unlawfully entered the close of Daniel Warman at Great Bentley, co. Essex, and with cows, horses and sheep, trod down and consumed the growing grass thereof.—(g) A Presentment by Jurors, running in these words:—"Essex:—The Jury doe present for our Soureigne Lady ye Quene That . . . of divers persons licensed to keep houses of entertainment in the county of Essex.—It is not apparent why these matters should have been thus put together in a separate parcel, instead of being incorporated in the ordinary Session Rolls to which they pertain; but it is probable that their separate existence is due to the oversight of a Clerk of the Peace who accidentally omitted them from the rolls of 28 Elizabeth. A recent hand has mis-described the bundle by endorsing it “28 Elizabeth, 1585: A Commission to Enquire into a Riott.”

13 April, 1586. Letter from Lord Hunsdon to Mr Appleton, one of the Justices of the Peace for the county of Essex. Announcing his receipt of the examination of Edward Lymwoode, who appears to be “a verie bad fellow, and belike a comon spredder of newes and such false rumours,” and perhaps is himself the inventor of the false news he has spread abroad, the writer is of opinion that the fellow should be committed to prison pending further enquiries about him, and should then be “bound to his good abearing.” Dated from Grenewich; and signed—H. HUNSDON.

24 April, 1587. Letter from Lords of the Council to the Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex. After referring to the commission heretofore granted by Her Majesty to the letter's bearer, Richard Francklyn, to repair a certain decayed bridge and highway, leading to Salcot, which work was after deliberation stayed by the said Justices on the ground of inconvenience, the writers request that the said Richard Francklyn may be permitted to complete the execution of his said commission, on which he has been at much expense and trouble. Dated from the Court, and signed—E. WARWYK; R. LEYCESTER.

24 July, 1589. From John, bishop of London, to the Justices of the Peace for the county of Essex. Touching the action of a certain Thomas Pegrim who appears to have been imposing himself on certain of the Essex people as an officer of the Bishop of London, with authority to meddle in the affairs of his Lordship's manor of Stocforde. “Theis are,” says the writer, “to signify unto you & the rest of the Bench, that I knowe no such officer by the name of Thomas Pegrim as you writt of to have to doe in any Lordships of myne to be warented as a Clerke of the Markett but contrarywise I knowe for certenty that one Mr Powell, Her Majesties servant, my honest neighbour at Fulham since my late coming hether did with my mannor of Stockforde deale by vertue of the . . . Markettes office supply under Her Majesties graunt to him all thinges that belong to that office whatsoever.” Dated from the writer's manor of Much Hadlam; and signed—JOHN LONDON.

7 January, 1590 [-1]. Letter from Geffery Nightingale to Mr. Baron Clerke. Touching the offences of one Andrewe Howe, whom the writer and one of his men are bound by Sir Thomas Lucas to prosecute for stealing at Newport “three milch bullockes”—the writer's property. Evidence will be given at the trial of the said Andrewe Howe that he has confessed in his examination before Sir Thomas Lucas to the robbery of the said “three milch bullockes,” and also of his “stealing of viii other bullockes before this time of certen persons dwelling about the Roodinges, for which he hadd triall this daye twelve moneth at the Quarter Sessions at Chelmesford, and there was then burnt in the hand and so delivered.” It has also come to the writer's knowledge at Newport that this “Andrewe Howe about sixe yeres since committèd a rape uppon a young maiden, and for that he fledd, and could never be heard of, untill this day.”—Dated from Newport.

Devon, esquire, of the one part, and Katherine Busbee of the town of Manyngtree co. Essex, widow of the other part: Whereby, by virtue of Letters Patent, dated 4 May 25 Elizabeth, the said Walter Raleigh gives licence to the said Katherine Busbee, by herself, servants, and assigns, or any of them, during her natural life, to keep a Tavern in her present mansion house or any other house in Manningtree aforesaid, and there to buy and sell wine under conditions set forth in the instrument. Signed—W. RALEIGH.

— 35 Elizabeth (Easter Sessions Roll). A similar form of Indenture of licence (blank) to sell wine; with Walter Raleigh's signature at the foot, and in the body of the instrument blank spaces, in which to insert dates and the name &c. of any person applying for the licence.

— 36 Elizabeth (Easter Sessions Roll). Another blank Indenture for licence to sell wine, with Walter Raleigh's name in the body of the instrument, but without his signature at the foot.

9 September, 34 Elizabeth. The Examination, before Sir Edmond Huddilston, knt., of William Clerke of Holborne, London, touching contumelious words alleged to have been spoken to him by a sailor, on the highway between Chelmsforde and Witham, about Springfield, which sailor, on being asked whether he had come over with the Lord Thomas Howard answered for himself and two other sailors accompanying him, that "they cam over with an honeste man then Lorde Thomas Howarde," adding "Hange him villeine, for he hath cast awaie a number of men better than himsealf."—Also, the Examination of Francis Foorde, of Ipswich, sailor, who denies having spoken to William Clerke any such words to the dishonour of Lord Thomas Howard.

31 December, 1595. Letter from Lords of the Council to the Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex. Announcing that they have accorded authority and licence to the Mayor and Jurates of the town of Rye co. Sussex "to aske and gather the voluntarye devotion and contribution of the inhabitants of divers marrytyme counties of the which that countye of Essex is one," towards the cost and charges of remedying the defect of the haven of Rye, which (through the diversion of the current of a certain fresh river, hertofore issuing into the sea through the said haven) "is checked with sands in great abundance," the writers enjoin the said Justices of the Peace "to cause the benevolence of the inhabitants of their said countie to be duely and dilligently gathered towards the finishing of the work aforesaid." Dated from the Court at Richmond; and signed by—C. HOWARD, W. BURGHLEY, Jo: PUCKERING, H. COBHAM, J. BUCKHURST, Ro: CECYLL, J. WOLLEY, J. FORTESCUE.

4 January, 1595 [-6]. From Richard, bishop of London, to Sir Thomas Mildmay and Sir John Peters, knights, and the other Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex.—After my hartie commendations, I do heere of verie notable and lewde practise of two men called Wayte and Kempe, parishioners of Elmsteed in Essex, where one Medcalfe is vicar, who have preferred severall inditementes against the said vicar for felony in takinge certaine cheeses, a thing so improbable in yt selfe and savoringe so stronglie in the sense of all men who [? of] practise against the poore minister and conspiracy, that I hope of your selves you will have that christian regard of the poore man and his cause, and his enemies maliciousnes as appertayneth. Nevertheles I do hartelie praie you that if his hand be to appeare at the Generall Assizes there to answere it, that he be not pressed to aunswere it at the Quarter Sessions, but that he maie keepe that time of triall if it must needes come to that issue, and be not otherwise by your Wisedome ordered. And that you would steede the poore man in justice against the malice of his accusers. Yt were verie hard if it may be discerned that their proceedinge is pretended and evidently savorethe of practise, that a man of that calling should be put to so publike a reproche, as to stand upon deliberation and triall of his life, especially when the wound he shall receive, whatsoever it be, shalbe made upon the gospell of God wherof he is a minister. And so commendinge his cause unto you, I committ you to the grace of God. From my house in Londoñ, the fourth of January 1595—Your Very Loving Freind—RICH: LONDON.

11 May, 1596. From Richard, bishop of London, to Sir Thomas Mildmay and Sir John Peter, knights, and the rest of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace within the county of Essex.—After my very hartye commendations. It hath pleased the Lords of hir Majestys most honorable privye Counsell to commend unto you the meanes of releiving the decayed harbour of the town of Rye, which in tymes past hath bene a speciall porte of that part of the Realme, and a succor for shippes distressed by tempest for their safetye. The place is so well known unto me, & the town with the people therof, by reason of my residing therein the space of six yeres as preacher & minister, having receyved great comfort of my labors & minstery among them, by reason of ther zelous conformitye in true religion, and all dutifull loyaltye towards hir Majesty, that I can not but second with my earnest desyre the commendations of so good a worke by their Lordships; And the rather to you of the county of Essex, which being part of my charge, which with all christian affection I doe perticularly respect, I doe therefore very hartely pray you, That you would be pleased, and sumwhat the rather at this my instance, to put into execution with effect this ther Lordships request so earnestly commended unto you; That as ther cawse is much compassionable & the worke so necessary, not for that place alone but for the whole realme, so yt would please you to give yt more furtheraunce then usually in common movings is wont to be doun, So shall the place distressed be bound to bless God for your so blessing them, & my selfe shall reckon yt a speciall token of your love & kindenes towards me, & be ever ready to answer yt agayn with what soever may be in my poore possibility. So committing you to the goodness of God—Yours ever in the Lord Jesus—

14 July, 1600. Letter from the Sheriff and Justices of the Peace of the county of Hertford to Sir Henry Graye, Sir Thomas Mildmay and Sir John Peter kts., and Mr Maynard, Esquire. After our harty commendations &c.—The Parish Church of Roystone in the county of Hartford being so much ruynated and decayed, as yt is by experience found to be farre beyond the reach of abilitie to be repared and reedified by the Inhabitants of the Towne, Wherefore at ther most humble and earnest sute by the meanes of divers of the Lordships of Her Majesties most honorable Privy Councell, and especially of the Right Honorable Sir Robert Cecill, Knight, Principall Secretarie to Her Majestie, they have procured Hir gracious letters patentes under the great seale of England, to gather the benevolence and charitable devotions of well & good disposed people within the dyoces of London and Norwich towards the repaying and errecting of the said church. Now forasmuch as charitie in theis is so weake and lame, as withoute good helpe yt is not hable to goe alone, We are very hartelie herby, in the behalf of our said contrimen and neighbours of Roystone, to desire you so farre to extend your charitable favours unto them, as by your Letters unto the mynisters, or otherwise, to entreate them to use some earnest & good perswasions unto there parishioners, that by there exhortacions they might be moved to deale the more liberalie in so good and christian a worke, otherwise we can expect no great matter. We know your Sheare is daylie visited with extra-ordinary chardges as well as ours, Therefore we wholly relie upon your good meanes and furtheraunce therin, for the which our neighbours of Roystone shalbe most bounde unto you, So will we, also, be very thankful unto you for yt, and be redy to requite yt, with the like or any other freindlie curtisie we shalbe able. And so with very harty commendacions we commit you to God his mercifull protection.

21 February, 1603 [-4]. Letter from Lords of the Council to the High Sheriff and Justices of the Peace of the county of Essex. Premising that to His Majesty's knowledge it is beneficial for his subjects that licences for selling wine (according to a form expressed in certain Letters Patent granted by the late Queen Elizabeth to Sir Walter Raleigh, knt., lately attainted of High Treason) should be granted to a sufficient number of traders (as without the said licences there would be no selling of wines by retail in England and Wales in consequence of the Statute of 7 Edward VI., restraining the price of French wines to ijd. a quart, and of all sweet wines to iiijd. a quart); and premising further that the recent Proclamation against monopolies did not confer liberty on all men without restraint; the writers announce it to be "His Majesty's express will and commandment that all such persons whatsoever as be not licenced to sell wines either under the Great Seal of England, or the Seall of the said Sir Walter Raleigh knt. shall presentlie forbear & surcease theire further draweing and selling of wines as they tender His Majesties commandment and pleasure, &c., &c.; and that all others licenced as aforesaid shall forthwith make their repaire as conveniently as they may to John Shelberie gent., His Majesty's Officer in that behalf appointed at his howse against Durham Place neer Charing Crosse in Middlesex,"—to pay arrears due on their said licences, and to receive orders concerning the confirmation of the same. I charge you that speedily to the Corte you bringe,
Will the Prowd Butcher and 'Tom with no Thinge,
For that they present poore men to their great losse,
And leave out the Sheperde for not signing with the Crosse,
This is their oath and to this they are sworne,
To see the holydaies kepte, and the surples worne,
Also they are to present so many as they shall see,
Which take the Sacrament on ther Tailles, and not on ther knee,
And to their oath this is a great breach,
To suffer anie Shepherd without a lycense to teach;
They can spy a moat in another man's eye,
And suffer great beames in others to lye;
Also cyte the Shepherd at the Court to appeare,
For gettinge two children within one yere,
Wish him from his pleasures to abstaine,
And know how the Town shalbe discharged of thes Twayne.
The sheperde should be an example in holynes of Liffe,
And not stand playing with his dogg and kissinge of his wiffe.
Item, for that he dwelt by an Hoste above two yere,
And was indebted to him for Ale and Stronge beere,
They gave him an angell to make a funerall exhortation,
And then in truth hee did not know his life or conversation,
But a sudden death to a poore Cobler befell,
And hee made his Mitimus and sent him to Hell.
Oh doe not judge nor up so high clyme,
Remember Noah was overtaken with wyne,
The Theefe to repente had but short space,
And yet Christ received him into his heavenly grace,
And so to make an end of this rime
God's mercy is not restreyned by shortnes of tyme.

Amongst the esquires thus appointed to do all things needful for the preservation of His Majesty's Peace appears the name of Samuel Pepys.

(e) Miscellaneous Writings.

(I.) 1636-1637. Several packets of Informations made to, and Examinations made by, Justices of the Peace, touching petty offences; With Petitions of individuals for relief from grievances, and of parishes for better order in the assessment of rates: With other like matters of trivial moment.

(II.) 1637 to 1651. File of Letters and Petitions: Comprising—

(a) 2 September 1637. Letter from Lord Keeper Coventrye to the Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex. Curious (and to antiquaries, a very interesting) letter setting forth orders and precautions to be observed by Justices of the Peace in authorizing collectors to gather money, and collections to be made, for the relief of sufferers by fire and other casualties.—Signed—Thos. Coventrye C[ustos] S[igilli].

(b) 2 January 1651. Letter from Richard Malbon, Governor of the Savoy Hospital, to Mr. William Malin, Secretary to the Rt. Hon. the Lord General Cromwell. For certificates and passports under the Lord General's hand and seal, to enable maimed and injured soldiers to pass without molestation from the said hospital to their proper parts of the country.

(c) Epiphany Sessions, 1651. The Humble Petition of Thomas Pile of Walthamstowe, yeoman, to the Justices of the Peace of the County of Essex, for licence to keep a victualling house at Walthamstowe afore said; reference being made in the petition to losses incurred through his devotion to the Parliament by the Petitioner, who "duringe the late seige of Basinge House" was induced by Sir William Waller to provide corne and other stuff for the parliament's forces to the value of 300*l.*, and who on the withdrawal of the said Sir William was plundered by the Royalists to the amount of 600*l.*

1651 (Epiphany Sessions). The Petition to the Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex, for the needful assistance of Christopher Ellin of Black Notley co. Essex, blacksmith, who has been for some time under the Chirurgeon's hands in the Savoy Hospitall, for treatment of a musket-shot wound which he received at the taking of Worcester, whilst serving under Captain Raynor in Sir Thomas Honeywood's regiment.

(d)—1651 (Epiphany Sessions). Curious Petition for just payment to the petitioner's nurse, and due compensation for inconvenience endured, to the Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex, by Edward Rathman of Springfield in the said county, who preludes his prayer by saying "That in the tyme hee was visited with sicknes and lamenesse he dyd make over to the Overseers of the Poore of the said parish one annuitie of 20*li.* p. ann. the better to enable the overseers to provide for him in his visitacion and to pay for the nursing of one of his poor children."

(e)—1651 (Epiphany Sessions). The Humble Petition to the Justices of the Peace for the county of Essex, for the needful relief of a considerable pension, by Thomas Horne, a maimed soldier, who received a gunshot wound at the late fight at Worcester, whilst serving under Captain Stebbing in the Rt. Worshipful Sir Thomas Honeywood's Regiment.

10 January 1651. The Petition of Jeremiah Maye to His Excellency the Lord General Cromwell, for a warrant to the Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex, to afford the said petitioner a pension or some other present relief. From the petition it appears that in the company of Sir Timothy Middleton's man, the petitioner some years since "did take a cavalier with his horse and armes at Stamford Mount Fitchett," who offered his captors his horse and 40*l.* for his liberty,—an offer which they refused. Since that occurrence, the Petitioner served under Captain John Smith in Sir William Waller's regiment at Basing House, where he received several wounds. Endorsed with a note of passport, and of recommendation to the Justices of the Peace, under the seal and signature of His Excellency—O. Cromwell.—Also, annexed, Jeremiah Maye's petition for relief to the Justices of the Peace of his proper county.

(f) 21 April 1651. The Examination and Confession of William Hills of Birden co. Essex; Who "sayeth that the Art of Astrology which he learned of Mr. Lilly he hath practised now by the space of three yeares, and hath taken reward for the said practice such as the parties would give, without exacting anything of them, & by this meanes hath helped divers people to their goods again, which were stolen from them."

(g) 7 July 1651. The Information by Richard Chiborne of Messinge co. Essex. that on this present day Cornelius Bell had declared "that on the 25th of July instant there would be a change of governmente in this nation, and that he knew of Thousands in this county and els where would rise for the Kinge of England, and that the State have noe power without a kinge to impresse any souldiers."—Also on the same paper the Confession of Cornelius Bell, weaver, that whilst drinking a cup of beer at the Lyon at Kelvedon, and discoursing with

Mr. Chiborne, he said "That he heard Mr. Purpett of Framlingham in the county of Suffolk say that before the 25th of this Instant July the Katherine Wheel would turne, and hee did hope there would be another government."

(h) 1 December 1651. Two printed passports (signed—Wm. Greenhill and Ri. Hutchinson, and addressed to Mayors, Sheriffs, Bayliffs, &c.) to enable Christopher Ellin and Thomas White, maimed soldiers who have served under Captain Rayner in Sir Thomas Honywoode's regiment, to travel without molestation to their proper places in Essex.

(III.) 9 December 1640. The Bill of "The charges layed out by the Countye of Essex about the Acte of Parliament concerning the bounds of the Forest of Waltham."—Also, (dated 9 December 1641) "The Accompte of the Charges disbursed about settlinge the boundes of the Forrest in the countye of Essex, Anno Dni 1641."

(IV.) Hearth-Money Records.

2 May, 23 Charles II. Roll (Duplicate) of the Returns of all the Hearths and Stoves in the County of Essex, and of the Persons made chargeable in respect thereof, by the recent Act of Parliament entitled, "An Act for establishing an Additionall Revenue upon our Sovereigne Lord the King, his Heirs and Successors, for the better support of his and their Crowne and Dignity"; the said Returns, of the persons so chargeable and the number of the hearths for which each of them is answerable, being made by the special enquiry as well of the King's Officers for that matter as of the Constables of the Several Parishes, and rendered on the day above-mentioned to the Justices of the Peace for the said county, assembled in General Quarter Sessions at Chelmsford. A roll of fifty-three closely written membranes; affording valuable data for estimating the population of the county, and also each parish thereof, at the time when the returns were made.—Also, a similar Duplicate Roll of the Hearths and Stoves within the county of Essex, and of the Persons chargeable with Hearth Tax due thereupon: made and rendered to the Justices of the Peace, assembled in General Quarter Sessions, on the 18th day of July, 24 Charles II.—Also, a packet of the lists (paper) sent in to the Clerk of the Peace for the county of Essex, by the Constables of divers of the Hundreds of the said county; for the preparation of the afore-mentioned Returns.

ESSEX'S MSS.

At the conclusion of this account of an interesting, though fragmentary, collection of Sessional Records, I may state that the Lord Lieutenant and Magistrates of Essex have since the time of my visit caused their archives to be arranged and a Calendar prepared which will render the writings largely and readily serviceable to historical inquirers.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE CORPORATION OF EYE IN THE COUNTY OF SUFFOLK.

CORPORATION
OF EYE'S MSS.

The examination of the archives of the little market-town and parliamentary borough of Eye has resulted in a discovery, that, without being an affair of high historic moment, will flutter the territorial families of Suffolk, and arrest the attention of the numerous philologists who are especially interested in the etymology of place-names.

To know anything of Suffolk is to know that the county comprises a district called High Suffolk, which engages the attention and piques the curiosity of East Anglian topographers all the more, because no one has hitherto been able to discover its boundaries, or even to say confidently of any particular parish of the county that it certainly lies within the undefinable region. "High Suffolk" is the terra incognita of a land known to all the world. How this region came to be styled High Suffolk is a question on which the more intelligent and educated people of the county are divided into two parties. Insisting that the epithet refers to the region's elevation above the sea-level, the one party would settle the question with the surveyor's level and theodolite, or refer it to the Southampton ordnance-surveyors. Maintaining that the epithet points to the high pitch in which the Suffolk dialect is spoken by the peasantry of the district, the other party would pursue the enquiry with tuning-fork and gamut, or appoint a committee of musicians to discover the locality where the Suffolk dialect is uttered in the highest key, and vexes the sensitive ear with its most exasperating "drant." Discussion sometimes waxes dangerously warm on this subject. Old friendships are said to have been shaken by too fervid disputations of the question whether High Suffolk was in the first instance styled High Suffolk out of regard to the elevation of its soil or the elevation of its voices.

An amusing feature of the business is that no Suffolk man, whether a native or mere denizen of the county, submits tamely to an imputation of living in High Suffolk. To dwell in the region where the Suffolk dialect is said to rise to higher shrillness and louder vulgarity than elsewhere, is deemed a matter for reproach and shame. Brundish, Tannington, Baddingham, Dennington, Laxfield, and Stradbroke are six of the several parishes that have long suffered in social repute from being suspected of lying within the district, but no gentleman of these parishes ever allows that his particular parish belongs to the High Suffolk which should rather be styled Low Suffolk. The superior farmers of Brundish can believe the worst of the other five parishes, but are confident their parish is the victim of ungenerous suspicion. To a hint that he lives in the region of shame, the rector of Dennington is quick to say, "Indeed you are mistaken, doubtless you are thinking of Baddingham." In like manner the curate of Baddingham refers the inquisitive stranger to Laxfield or Stradbroke, adding disdainfully, "Bless you, you are miles away from High Suffolk."

CORPORATION

Putting an end to all uncertainty respecting the extent and limits of High Suffolk, the examination of the Eye records has also unearthed the evidence that, instead of referring either to the district's elevation or to any peculiarity of dialect, "High" signifies Heye alias Eye, and merely indicates that the lands and limits of High Suffolk are the same as the lands and limits of the ancient Honor of Heya, having in former time Eye for its chief town and Eye Castle for its Lord's strong-hold.

Successive writers have represented that the name of the little borough is derived either from the Norman-French word "Ey," signifying a watery place, or from "Eia," the corrupt Latin equivalent of "insula = an island." The notion, that the name came from the one or the other of these words, seems to have originated with scholars better acquainted with the topography and physical conditions than with the records of the borough and its vicinity. Anyhow, the records of the borough countenance the suggestion that, instead of being derived from either "Ey" or "Eia," the Suffolk place-name is referable to the source which gave us so many cognate words, such as the corrupt Latin "haya" (spelt in more than half a dozen different ways), the Norman-French "haies," the modern French "haie," the provincial English "hays" (= enclosed pieces of grass-land), the "hay" grown in such enclosures, the "haws" (= enclosures pertaining to houses) of Dr. Johnson's Dictionary, the "ha-has" or sunk fences of English landscape-gardeners, and the "hay" final of at least a considerable proportion of the English place-names ending with "hay."

In the first year of Queen Elizabeth the men of Eye obtained Letters Patent of Insepeximus and Confirmation of successive Letters Patent dated by previous sovereigns,—to wit, Edward VI., Henry VIII., Henry VI., Henry V., and Henry IV.—in confirmation of a Charter of concessions made by King John in his seventh year to his men of Heya (hominibus nostris de Heya). From the noteworthy, though perhaps scarcely conclusive evidence of the aforesaid Letters Patent by Elizabeth and King John's aforesaid charter, it appears that Eya was spelt Heya in that King's time, a spelling of the local name that is preserved in the muniments of the borough from the middle of the sixteenth century. Conclusive evidence is also afforded by the muniments of the borough, that the men of six several parishes lying within the Honor of Eye, were bound in Edward the Second's time, and from time immemorial had been bound to repair the palings of their Lord's park. In one of the ensuing catalogues of this report, readers may find an abstract of an Inquisition for particulars touching the obligation of the men of Brundish, Tannington, Baddinham, Dynyngton, Laxfield, and Stradbrook, as tenants of the aforesaid honor, to repair these palissades (vulgariter palings). From the verdict of this inquisition (taken in 7 Edward II., before William Ormesby and Robert de Reydon at Eye, in the presence of Gilbert de Richton, bailiff of the King's Honor of Eye), it appears that the inhabitants of Brundish and Tannington were bound to repair 66½ perches, the inhabitants of Badingham to repair 40 perches, the inhabitants of Dynyngton to repair 57 perches, the inhabitants of Laxfield to repair 40 perches, and the inhabitants of Stradbrook to repair 56 perches of the palings of the Heya about their Lord's castle and park, as well as to keep in repair the Calceetum of the adjacent town of Heya alias Eya.

It is not surprising that this Royal Honor was known in the period of its wide extending power as Heya alias Heye Suffolk throughout the county, and that traditions of Heye-Suffolk and Heye-Suffolk-men have survived the Honor for so long a period. Wherever they went throughout the Kingdom, the tenants of the Royal Honor of Heye (in common with all other tenants of Royal Honors), enjoyed immunity from toll, stallage, and other local exactions;—a fact bitten into the minds of East Anglian residents, by the frequency with which so important an immunity was claimed by the men of Heye-Suffolk at all the ports and inland towns of the county. The toll-takers of East Anglia (a numerous class of officials in feudal England) seldom passed a day without being required to inspect a document under the seal of the Royal Honor's Steward, certifying that the bearer of the writing, as a tenant of Heya, was free of toll and other dues, to be demanded of less fortunate people. Hence it came to pass that the privileged Honor was known far and wide as Heye-Suffolk, and the privileged tenants were no less widely known as Heye-Suffolk-men. Hence also it came to pass that, surviving the Honor and the memory of its privileges, the name of the once favoured region lived on tradition's simple tongue to the comparatively recent period when a change of spelling put the original signification of the term altogether out of sight.

In the absence of grounds for thinking it possible that by an egregious mistake Queen Elizabeth confirmed the men of Eye in a charter which King John never granted to them, her afore-mentioned Letters Patent in confirmation of John's charter to the men of Heya would dispose critical readers to think that, instead of gaining it from "Ey" or "Eia," the town and Honor of Heye alias Eye derived their name from the Heya of their lord's stronghold, and the park-palings which certain tenants of the Honor were bound to repair, and that in having so acquired its designation the Suffolk borough resembles the Hague in Holland, which took its name from the Haga of the adjacent forest and hunting-ground. The question has, however, arisen whether so extraordinary a mistake was not made by Queen Elizabeth and in former time by Henry IV. By the men of Hythe co. Kent it is just now maintained, that the charter of King John's seventh year was granted to Hythe co. Kent, instead of to Eye co. Suffolk. Of course this contention is stoutly resisted by the men of Eye. It would ill-beseem the present reporter to offer an opinion on the value of arguments affecting the municipal dignity and privileges of the two sets of disputants. But I may observe, that the controversy in no way affects the evidence, that from the beginning of the fifteenth century the Suffolk Honor and borough were styled indifferently Heye and Eye, and that six parishes heretofore generally regarded as lying in "High Suffolk" lay in former time within the limits of the Royal Honor of Heye. To prove that Henry the Fourth's confirmation of John's charter "hominibus nostris de Heya," to the men of Eye co. Suffolk was based on a blunder, would not be to weaken the evidence that Eye-Suffolk was Heye-Suffolk, and that High-Suffolk was only another spelling of the same place-name.

With the exception of the certificate dated 6 January, 23 Henry VI., by John Waréyn, Steward of the Honor of Eye, and the Large Folio of Memoranda and transcripts of documents touching The Honor and Borough, which came under the present reporter's observation, through the courtesy of the Reverend Thomas Lee French, M.A., rector of Thrandeston, all the books and unbound writings described in the ensuing catalogues are preserved in the Town Hall of Eye.

11 Henry IV. to 18 Henry VII. A collection of yearly accounts (stitched together) of the Chamberleyns of the borough of Heya, of the Moor pertaining to the same borough; for the following years,—11-12 Henry IV.; 36-7 Henry VI.; 8-9, 13-14, 14-15, 21-22 Edward IV.; 1-2 Richard III.; 3-4, 4-5, 5-6, 7-8, 8-9, 16-17 Henry VII.—Also, later accounts of the Borough Chamberlains, in different lots of writings, for divers years in the reigns of Henry VIII., Edward VI., Mary, Elizabeth, and James; not undeserving of the attention of local antiquaries, but affording no details of historic moment.

11 Henry IV.—James I. A collection of yearly accounts (stitched together) of the Chamberleyns of the Moor of the borough of Heya, for the following years,—11-12 Henry IV.; 36-7 Henry VI.; 8-9, 13-14, 14-15, 21-22 Edward IV.; 1-2 Richard III.; and 3-4, 4-5, 5-6, 7-8, 8-9, 16-17 Henry VII.—Also later accounts of the Borough Chamberlains, in different lots and sets of writings, for divers years of Henry VIII., Edward VI., Mary, Elizabeth and James I. Affording no matters of historic moment, but numerous particulars deserving the consideration of local antiquaries.

6 January, 23 Henry VI. Certificate of John Wareyn, Steward at the Court and Keeper of the Seal of the Honor of Eye.—That all tenants of the said Honor are quit of toll, stallage, chiminage, pontage, panage, picage, murage, and passage throughout the whole kingdom as more plainly appears by Letters Patent of the present king dated at Westminster on the 14th of February in the 17th year of his reign (the said Letters Patent being recited in the present writing); and That William Mey of Stowmarket is a tenant in the town of Great Thornham co. Suffolk and sometimes resides in the said town of the Honor aforesaid, and is therefore to be held quit of the said dues and burdens. “Universitati vestre notifico,” run the concluding lines of the certificate, “quod Willelmus Mey de Stowmarket est tenens in Villa de Thornham Magna in comitatu Suffolcie et interdum in eadem villa residens super feodum Honoris predicti virtute quarum quidem literarum domini Regis supradicti eundum Willelmum de theoloneo, stallagio, chiminagio, pontagio, picagio, muragio et passagio de et pro bonis et rebus suis prestandis non distringatis set quietum esse permittatis virtute et tenore literarum predictarum prout omnes tenentes honoris predicti quiete esse hactenus consueverunt. In cujus rei testimonium presentibus sigillum dicti Honoris est appensum. Datum sexto die Januarii anno regni predicti domini nostri Regis Henrici Sexti post conquestum vicesimo tercio.” It is worthy of remark that in the Letters Patent of Henry VI., recited in this certificate the tenants “Honoris de Eye tam liberi quam alii” have enjoyed this immunity from Toll, stallage, &c. &c. “a tempore quo non exstat memoria.” This record does not belong to the borough, but is in the possession of the Rev. Thomas Lee French M.A. rector of Thrandeston, who submitted it to the notice of the present reporter, together with a Large Folio of Memoranda and copies of documents touching the Honor and Borough of Eye, made by his father Mr. Thomas French, Solicitor and several times one of the Bailiffs and afterwards Mayor of Eye. In this repertory of curious matters (under the heading "Copies of Official Documents concerning the Honor of Eye, Suffolk, taken from a 'Book of Remembrances concerning the Honor of Eye, Suffolk' made by Thomas Taylor in 1697, commencing with 24th Edward I., and which Book of Remembrances is with the Court Books of Honor and Manor of Eye Sohemere: The same copies being made by F. Woolnough in 1855,") appear the following entries—

(b) 7 Edward II. Inquisition with return, made before the escheator the Priory of Eye, after the death of Richard the late Prior.

(b) 7 Edward II. Inquisition with return, made before the eschaetor of the Lord King at Brundish by William Hoxne and other jurors, who with other things find it will not be to the loss of the King or others should he permit William de Bovile to grant the Manor of Dynnyngton co. Suffolk (three acres of arable land with the advowson of the church in the said town co. Suffolk excepted), held of the King as of the Honor of Eye &c. ; and that the Manor aforesaid is held of the Lord King and now rests in the King's hands, as of the Honour of Eye at a yearly rent of 7*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.*, by name of a fee-farm, for the reparation of fifty feet of the "calcetum" of Eye, with needful new timber of the Lord King and also of 50 perches of the fence about the park of Eye, also with requisite new timber of the King."

(c) 7 Edward II. Inquisition, with return, taken by the King's escheator citra Trentam at Brundish, by the oath of William de Hoxtoun and others, who say it will not be to the King's loss, or to the loss of others, should he give licence to William de Bovile to make a grant of three acres of arable land in Dynnington co. Suff., together with the advowson of the church of the same town.

(d) 7 Edward II. Inquisition, with return, before William Ormesby and Robert de Reydon at Eye, in the presence of Gilbert de Richton, bailiff of the King's Honor of Eye forewarned for that purpose, by the oath of Walter Fankum and others, Who say—That the men and tenants of the towns of Brundish, Tannington, Baddingham, Dynyton, Laxfield and Stradbrook—viz. the inhabitants of Brundish and Tannington for 66½ perches of the park-paling, about the King's park, and 80 feet of the calcetum of the town of Eye ; and the inhabitants of Baddingham for forty perches of the paling about the same park, and sixty-one feet of the "calcetum" aforesaid ; and the inhabitants of Dynnyngton for fifty-seven perches of the same paling about the same park, and sixty feet of the same "calcetum ;" and the inhabitants of Laxfield are responsible for forty perches of the aforesaid paling about the same park, and . . . feet of the same "calcetum" and the inhabitants of Stradbrook for 56 perches of the aforesaid paling about the said park and 68 of the said "calcetum"—are bound and beyond the memory of man have been bound to repair the paling about the park of the King's Honour of Eye and the "calcetum" of the town of Eye, by reason of the tenements held by them in the said towns as of the Honor aforesaid, and have been accustomed and ought to receive of the Bailiff of the said Honour the new timber and oak requisite for the said "calcetum" and the said "paling" ; and Who say that the same men and Tenentes have been accustomed to take of the livery of the said Bailiff and to dig in the soil of the said honor, and have been accustomed and ought to have new timber and old for the repair of the same calcetum and paling, and to have for their own use such residue of the felled timber as may be unsuited for the same repairs, &c. &c.

(e) 7 Edward II. Inquisition made by Peter Burgate and others, with return, that Robert Mallett founded the priory of Eye with his land and possessions &c., and the same priory is so subject "Abbas de Berniaco in Normannia tanquam cella ejusdem Abbacie," and that neither prior nor monk can be made in that priory without the will and assent of the Abbot of the said abbey.

for his sowle, we coulde not finde none in no place that was mete for us. I thanke Almighty God for it that it was my fortune that I desiered John Fanner to breake his faste withe me in the vicaridge the daye before New Yere in Christmas, and as we satte by the fyre we comonyd howe that the towne should lose this service the whiche should be greate rebuke on to all the towne. Then the holy goste putte hym in minde. Saythe Jhon Fanner, Sir saythe he to me, what woll you saye and I will selle you. My good Jhon Fanner, saide I unto hym, Maye you selle it. Yea for God maye I sell it for I bought it of my father and paide more for it than it was worthe. What shall I give you for it, x skore marke sayde he and rather then ye shoulde lose the service so that I and my frendes maye be partners of the prayers take it for ix skore marke, and I thought good to take hym in his good mynde, I toke hym a peice of gold, saeing on to hym in this maner, John Fanner this pece of gold I geve the on this condicion that ye shall geve me respecte to give you an answer till the sunne gooe downe on Suundaye next comynge, yf it be a bargayne, take that for your earnest penny and if so be it be no bargaine yet I gyve it you for yower good will, and for the respyte that you geve me in the matter. I went into the pulpet the next daye and shewed unto all the parishe that we were like to lose the services the whiche should be a greate rebuke to all the towne. How saye, now saide I unto them if I have bought a ground for you so that ye maye stonde in the church yard and see it, and I showed them how I had made a bargaine with John Fanner and showed them the daies of payment so that on Candlemas folowing he should have xxli. and at Candlemas next mening xxli., and so xli. a yere forthe till it were paied for, and if it be a bargaine because it for the comon wele speake all Una Voce and seye ye this was a godly hearinge; every man woman and childe saide yea yea, dyverse men gave x marke a peice women fower marke xxs. and xld. so that I gathered on Candlemas daye above xxli. we toke never a penny of this fower skore marke we desiered lond for it the whiche laye by John Fanner and I bought a peice of Watkin Pishmer the whiche John Fanner had sold hym before in his neade and I gave it for me and my frendes sowles, and on Candelmas daye at the first payment putte the preste in possession Mr. Prime and an other Sir Stephen, after hym Sir Webster, Mr. Dunston withe other moe. What mischevous men woll breake John Fiskes will and all sowles to be unprayed for thei that be most busyest gave never a penny to it. You Principal and the Vicar with the towne should se that it should goe to the use it was purchased for, for your Predecessors donne Richard Norwiche and Prior Belinges gave moche mony towards it. I feare me and it were for to doo it should never be doone I am Principall feffor in all the londes, I will se the sowlis shall not be deceyved with your good helpe and my Lord of Norwiche by Goddes grace, whose grace and mercy ever more preserve you and all Yours. (p) 21 June 1557. Letter from Sir Thomas Cornwaleys to the Bishop of Norwich.—After dew remembrance unto your good lordshippe, Whereas upon dyverse good and resonable considerations, whiche my servaunt this berer can report unto yow, to whom I praye yow gyve credens: I have moved my Lord Cardynalles grace for the unytyng of the Revenew of the parsonage of Eye to the vicerage there, which is a veraye poore and populous towne withinne the hundred of Hertysmere in Suffolk and withynne your Lordshippes diocess: Whereunto His Grace hath assentyd, and onely steyleth the performance theroff tyll he may be enformyd from your Lordshippe how requysyte you thynke my seid mocyon to take place as I have no dowte of Your Lordships good inclynacion and furtherance of so godly an acte, So have I thought good to desire the same spedlye to signifie over to my seide Lord's Grace your opynyon hereynne. Whiche I perswade my sylff shall agree with myne up on your good consyderacion of all cyrcumstances apperteynyng to this case.

I have further moved my seide Lordes Grace for his dispensacion in admytting the parson of Brome to the parsonage of Ocleve which are both of my gyft withynne the seide hundred, and not di [half] a myle dystance. And for the observyng of good and ordynary form in this behalff also before his graunte shall passe hereynne under seale he requyrethe your Lordship's advertisement accustomed in this behalff. The name of the seide parson is Syr Robert Fordham whois honestye and vertuous demeanour to the good example of the world nedethe not my consideration. And therfor I leve hym to the Report of the World and to Your Lordship's consideracion, praieing the same to gyve your advertysment of the man accordynglye and otherwyse as shalle belong to this sute. And so beyng readye to do Your Lordsheppe any pleasure that I may I take my leve, Your Lordship's to command, T. Cornwaleys.—Dated from the Court.

(g) 10 October, 1556. Letter from Sir William Cordall to the Bishop of Norwich. After my dew commendacions over to Your Lordshippe, Where as the same Sir Edward Waldegrave and I dyrected lettres to the Baylyves and certen Inhabitants of the Town of Eye for ther appearance before us t'answer suche compleynt as was made for abusyng of ther Towne land: It may please Your Lordship to understonde that the seide parties have in your absens this present daye ben before me and shewed me the evidences with declaracion of all circumstances apperteyning to the mater. And as upon consideracion of the same it may be thought, that the cheff intent and purpose as well of thois persons whiche gave lands, as also of thois that gave moneye towards the purchase of the seide Town landes was to meyntheyne a preste to praie for them in the same town, So it apperit on to me that ther was a meanyng in them also, That the same preste suld be a Scolemaster and lernyd in Latyn tunng to teache and trayne up the yowught of the towne in good lernyng and vertu, And accordyngly thexpens theroff hat hytherto ben. Wherefore knowyng Your Lordship's to be, and it is most agreeabill with reason to restore the thyng to his former lawdable and right nature, I have with thassentes off theym and of the compleynantes travellyd with them and ordered the mater in this Forme; That is to sey that from tyme to tyme suche a preste shuld be chusen by the Vicar and Balyves off the towne for the tyme beyng as shuld be habill to teache Grammar there and none at all to be chosen as Scolemaster except he be also a preste. With whiche myne order for asmooche as thei seme well satisfied and have promysyd to putt the same in execucion with all convenient expedicion, and have also graunted that thei wull conferre the hool yerely revenues of all suche landes as heretofore have bene at anye tyme employed to the meyntenance of the Prest and Scolemaster his service, Upon suche as shall here after supplie the same Romes to thende he may be the more wylling to praye for them and hable to teach ther children, I therefore fyndyng this good conformyte in them shalle require your Lordshippe that yow wull pardon theym of ther former mysdemeanours in this behalff, And also discharge them of suche personall apperance as thei are bound to make before your Chauncellor the next Weddynysday to answer in the mater, Wherynne I have undertakyn thei shall be no furdre combred upon ther promyse for the performance of thordre afforeseide. So I take my leve of your Good Lordship from my poore howse Melleford Hall in Suffolk the x of October 1556.—Your Lordshippes most Assured to command, convenyent, beyng credibly enformed that the seid Eye is a veray poore and populus towne, And the lyvyng for the Vicar ther terre insuffycient to meyntheyne a convenyent mynster to serve in so greate a towne, Wher now one Richard Thurketyll ther Master of Arte beyng of lx yeares is vycar and hathe long tyme contynewed there, And is a man well worthye to receyve suche a benefyte as the parsonage ther, whiche is of the yerly revenue of xiiij*li*. vjs. viij*d*., Whereby he mowght be able to meyntheyne some hospitalyte ther, Which were verye convenient for the better relieffe of his poore parisheners, And yett the same is now omytted throw lack of lyvyng, And as concernyng Your Graces dispensacion for the Parcon of Brome to receyve the parsonage of Ocleye aforesaid I thinke it also convenient, havyng perfecte intelligence that Sir Robert Fordham now parson of Brome aforesaid is a Catholike and honest man and thone of the churches not halff a mylle distant from the other and the revenue of both parsonages not above . . . by yere; and so with my praier to Allmighty God for the preservation of Your Grace I take my leave of the same the xith of August 1557.

I sende on to Your Grace heerewith suche letters as Sir Thomas Cornwalleis hathe written on to me in this behalff. And furdur I certyfy Your Grace that the parsons before namyd were never maryed or professed in any religion, but have contynewed seculer prestes honestly behavyng themselves from tyme to tyme unto this present.

It was hoped by some of the few gentlemen of Eye, who take an intelligent interest in the antiquities of the borough, that in my examination of the municipal archives I should come, if not on the volume itself, at least upon some new evidence touching the long-lost Red Book of Eye, respecting which Leland observes in the "Collectanea":—

CORPORATION

"Eyenses adhuc servant Evangeliorum Librum, reliquias exhausti cœnobitii, et a vulgo 'Ruber Liber de Eye' vocatum per quem apud vulgus solenne est jurare. Monachi constanter affirmant librum fuisse Felicis, et certe verisimile est, nam præterquam quod sit scriptum literis magnoculis Longobardicis, refert vetustatem mire venerandam." In the present century (possibly also in earlier time) the muniments of the borough have been repeatedly searched by zealous antiquaries in the hope of recovering this literary treasure. So late as 16 October 1848 Mr Hudson Gurney wrote to Sir Henry Willoughby, "and as you are in the neighbourhood of Eye I wish you would enquire whether the Corporation of Eye have still the Gospels of St. Felix." Four days later Mr. Thomas French (the scholarly solicitor of Eye, whose 'Folio of Memoranda and Transcripts' demonstrates his familiarity with the ancient writings of the borough) penned this memorandum:—"Of the Red Book of Eye I had heard, but though I have several times had occasion to examine the Records of the Borough, I have never been able to discover the book, or anything regarding its hiding or disappearance." All the present reporter can do for the satisfaction of general curiosity on this matter is to acknowledge with regret that, after scrutinizing every volume and document of Eye MSS., he is powerless to make any addition to the little that is known of the missing book. There is of course no reason to despair of the eventual recovery of the manuscript, which may be concealed in a collection of writings already undergoing official inspection. It is however certain that the book has passed from the hands of its rightful owners. It may be confidently predicted that should it ever reappear the lost Red Book will not come to light in the Town-Hall of Eye.

SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT.

Immediately after the visit of Mr. J. C. Jeaffreson, the Corporation of Plymouth made arrangements for a thorough examination of their papers from the earliest dates down to the year 1835, when the ancient municipality was replaced by the modern Town Council. In the course of the prosecution of this work a very large number of documents which had not come under the notice of Mr. Jeaffreson were brought together from different quarters. The more important of these form the subject of the present supplemental report. Many of these papers had been found in odd corners, under the roof of the old Guildhall; many others had become mixed with more modern papers; still others, casually missing, were collected in various ways; and the most important item of all, a large folio volume of Receivers' Accounts, giving a complete financial history of the borough and numerous details of historic value, was discovered by accident among the Archives of a private family and restored to its original owners. The whole of the older muniments are now classified and arranged in boxes, and so catalogued that they are all available for reference. The present report follows the arrangement adopted by Mr. Jeaffreson, to whose labours it is but supplementary.

1.—Receivers' Book, 1569-1658. This is the important volume of borough accounts, which was found among the papers of the Morshead family of Widey Court, in January 1880, and restored by them to the Corporation. The volume was in the possession of the Mayor and Commonalty on June 17, 1679, when it was shown in evidence, as noted therein, in a cause pending between them and Richard Strode. Since then there is no evidence that it was ever in the hands of the Corporation, though the probability is that it remained with them until one of the mayoralties of John Morshead, 1753-4 and 1762-3, and then being removed for some purpose was by accident omitted to be returned. It contains 600 folio pages and is by far the most valuable volume of the Corporate accounts, which its recovery renders complete for just four centuries; and it contains numerous references to general as well as to local history. As an illustration of the character of its contents the following extracts may be made:—

1569-70. Town Customs farmed to Thomas Edmonds, father of Sir Thomas Edmonds the statesman, at 5*l*.

In witness of our desire herein we have hereunto sett our hands. Yeoven the daie and yere above wrytten." This is signed by all the leading Plymouth merchants of the day, of which it furnishes a tolerably complete list. Several of the names hold a prominent place not merely in local but in national history,—“John Blytheman, John Waddon, John Trelawny, Robert Trelawny, Thomas Sherwill, Thomas Fownes, Jon Battersby, Jno. Clement, John Fowell, Rory Cary, Tho. Reynardson, Abraham Colmer, William Brevys, Leonard Pomerey, Jno. Madocke, Thomas Wolridge, Richard Breantin, Nicholas Sherwill, Robert Rawlyn, John Bound, William Hele, . . . Thomas, John Jope, Moyses Goodyeare, Rich Raddon, Jerome Roch, Ric Gayer, John Paige, Thomas Crampporne, Philip Andrew, Johannis Harris, Water Carkett, Richard Morhowse.”

(pp.) 1627. Letter in French from Rochelle, much defaced, apparently on private business.

(qq.) July 1627. One month's assessment of Vennars Ward “Towards the reliefe as well of such poore as are or shalbe infected or suspected to be sicke of the plague” and also for the purpose of an Act 1 James I. The list is a remarkable one. Sixty-seven names are given; against twenty-seven of these are the words “not in town”; and of the remainder fifteen refused to pay; while others are noted as “not able.” Of those who had left the town some had evidently been looked up, for in addition to their absence their names are noted “will not.” “Dead” is entered in six cases. Only a third appear to have paid.

(rr.) 1628. Monthly assessment of Old Town Ward to the relief of the poor. The list contains the name of “Theodore Palliologus” as rated at one halfpenny per week. This is the Palæologus who has been styled the last descendant of the Greek Emperors of Constantinople, and is buried in Landulph Church, Cornwall.

(ss.) 1642. “A 2*d*. rate for and towards the repaire and setting upp of the gates of this borough and other provisions for the necessary defence and safetiē of the borrough according to an order of Parliament and to and with the assent of such as are hereafter rated made the 11th day of October 1642.” The total is given at 40*l*. 18*s*. 6*d*. There are 203 names, and the refusals to pay number eight, though a few others say they are unable. Being a voluntary rate it is useful as an indication of the strength of the popular feeling in the town. This was for Vintry Ward.

(tt.) "A seconde rate" for the same purpose for Loo Street Ward, made the same day and year. There are 98 names, and no refusals Total 24*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* There were two other wards, Vennars and Old Town.

(uu.) 1649. Decree in suit concerning a hogshead of beer and one William Warren.

(vv.) 10 April 1624. Memorandum of receipt by Mayor and Commonalty of Beaton Cowch, widow, executrix of Robert Cowch of Moteley, of 20*l.* bequeathed by him to the use of poor artificers, to be lent them gratis from year to year.

(ww.) 31 May 1625. Order from the Privy Council to Sir Warwick Hele and others to commit one Peter Grisling to gaol, for falsely and scandalously accusing the Mayor and Commonalty of Plymouth of misappropriating charitable trusts. Signed G. Cant, Jo. Lincoln, James Ley, W. Mandevill, George Hay, T. Edmondes, Jo. Suckling, Robt. Naunton, Hum. May.

(xx.) Order (undated) by the Mayor and Commonalty in "consideration of the good and faithfull service which wee hereafter expect to be doune unto us by George Hele of Plymouth, Joyner, and by James Baron his apprentice . . . in the office of a drummer in theise perilous tymes of danger" discharging the said George from "all watches and wards," Hele in return covenanting for himself and for Baron as long as he remained his apprentice, that they will faithfully serve the office of town drummer.—Draft.

(yy.) 18 Sept. 1627. Bond of Thomas Luscombe and John Mattawt to the Mayor and Commonalty, holding them harmless in respect of all charges concerning an apprentice named Edward Luscombe.

(zz.) 24 March 1628. Acquittance by John Scobell to the Mayor and Commonalty of all monies laid out by him on their behalf.

(aaa.) Accounts of receipts and disbursements in connection with the death of Leonard Pomery. February 1628. Also a list of debts due to him and unpaid.

(bbb.) 29 Dec. 1628. Memorandum of delivery by the order of the Mayor to George Elliott, mariner, of a gold ring, a silver beaker parcel gilt, four silver spoons with gilt heads, and one silver whistle, which had been placed in the custody of the Mayor when Elliott's wife died "in the time of the last plauge."

(ccc.) A receipt from the Treasurer of Merchants of Exeter for money collected in the port of Plymouth for the French composition 1632-33.

(eee.) 1647. Extracts from the will of William Hele.

(fff.) 21 Dec. 1667. Bond of Thomas Reddicliff to the Mayor and Commonalty, holding them harmless against the consequences of a marriage to be solemnized between Nehemiah Standen and Grace Parnell.

(ggg.) 7 Sept. 1656. Acknowledgement by Timothy Alsop, of his indebtedness to the Mayor and Commonalty in 100*l.* "being for so much due to the gift house erected by Thomas Fownes."

(hhh.) 7 Dec. 1652. John Hele to Henry Rexford concerning tithe. From London to Rexford, at his house at Plymouth.

(iii.) 5 April 1654. Nich. Clift (? to his cousin Henry Rexford) touching various matters of legal business "Dr. Walker . . . hath promised several Marchants that now hee will sett time apart to Dispatch the Portingall Buseness." Apparently from London.

(xxx.) 1788. Engrossed patent of freedom to the Duke of York.

(yyy.) Lines upon Drake in 18th century handwriting, unsigned and undated.

What fitter name than Drake could he obtaine
Whose work ennobled hath both land & maine
The maine with golden wings he flew throughout Whose watry armes the world inthwines about:
The first that taught (what none had done before)
A Carrack to salute the English shore.
On Land his sworde the choicest gold did gleane
From St. Domingo, Jago, Carthagene,
And that our Drake might David paralel
A mass of Man, a Gyant he did quell.
May we not then Drake the tenth worthy call
Or rather stile him abstract of them all.

Overleaf there are
How that in eighty-eight that dreadful yeere
Amongst the greatst thy service madst appeare
Thou that refreshdst this thirsty towne with springgs.

Most of these are only of local interest, and illustrative of the manners and customs of the unreformed Corporation. The following have a more general value:—

(a.) 1801. Patent of freedom to Lord Nelson, presented in person January 1801:—"To all to whom these presents shall come Know ye that We the Mayor and Commonalty of the Borough of Plymouth, in the County of Devon, considering the many and important services rendered to this Country by that truly Great and Illustrious Hero, the Right Honourable Horatio Lord Nelson, Baron Nelson of the Nile; Vice-Admiral of the Blue in his Majesty's Navy; and particularly his gallant, spirited, and magnanimous conduct at the Battle with the French Fleet off the mouth of the Nile, on the first and second days of August one thousand seven hundred and ninety-eight; Have conferred and by these presents Do confer on the said Right Honourable Horatio Lord Nelson, Baron Nelson of the Nile, All the rights and privileges of a Freeman of this ancient Borough, In Testimony of such his highly meritorious conduct and services. Given at the Mayoralty House of the said Borough, under our Common Seal, this twenty-second day of January, one thousand eight hundred and one."

(b.) 1801. Series of papers and notices relative to riots in the Plymouth market, March 1801, arising from the scarcity and dearth of provisions.—April 11 following, the magistrates address a letter to the Duke of Portland (draft preserved) "Our stock of Corn and Flour is very nearly exhausted, the engagements for importation of Corn and Flour into the Port are very trifling, and we venture to assure your Grace that we have not under hand much more than sufficient to complete the different engagements made with the Victualling Board." As one mode of lessening the difficulties the Board had been requested by same post to release the Contractors from their engagements. "But your Grace will perceive that this measure can only remove the evil to a somewhat greater distance. We have therefore most earnestly to request such further aid as to his Majesty's Government may seem meet. And we are grieved to add that we are so circumstanced that we feel it impossible to answer for any continuance of the publick peace."—Draft of letter from the Mayor to Duke of Portland, April 15, 1801, stating the circumstances of the riots. Some of the bakers and butchers had been frightened into selling bread and meat at reduced prices. "I am happy to assure your Grace that the town is now tranquil, and that a great number of respectable tradesmen have been sworn in Constables for the preservation of the publick peace. But I am in hopes that the measures about to be adopted in this town for putting in execution the Act passed in the present year of his Majesty's reign for affording Relief to the poor and such persons as may want assistance will quiet the minds of the people, and effectually prevent a disposition to riot in future."

(c.) 6 June 1801. Draft letters from P. Langmead, Mayor, to the Duke of Portland, touching the landing of two aliens from a fishing boat.—Lewis Meagher O'Brien and Nicholas Matthew de Longuemane.

(d.) Draft-letter, undated, from the Mayor of Plymouth to the Duke of Portland, reporting the private landing and proceeding to Falmouth from the French cartel Eliza, of Nantz, of a Frenchman named Milon Canon.

(e.) 1801. Release of title to lands in Germany, 13th August, 1801, by Nathan Joseph Altmann, before P. Langmead, Mayor.

(f.) 1803-4. Correspondence concerning order of sessions for transportation of Ann Croot. September 1803 to January 1804. She was sentenced to seven years' transportation for stealing a shawl, a mason's hammer and a trowel, but the Inspector of Convicts refused to send her away, alleging that in consequence of her age and weak health she would die on the passage.

(g.) Pardon under the Royal Sign Manual for the said Ann Croot. Jan. 9, 1804.

(h.) October 1804. Report of the visit to Plymouth and Launceston of "a foreigner of suspicious appearance," to the Alien Office. He proved to be the Duc de Montpensier, and to have received an exemption from the Alien regulations.

(i.) 1804, et seq. Papers relating to actions between Lord Cochrane and the Corporation, arising out of the conduct of the impress service.

(1.) Draft of letter from James Elliott, Mayor, Dec. 27, 1804, requesting Lord Cochrane to attend at the Guildhall on the following day to answer the complaint of two of the constables of the borough for having violently assaulted them and wounded one of them in the execution of their duty. (2.) Holograph letter from Lord Cochrane to the Mayor in reply:—"His Majesty's ship Pallas, Hamoaze, 28 Dec. 1804. Sir, I received your letter of yesterday's date this day at 12 o'clock. If any one has cause of complaint let the due course of law be followed. Sir, your most obed^t servant, Cochrane. Mr Elliott, Plymouth." (3.) Summons to Lord Cochrane, Jan. 1, 1805. To this no attention was paid and the next document in order is (4.) Warrant to apprehend Lord Cochrane, Jan. 21, 1805. (5.) Memorandum that "Mr Sutherland was present at the Mayor's house when the Mayor told Lt Crawley that he would render every assistance to Lord Cochrane in his power—that he declined to back the warrant, but sent his servant with orders to the town serjeant to procure as many constables as Lt. Crawley would desire to assist him." (6.) Sept. 1805. Draft of return of magistrates to writ of certiorari to remove Lord Cochrane's indictment from B.C. to K.B. [Borough Court to King's Bench.] (7.) "James Elliott, Esquire, Bill of costs in the business of Lord Cochrane, 380*l.* 18*s.* 10*d.*" Three actions are entered, one against the Mayor and others, for assaulting Lieut. Crawley and others, of the Pallas, another against the Mayor and others, for assaulting Lord Cochrane and James Sunderland whilst employed in the impress service (in both of these judgment was given for the defendants); and the third Rex v. Cochrane, in which a plea of misnomer was delivered in the name of Thomas.

(j.) Dec. 1804. Information against the workmen of a sailcloth factory, for unlawfully conspiring to raise their wages.

(k.) 1805. "Orders in case of an alarm of the approach of the enemy to this Garrison. Plymouth Aug^t 19, 1805. Should an alarm be given of the approach of an Enemy to this Garrison by day 3 Guns will be fired in quick succession from Mount Wise, which will be answer'd by the same number of Guns from St. Nicholas's Island and the Citadel. Should the alarm first reach the Citadel or St. Nicholas's Island the same number of Guns will be fired in a similar manner as before directed from the Post first alarm'd and answer'd by the other Posts. Should the alarm be given by night the Guns will be fired as before order'd and three Rockets let off immediately after. The officer commanding Maker heights is also directed to fire three Guns in like manner and set fire to the Beacon in the Event of the Alarm first reaching his Post and to answer the alarm by the other Posts by firing 3 Guns, but he is to be very carefull not to fire the Beacon until he is perfectly sure that there is good grounds for so doing. Immediately on the Alarm being made the different Regiments and Corps in the Garrison, including the Volunteers, will order their drums to beat to arms and the whole will immediately repair to their respective Regimental Parades and wait for orders from Lieut. Gen. England. The officers and non-commissioned officers commanding those Posts are desired to give positive orders to their centinals to be very watchfull and be attentive both by day and night to those signals and upon the first alarm they are to call out the guard and to acquaint the commander of such a circumstance having taken place, who will immediately despatch a man to communicate the same to Lieut. Gen. England at the Citadel and the Corps in the neighbourhood of his Post."

(l.) 18 March, 1806. Copy of printed proclamation for the apprehension of Lieut. Rutherford, escaped from the Salvadore del Mundo at Plymouth, charged with the murder by excessive punishment of three of the seamen of H.M.S. Trident, of which he had been acting Captain.

(m.) 1 August 1807.—Letters from R. C. Campion, under Sheriff to Joseph Whiteford, deputy town clerk, that a Spaniard named Cajetano Canado had been ordered to be executed at Plymouth. 3 Aug. 1807. Ditto to ditto touching arrangement of details of execution. Canado was a prisoner of war.

(n.) March, April, and May 1808. Information and correspondence touching the proceedings of a person "who pretended to be Earl Howe, Governor of Plymouth." He proved to be a madman. Application was made to Lieut. Gen. England in command of the garrison, and to Lord Hawkesbury, for the payment of the expenses incurred by the Mayor and corporate officials in keeping the pretender in custody and in sending him to London, but without result.

(o.) "Copy of the expenses that were laid out and paid by D. Mill at the election for Cornwall." Undated.

(p.) Notice concerning the presentation of the freedom of the Borough to the Duke of Wellington.

(q.) 18 April 1815. J. Beckett to the Mayor of Plymouth. "I have Lord Sidmouth's directions to acquaint you that Mr. Seymour Larpent and Mr. Charles King have been appointed on behalf of the British and American Governments respectively to proceed forthwith to Dartmoor for the purpose of investigating the circumstances attending the late unfortunate event in the Prison at that place. For the purpose of executing their Commission it will be necessary that these Gentlemen should have the assistance of the Civil Authorities of that district for the purpose of calling witnesses and administering oaths. I am therefore to request that you would take the trouble of attending the Enquiry above alluded to, and of rendering such assistance to the Gentlemen above-mentioned as may be necessary in the course of their investigation, and that you would solicit some other magistrate to accompany you on this important occasion for the same purpose."—20 April 1815. Draft reply that the Mayor is absent "but I conceive it has escaped your Lordship's recollection, that the Magistrates of a Borough, having local jurisdiction only, cannot administer oaths or compel the attendance of witnesses on subjects occurring out of their limits. Mr. Jonathan Elford of Upland or Mr. John Hawker of this Town are both county magistrates and have been in the habit of attending at Dartmoor when the interference of civil officers have been required, and these gentlemen will be ready to attend your Lordship's direction."

(z.) 13 July 1827. Autograph answer of "His Royal Highness the Lord High Admiral [The Duke of Clarence] to the address of congratulation."

(aa.) 19 Sept. 1828. "List of disorderly women found in Publick houses in the Borough." Curious as anticipating the C.D. acts. The women, whose names are given, were "brought into the Workhouse diseased."

(bb.) Oct. 1828. Two letters from B. R. Haydon the painter, concerning the appointment of a member of his family to the navy. The first begins "Like a true Freeman, who has given his vote—I am now going to ask a favour." The vote was in connexion with the election of Mayor.

(cc.) 11 Sept. 1830. Letter, dated Whitehall, asking on behalf of Prince Esterhazy for a certified copy of the registry of baptism of the daughter of a Tuscan subject, M. Benoit Soldelli, born at Plymouth in 1812, and baptized there by a French priest.

(dd.) Draft petition from the members of the Plymouth Medical Society (undated) asking facilities for the procuring of subjects for dissection.

(ee.) May 1822. Two long and curious letters from John Kitto, afterwards the Biblical scholar, to his friend and early patron Mr. Burnard, clerk of the Plymouth Hospital of the Poor's Portion or workhouse. They were written immediately before the hearing of a summons which had been taken out against the shoemaker Bowden, to whom he had been bound as a parish apprentice; and they set forth in very quaint fashion the leading points of his case, together with his hopes and fears. The first opens thus:—"May 1st, 1822, Sir, I write this to furnish you with answers to any accusation my master may prefer against me—by way of retort for my complaint. I am tortured by expectation—alternate hope and fears—tho' the last are more predominant, for I have lived long enough to know that the right is not always successfull. I admit the probability that magistrates may be deceived. I shudder when I think seriously of such a result—to avert my remaining there I would not scruple to ——— do what—run away? No Sir, something more effectual. E're yet again O Moon! thou shinest my fate will be decided—well! be it so. When I look back on the past I could weep—when on the present I shudder—when on the future I am agonized. Sir, dearest, kindest, best, be at the Guildhall,—exert yourself to the utmost on my behalf. Save me! sir, O save me!" Kitto was then nearly 18, and the letters are characteristic illustrations both of the earlier literary style which he acquired while a boy in the workhouse, and of the strength of his feelings. The cancelling of his indentures which followed on the hearing of this case, was the first practical step in his literary career.

With these as affecting the liberties and government of the town may be classed the copies of certain Inquisitions and Acts of Parliament, some of which were made as early as the 16th century. There are several entries in the Receivers' Accounts showing that frequent searches were made at the Tower and elsewhere, for the discovery of documents relating to the Town.

1281. Paper copy (made 1663) of Inquisition take at Exeter before Salamone de Roffe and his associates Justices Itincrant, on the Octave of St. Martin, 9 Edward I. (1281), touching the manors of Sutton, Maketon and Kings Tamerton "cum filo aqua de Tamar." Imperfect.

1385. Paper copy of the proceedings of an Inquisition taken on the complaint of the Prior of Plympton, lord of the town of Sutton, touching the invasion of his liberties by one Humphry Passour, Mayor of Sutton Prior. 8 Richard II. (1385). The Inquisition was held at Ekebokeland (Egg Buckland) on the Wednesday next after the feast of the Holy Trinity, the year above mentioned, before Walter Cornn and Richard Gripeston. Verdict for the Prior.

Paper copies of proceedings in the Court of King's Bench in the reigns of Edward IV. and Henry VII. touching the right of the Mayor of Plymouth to cognizance of pleas for debt. Right confirmed.

1463. Paper copy of Act 3 Edward IV. (1463) to reduce the fee farm rent of 40*l.* paid by the Mayor and Commonalty of Plymouth to the Prior and Convent of Plympton, to 29*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Imperfect.

1534. Paper copy of Act 25 Henry VIII. (1534) by which the rent of 29*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* is discontinued, and in lieu thereof "the parsonages of Ugborough and Black Auton were impropriated to the said Pryor and vicarages thereof newly created and their indowments certainly sett downe."

1545. Paper copy of Grant of Henry VIII. for the discharge of the 29*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* rent. Dated May 6 1545. Under the Act of 1534 the cessation of the rent was made contingent upon the livings being vacated and falling into the hands of the Prior and Convent.

UNBOUND RECORDS RELATING TO THE WATER PROPERTY OF THE TOWN.

Circa 1530. Tracing of map of Plymouth.

1585. 27 Elizabeth. Copy of Water Act.

1592. Draft on paper. Copy of award of compensation for the lands traversed by or taken for the Plymouth leat, with names of all the landowners and tenants, and the amounts awarded to each, after the "verie value" at the rate of sixteen years purchase. "Made the fivethe daie of Julye in the fower and Thirthith yere of the Reigne of our soveraigne Lady Elyzabeth by the grace of godd Queene of England Fraunce and Ireland Defender of the faithe, &c. Between Sir Edmond Anderson knighte, lorde cheyf Justice of the Courte of Comon plees, and Thomas Gent, Stroud, Baron of her Majesties Courte of Exchequer, Justices of Assize of the Countie of Devon of thone partie, and the Mayor and Commonaltie of the Boroughe of Plimouth in the said Countie of thother partie."

1603 (?). Undated original draft of agreement between Thomas Drake, the Mayor and Commonalty, and William Crymes.

1603. Agreement between the parties aforesaid settling a dispute which had arisen in consequence of alleged encroachments by Crymes on the rights of the first and second parties.

1628. Grant by Francis Drake, first baronet, of moiety of grist mills, fields, &c. for residue of original terms of 67 years granted by Mayor and Commonalty to Sir Francis Drake, Knight. Made to William Hele, Thomas Sherwell, and Matthias Nicholls, executors of Robert Rawlings on behalf of the Hospital of Orphan's Aid.

1653. Copy of conveyance of the fourth part of the mills for the Mayor and Commonalty to Robert Gubbes and Philip Francis, in trust for the Hospital of Orphans' Aid.

1605. Lease and release in fee of the same.

1627 onwards. Mill accounts of various dates.

Curious undated early 17th century map of leat and mills at Plymouth, on parchment.

1612 onward. Leases of various dates, of fulling, malt, grist, tucking and paper mills within the borough, and of the water of the leat for various purposes.

1746. Agreement signed by the holders of public houses within the borough to grind all the malt used by them at the borough mills.

UNBOUND RECORDS RELATING TO CHURCH AFFAIRS.

In addition to the writings calendared by Mr. Jeaffreson, the following have been found:—

1632. Grant of next presentation of vicarage of St. Andrew by Mayor and Commonalty, after the death or other vacation of Henry Wallis, to Alexander Grosse.

1633. Covenant and bond by Grosse with the Mayor and Commonalty.

1633. Draft of case concerning points in dispute in consequence of refusal to institute Grosse and appointment of Aaron Wilson.

Undated. Draft of lease of tithes from Aaron Wilson to William Symons.

10 May 1637. Decree of the Court of Star Chamber in a dispute between Aaron Wilson and Mayor and Commonalty. Not enough proof of the charge made by Wilson that the Mayor and Commonalty had encroached upon his rights, by building shambles and other houses on part of the churchyard, and building a hospital where the vicar had anciently a house. The charges for burials to remain as before, but to be collected by the churchwardens; the disposal of the pews to remain with the vicar and churchwardens, the chancel with the Mayor and Commonalty. This is a copy only.

1637. Order from Bishop of Exeter regulating burials in accordance with this decree.

1646. Counterpart of deed by George Hughes, Vicar of St. Andrews, resigning all his property in the vicarage, much decayed by reason of the siege, to the Mayor and Commonalty for an annuity of 200*l*.

1655. Another counterpart of deed by Hughes to a similar effect.

1657. Leases of tithes, &c. of St. Andrews from Mayor and Commonalty to Arthur Bickford—three years at 50*l*. a year.

Deeds relating to Charles Church, including in addition to those already recorded:—

(a.) 1638. Deed of bargain and sale by Thomas Gifford, of Halsbury, of "a parcell of ground" near Hampton Shute, in the tenure of Robert Trelawny, to William Warren for 15*l*.

(b.) 22 Aug. 1665. Grant by the Mayor and Commonalty to William Warren, vintner, in consideration of his gift of the site of Charles Church, of a piece of land for burial, eight feet from east to west, and six feet from north to south, next "adjoining to the east and north walls of the place now commonly called the chancel in Charles Church" and also a seat fourteen feet six inches from east to west and three feet six inches from north to south "to hear divine service and the word of God preached."

(c.) 1665. Instrument of Consecration of Charles Church by Bishop Seth Ward.

(d.) Copy of portion of will of Sir John Gayer, with bequests for church purposes and charities. Proved 1657.

1801-1829. A parcel of papers connected with the appointment of lecturer in St. Andrewes Church, which was made by the Corporation, but which has now ceased.

Papers, various dates, 1808 onward, touching the seats of the Corporation in St. Andrews Church. They are said to have held over 80 of the best sittings at least from 1637. Among the letters is a curious application from a lady claiming a seat in the common council pews in right of her father, and complaining that other ladies whose rights had lapsed by reason of their relatives being no longer members of the Corporate body retained the places to which they had been accustomed. Disputes about precedence between the wives and daughters of the aldermen and councillors had been of frequent occurrence and led to the passing of sundry bye laws.

UNBOUND RECORDS RELATING TO CHARITIES.

15 Feb. 1626. Copy of probate of will of Robert Rawlyn, leaving various gifts to the poor, and the residue of his property to the Hospital of Orphan's Aid.

1659. Grant of a rent charge of 10s. for the almshouses, out of land adjoining the road from Hampton Shute to Plymouth.

1615-1661. Accounts of various years connected with the Hospital of Orphan's Aid, including those of the erection of the building.

1644-1658. Documents of various kinds connected with the Hospital of Poor's Portion, including—

(a.) 1644. Memorandum of bequest by Hugh Williams.

(b.) 1649. Grant by John Maynard and Elize Stert.

(c.) 1652. Depositions in case between Hospital of Poor's Portion and Edward Yard and others.

(d.) 1657. Bond from Mayor and Commonalty to Poor's Portion.

(e.) 1658. Counterpart of grant of annuity of 30*l.* out of shambles to Poor's Portion.

Various dates Deeds relating to Tor or "Oaten Arishes."

1720-1837. Accounts of Almshouses Wardens.

MISCELLANEOUS UNBOUND WRITINGS.

1381. 4 Richard II. Release by William Okelegh of Plymouth to William Wrouke of the same place, of a tenement and garden in "Lo ward de Sutton Vautort." The oldest original document of the series.

1479 onwards. Deeds relating to various properties in the town, many of a private character and all of local interest, which do not call for enumeration here.

Borough Court Papers of various dates from the reign of Henry VIII. down to its discontinuance, 1842. Only a portion of the documents of the 16th and 17th centuries remain.

1594. Feoffment by Sergeant Hele to Thomas Crane of property in Catherine lane.

1568. Copy on vellum of the ancient bye laws of Sutton Pool. Original.

1608. Articles of enquiry with regard to Sutton Pool and the right of the Duchy of Cornwall therein.

Conclusion "It doth not appear that the soil is the King's, neither hath the Prince any land in the town of Plymouth."

Among the other records relating to Sutton Pool there may be noted:—

(a.) 1601. Counterpart of William Parker's lease of the old Cawse—a causeway or pier at the entrance of the Pool, erected probably in the fourteenth century.

CORPORATION
PLYMOUTH
MSS.

(b.) 1621. Lease of Sutton Pool from Charles Prince of Wales to John Sparke and Edmund Fowell.

(c.) 1639. Mortgage by Peter Hendra and William Warren of Sutton Pool, and assignment to Hospital of Orphan's Aid.

(d.) 1663. Papers connected with a suit brought by Lord Arundel against the Mayor and Commonalty, claiming Sutton Pool as lessee under the Duchy of Cornwall, in which the town was cast.

29 Sept. 1657. Conveyance by Thomas Fownes to the Mayor and Commonalty in consideration of 288*l.*, of 18*l.* fee farm rent arising out of the rectory and church of Egg Buckland, which formerly belonged to the Priory of Plympton. (Burrough's Gift.)

17 June 1657. Decree from the Exchequer ordering John Hele to pay the rent as aforesaid to Fownes, who had purchased it in 1637.

1651. Copy of Will of John Hele.

14 May 1722. Copy of deputation appointing Richard Waddon Town Clerk.

12 Feb. 1725. Copy of deputation appointing Aaron Baker Town Clerk.

12 Sept. 1764. Resignation to Philip Vyvyan of the office of Town Clerk in consideration of 100*l.*

Sept. 1768. Resignation by John Heath (afterwards Judge) of the office of Town Clerk.

9 Jan. 1769. Appointment of Charles Fanshawe Town Clerk.

— Bond by same not to absent himself from the Borough more than 14 days at a time without leave, save at assize and term times.

30 March 1791. Election of Richard Rosdew, coroner, in the place of George Woodward Mallett.

1768. Opinion of John Dunning, afterwards Lord Ashburton, concerning the Mayor's Office as Clerk of the Market.

Various dates. Drafts of old deeds and paper copies of examinations under the Court of Chancery, mostly 17th century, connected with the neighbourhood, but not with the Corporation, and of little interest. With these may be classed a bundle of shorthand reports of sermons. (1649-50).

Various dates. Papers connected with the rights and privileges of freemen and the election of mayors and aldermen from 1800 to 1830.

There remain a large mass of papers of the earlier part of the nineteenth century, for the most part of only local interest, and in other respects associated with the current business of the municipality, and therefore not fitted to be dealt with here. A memorandum made in 1830, when search was made for missing documents, gives the names of twelve persons with whom it was believed some of the records might be found. It is possible, therefore, that more may yet be collected, though at present there does not seem to be any prospect of this.
